I have commissioned work to release information regarding the nationality of benefits claimants at the point of registration for a national insurance number. I hope to make these preliminary statistics available shortly. In addition, I have asked my officials to look in to ways of capturing nationality information at source.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking to tackle benefit fraud in Peterborough constituency; and if he will make a statement. [85225]

Chris Grayling: Fraud in the benefit system is a serious problem, which is currently costing the taxpayer £1.6 billion a year in benefit and tax credit fraud. This loss is unfair, unaffordable and unacceptable. This is why our joint DWP and HMRC fraud and error strategy published last October and measures in the Welfare Reform Bill are necessary and show that the Government are absolutely committed to reducing the level of fraud in the benefit system.

These initiatives focus on preventing fraud and error from entering the system in the first place, detecting and correcting mistakes when they do happen, delivering tough punishments for those who defraud the system, and deterring those who would try to abuse the system in the future.

Social Security Benefits: Young People

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the off-flow rate has been of 16 to 24-year-olds from benefits into work since January 2011. [85535]

Chris Grayling: About 90% of young people who made a new claim for jobseeker's allowance in January 2011 had left the count by October, the latest month for which data are currently available. These figures cover 18 to 24-year-olds as those aged under 18 are not routinely eligible for JSA. Individuals are not required to tell Jobcentre Plus the reason they ended their claim and a significant minority of exits are to unknown destinations. This means that, although many of those whose destination is not known are likely to have taken up work, it is not possible to calculate an off-flow rate into work.

Tax Credits: Universal Credit

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential effect of the changes to tax credits announced in the Autumn Statement on his Department's target for the number of (a) children and (b) adults to be taken out of poverty through the universal credit; and if he will make a statement. [85611]

Chris Grayling: Universal credit will unify the current system of means-tested out of work benefits, tax credits and support for housing. As a result of the changes to tax credits announced in the autumn statement, it is estimated that (a) an additional 50,000 children will be lifted out of poverty through universal credit, over and above the number quoted in the Universal Credit Impact Assessment, and (b) no significant change to the number of adults lifted out of poverty.

Unemployment

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of the Office for Budget Responsibility's new unemployment forecasts on the ability of Work programme providers to deliver existing contracts. [85550]

Chris Grayling: An assessment will be made following discussions about the new unemployment forecasts between DWP officials and Work programme providers.

Work Capability Assessment: Mental Illness

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to publish the reports by the Mental Health and Fluctuating Conditions groups on the work capability assessment; and when any such publication will occur. [86347]

Chris Grayling: We currently have no plans to formally publish the reports submitted by Professor Harrington to us on the mental, intellectual and cognitive descriptors and the fluctuating conditions descriptors.

Professor Harrington's second independent review of the work capability assessment was published on 24 November. This contains a précis of the two reports' recommendations as well as an update on the current position regarding their consideration.

A copy of the mental, intellectual and cognitive descriptors report is available in the House Library. A copy of the fluctuating conditions descriptors report will be made available in the House Library once the Department has had a chance to consider it in detail and has provided feedback to Professor Harrington and those involved in the production of it.

Young People: Peterborough

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has for the Youth Contract in the Peterborough constituency; and if he will make a statement. [85337]

Chris Grayling: The Youth Contract will provide more intensive support for all 18 to 24-year-olds including additional adviser time and weekly signing requirements. It will make available extra work experience and sector-based work academy places, including an offer of a work experience place for every unemployed 18 to 24-year-old who wants one, before they enter the Work programme. Work experience is delivered through local mechanisms based on demand and need. It forms just part of a range of flexible measures which the Jobcentre Plus district manager can put in place to address the specific needs and requirements of unemployed young people in Peterborough.

A new wage incentive scheme, delivered through the Work Programme, will make it easier for employers to take on young people aged 18 to 24. We are talking to providers and employers about the best way of delivering this new scheme and will make further information available to employers and others over the coming weeks as the design detail progresses.

Extra funding will also be made available for the Department for Education to support the most vulnerable NEET 16 and 17-year-olds into learning, an apprenticeship or job with training.

Young People: Scotland

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of funding for the Youth Contract will be allocated to applicants living in Scotland; and what proportion of such funding he expects to be spent on (a) work placements, (b) wage subsidies and (c) incentive payments. [86353]

Chris Grayling: The Youth Contract contains a number of elements including wage subsidies, extra support delivered through Jobcentre Plus, incentive payments for employers to take on apprentices and extra support for 16 to 17-year-olds. We are working on the detailed design decisions and the final distribution of resources will depend on future volumes of 18 to 24-year-olds claiming JSA. Therefore, the breakdown of spending for Scotland is not currently available. Where extra spending is earmarked for devolved issues, the Barnett formula will determine the allocation for Scotland.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what criteria (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies use when deciding whether and when to hold an internal audit; and if he will make a statement. [85641]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) applies a risk based approach to planning its internal audit assignments. The annual audit plan is developed through a combination of a review of the Department's high level risk registers and discussions with senior management and the audit committee. The audit plan is flexible to address the evolution of the risk environment and the emergence of new risks.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day received a substantive answer within five working days in each of the last six months. [85061]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide full information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Between 1 June and 30 November 2011 the Department for International Development received 170 written questions for a named day. The number of written questions for a named day that were not answered within five working days, according to the month that the question was tabled, is as follows:

Month (2011)	Named day questions answered after five working days
July	1
August	0
September	0
October	12
November	4

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made in meeting the commitment to draw a maximum of 10 per cent. of funding for climate change finance from existing funding from his Department. [86351]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The UK Government's four-yearly spending review set a budget of £2.9 billion for climate finance for the period 2011-12 to 2014-15, known as the International Climate Fund. UK international climate finance is Official Development Assistance (ODA) and is being met from within the rising aid budget. The share of UK ODA devoted to climate finance accounts for less than 10% in every year of this spending period.

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) meetings, (b) discussions and (c) correspondence he has had with the (i) Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, (ii) Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and (iii) Prime Minister on formulating the UK's negotiating position for the Durban Climate Change Conference. [86352]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The UK negotiating position for the 17th Conference of Parties to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) in Durban was agreed by the European Affairs Committee, in which I actively participate.

I regularly discuss issues concerning UK policy on climate change with Cabinet colleagues, including the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, and the Prime Minister.

Developing Countries: Population

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will consider the importance of population stabilisation for sustainable development in his preparations for the Rio+20 UN Conference on Sustainable Development. [85517]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The UK supports the focus of the two themes of Rio+20: (a) green economy in the context of sustainable development and poverty eradication; and (b) institutional frameworks for sustainable development. DEFRA is the Whitehall lead on Rio+20. DFID is working with DEFRA and other Government Departments to develop the UK position for the conference. In doing so, a range of sectoral and cross-cutting issues are being considered including the empowerment of women and girls.

Developing Countries: Water

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he plans to attend the Sanitation and Water for All high-level meeting on 20 April 2012; and if he will make a statement. [85527]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) strongly supports the work of the Sanitation and Water for All partnership to increase accountability of both developing countries and donors for delivering results on the ground.

It will be important to have a strong UK presence at the next meeting and I intend to be there.

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to monitor the use of funds provided by his Department to ensure that people have access to clean water sanitation and other similar services. [85593]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) is focusing more than ever before on the results and value for money achieved through all our funding; the independent Commission on Aid Impact has been set up to monitor this. By including access to clean water and sanitation as a high-level indicator in DFID's Business Plan, we will ensure that we monitor our progress very closely in this area, and remain accountable to the public for our results.

For more information on how DFID monitors its progress and results, please visit the DFID website at:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/About-us/How-we-measure-progress/

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will attend the high-level meeting of the Sanitation and Water for All Partnership in Washington on 20 April 2012; what steps his Department is taking to improve access to sanitation and water in developing countries; and if he will make a statement. [86021]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) strongly supports the work of the Sanitation and Water for All partnership to increase accountability of both developing countries and donors for delivering results on the ground.

DFID recognise that it will be important to have a strong UK presence at the next high-level meeting in April 2012 and I intend to be there.

The UK Government have committed to a series of challenging targets concerning water and sanitation. These include making sure 15 million more people have access to clean drinking water, 25 million more people have access to improved sanitation facilities and 15 million more people are reached by hygiene promotion.

Kenya: Asylum

Pauline Latham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government are taking to support the Government of Kenya in ensuring that additional camp sites within Kenya are approved and equipped; and what steps the Government are taking to provide assistance to host communities around Dadaab camps. [85470]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: I and other Ministers have regularly pressed the Kenyan Government to make sufficient camp space available for refugees in Kenya, including during my visit to Dadaab in July. The Kenyan Government have since opened news camps in Ifo and Kambioos. In July, I agreed a £6 million package to provide support to more than 130,000 refugees, including nutrition, health care, water, sanitation, tents and cooking equipment for refugees in existing and new camps. UK support focuses on refugees in the camps, where needs are greater than in the surrounding host communities. The UN and other donors are providing support to the host communities.

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Government is providing to the Government of Kenya to ensure that it (a) restarts registration of those Somalis fleeing conflict and seeking refugee status in Kenya and (b) fulfils its other obligations under international refugee law. [85487]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: My Department does not directly fund the Kenyan Government's Department for Refugee Affairs (DRA) which is responsible for registration of refugees, but DRA does receive support through UNHCR (the UN refugee agency, which the UK does fund) and other donors. I am very concerned about the suspension of registration of new refugees. Registration is important for the protection of refugees as well as in Kenya's own security interests.

I have regularly pressed the Kenyan Government on the rights of refugees, including after my visit to the Dadaab refugee camp in July. When I last met Minister Saitoti, Kenyan Minister for Provincial Administration and Internal Security, on 21 November, I again acknowledged Kenya's generosity in hosting refugees, but also raised the importance of not forcibly repatriating refugees. The Prime Minister has also made the same points in a letter to President Kibaki. My officials are following up with the Kenyan Government on the need to restart registration.

Overseas Aid: Education

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has any programme to educate children on the contribution to overseas aid made by the UK. [84585]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: In 2010 I commissioned an independent review of the Department for International Development's (DFID) work to increase public awareness of global poverty. I also closed a number of programmes designed to promote awareness of global poverty in the UK that failed to demonstrate real development impact and value for money. Following the review, I decided that DFID would not fund any new development awareness projects and that funds would be redirected to front line programmes in developing countries.

The coalition Government believe that every child should learn about the challenges of poverty and underdevelopment which face children their own age in other countries, and about the potential of trade, wealth creation and economic development to build a freer, more prosperous world. DFID's work over the last decade to integrate development issues into the school curriculum has been successful in achieving this. DFID will continue to fund development education work in schools, and this work is now being put on a strategic footing.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Females

Ann Clwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many and what proportion of (a) hon. Members and (b) advisers included on the Government's delegation to the Bonn conference will be women. [85277]

Alistair Burt: I refer the right hon. Member to my answer of 28 November 2011, Official Report, columns 674-75W.

Bangladesh: Asylum

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the treatment of Rohingyan refugees in Bangladesh; and if he will make a statement. [86354]

Alistair Burt: The UK has raised concerns on this matter with the Government of Bangladesh bilaterally and with EU partners. The Secretary of State for International Development raised concerns about the treatment of ethnic minorities with the President of Burma and senior officials during his visit to the country on 15-17 November.

Officials from our high commission in Dhaka have visited the camps for displaced Rohingyas. The Department for International Development provides core contributions to the European Commission Humanitarian Aid Department and UN agencies that directly support the Rohingya community.

Convention on the Protection of the Underwater Cultural Heritage

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on UK accession to the 2001 UNESCO Convention on the Protection of the Underwater Cultural Heritage; and if he will make a statement. [86052]

Mr Bellingham: The British Government have adopted the Annex of the Convention on the Protection of Underwater Cultural Heritage as best practice for marine archaeology but we do not believe that the case for ratification of the convention by the UK has been made. This position will continue to be kept under review.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies; and if he will make a statement. [85657]

Mr Lidington: The information is as follows:

(a) The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has published a Sustainable Procurement Strategy:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/procurement/Sus_Proc_Strategy which details how procurement will deliver value for money in its contracting for goods and services while also delivering benefit in sustainable terms, in the categories of environmental, economic and social and across supply chains. The FCO has published an SME Action Plan:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/about-us/working-for-us/contracts-procurement/sme which will support SMEs by implementing promotion of procurement opportunities and removing any barriers to the use of SMEs in the UK.

(b) FCO Services, a trading fund of the FCO, addresses social value in procurement through sustainability. This is illustrated in the procurement of zero emission electric vehicles and fuel efficient HGV trailer units for the European Lorry Fleet. FCO Services also works with its logistics supplier to monitor and manage carbon emissions. More broadly in respect of procurement of materials and services it applies standard pan government contract terms, which reflect sustainability and equal opportunities/anti-discrimination requirements.

Wilton Park uses the FCO Sustainable Procurement Strategy mentioned above and is also currently developing a strategy to offer contracts to SME's which will be based on the FCO's.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86129]

Mr Bellingham: A small number of staff have been seconded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office from both industry and the third sector since May 2010. The majority of these loans have been ad hoc short term arrangements and we do not hold a central record of these informal secondments. A further seven staff from industry and the third sector have undertaken formal, longer term inward secondments to the FCO. We are however unable to provide more detail as this could identify individual staff, and potentially breach data protection principles.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85934]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office received 2,877 questions for ordinary written answer in this Session, tabled up to 31 October 2011. A total of 2,724 (94.7%) of these questions were answered within 10 sitting days; 126 (4.4%) within 11 to 20 sitting days; 23 (0.8%) within 21 to 30 sitting days; and 4 (0.1%) in more than 30 sitting days.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Department's performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Egypt: Exports

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on any cases of internal repression in Egypt; if he will impose an embargo on the export of all equipment subject to the UK export licence regime to Egypt; and if he will make a statement. [85168]

Alistair Burt: The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs has made clear UK concerns about incidents of unrest and violence in Egypt in recent months. In his statement of 23 November he said that he was deeply concerned by the unacceptable violence that had taken place around Tahrir Square and other parts of Egypt, and called on the Egyptian authorities to respect the right of peaceful protest and immediately to cease the use of violence against protestors.

We are aware of reports that UK manufactured tear gas has been used in Egypt. No licences for the export of tear gas to Egypt have been granted since 1999. Since that time UK export controls have been radically overhauled including through the passing of the Export Control Act 2002 and the adoption of the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria. Under the consolidated criteria we will not issue licences for goods which will be used for internal repression or for aggravating existing tensions or conflicts. Export licence applications for Egypt, as for all countries, are kept under constant review and every licence is scrutinised in light of changing facts on the ground. We have no plans to impose an embargo on Egypt for all equipment subject to UK export controls.

Falkland Islands: Sovereignty

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made representations to the Government of Argentina in response to its (a) recent reassertion of that country's claim to sovereignty over the Falkland Islands and (b) interference with fishing vessels in the seas surrounding the Falkland Islands. [86386]

Mr Jeremy Browne: The UK Government have no doubt about their sovereignty over the Falkland Islands. There can be no negotiations on sovereignty unless or until the Falkland Islanders so wish. The fundamental principle and right of self determination, as set out in the United Nations Charter and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, underlies this position. We have made this position clear both directly to the Argentine Government and at international forums.

The UK Government have repeatedly protested against Argentine Presidential Decree 256, which has purportedly been the basis for recent interference with fishing vessels in the vicinity of the River Plate basin. We have repeated this protest on several occasions bilaterally, publicly and in letters circulated at the United Nations General Assembly. We do not consider the decree to be compliant with international law, including the right of innocent passage through territorial seas under the United Nations convention on the law of the sea. There has been no interference with fishing vessels in Falkland Islands waters.

Fiji: Christianity

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of closures of Methodist churches in Fiji; and if he will raise the issue of religious freedom and freedom of speech with the Government of Fiji. [85465]

Mr Jeremy Browne: The British Government are deeply concerned by reports of restrictions on the rights of freedom of expression, peaceful assembly and freedom of association being placed upon members of the Methodist Church in Fiji. The right to assemble peacefully is at the heart of a functioning democracy and helps to improve long-term social, political and economic stability.

On 12 October, I expressed my dismay to the Fijian high commissioner to London at these developments and noted that this latest action by the authorities in Fiji could only serve to increase their isolation from the international community. The UK Government will continue to raise our concerns with the interim government, including the need to lift the public emergency restrictions in early 2012. We will continue to work closely with international partners to return Fiji to democracy.

Iran: Weapons

Michael Ellis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on shipments of arms and missiles by Iran to militant groups in Lebanon, Syria and the Gaza Strip. [85866]

Alistair Burt: We remain deeply concerned by Iran's support for militant groups in Lebanon, Syria and the Gaza Strip, including Hezbollah and Hamas. We have consistently stressed the negative impact this has on stability in the middle east and condemn it in all its forms.

We assess that since the 2006 conflict with Israel, Hezbollah has been rearmed to the extent that its capabilities exceed those in 2006. We assess that Iran is the most significant provider of weapons, training and funding to Hezbollah.

We judge that Hamas has rebuilt at least some of the capabilities it lost in the 2008-09 Gaza conflict. Since then, Hamas may have acquired from Iran both a number of longer range rockets with the potential to reach Tel Aviv and some advanced anti-tank guided weapons. We assess that Iran is a significant provider of weapons and funds to the group.

Iran also provides arms and funding to other rejectionist groups in the region, such as Palestinian Islamic Jihad.

We continue to monitor Iranian support to these groups closely. We will continue to push for full implementation of UN Security Council Resolutions, which call for the disarmament of these armed groups and prohibit weapons transfers, and support the UN sanctions committees pursuing and investigating sanctions violations.

Occupied Territories: Housing

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Israeli Government about the expansion of Israeli settlements. [85528]

Alistair Burt: We regularly make clear that Israeli settlements in the Occupied Territories are wrong, illegal under international law and deeply counter-productive to efforts to bring a lasting peace to the middle east conflict.

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs I and our ambassador in Tel Aviv have all raised the issue of settlements with the Israeli authorities. The Foreign Secretary most recently condemned settlement activity publicly in his statements of 2, 9 and 28 November.

Oil: Canada

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Canadian counterpart on the environmental consequences of developing the Alberta tar sands. [85768]

Alistair Burt: The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs has not discussed the development of the Alberta oil sands with his Canadian counterpart.

We regularly raise our concerns over the environmental impact of oil sands extraction with the Canadian authorities, most recently in discussion between the Minister of State, my noble Friend Lord Howell of Guildford, and the Canadian high commissioner on 20 September.

The Prime Minister discussed the European fuel quality directive in relation to Canadian oil sands with the Canadian Prime Minister, Stephen Harper, during his visit to Ottawa in September.

Palestinians: Politics and Government

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) his international counterparts and (b) representatives of international organisations about the situation in Gaza. [85530]

Alistair Burt: We are currently working closely with the Quartet, the UN and EU partners to raise more strongly the situation of Gaza with the Israeli authorities. We continue to call on Israel to ease restrictions on access including access to humanitarian and medical supplies.

Our ambassador in Tel Aviv raises these concerns regularly with Israeli authorities. It was also formally raised by the UK at the annual Ad Hoc Liaison Committee meeting of donors in New York on 18 September both in the plenary session and in bilateral meetings with the Israeli delegation in the margins of the main event.

As the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs reiterated to the House on 28 November 2011, Official Report, column 691:

"We look to Israel to permit the further opening of Gaza so that all Palestinian people can see a pathway to a better future, living side by side with a secure Israel. It is vital that Israel takes that action."

Palestinians: Prisoners

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) his international counterparts and (b) representatives of international organisations about the treatment of Palestinian prisoners by the Israeli authorities. [85529]

Alistair Burt: We regularly discuss the issue of treatment of Palestinian prisoners by the Israeli authorities with our international partners, including our EU counterparts. We also regularly meet international organisations, such as the International Committee of the Red Cross.

I discussed this matter during my visit in June with the Minister of Justice, indicating the UK's concerns about both the detention and the treatment of Palestinian prisoners, including children. Our ambassador in Tel Aviv raised the issue on 26 October 2011 during his visit to the Israel Prison Service complex, at the invitation of the Public Security Minister. He raised concerns over visitation rights and the treatment of minors, particularly cuffing and shackling. In his discussions with the Public Security Minister, the ambassador stressed the importance the UK placed on Israel fulfilling its obligations under international law. On 28 November 2011, I stated to the House that the UK Government view the shackling of children in detention as wrong.

The Government of Israel have reaffirmed to us their commitment to treating prisoners in line with international human rights standards. The UK will continue to monitor the situation with regard to Palestinian prisoners in Israeli prisons and encourage the Government of Israel to meet their stated commitments.

Sarath Fonseka

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Sri Lanka on the treatment of Sarath Fonseka. [85189]

Alistair Burt: On 18 November 2011, Sarath Fonseka, former head of the Sri Lankan army and rival of President Rajapaksa, was found guilty of spreading rumours likely to cause public alarm and disorder. The High Court sentenced Fonseka to three years in prison, which he will serve in addition to the 30-month sentence handed down in September last year after he was found guilty of misconduct by a military tribunal.

We have consistently urged the Government of Sri Lanka to ensure its judicial process meets international standards.

Shaker Aamer

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the oral answer of 25 October 2011, Official Report, column 172, on Shaker Aamer, when his case was last raised at ministerial level; and what progress has been made on returning Shaker Aamer to the UK. [85181]

Alistair Burt: Shaker Aamer's case was raised formally most recently at ministerial level by the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, during President Obama's state visit to the UK in May this year. The Government remain committed to securing Mr Aamer's release and return to the UK and, as previously stated, we will continue to raise his case with the United States Government at both official and ministerial levels. His release remains a decision for the United States Government to make, but our own determination and our efforts to return Mr Aamer to the United Kingdom will certainly continue.

Somalia: International Assistance

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to encourage parties in Somalia, including the Kenyan armed forces, to facilitate humanitarian access in South Somalia. [85151]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: I have been asked to reply.

I have regularly highlighted the importance of unhindered humanitarian access and actively pressed donors to step up their funding support to humanitarian organisations to meet priority needs wherever they are.

The Prime Minister has also written to President Kibaki on 10 November stating that the Kenyan incursion into Somalia must comply with international law and should not impede humanitarian operations. Officials have followed up directly with the Kenyan security forces. UK officials have also raised concerns over humanitarian access in Mogadishu with the Somali Government and African Union Mission in Somalia. The ability of the UK to influence other non-state actors inside Somalia is more limited, but we continue to explore ways of indirectly doing so.

South Africa: Freedom of Information

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the effect on the freedom of the media in the Republic of South Africa of the Protection of State Information Bill. [85624]

Mr Bellingham: Britain is aware of strong concerns that have been raised by media and other rights groups that the Protection of State Information Bill could limit media freedom in South Africa. Our diplomatic missions in Pretoria and Cape Town will continue to monitor the Bill closely through the remaining stages of the parliamentary process.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the progress of reconciliation in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [85190]

Alistair Burt: On 20 November, the Lessons Learnt and Reconciliation Commission sent their report to the Sri Lankan President. Many hope this report will mark a significant milestone in Sri Lanka's recovery from conflict. I have called on the Government of Sri Lanka to seize this opportunity to demonstrate their commitment to national reconciliation and accountability. I look forward to the Government of Sri Lanka setting out the steps they will take in response to the report.

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the progress of transitional justice in Sri Lanka since 2009. [85196]

Alistair Burt: The UK has consistently called for an independent, thorough and credible investigation into allegations of violations of international humanitarian and human rights law by both sides in the military conflict.

The Sri Lankan Lessons Learnt and Reconciliation Commission (LLRC) presented their report to the Sri Lankan President on 20 November. We look forward to the Sri Lankan Government publishing the report in full and setting out the steps they will take in response.

We believe that an inclusive political solution that addresses the underlying causes of the conflict is the best way to achieve lasting and equitable peace in Sri Lanka.

Sudan: Human Rights

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will review his Department's promotion of trade with Sudan in the light of human rights abuses in that country. [86338]

Mr Bellingham: There are no international restrictions on trade with Sudan, other than an arms embargo imposed by the UN. At present we do not actively promote trade with Sudan, although assistance is provided by UK Trade & Investment in response to requests from British companies. We have made very clear to the Government of Sudan that the current conflicts and human rights abuses are an obstacle to any increase in our trade relationship, and it is their responsibility to resolve those conflicts peacefully.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Biometrics: Entry Clearances

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when (a) she and (b) the Immigration Minister were first informed that their pilot programme was being used to stop biometric checks. [79849]

Damian Green: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Secretary of State for the Home Department on 7 November 2011, Official Report, columns 44-61.

Dangerous Dogs

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dogs in England and Wales were placed on the register of exempt dogs under section 4(a) and (b) procedures under the Dangerous Dogs (Amendment) Act 1997 in 2010. [78712]

Mr Paice: I have been asked to reply.

So far this year, we have placed 421 dogs on the Index of Exempted Dogs through either the 4A or 4B procedures. 42 of these were under the 4A procedure and 290 under the 4B procedure. In 89 cases it has not been possible to identify under which procedure the dogs have been placed on the index because this has not been stated on the contingent destruction order issued by the court.

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted under section (a) 1(3), (b) 3(1) and (c) 3(3) of the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in each year since 2007. [78752]

Mr Paice: I have been asked to reply.

I will arrange for a table showing the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991, sections 1(3), 3(1) and 3(3), in England and Wales, from 2007 to 2010 (latest available) to be placed in the Library of the House.

Annual court proceedings data for 2011 are planned for publication in the spring of 2012.

Departmental Manpower

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK Border Force staff were working on (a) customs and (b) immigration checks at Heathrow in each week between 1 July and 1 November 2011. [79888]

Damian Green: The total number of Border Force officers working at Heathrow from 1 July to 1 November 2011 is set out as follows. This table shows the number of officers deployed on front line checks at Heathrow throughout the period.

	Number
July	957
August	953
September	952
October	944

Deportation: Offenders

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when her policy to remove foreign national prisoners on completion of their sentence was introduced. [79772]

Damian Green: Government policy is to deport foreign nationals where their presence in the United Kingdom is not conducive to the public good. The power to deport a person on the grounds that their presence in the UK is not conducive to the public good is provided by S3(5) of the Immigration Act 1971. S3(6)of the Immigration Act 1971 gave the courts the power to recommend the deportation of foreign national prisoners. These powers came into force on 1 January 1973.

The policy to remove foreign nationals who are liable to deportation dates from then. Although it has not been explicitly stated that we remove foreign national prisoners on completion of their sentence, as a matter of practice we aim to remove foreign national offenders at the earliest opportunity. Under the terms of the Early Removal Scheme, which was introduced by the Criminal Justice Act 2003, foreign national prisoners serving fixed term sentences can be removed from prison and the country up to a maximum of 270 days before the half-way point of sentence. In 2010-11 43% of removals of foreign national offenders (FNOs) who met the deportation criteria took place during the early removal period.

More generally we are improving performance by starting earlier, maximising Facilitated Returns Scheme, working with foreign governments, improving compliance and embedding staff in prisons ensuring that contact is made with FNOs where staff are embedded, within five days of their arrival.

Fraud: Shares

David T. C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to ensure that the Serious Fraud Office pursues investigations into boiler room fraud. [86490]

The Solicitor-General: I have been asked to reply.

The Serious Fraud Office (SFO) is headed by the Director who acts under the superintendence of the Attorney-General. The SFO investigates and prosecutes the most serious and complex economic crime.

Where an alleged boiler room fraud that comes to the attention of the SFO meets the published selection criteria the SFO will consider the allegations. The selection criteria can be found on the SFO website at:

http://www.sfo.gov.uk/victims/individual-victims/can-i-report-a-fraud-or-corruption-directly-to-the-sfo.aspx

If an alleged boiler room fraud does not meet the SFO criteria it will be referred to another law enforcement organisation or regulator for investigation when appropriate.

Since October 2011 the SFO has successfully prosecuted 10 individuals involved in boiler room fraud.

Immigration

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will publish (a) the operational advice note and (b) details of the ministerial decision implementing the trial of risk-based processes at the border. [79887]

Damian Green: We are conducting an investigation into all the relaxation of border controls. It would be inappropriate to publish this information or comment further at this stage.

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) EU nationals and (b) non-EU nationals passed through border controls in the UK between 28 July and 4 November 2011. [79889]

Damian Green: Passenger arrivals figures for the third quarter of 2011 (July to September) are not yet available. The latest published data for the first quarter of 2011 along with figures for 2010 showing recent levels of EEA and non-EEA nationals arriving in the United Kingdom are given in the table. These figures are numbers of journeys and include passengers in transit who do not pass through immigration controls.

Passenger arrivals to the United Kingdom including EEA and Swiss nationals, January 2010 to March 2011

Total (million)	19.7	26.2	33.3	22.3	20.2

Passenger arrivals to the United Kingdom including EEA and Swiss nationals, January 2010 to March 2011

Passengers admitted	Q1 2010	Q2 2010	Q3 2010	Q4 2010	Q1 2011
Non-EEA nationals	2.4	3.3	4.0	2.7	2.4
British citizens	11.2	15.9	21.0	12.8	11.2
Other EEA and Swiss nationals	6.0	7.1	8.3	6.7	6.5

Written Answers to Questions

Tuesday 13 December 2011

WALES

Business Advisory Group

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales on what date her Business Advisory Group last met; and who attended the meeting. [86273]

Mrs Gillan: The Business Advisory Group meets on a quarterly basis. The last meeting was on 24 October 2011. The attendees of the meeting were:

Uday Chaturvedi, TATA Steel
Paul Gorin, Smart Solutions
Rob Lewis, PricewaterhouseCoopers
Colin OrrBurns, Dragon LNG
David Rosser, CBI
Graham Hillier, Toyota
Professor George Boyne, Cardiff University
Nick Main, GE Healthcare
David Williams, Chairman of Llandudno Hospitality Association
Steve Thomas, Airbus
Professor Stuart Cole, University of Glamorgan

Departmental Travel Costs

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many times (a) she, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in her Department have travelled first class on trains since May 2010. [86274]

Mr David Jones: On taking office, the Secretary of State for Wales, my right hon. Friend the Member for Chesham and Amersham (Mrs Gillan), confirmed that there would no longer be any first class travel paid for by the Wales Office. All tickets bought from May 2010 onwards for myself, the Secretary of State and officials have been for standard rail travel, which has resulted in a saving of £86,824 when compared to the previous year.

The Secretary of State and three officials did travel first class—at no cost to the Wales Office—as guests of First Great Western when they attempted to set a new record for the fastest journey between Cardiff and London, and on six occasions the Secretary of State and two officials have been upgraded, again at no cost to the Wales Office for operational reasons.

Official Visits

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many times she has visited (a) Cardiff, (b) Swansea and (c) Wrexham since May 2010. [85606]

Mr David Jones: Ministers from the Wales Office have visited Cardiff 86 times, Swansea four times and Wrexham 10 times.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85921]

Mr David Jones: This information is not available in the form requested.

From the start of the 2010-12 session to 30 November 2011, the Wales Office answered 433 (90%) of ordinary written parliamentary questions on time.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the session. Statistics relating to Government Department's performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Official Hospitality

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the average cost per night has been of hotel rooms booked by her Department for official business since May 2010. [86276]

Mr David Jones: The average cost per night for hotel rooms booked by the Wales Office since May 2010 is £98. The Wales Office is based in London and Cardiff and staff need to travel between the offices regularly in the course of their duties.

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much her Department has spent on hotel bills since May 2010. [86277]

Mr David Jones: The Wales Office has spent £40,861 on hotel bills since May 2010, a saving of over £18,000 on the previous 18-month period. The Wales Office is based in London and Cardiff and staff need to travel between the offices regularly in the course of their duties.

Hotel bookings are made through a central contract procured by the Ministry of Justice, and this ensures that all accommodation booked is within the limits set by the Department.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Assisted Areas

Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills on the possible withdrawal of automatic assisted area status from Northern Ireland. [86293]

Mr Paterson: I have engaged in correspondence with the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, the right hon. Member for Twickenham (Vince Cable), on this matter. The possible removal of automatic assisted area status from Northern Ireland was one of the options considered in the Government's consultation on changes to the Industrial Development Act 1982 which closed on 2 November. The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills is on target to publish the Government's response within three months of the close of the consultation.

Ballymurphy: Deaths

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of progress on the investigation into the deaths which occurred in the Ballymurphy area of Belfast in 1971. [86333]

Mr Paterson: I understand that the Historical Enquiries Team (HET) is currently investigating the deaths which occurred in Ballymurphy in 1971. In addition, the Attorney General for Northern Ireland recently confirmed that inquests into the deaths would be reopened. The timings and progress of these investigations and inquests are a matter for the HET and the Coroner's Service for Northern Ireland respectively.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85834]

Mr Paterson: The Northern Ireland Office, as a small Government Department, has limited catering facilities. At present, there are no plans to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards in either the Department or the public bodies for which I am responsible.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85835]

Mr Paterson: The Northern Ireland Office, as a small Government Department, has limited requirements for food and catering services. At present, there are no plans for the country of origin of foods to be labelled on menus and display boards in either the Department or the public bodies for which I am responsible.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85922]

Mr Paterson: This information is not available in the form requested.

From the start of the 2010-12 Session to 30 November 2011, the Northern Ireland Office answered 323 (86%) of ordinary written parliamentary questions on time.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Rescue Services

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the implications for Northern Ireland of the planned changes to the search and rescue helicopter service. [86054]

Mr Paterson: I refer the hon. Lady to the written ministerial statement made by the Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Putney (Justine Greening), on 28 November 2011, Official Report, column 52WS. The new arrangements will see an end of military involvement in a dedicated helicopter search and rescue service with search and rescue operations being provided by contracted civilian crews. The winning bidder will be expected to operate from 10 locations around the UK, and provide at least the same level of service as at present.

Under the new arrangements, Northern Ireland will be covered by helicopters based on the UK mainland and Scottish Islands, as at present. Incidents will continue to be responded to within the agreed national response requirements.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: EU Law

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 2 November 2011, Official Report, column 638W, on animal experiments: EU law, which groups will be asked for input at appropriate points on the draft legislation to transpose EU Directive 2010/63/EU. [85884]

Lynne Featherstone: We will seek input as necessary from the bioscience sector, animal welfare and protection groups, funding bodies, training accreditors and licensees and practitioners under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

Regular contact has been maintained with all of these groups during the process of negotiating and subsequently transposing European Directive 2010/63/EU.

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 2 November 2011, Official Report, column 638W, on animal experiments: EU Law, when draft legislation to transpose EU Directive 2010/63/EU will be available for consultation. [85885]

Lynne Featherstone: Work on the preparation of draft legislation to transpose European Directive 2010/63/EU has begun. We will seek input from individuals and groups with an interest at appropriate points in the detailed drafting process.

I am not yet in a position to say when the final draft legislation will be published.

Asylum

Richard Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department in how many of the asylum legacy cases resolved since May 2010 an individual was (a) granted asylum and (b) deported. [85031]

Damian Green: In answering this question, I have taken deportation to mean removal. Since May 2010, it is not a national statistic, and as such, it should be treated as provisional and therefore subject to change, 280 individuals have been granted asylum and 400 have been removed.

Source:

Local management information provided by UKBA, North West Region Planning and MI team.

Richard Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum legacy cases are outstanding; and how many such cases have been concluded in the last 12 months. [85032]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency committed to review all older unresolved cases by summer 2011; this was achieved by March 2011. A total of 500,500 cases were reviewed as part of the programme.

As Jonathan Sedgwick, then acting chief executive of the UK Border Agency reported to the Home Affairs Committee on 12 September, 479,000 of the 500,500 cases in the legacy programme have been fully concluded.

During the period 1 December 2010 to 12 September 2011, 41,950 cases reached conclusion, 15,499 asylum legacy cases remain outstanding.

Source: Local Management information provided by UKBA, North West Region Planning and MI team. It is not a national statistic. As such it should be treated as provisional and therefore subject to change.

Bramshill Police College

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2011, Official Report, column 795W, on Bramshill police college, when she expects the review of the Bramshill estate commissioned from the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) to report; and what consultation (a) she and (b) the NPIA will undertake with police (i) forces and (ii) authorities on the future of the estate. [84576]

Nick Herbert: The review of the Bramshill estate is due to report to the NPIA in spring 2012. It will be considered by the NPIA Board which includes representatives of the Home Office, police authorities and chief police officers. The review involves consultation with all police forces and authorities and, specifically, with the local chief constables and police authority chief executives in Thames Valley, Surrey and Hampshire.

Civil Disorder

Stella Creasy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department has issued to police authorities on the Riot (Damages) Act 1886; and what (a) meetings have been held and (b) other communication undertaken between officials of her Department and police authorities concerning that Act since August 2011. [84428]

Nick Herbert: Since August 2011, the Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has written to all Chairs of Police Authorities with guidance on the Home Office's response to the riots, setting out amendments to the regulations under the Riot (Damages) Act 1886 and details of the Home Office bureau which was set up to receive and assess claims from those with no insurance. I have also held meetings with the Chairs of affected police authorities, representatives of the Association of Police Authorities (APA) and of the insurance industry, while Home Office officials have kept in regular contact with affected police authorities through the APA.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether food and catering services in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85828]

Damian Green: The Home Office and public bodies for which it is responsible do not directly contract for food supplies but procure catering services through wider facilities management or operating service contracts. At our headquarters building, allergen and healthy choice labelling has been implemented and there are plans to increase this to include calorific values. We are also working with our contracted suppliers who deliver catering services to the UKBA, National Policing Improvement Agency and Identity and Passport Service estate to encourage them to introduce similar labelling arrangements as part of their plans for 2012.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the food and catering services in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85829]

Damian Green: The Home Office and public bodies for which it is responsible do not directly contract for food supplies but procure catering services through wider facilities management or operating service contracts. Country of food origin information is not routinely made available to customers but in some staff restaurants it does appear on published menus on occasions or is available on request.

Departmental Manpower

Mr Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many posts have been lost in the UK Border Agency in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [80146]

Damian Green: The number of full-time equivalent posts reduced in the UK Border Agency in the last 12 months for which figures are available (2010-11), is -1,900 as it appears in rounded form in our annual report, which can be found here:

http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/documents/aboutus/annual-reports-accounts

This is an actual reduction in full-time equivalent staff from 24,467 (31 March 2010) to 22,580 (31 March 2011) a reduction of -1,887.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent in (a) Birmingham, (b) Newcastle, (c) Wakefield, (d) Manchester, (e) Leeds, (f) Liverpool, (g) Coventry, (h) Bristol, (i) Sheffield, (j) Bradford, (k) Leicester and (l) Nottingham in the latest financial year for which figures are available. [85446]

Damian Green: The Department does not hold information on how much was spent in each location. To obtain this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) her Department and (b) its public bodies; and if she will make a statement. [85659]

Damian Green: The Home Department has in place a Commercial Policies and Procedures manual that is applicable to the Home Office and its Agencies. The manual includes guidance on Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) in line with Government procurement policy.

In support, the Department's Service Terms and Conditions reflect CSR requirements and these are kept under review. The Home Office also invites its top suppliers to complete an accredited self-assessment tool on their CSR practices which is used to monitor compliance with our policies. The tool enables collaborative working with suppliers to drive out improved performance in the CSR arena.

Departmental Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which her Department is responsible; and if she will make a statement. [85706]

Damian Green: Non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) are operationally independent of the Home Office and have responsibility to own and actively manage their own risks. The Executive NDPBs which the Home Office is responsible for own and maintain a variety of registers that cover risks at a strategic and directorate level as well as registers for programmes and projects as required.

Deportation: Appeals

Richard Graham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals convicted in UK courts have contested deportation orders in each of the last five years; and how many such appeals have been successful and the appellant allowed to remain in the UK. [85030]

Damian Green: Figures for the last five years are not available. However, between 2008 and the end of September 2011, 5,657 appeals have been lodged by foreign national offenders contesting deportation orders. Of those, 1,333 appeals were successful. A breakdown is detailed in the following table.

	2008	2009	2010	2011	Total
Appeals lodged	1,798	1,349	1,486	1,024	5,657
Appeals allowed	342	346	473	172	1,333

Drug Seizures

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much heroin and cocaine was seized by UK Border Agency staff in the airports included in her summer 2011 pilot on immigration entry during the period of the pilot; and how much was seized in the corresponding period of 2010. [82059]

Damian Green: The latest drug-seizure statistics that have been produced in accordance with the Home Office's Statement of Compliance are contained within the Home Office Statistical Bulletin, 'Seizures of drugs in England and Wales, 2010/11' (accessed via the following link), published on 10 November 2011. These contain information for the full-year and are not broken down into individual months. The annual seizures for 2010-11 amounted to 420 kg of heroin, 1,519 kg of cocaine and 14 kg of crack-cocaine.

Firearms

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received from (a) the Metropolitan police and (b) any other external organisation on a review of her Department's definition of a gun crime; and if she will make a statement. [83848]

Nick Herbert: The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has not received representations from the Metropolitan police or any other external organisation on the Department's definition of gun crime.

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to update the guidance to police on the definition of a gun crime; and whether she has asked her Department to investigate the case for doing so. [83849]

Nick Herbert: There are no plans to revise or update the guidance to police on the definition of gun crime.

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has met ministerial colleagues to discuss the case for updating the definition of gun crime to include acts of criminal damage including firearms. [83862]

Nick Herbert: The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has not met ministerial colleagues to discuss the case for updating the definition of gun crime.

Firearms: Licensing

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many section five firearms licences are held by UK citizens. [79943]

Nick Herbert: Information on nationality is not collected as part of the process of applying for a section five firearms licence.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to improve her Department's capacity to identify illegal immigrants and return them to their country of origin. [85752]

Damian Green: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 206W.

Immigrants: Detainees

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the detention data tables Immigration Statistics April-June 2011 table dt.07.q, what the total length of stay in the UK has been of each of the 74 persons who have been detained for more than 24 months. [82102]

Damian Green: The following table sets out the total length of stay in the UK of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011.

Length of time (in years) in the UK based on first application raised	Number of individuals
8	10

The following table sets out the reasons why the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, had not been removed from the UK. As the table shows, five of the individuals have now been removed from the UK. This information is taken from Internal Management Information and is subject to change.

Barriers to removal	Number of individuals
Travel Document	39
Appeals	6
Children issues	1
Country Situation	1
Nationality not confirmed	1
Judicial Review	15
Awaiting Removal: Multiple Barriers	4
Rule 39*	2
Removed	5

Of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, 53 lodged an appeal against their deportation. In addition to this:

29 individuals submitted a Judicial Review (JR) against unlawful detention.

five submitted a JR on HR grounds.

five submitted a JR against unlawful detention and on HR grounds.

To determine in which court those of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, have lodged an appeal against detention or removal would require the examination of individual case files which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Immigration

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether a report on the pilot scheme for border controls was sent to a Minister in her Department; [80594]

(2) how the pilot scheme for border controls in July 2011 was monitored; and to whom data obtained during the monitoring were sent. [80595]

Damian Green: I refer the hon. Member to the evidence provided by the Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), to the Home Affairs Select Committee on 8 November.

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she has held discussions with the Children's Commissioner for Scotland on the border access checks pilots in summer 2011; and whether those communications were (a) written and (b) oral. [80793]

Damian Green: Home Office Ministers held no discussions with the Children's Commissioner for Scotland on the level two risk-based border checks and pilot.

Stephen Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress the UK Border Agency has made in clearing the backlog of historic immigration cases over five years old. [80939]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency committed to review all older unresolved cases by summer 2011, this was achieved by March 2011. A total of 500,500 cases were reviewed as part of the programme.

As Jonathan Sedgwick, then acting chief executive of the UK Border Agency, reported to the Home Affairs Committee on 12 September, 479,000 of the 500,500 cases in the legacy programme have been fully concluded. The remaining cases are being actively managed to conclusion, this will involve removing barriers such as impending prosecutions or obtaining travel documents to facilitate removal.

Immigration Controls

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people placed on a watchlist (a) entered and (b) were prevented from entering the UK between July and November 2011. [81006]

Damian Green: We do not disclose either the specific data held on the watchlist, the source of the data, or how they are used, as to do so would not be in the interests of border and national security.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many occasions level 2 border checks were used in the port of Hull between July and November 2011. [81090]

Damian Green: Risk-based checks under the level 2 pilot were not used in the port of Hull.

Paul Goggins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will publish all correspondence between her Department and (a) airport operators and (b) airline companies concerning border checks in the last 12 months. [81165]

Damian Green: The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has ordered an investigation into the relaxation of border controls. It would be inappropriate to release this information at this stage.

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings she has had with Government agencies on the relaxation of border controls in the last 12 months. [81347]

Damian Green: We are conducting an investigation into all the relaxation of border controls. It would be inappropriate to publish this information or comment further at this stage.

Immigration: Port of Hull

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people entered the UK through the Port of Hull between July and November 2011. [81077]

Damian Green: Passenger arrivals figures for the third quarter of 2011 (July to September) are not yet available. A subset of the latest published data for the first quarter of 2011 along with figures for 2010 showing recent levels of passenger arrivals at Hull are given in the table. These figures are numbers of journeys and include passengers in transit who do not pass through immigration controls.

Passenger arrivals to the United Kingdom at Hull including EEA and Swiss nationals, January 2010 to March 2011

Total	91,400	125,000	135,000	120,000	91,900

Notes:
1. Includes airside transfer/transit passengers of all nationalities who did not pass through immigration control.
2. Numbers are rounded to three significant figures.

A subset of data in table ad.01q of 'Immigration Statistics April to June 2011'. Provisional figures.

Total passenger arrivals figures relating to the second quarter (April to June) of 2011 will be published on 24 November 2011 in the Home Office Science publication, 'Immigration Statistics July to September 2011' and the third quarter will be published on 23 February 2012. These data will be available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Science website at:

Metal Theft

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Scrap Metal Dealers Act 1964 in deterring metal theft. [85735]

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Scrap Metal Dealers Act 1964 in deterring metal theft. [85738]

David Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to tackle metal theft. [85739]

Mark Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to tackle metal theft. [85740]

James Brokenshire: The Government recognise the growing problem of metal theft and are taking urgent steps to address it. The Home Office is discussing with other Government Departments what legislative changes are necessary to assist enforcement agencies and deter offenders, including a new licence regime for scrap metal dealers and prohibiting cash payments. We are also working with the Association of Chief Police Officers to establish a dedicated metal theft taskforce.

Police: Accountability

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether police and crime commissioners will be designated as scheduled bodies for the purposes of membership of the Local Government Pension Scheme. [85552]

Nick Herbert: It is the Government's intention to use the provision made within the Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act 2011 to transfer the assets and liabilities of Police Authorities to Police and Crime Commissioners (PCC) when they assume office on 22 November 2012. In addition, steps are being taken to add PCCs to part 1 of schedule 2 of the Local Government Pension Scheme (Administration) Regulations 2008 (as amended), which means a PCC will be a scheduled body for Local Government Pension Scheme purposes.

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she plans to take to consult police staff and their representative organisations on the transfer of police staff from police authorities to police and crime commissioners. [85671]

Nick Herbert: The Government have indicated that they expect the Cabinet Office Statement of Practice on Staff Transfers in the Public Sector to apply to the transfer of staff from police authorities to Police and Crime Commissioners under the Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act 2011. Consequently, staff should not see any adverse impact on their current terms of employment as a result of the transfer. Were there to be any changes to staff terms, these would have to be negotiated at a local level as this falls outside the remit of the Secretary of State for the Home Department. To help facilitate a consistent approach, the Home Office has established a staff transition working group which brings together representatives from the Association of Chief Police Officers, the Association of Police Authorities, the Association of Police Authority Chief Executives and the trade union side of the police staff council.

Police: Firearms

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness and efficiency of the issuing of firearm licences to the public by police authorities; and what guidance she has issued to police forces on the procedure to be followed when issuing firearm licences to the public. [85365]

Nick Herbert: Under the Firearms Act 1968 responsibility for granting and renewing firearm and shotgun certificates lies with the chief officer of police for the area in which the applicant lives. Guidance issued to the police in 2002 was intended to assist consistency of practice between police forces and makes it clear that in operating the licensing system forces should aim to provide cost-effective systems which ensure the speedy and efficient processing of applications and which take into account good practice and the need to provide best value. The guidance is currently being reviewed and will then be republished.

Police: Freedom of Information

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) vexatious and (b) repeated requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 were received by each police force in (i) 2010 and (ii) 2011; and whether she has made an estimate of the cost to the public purse of dealing with such requests. [85874]

Damian Green: The information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Police: Manpower

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Cabinet Office guidelines on Staff Transfers in the Public Sector: Statement of Practice will apply to the transfer of police staff from police authorities to police and crime commissioners. [85387]

Nick Herbert: The Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act provides for the abolition of police authorities and the creation of Police and Crime Commissioners (PCCs). Under the Act, staff transfers can properly be regarded as an administrative reorganisation of public functions and authorities. As such, we expect the principles set out in the Cabinet Office Statement of Practice on Staff Transfers in the Public Sector to be applied.

Police: Pensions

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether she proposes that HM Treasury's guidance entitled A Fair Deal for Staff Pensions will apply to the transfer of police staff from police authorities to police and crime commissioners; [85385]

(2) whether the Cabinet Office guidelines on Staff Transfers in the Public Sector: Statement of Practice and HM Treasury's guidance entitled A Fair Deal for Staff Pensions will be incorporated into the statutory transfer order which will transfer responsibility for police staff from police authorities to police and crime commissioners. [85386]

Nick Herbert: The Police Reform and Social Responsibility Act provides for the abolition of police authorities and the creation of Police and Crime Commissioners (PCCs). Steps are being taken to permit a PCC to become the new employer in the Local Government Pension Scheme so that there will be pension continuity for former non-uniformed police authority staff. Consequently, HM Treasury's Fair Deal requirements would be fully complied with as the member would have no detriment as far as pension provision would be concerned. Furthermore, under the Act, staff transfers can properly be regarded as an administrative reorganisation of public functions and authorities. As such, we expect the principles set out in the Cabinet Office Statement of Practice on Staff Transfers in the Public Sector to be applied.

Police: Training

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to publish her response to the consultation on the review of police leadership and training. [80144]

Nick Herbert: We will respond in due course.

Repatriation

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of people who have applied and been refused the right to remain within the UK who have left the jurisdiction voluntarily in each of the last five years. [85209]

Damian Green: The number of individuals who have applied and been refused the right to remain within the UK, who have subsequently left voluntarily in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

	Voluntary departures (number)
2007	2,525
2008	2,500
2009	6,019
2010	9,642
2011	[1]5,096
Total	25,782

[1] Figures for 2011 are from January to September 2011.

Notes:

1. Figures include removals via the Assisted Voluntary Return programme, notified voluntary departures, those identified via data matching and those identified at embarkation.
2. Figures were produced on 2 December 2011.
3. Figures are based on individuals' removal date, not their application or refusal date.
4. All figures quoted are management information which has been subject to internal quality checks.

Smuggling: Tobacco

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much illegal tobacco was seized in each of the last five years. [85626]

Damian Green: HM Revenue and Customs holds the policy on tackling tobacco smuggling, although HM Revenue and Customs and the UK Border Agency jointly deliver the operational enforcement of the strategy. A refreshed strategy for HM Revenue and Customs and the UK Border Agency, "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling—building on our success", was published in April 2011. This document gives details of cigarettes and tobacco seized and can be viewed via the following link.

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/news/tackling-tobacco.htm

In the last five years, the total tobacco seized by both HMRC and UKBA is detailed in the following table.

	Tobacco seized (tonnes)
2010-11	389
2009-10	406
2008-09	258
2007-08	194
2006-07	228

UK Border Agency

Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) job title, (b) pay band and (c) period of training is for each member of staff of the UK Border Force who has any involvement in the checking of passports and visas. [80423]

Damian Green: Border force officers, who are equivalent to the executive officer grade pay band, generally conduct passport and visa checks on arriving passengers.

Nationwide, border force officers are supervised by higher border force officers (equivalent to higher executive officer grade/pay band) and supported by assistant border force officers (equivalent to administrative officer grade/pay band).

Border force officers receive induction training to perform the full range of immigration functions. Officers who have been trained to carry out customs activities are provided with further training, to enable them to conduct some immigration functions.

In the event of a critical incident, volunteer officers who have attended an additional training course, complemented by mentoring and online learning, may be deployed to check UK and other European Economic Area travel documents.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK Border Agency staff were stationed in (a) Hull, (b) Grimsby and (c) Immingham in each year between 2000 and 2010. [81091]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency was established in 2008, therefore, we do not have any staffing figures prior to this. Staffing figures for the component parts of the UK Border Agency, the former Borders and Immigration Agency and the customs functions of HM Revenue and Customs, were maintained separately until they were merged on Home Office systems in April 2010. Therefore, the only accurate staffing figures we can provide are from April 2010, as follows. There were: 140 staff stationed in (a) Hull; no staff stationed in (b) Grimsby; and 71 staff based in (c) Immingham.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK Border Agency staff are stationed in (a) Hull, (b) Immingham and (c) Grimsby. [81092]

Damian Green: There are 133 staff UK Border Agency stationed at (a) Hull, no staff stationed at (b) Grimsby and 73 staff stationed at (c) Immingham.

Security Vetting

Jesse Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to improve the operation of the criminal record status checks regime. [85729]

Lynne Featherstone: The Government have brought forward new provisions in the Protection of Freedoms Bill to allow an employer, with an applicant's consent, to check online whether a criminal record certificate contains all recent information.

This addresses a key recommendation from Mrs Sunita Mason's Review of the Criminal Records Regime and is a significant enhancement to the service provided by the Criminal Record Bureau, which will greatly assist the portability of certificates and reduce repeat applications.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

British Waterways: Pay

Tristram Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average percentage change in basic salary was for (a) directors, (b) the lowest paid member of staff and (c) the median salaried member of staff at British Waterways in the latest period for which figures are available. [86170]

Richard Benyon: In May 2011, the British Waterways annual pay review resulted in the following changes to basic salary over 2010-11:

(a) for directors: 0%;

(b) for those earning £21,000 and below: £250 consolidated into salary; and

(c) median salaried staff (i.e. those other than at (a) or (b)): 0%.

Food Labelling

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department has taken on the labelling of cheese to inform people of the risks to health associated with unpasteurised cheeses. [85956]

Anne Milton: I have been asked to reply.

We are advised by the Food Standards Agency, which has responsibility for food safety and hygiene matters, that Regulation (EC) 853/2004 which lays down hygiene rules on foods of animal origin, requires that products made with raw milk must be clearly labelled with the words 'made with raw milk'. This includes labelling on the packaging, document, label, ring or collar accompanying or referring to the product. This point is expanded on in guidance which states that the labelling information concerning products made from raw milk applies up to the point of sale

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice her Department provides to the public on the consumption of unpasteurised cheeses. [85957]

Anne Milton: I have been asked to reply.

We are advised by the Food Standards Agency, which has responsibility for food safety and hygiene matters, that the Government advise vulnerable groups (pregnant women, children under five, elderly and immune-compromised) to avoid eating unpasteurised cheeses.

Coastal Areas

Fiona O'Donnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the economic benefits of the coastal path. [86615]

Richard Benyon: An Impact Assessment of the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009 was published in March 2010. Annex 4 of the Impact Assessment included an assessment of the provisions on coastal access under Part 9 of that Act.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria (a) her Department and (b) its public bodies use when deciding whether and when to hold an internal audit; and if she will make a statement. [85637]

Richard Benyon: The internal audit programme is proposed on an annual basis by the organisation's head of internal audit (HIA) and approved by its Audit and Risk Committee. It should cover the key systems of governance, risk management and internal control. Programmes of internal audit work are developed in accordance with Government Internal Audit Standards (GIAS) (based on International Internal Audit Standards), taking into account guidance on internal audit planning issued by HM Treasury. The key criteria established by these standards for deciding what to audit is risk to corporate/strategic objectives.

In the course of any year, the decision on whether to proceed with an audit will depend on the changing risk profile of the organisation. In addition, the HIA may decide to rely on available alternative sources of assurance rather than conduct an audit themselves.

DEFRA Executive agencies' internal audit programmes comprise a mix of risk-based, process/systems, legislative and European Union compliance audits. Each organisation's annual programme of work may or may not include indicative timings for audit work. The decision on when to hold an audit will take account of a number of factors including:

the nature of the risk;

the timing of previous and related assurances over the risk;

resource availability; and the requirements of third parties who rely on internal audit work (e.g. the NAO and the EC).

Departmental Buildings

Dr Whiteford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) building and (b) refurbishment projects her Department plans in (i) 2011-12 and (ii) 2012-13; and what the cost of each such project will be. [74350]

Richard Benyon: The current significant projects for the core department which have been approved for 2011-12 are shown as follows. This consolidates both buildings and refurbishment projects as the two are often inseparable.

Business area	Description of project	Estimated cost (£ million)
Core	DEFRA spend on sustainability works in the core Department and on behalf of Executive agencies and NDPBs. The works have been a series of planned projects to reduce Carbon Emissions and improve energy efficiency. Based on estimates, this work will save DEFRA between £0.4 million and £0.5 million per annum.	1.5
Core	Work undertaken to facilitate the staff move from the 4th floor at 9 Millbank to Nobel House. This work has enabled DEFRA to reduce its estate portfolio and will reduce costs by £0.5 million per annum	0.026

At present, no plans have been approved for 2012-13.

Departmental Civil Proceedings

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which organisations that have received funding from her Department have brought legal proceedings against her Department in the last five years; which such organisations were not successful in their actions; and whether her Department (a) applied and (b) was paid for costs in respect of such cases. [83887]

Richard Benyon: None of the Department's arm's length bodies that are sponsored by, and receive funding from the Department have brought legal proceedings against the Department in the last five years.

Official Hospitality

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what receptions and events have been hosted by her Department since May 2010, including those sponsored by third parties. [84204]

Richard Benyon: There is no central record of all receptions and events the Department has hosted, and the Department will not be able to accurately collate this information without incurring disproportionate cost.

Procurement

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which services her Department has outsourced in each of the last five years. [84228]

Richard Benyon: The core Department outsourced its facilities services in April 2009, and the Information Technology services contract which was put in place in October 2004 was reviewed in 2009 and extended in February 2010. There were no other transfers of functions from the core Department to the private sector in the past five years.

Internships

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many unpaid and expenses-only internships there have been in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [78748]

Richard Benyon: For the period 1 November 2010 to 31 October 2011, there were two unpaid and expense-only internships, both in the Environment Agency, a non-departmental public body.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day received a substantive answer within five working days in each of the last six months. [85054]

Richard Benyon: The following table sets out details of written questions for answer on a named day that received a substantive answer within five working days.

	Number of named day PQs received	Number answered on time	Proportion answered on time (percentage)
June 2011	40	37	93
July 2011	40	32	80
August 2011	3	3	100
September 2011	32	28	88
October 2011	27	11	41
November 2011	67	45	67

Eggs: Imports

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish any legal advice she received on the potential for the Government to implement a unilateral ban on the import of eggs from EU member states that have not complied with Directive 1999/74/EC. [86578]

Mr Paice: The Government's legal advice is protected by legal professional privilege. The Government's position is not ordinarily to waive the legal privilege attaching to any legal advice received.

Environmental Stewardship Scheme

Fiona O'Donnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will consider awarding points under the Higher Level Stewardship Scheme for allowing permissive recreational access as an incentive to land managers. [86557]

Richard Benyon: Unlike Entry Level Stewardship, Higher Level Stewardship (HLS) is not based on a points system, but comprises individual multi-objective agreements in highly targeted areas and situations where maximum environmental outcomes can be achieved. It is not therefore possible to introduce points for provision of permissive access.

Flood Control: Finance

Andrew Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding her Department has allocated to flood prevention in each of the last three financial years. [85430]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA is due to spend £550 million in the current financial year on managing the risk of flooding and coastal erosion across England. This compares with £628 million in 2009-10, and £664 million in 2010-11. Over the four years of the 2010 spending review period, DEFRA expects to spend a total of £2.17 billion managing flood and coastal erosion risks in comparison with £2.32 billion during the previous four years. This is a reduction of 6%.

Floods: North-east England

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what flood and coastal environmental risk management schemes she plans for the north-east in the next 10 years. [85349]

Richard Benyon: In May, the Government announced reforms to the national funding system. The new partnership approach to funding flood and coastal resilience means that money is potentially available to pay a share of the costs of any worthwhile scheme. The amount each scheme can receive depends on the number of households protected, the damages prevented, and any other benefits a scheme will bring. Where full funding cannot be justified, the shortfall can be made up through cost savings or by contributions from other sources. This will mean that, over time, local ambitions in terms of protection no longer need be constrained by issues of national budgetary affordability.

Decisions on flood and coastal erosion risk schemes to be delivered in the north-east are made by the Northumbria Regional Flood and Coastal Committee, with advice from the Environment Agency.

The Environment Agency has proposed the following 18 indicative schemes within the committee's area for 2012-13, at a combined cost of £26,575,000:

Scheme name	Funding allocated in 2012-13 (£000)
Redcar	11,400
Morpeth Flood Alleviation Scheme	5,327
Realignment of Littlehaven Sea Wall	2,931
Greatham North	2,532
Seaton Carew Northern Management Unit Phase 2 (MA13.1 B-E)	2,100
Town Wall Model Study and Construction C6-3, Hartlepool	1,200
Blyth Sea Defences	315
Stokesley Flood Alleviation Scheme[1]	200
Stanhope River Wear Flood Alleviation Scheme	125
Neasham Village Flood Protection and Reservoir Safety Works	75
North Blyth Coast Protection Scheme	75
Briarvale—Appraisal, Design and Construction[1]	50
Fairfield Green—Appraisal, Design and Construction[1]	50
Netherton Flood Alleviation Scheme	50
Newbiggin Point Coast Protection Scheme	50
Strategy Frontage 3—North East Pier/South West Breakwater/Hendon Foreshore Barrier[1]	50
Newbiggin Bay Beach Management Phase 2	25
Strategy Frontage 1—South Bents and Seaburn Sea Walls Overtopping Protection[1]	20
Total	26,575

[1] Funding shown is to develop the business case, and does not include construction. Funding for construction will depend on the outcome of the business case.

The schemes include those promoted directly by the Environment Agency as well as schemes being promoted directly by local authorities. The final programme for 2012-13 will be announced in February 2012. 12 of these schemes are being made possible by local contributions under the new partnership funding arrangements.

The Environment Agency also proposes to spend £2,149,000 in 2012-13 on the maintenance of existing schemes, improvements to flood forecasting, mapping and warning and on studies for future schemes. It is working with local stakeholders on a programme of further flood and coastal environmental risk schemes it hopes will be implemented over the next 10 years.

Land: Sustainable Development

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department plans to maintain national sustainable development indicator (a) 25 on land recycling and (b) 26 on dwelling density; and if she will make a statement. [85362]

Richard Benyon: The Government are committed to publishing a revised set of sustainable development indicators. DEFRA officials are discussing individual indicators with the relevant Government Departments, in this case the Department for Communities and Local Government. No decisions have yet been made on which measures will continue as sustainable development indicators but, in the new year, we shall be undertaking a public consultation on proposals. In the interests of making the sustainable development indicators more effective at highlighting priorities and challenges, the number of indicators may be reduced, but in most cases measures that are no longer included in the set will nevertheless continue to be reported in their own right by the relevant Department.

Waste Disposal: Lighting

Mr Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration she has given to providing advice to consumers on dealing with broken energy-saving light bulbs; and if she will make a statement. [82467]

Richard Benyon: Compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs) contain a small amount of mercury in order to operate. Since 1 September 2010, it has been a legal obligation under EU Regulation 244/2009 for anyone placing lamps containing mercury on the market to provide instructions on free-access websites that explain how to clean up lamp debris in case of accidental lamp breakage.

In addition, the Health Protection Agency provides advice on how to clean up broken CFLs on its website.

Nature Conservation: EU Law

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which special areas of conservation are covered by the European Habitats Directive; and which special protection areas are covered by the European Birds Directive. [84838]

Richard Benyon: All special areas of conservation (SAC) are designated under articles 3 and 4 of the EU Habitats Directive (92/43/EEC). All special protection areas (SPA) are designated under article 4 of the EU Wild Birds Directive (2009/147/EC—codified version).

European protected site information can be found on the Joint Nature Conservation Committee website.

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will publish an environmental impact assessment of the proposal to review implementation of the European Habitats and Wild Birds Directive. [85272]

Richard Benyon: The review of implementation of the Birds and Habitats Directives will take full account of the need to maintain the integrity of the purpose of the directives. If any proposals arising from the review require impact assessments these will be carried out at the appropriate time.

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason her Department plans to conduct a review of how well the EU Habitats and Wild Birds Directives are being applied in England. [85366]

Richard Benyon: As announced in the Autumn Statement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), DEFRA will conduct an in-depth review of how the EU Habitats and Birds Directives are currently being implemented in England, working with stakeholders and other Government Departments.

The vast majority of development cases successfully meet the directives' requirements without undue delays, but a small number raise particularly complex issues which can give rise to delays. The review will look at the reasons behind this and seek to identify solutions, engaging interested parties in its work, while maintaining the integrity of the purpose of the directives.

Noise: National Policy Statements

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to update the Noise Policy Statement for England. [86167]

Richard Benyon: There are currently no plans to update the Noise Policy Statement for England 2010. However, as we stated in the 2011 Natural Environment White Paper, the Government are committed to delivering the Noise Policy Statement for England with its long-term vision of promoting good health and good quality of life. This will be achieved through the effective management of noise in the context of the Government's policy on sustainable development.

Pollution: EU Law

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) for what reason her Department plans to conduct a review of the implementation of the EU ambient air quality directive; [85367]

(2) for what reason she plans to review the implementation of the EU national emissions ceiling directive; [85368]

Richard Benyon: In March, the European Commission published their Staff Working Paper on the implementation of EU air quality policy and preparations for their comprehensive review. The paper makes clear that proposals to revise ambient air quality and national emission ceilings legislation are expected in 2013. Existing legislation includes provisions for such reviews.

Postcodes

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department uses postcodes for purposes other than the postage of mail. [84203]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA uses postcodes to identify particular areas on mapping databases and in analysis of spatial data to support a range of departmental activities; for example: analysis of rural statistics and animal disease control.

Rights of Way

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will take steps to improve the ease with which incorrectly identified rights of way can be corrected. [85799]

Richard Benyon: In the Government White Paper: "The Natural Choice: securing the value of nature", DEFRA announced that it will consult on simplifying and streamlining the processes for recording and making changes to public rights of way, based on proposals made by Natural England's working group on unrecorded rights of way. I am currently considering the options for this consultation and expect to make an announcement in due course.

Rural Areas: Renewable Energy

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to launch her proposed Rural Community Renewable Energy Fund. [85483]

Richard Benyon: Further details about the Government's Rural Community Renewable Energy Fund, including its funding, management and operation, will be published in the new year.

Waste Management: Exports

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many tonnes of waste were exported from the UK for treatment abroad in each of the last five years; and what proportion of the UK's waste this represented. [84288]

Richard Benyon: The following table details the tonnage of waste exported from England and Wales for the last five years under the system of pre-notification to the Environment Agency under the EU waste shipments regulation. These permitted shipments are mainly hazardous wastes shipped to EU member states and members of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development.

In addition to this notified waste, DEFRA estimates that approximately 15 million tonnes of non-hazardous waste is exported each year for recovery including recycling, which represents around 5% of the UK's waste. As this waste may be exported without pre-notification and under commercial controls, the Environment Agency does not collect data about these shipments.

Water Supply

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the options for (a) water supply and (b) billing of those receiving water via resale; and if she will make a statement. [86207]

Richard Benyon: Water resale commonly occurs in mobile home parks, flats, apartments and other rented or leasehold accommodation. Under section 150 of the Water Industry Act 1991, Ofwat have the power to make an order fixing the maximum resale price for water or sewerage services, either by specifying the maximum amount of the charge or by specifying how the maximum price should be calculated.

Ofwat have said in their forward programme for 2011-12 to 2013-14 that they will review the water resale order in 2012 to ensure it remains appropriate.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Dr Whiteford: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she plans to answer questions (a) 74350, (b) 74351, (c) 74352 and (d) 74353 tabled by the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan on 12 October 2011. [83837]

Richard Benyon: I apologise to the hon. Member for Banff and Buchan. My answers on (a) 74350 and (b) 74351 will be published shortly. My answer on (c) 74352, was published on 23 November 2011, Official Report, 424W and (d) 74353, was published on 30 November 2011, Official Report, 942W.

SCOTLAND

Broadband

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions his Department has had with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on increasing the take-up of new high speed broadband in Scotland. [86203]

David Mundell: Scotland Office Ministers and officials have regular discussions with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on a range of issues including broadband. I attended the Ministerial Group on Broadband, most recently on 10 October 2011.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) whether food and catering services in his Department plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards; [85850]

(2) what steps the food and catering services in his Department are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85851]

David Mundell: The Scotland Office does not have food and catering services.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86145]

David Mundell: There have been no secondments to the Scotland Office from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85920]

David Mundell: This information is not available in the form requested.

From the start of the 2010-12 Session to 30 November 2011, the Scotland Office answered 444 (90%) of ordinary written parliamentary questions on time.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Department's performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the committee and are available on the Parliament website.

High Speed 2 Railway Line

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland when he last had a discussion with the Scottish Government on the extension of the proposed High Speed 2 line to the Scottish border. [86360]

David Mundell: My officials and I are in regular contact with counterparts in the Scottish Government in regard to the High Speed 2 project. We look forward to having more detailed discussions if and when the Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Putney (Justine Greening), approves proposals for the initial phases of the project, for construction of a line from London to the West Midlands, and north to Manchester and Leeds.

Housing Benefit: Carers

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland whether he has (a) held discussions and (b) corresponded with (i) the Scottish Government, (ii) the Convention of Scottish Local Authorities and (iii) children's charities in Scotland on the effect of the planned introduction of an under-occupancy limit for housing benefit on foster carers of working age in Scotland. [86205]

David Mundell: The Secretary of State for Scotland, the right hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Michael Moore), and officials from the Scotland Office are in contact with these organisations on a range of issues concerning the Government's reform of the welfare and benefits system.

Public Houses

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions officials in his Department have had with their counterparts in the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on their response to the Business, Innovation and Skills Committee's inquiry into pub companies insofar as it relates to Scotland. [86397]

David Mundell: Officials in BIS have been in contact with their counterparts in the Scotland Office and in the Office of the Advocate-General in respect of this inquiry. Following investigation, the OFT found no evidence of competition problems in the pub industry having a significant impact on consumers. It was concluded that legally binding self-regulation of pub companies, or 'pubcos', could be introduced far more quickly than any statutory solution. Officials in OAG confirmed that the code of practice can be made legally binding under Scots law by contract or incorporation into, or variation of, leases; the legal principles are similar to those in England and Wales.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies; and if he will make a statement. [85653]

John Penrose: This Department and its Executive agency, the Royal Parks, try to commission services that encompass economic, social and environmental aspects. Usually this is included within the statement of requirements. Other centralised contracts are commissioned by Cabinet Office directly.

EDUCATION

Capita

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many contracts his Department has awarded to Capita since May 2010; and what the (a) purpose, (b) monetary value and (c) net worth was of each such contract. [84746]

Tim Loughton: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Stoke-on-Trent Central (Tristram Hunt) on 5 July 2011, Official Report, column 1138W.

Child Protection Review

Andrea Leadsom: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what progress he has made on implementation of the recommendations of the Munro report into child protection. [86572]

Tim Loughton: Good progress is being made across the full range of commitments in the Government response published in July.

We are reducing bureaucracy and making it easier for the front line to use their professional judgment through revisions to "Working Together to Safeguard Children" and the "Framework of Assessment for Children in Need and their Families". There will be a formal consultation from early 2012 and we will publish revised statutory guidance by July 2012. A multi-disciplinary professional advisory group is advising us on this work.

Government, Ofsted and the Association of Directors of Children's Services (ADCS) have come together with a range of other partners to develop and agree local child safeguarding performance information that puts professional expertise, rather than process, at the heart of local quality assurance. This is now published on the Department's website and we will be consulting in the new year on national performance information.

Over the summer, Ofsted consulted on local authority child protection inspection arrangements that are more child centred. These new arrangements will begin in May 2012. All relevant inspectorates have also now agreed in principle to Professor Munro's proposed model of joint inspection to ensure that the contribution of all local services to safeguarding is examined. The inspectorates are working through what such a model will look like and when it will begin, and will give a progress update by end March 2012.

On 31 October we published a co-produced work programme, "Safeguarding Children in the reformed NHS". Phase one is under way, led by the Chief Nursing Officer. Stakeholders will be consulted on the draft Accountabilities Framework in January 2012.

We have been working with partners to consider the best route to secure Professor Munro's vision of a transparent and co-ordinated offer of early help for children and families. We have engaged with partners in ADCS, health, police and education and have concluded that we do not need a new statutory duty to deliver early help and that there is sufficient existing legislation to realise Professor Munro's recommendation. We will continue to work with partners to clarify existing legislation to emphasise the importance of early help. In the meantime we encourage local areas to continue to work to provide early help for the compelling arguments that Professor Munro articulated.

We are working with eight local authorities to trial more flexible approaches to assessment. The evidence from these trials is being evaluated now. The emerging findings are encouraging and suggest that both removing the distinction between the initial and core assessments and replacing nationally prescribed time scales for assessment with timely, professional judgments can have the positive impact on practice envisaged by Professor Munro. Some of these trials have been running for only a few months and we need to explore further the impact of these changes, especially for children and young people. For this reason we have extended the trials to run until 31 March 2012 and will be consulting on flexibilities as part of the "Working Together" consultation next year.

After consultation, and a market sounding exercise, we have taken the decision to decommission the National electronic Common Assessment Framework system (National eCAF). This is consistent with Professor Munro's view that we should remove constraints to local innovation and professional judgment that are created by prescribing approaches such as national IT systems. We will work with the current users of the system over the coming months to ensure a smooth transition. As part of the decommissioning process we will consider the options to secure value out of the Government owned assets.

Our reforms of child protection are underpinned by workforce reform, in particular reform of the social work profession which is being led by the Social Work Reform Board and the College of Social Work.

The Children's Workforce Development Council (CWDC) and the College of Social Work are supporting local authorities in designating a Principal Child and Family Social Worker in every local area. These roles will play a key part in redesigning child and family social work. The Department for Education and the Department of Health have been making preparations for the appointment of a Chief Social Worker to advise Government on social work practice and the effectiveness of help being provided to children, families and adults. We are confident that the Chief Social Worker will be in post in 2012, ahead of the timeline envisaged in the Government's response.

We are clarifying and strengthening accountabilities in the system and taking action to improve learning from Serious Case Reviews.

We are currently consulting on new guidance for DCSs and Lead Members so that we have real clarity about their roles. My officials and I have also held discussions with groups of Local Safeguarding Children Boards Chairs to consider what might be done to strengthen their central role in challenging and monitoring the effectiveness of safeguarding arrangements and we will be exploring options with stakeholders over coming weeks. This will build on our reforms around learning, early help, inspection and performance information which emphasise the importance of LSCBs.

Improving learning from serious incidents is critical to driving improvements in practice in child protection. Following Professor Munro's recommendation to use systems methodologies for Serious Case Reviews (SCR), we are considering how the Social Care Institute for Excellence's (SCIE) "Learning Together" model can be developed further for use in SCRs. I announced last month that Coventry LSCB would pilot the SCIE model and we have now agreed that Lancashire LSCB will also carry out a pilot. While the pilots are in progress, my officials are also exploring, learning from sectors such as aviation and health, other ways of ensuring effective, sustained learning from serious incidents embedded in everyday practice, with greater transparency and accountability. We will consult formally on new arrangements for SCRs next year.

We have been working with Ofsted to develop transitional arrangements in response to Professor Munro's recommendation to end Ofsted's evaluation of SCRs. From January 2012, Ofsted evaluations of SCRs will be more streamlined with a greater focus on identifying and embedding learning in order to support improvements in professional practice.

Implementing the Munro recommendations requires a shift in mindset. The Government response was not intended to be seen as a one-off set of recommended solutions to be imposed from the centre, but a joint venture between central Government, local agencies, local authorities and professionals. Our reforms are designed to shift the focus of the child protection system on to the things that matter most: the views and experiences of children and young people.

Children in Care

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if he will expand the destination codes in the SSDA903 return to identify when a child runs away from care or is abducted or trafficked. [82417]

Tim Loughton: The Department has no plans to expand the codes under which local authorities provide statistical returns on children missing from care, as this will lead to an unnecessary increase in reporting requirements. It is the responsibility of local authorities to safeguard and promote the well-being of children in care, and they will hold more detailed information on each child who has gone missing from their care.

Mr Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he has taken to encourage local authorities to share good practice and reduce poor performance in providing services for looked-after children. [85254]

Tim Loughton: We have made clear that we want to see rapid improvements in the quality of support given to looked-after children, and in the volume and timeliness of adoption where this is in the child's best interest. It is therefore essential to bring all authorities up to the standards of the best. The new Children in Care and Adoption Performance Tables, published on 31 October and being updated this month, show the extent of the variations in performance between different authorities, and where improvements need to be made.

Local authorities need to ensure that they draw on best practice and make full use of evidence based interventions such as Multi-dimensional Treatment Foster Care. We will continue to support them in doing this, and to help maximise the impact of well-informed local support and challenge from independent reviewing officers, virtual school heads, children in care councils and voluntary sector networks.

A full set of streamlined, more coherent regulations and guidance came into force in April, and revised national minimum standards have also been published. The Foster Carers' Charter now sets out clear principles for how foster carers should be supported and our programme of improvement for children's homes includes support for the sharing of good practice and identifying and tackling weaknesses.

Children in Care: Finance

Mr Timpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment he has made of the appropriate level for the leaving care grant set by local authorities; and whether he is taking steps to ensure that variability between local authorities in setting such grants is reduced. [85255]

Tim Loughton: The Department does not collect information on the level of setting up home allowances, sometimes known as leaving care grants, determined by individual local authorities. Statutory guidance on the Care Leavers (England) Regulations 2010 emphasises how important it is for local authorities to provide transparent and accessible information about the leaving care support they offer, including through the payment of setting up home allowances. The guidance explains that local authorities should consult young people, particularly through Children in Care Councils, in deciding the right level of allowance.

Children: Autism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) how many students with autism are enrolled in mainstream schools in (a) Greater London, (b) the London borough of Havering and (c) Romford; [83141]

(2) how many students with autism are enrolled in specialist schools in (a) Greater London, (b) the London borough of Havering and (c) Romford. [83142]

State-funded primary, state-funded secondary and special schools[1,2,3,4]: Number and percentage of pupils with autistic spectrum disorder[5,6]—January 2011, England, Greater London, Havering local authority and Romford parliamentary constituency

Information on type of special educational need at local authority level is available in the 'Special Educational Needs in England: January 2011' Statistical First Release (Tables 23 to 25) which can be found at:

Children: Day Care

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if he will estimate the total funding from the public purse for child care (a) in total and (b) per capita for (i) Birmingham, (ii) Newcastle, (iii) Wakefield, (iv) Manchester, (v) Leeds, (vi) Liverpool, (vii) Coventry, (viii) Bristol, (ix) Sheffield, (x) Bradford, (xi) Leicester and (xii) Nottingham in each of the next five years. [82765]

Sarah Teather: The Department funds local authorities to provide free early education places (of 15 hours per week for 38 weeks a year) for all three and four-year-olds and some disadvantaged two-year-olds. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the right hon. Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), announced in his autumn statement on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, that the commitment to give free early education to disadvantaged two-year-olds will now be extended from 20% to 40% of two-year-olds by 2014-15. This will mean additional funding of £73 million in 2012-13, £203 million in 2013-14 and £380 million in 2014-15, bringing the total funding for two-year-old places to £296 million, £534 million and £760 million in these years.

Funding for places for three and four-year-olds is provided through the dedicated schools grant (DSG) which funds education for all children aged three to 16. Funding for places for disadvantaged two-year-olds is provided through the early intervention grant (EIG) which also funds a range of other children's services. Local authorities are responsible for deciding how much of the DSG, EIG or other local authority funds to allocate for free early education places.

Local authorities report their planned funding allocations through the annual section 251 financial return. From this information, an estimate of the funding allocated in 2011-12 for free early education places for two, three and four-year-olds and other early years spend in each of the named local authorities is provided in the following table. However, this may not represent the full spend on early years and child care services by the local authority. Further information on local authority allocations is available at:

The Department does not hold information on the funding per capita for child care or on funding projections for the next five years in each local authority area. The Government also provide financial support towards the cost of child care, for working parents, through the child care element of working tax credit and through tax relief on employer supported child care.

Departmental Advertising

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what advertising campaigns his Department has commissioned in each of the last three years; and what the cost was of each campaign. [85178]

Tim Loughton: The requested information is outlined in the following table. The figures include all production costs for the campaigns including media and production fees. Where a figure of zero spend has been provided, this is because no campaigns have been run in that year.

Departmental Civil Proceedings

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which organisations that have received funding from his Department have brought legal proceedings against his Department in the last five years; which such organisations were not successful in their actions; and whether his Department (a) applied and (b) was paid for costs in respect of such cases. [83885]

Tim Loughton: Records of legal proceedings against the Department for Education and its predecessors are not sorted by reference to whether the organisations bringing proceedings are funded by the Department. A search and analysis of all records of legal proceedings brought over the past five years would involve disproportionate cost. However, the following organisations that have received funding from the Department have brought proceedings against the Department in the past 18 months: the Child Poverty Action Group, Essex county council, Kent county council, Luton borough council, Newham London borough council, Nottingham city council, Sandwell metropolitan borough council, Waltham Forest London borough council. The Child Poverty Action Group's and Essex county council's claims against the Department have yet to be heard. The claims brought by the other six organisations were joined together and were successful.

Departmental Communications

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) press officers, (b) internal communications officers, (c) external communications officers, (d) communications strategy officers and (e) other positions with a communications remit were employed by (i) his Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) each non-departmental public body sponsored by his Department on the most recent date for which figures are available. [84196]

Tim Loughton: As part of wider reforms to our corporate functions, and rationalising the number of agencies and non-departmental public bodies, the Department is currently centralising communications functions and reducing communication staff numbers.

The Department has reduced its total communications staff from 130 in April 2010, to 86 in April 2011, to 69 to date. Communication staff numbers in agencies and non-departmental public bodies have reduced from 204 in April 2010, to 105 in April 2011, and we anticipate this figure to reduce to zero by the end of the financial year.

There are currently (a) 15 press officers, (b) four internal communications officers, (d) four communications strategy officers, and (e) 46 other positions with a communications remit in the Department; for example web editing, speechwriting, publishing, and events management. We do not categorise (c) external communications officers.

Design Services

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what contracts his Department has awarded for design services since May 2010; and what information his Department holds on the location of such companies. [80183]

Tim Loughton: The Department for Education let a new framework agreement for creative media services on 4 July 2011. This framework replaced a number of old frameworks, including design services.

The new framework was awarded to Creative Choice—a newly-formed small medium enterprise (SME) consortium and community interest company. Three principal companies provide first tier management functions:

Live Group (chair and project management) based in London/ Sheffield;

WCL (account management) based in London; and CDS (sourcing and supply management) based in Leeds.

This first tier manages a broad second tier supply base, including companies delivering design services. The framework is currently mid-process in evaluating potential suppliers. Phase 1 is complete, and due to the significant interest from the SME market—a phase 2 has started and will be completed by January 2012. To date the following design companies have joined the second tier supply base (location in brackets):

Bell (London);

Bentley Holland (London);

Brass(Leeds);

Buffalo Design (Bath);

CDS (Leeds);

Domarn Group (London);

Folio Creative Communication Ltd (Henley-on-Thames, Oxon);

Kindred (London);

Live Group (London);

Oxford Strategic Marketing (Oxford);

the Workshop (Sheffield);

Wordlink (London); and

Yes Agency (Uttoxeter, Staffs).

The phase 2 evaluation will add a further four to six design companies to this list.

Procurement

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what procedures his Department has put in place to ensure value for money on purchases; and what savings have been realised through use of such procedures in the last year. [83643]

Tim Loughton: The Chief Secretary to the Treasury, the right hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander), in his answer to his hon. Friend the Member for Southport (John Pugh) on 15 November 2010, Official Report, columns 615-16W, said that the Government had announced a more specific and innovative approach to efficiency and reform across the public sector led by the Efficiency and Reform Group (ERG) in Cabinet Office, including:

a reduction in administration budgets of 34% across the whole of Whitehall and its arm's length bodies saving £5.9 billion a year by 2014-15; radically reducing the number of arm's length bodies across government; and the Efficiency and Reform Group's tough new efficiency regime which will drive savings in procurement, major projects and estate management.

The Department has established internal procedures which underpin these cross-Government arrangements introduced by ERG, and which provide scrutiny of spend across the Department for Education and our arm's length bodies.

It is departmental policy to competitively tender all contract opportunities and to award contracts to the supplier offering best value for money.

In August 2011, the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Paymaster General, my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr Maude), announced that ERG's new measures had saved £3.75 billion over 2010/11.

This impact was assessed using methodologies follows at Annex A. The assessment has been independently verified by Government auditors who found the benefits assertions to be fairly calculated and presented.

These savings are born out in my Department's annual report and accounts 2010-11:

Note 9 (a), page 83, reports that other administration costs for my Department reduced from £70.713 million in financial year 2009-10 to £65.868 million in financial year 2010-11. Figures in this report are prepared in accordance with HM Treasury's Financial Reporting Manual for central Government Departments and associated Treasury resource accounting and budgeting guidance.

Annex A: Activity and calculation method

Area	Activity description	Evidence base/calculation
Consulting	Government put in place a moratorium on new consulting spend, and extensions to existing contracts. Where spend was considered operationally critical (for example, where it might put at risk critical services) an exception process existed for department ministers to sign off expenditure over £20,000.	Savings are calculated by subtracting total departmental reported spend on consultancy for 2010/11 from total departmental reported spend on consultancy for 2009/10. To reduce the risk of costs shifting between categories, we also monitored expenditure on other Professional Services categories, including contingent labour.
Crown Commercial	Government has renegotiated deals with some of the largest suppliers to government.	The method of calculation varies according to the initiative that yields the saving, but was based on cash releasing savings against a baseline of what would have otherwise been spent. This was often price savings against the previous price paid. Savings agreed with suppliers are recorded in Memoranda of Understanding as guaranteed-in-year or conditional-in-year savings. Realised savings were subsequently tracked back to departmental verification of supplier progress reports.
Contingent Labour	Government has significantly cut the number of temporary staff.	Savings are calculated by subtracting total departmental reported spend on contingent labour for 2010/11 from total departmental reported spend on contingent labour for 2009/10.
Communications	Government froze all new marketing spend unless it is an operational necessity. Where spend was proposed, Ministerial sign-off was required for £20,000 or above.	Calculations compare departmental spend on marketing and advertising through COI for 2010/11 with that for 2009/10.

Centralising Procurement	Government has started to centralise spend on common goods and services to drive down prices. These savings derive from the 10 categories of expenditure targeted for centralisation, and relate to price savings through increased aggregation.	For each initiative, calculations are performed using individual benefit methodologies that set out how savings will be calculated against a 2009/10 price baseline. Evidence is management information provided by suppliers.
ICT	We implemented: (a) a moratorium on all new ICT spend above £1 million; and (b) a review of all on-going ICT commitments. Departments also reported those projects that were closed before undergoing the review.	Calculations are based on departmental reports of spend that has not proceeded. Spend that has not gone ahead in 2010/11 is recorded, as a result of stopping or reducing spend. Further, sustainable savings are targeted through the Government ICT strategy.
Major Projects	We reviewed the Government's biggest projects to see where 2010/11 costs could practically be reduced within contractual constraints, or wasteful projects stopped altogether. We've halted or curtailed spend on 4 projects: 14-19 Reform—£60 million Identity Cards—£50 million Highways Agency Projects—£54 million Whole Farm—£5 million. We have redacted £22 million of potential double counting from these figures that arises between this work and our supplier renegotiation work stream. £14.9 million arises from the Home Office National Identity Cards and £6.7 million from DEFRA Whole Farm.	HMT have provided assurance that the relevant amounts were removed from departmental budgets following the Major Projects related negotiations.
Property	We put in place national property controls such that signature of new property leases or lease extensions were approved centrally. It has not always been possible to net off all costs associated with vacating buildings. However, we have also not claimed savings in respect of revenue from property disposals.	Calculations are property by property based on the amount departments have reported saved through the Government's property database by non-renewal of property leases at lease breaks or upon lease expiry.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years. [84233]

Tim Loughton: When the Department vacated Caxton house in November 2007 and handed the building to the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), as part of its central London estate rationalisation strategy, six members of staff from the Department for Children, Schools and Families (the predecessor to the Department for Education) who provided mailroom, security guarding and reception services transferred to DWP's outsourced service provider.

While the Department had already outsourced elements of its security guarding services in sanctuary buildings before the period requested, further day-time guarding services were transferred to the existing outsourced contract in 2009/10.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much funding his Department allocated to (a) the Institute of Physics, (b) the Life Science Centre, (c) Mathematics in Education and Industry, (d) the Royal Society of Engineering, (e) Stemnet, (f) Sporting Futures, (g) Sports Coach UK and (h) Youth Sport Trust in 2010-11; how much it plans to pay each organisation in 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [85689]

Tim Loughton [holding answer 8 December 2011]: The Department's finance system shows that payments made to the named organisations in financial year 2010-11 was as given in the following table. Also included are estimates of the funding for financial year 2011-12.

	Payments made in financial year 2010-11	Estimated funding 2011-12
Institute of Physics	1,073,308	1,300,000
The Life Science Centre	48,756	0
Mathematics in Education and Industry	1,467,331	1,500,000
The Royal Academy of Engineering[1]	12,000	12,000
Stemnet	2,204,421	1,500,000
Sports Coach UK	102,90.0	0
Youth Sport Trust	12,395,730	750,000

[1] The PQ refers to the Royal Society of Engineering though the actual name is as shown in the table.

Departmental Travel Costs

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much his Department has spent on first class travel by (a) air, (b) boat and (c) train since May 2010. [75532]

Tim Loughton: Between May 2010 and September 2011 the Department for Education spent £192,510 on first-class rail journeys and there were no first-class journeys by sea or air during this period.

70% of the first-class rail tickets spend between May 2010 and September 2011 (17 months) was spent in the five months May to September 2010 (£134,670 of a total of £192,510)

First-class rail travel costs for the period May 2010 to March 2011 was £166,636 (10.5%) of the total £1,585,485 rail travel costs.

First-class rail travel costs for the period April to September 2011 (six months) was £25,874 (4.3%) of the total £595,115 rail travel costs.

This information is a summary of transactions through the Department's Business Travel booking agent, Carlson Wagonlit Travel.

There are clear policy principles guiding this issue and staff are expected to travel standard-class except in a very few special circumstances, including access to facilities to accommodate disabilities or if it can be demonstrated that a first-class ticket is lower cost than standard class. The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), and other Ministers have a policy of travelling in standard class and the only first-class rail journey purchased since May 2010 by a member of this group was undertaken by the Secretary of State on 9 September 2010. On this occasion, the Secretary of State's Private Office was instructed by No. 10 officials to purchase a first-class ticket that ensured Mr Gove travelled with the Prime Minister first class to Norwich from London and return, in the same carriage, for security reasons.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day received a substantive answer within five working days in each of the last six months. [85059]

Month due	Proportion of named day PQs answered substantively within five working days (percentage)
April 2011	69
May 2011	59
June 2011	51
July 2011	76
September 2011	59
October 2011	44

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide full information to the Committee at the end of the session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009/10 parliamentary session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Disadvantaged

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps his Department is taking to support families adversely affected by the current economic climate. [83507]

Sarah Teather: The Department is providing significant support to families in the current economic climate. We are seeking to ensure that economic difficulties do not impair children's long-term life chances and that we support families to improve their circumstances.

In addition to the Government's support provided to families through the tax and benefit system, the Government have also allocated £2.2 billion (2011-12) and £2.3 billion (2012-13) in England to fund universal programmes and activities to all children, young people and families via the Early Intervention Grant.

The Department is extending the 15 hours per week of free early education currently offered to all three and four-year-olds, to 40% of two-year-olds by 2014-15. We are also reforming Sure Start to support better the needs of the most vulnerable and disadvantaged families. The Government have also committed to continuing to provide free school meals to the most disadvantaged families.

The Department is providing £12.4 million over 2011-13 to voluntary and community sector organisations to deliver family support services online and through telephone helplines. Services are available to all families who can access a range of free, professional support including relationship advice, services tailored specifically for fathers, supporting single parents and information about benefits. A survey of users of the family services in September 2011 reported that 74% of users were women and that 52% of users had a joint household income of less than £25,000. 23% of users had a joint household income of less than £15,000. The survey also reported that 21% of users were unemployed.

We have also introduced new grants for the most disadvantaged young people through the Fairness Premium and the 16-19 Bursary Fund.

Drugs: Health Education

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of specific (a) school and (b) community-based drug education programmes; [82902]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that school and community-based drug education programmes are commissioned on the basis of evidence of effectiveness; [82903]

(3) what guidance he provides to local authorities on the commissioning of drug education programmes; [82904]

(4) whether he has considered introducing a minimum requirement for school-based drug education in Key Stages 2, 3 and 4. [82905]

Sarah Teather: The Drug Strategy, published in December 2010, recognised that all young people need high quality drug and alcohol education so they have a thorough knowledge of their effects and harms and have the skills and confidence to choose not to use drugs and alcohol. It said that schools have a clear role to play in preventing drug and alcohol misuse as part of their pastoral responsibilities to pupils. This will be supported by revised, simplified guidance for schools on preventing drug and alcohol misuse.

It is not the role of Government to dictate decisions that are best made locally by professionals, so the Department does not issue guidance to local authorities on the commissioning of drug education programmes.

Drug education is currently a statutory part of the national curriculum for science at key stages 2, 3 and 4. Pupils are taught about the effects on the body of tobacco, alcohol and other substances and how these relate to their personal health.

The Department is currently reviewing the national curriculum. It has already confirmed that English, mathematics, science and physical education will continue to be compulsory in future. DfE will consult next year on the proposed programmes of study for these four subjects. Proposals for the new scope of the national curriculum will be announced next year, following which there will be consultation before final decisions are made.

Drug education is also part of the non-statutory subject of personal, social, health and economic (PSHE) education at key stages 2, 3 and 4. Pupils are taught which drugs are illegal and the personal and social consequences of drug misuse for themselves and others.

PSHE education is currently under review. The aim is to identify the core body of knowledge that pupils need and to determine how we can support schools to improve the quality of all PSHE teaching. Research findings form part of the national and international evidence base for the review. The Department will consult on its proposals for PSHE education next year.

Education: Finance

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when he plans to publish details of the allocation of the extra £500 million in basic need funding he announced in July 2011. [83850]

Mr Gibb: The announcement was made on 3 November. This can be accessed by using the following link:

http://www.education.gov.uk/schools/adminandfinance/schoolscapital/a00199873/allocation-of-extra-500-million-to-address-the-shortage-in-pupil-places

GCSE: Religion

Paul Maynard: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether his Department has undertaken any research on the number of pupils choosing to take a GCSE in religious education following the decision not to include the subject in the English baccalaureate. [85678]

Mr Gibb: The Department has not undertaken research specifically on the number of pupils choosing to take a GCSE in religious education following the introduction of the English baccalaureate.

It has undertaken research on the impact of the English baccalaureate on subject choices, which was published on 31 August 2011. The survey indicated that 47% of pupils taking GCSEs in 2013 in the schools responding will be taking subjects that could lead to an English baccalaureate, compared with just 23% of GCSE-stage pupils entered in 2011. The research did not provide evidence which could be used to draw robust conclusions about the take-up of individual subjects not included in the scope of the English baccalaureate.

The research report can be viewed at:

https://www.education.gov.uk/publications/RSG/publicationDetail/Page1/DFE-RB150

Copies have already been placed in the House Libraries.

We will continue to monitor the impact of the English baccalaureate on GCSE subject choices, including through review of GCSE entries in 2012.

Members: Correspondence

Andrea Leadsom: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when he plans to respond to the letter of 21 September 2011 from the hon. Member for South Northamptonshire. [85808]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 12 December 2011]: I replied on behalf of the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), to my hon. Friend the Member for South Northamptonshire on 29 November.

Mothers: Young People

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of mothers aged 16 to 19 years were in education, employment or training on the latest date for which figures are available. [84860]

Tim Loughton: Latest estimates from the Labour Force Survey show that 28.6% of teenage mothers aged 16 to 19 were in education, employment or training in 2010. The proportion of teenage mothers who are in education, employment or training has remained fairly stable since 1998.

Music Education

Ms Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education with reference to the national music plan (1) how many hours of music tuition per term children in (a) Lambeth, (b) Liverpool and (c) Norwich receive through the In Harmony Sistema England programme; and what estimate he has made of the number of hours of such tuition per term they will receive in each of the next three years; [85305]

(2) how many children in (a) Lambeth, (b) Liverpool and (c) Norwich receive music tuition through the In Harmony Sistema England programme; and what estimate he has made of the number of children who will receive such tuition in each of the next three years; [85306]

(3) how much funding will be provided per child through the In Harmony Sistema England programme in (a) Lambeth, (b) Liverpool and (c) Norwich. [85307]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 6 December 2011]: As set out in the national plan for music education, published on 25 November, In Harmony Sistema England is a specific and targeted part of the overall music education landscape. It is a social development programme offering children from deprived areas the opportunity to achieve their full potential through intensive music tuition and activity to raise aspirations and attainment.

This year, the three projects are operating as follows:

Lambeth: 418 children receive between 1.5 (in nursery) and 7.7 hours tuition each week. A further 50 children attend three to five hours of ensemble rehearsals per week.

Liverpool: 143 children from ages four to 13 years receive between three and seven hours tuition each week.

Norwich: 815 children receive at least one hour per week tuition in school from the In Harmony team, of whom 150 receive up to 8.5 hours of music tuition each week.

Each project also provides opportunities to attend holiday classes; perform in concerts; and attend concerts given by professional orchestras. In this financial year, each project will receive £150,000 from the Department for Education, which is supplemented by additional funding from a variety of sources. The total cost per child is not, therefore, available centrally.

With continuing funding from Government, augmented by matched funding from Arts Council for England, the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), has announced his intention to expand the programme. We are working with the Arts Council to agree the detail of this expansion and will make further announcements in the new year. We are therefore not yet in a position to say how many children will receive music tuition through In Harmony Sistema England. However, the national plan set out an ambitious programme for wider music education for all children, in particular that, in exchange for DfE funding, music education hubs will ensure that all children learn to play an instrument, and to play in ensembles, and have the chance to progress.

Ms Harman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education with reference to the national music plan, how much funding has been allocated per child for music education in each local authority area in each of the three years from April 2012. [85308]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 6 December 2011]: The funding allocations announced as part of the national plan for music education include a basic amount for every child, with an additional amount for pupils eligible for free school meals. This second factor is intended as a proxy for the additional costs of ensuring that all children receive a high quality music education. The following table shows the basic unit cost of music funding per pupil and the additional funding each area will receive per pupil who is eligible for free school meals.

Basic funding	8.99	7.75	7.89
Deprivation funding	6.07	5.23	5.32

We shall place copies of individual allocations per pupil in each local authority area in the House Libraries.

Postcodes

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether his Department uses postcodes for purposes other than the postage of mail. [84194]

Tim Loughton: The Department for Education (DfE) uses postcodes to help uniquely identify suppliers on its finance and procurement system. Supplier records use postcodes to differentiate the supplier site name and this, together with a system of unique supplier numbers, is used to ensure payments are made to the correct supplier.

Primary Education: Peterborough

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he is taking to address the shortage of primary school places in Peterborough city council area; and if he will make a statement. [84928]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 6 December 2011]: In this financial year £1.3 billion has been made available to fund school places in England. Peterborough's share in 2011-12 is £1.9 million. Furthermore, in his Autumn Statement, the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that an additional £600 million will be provided to support the provision of school places. We are currently determining how to allocate this funding.

Peterborough city council is responsible for managing the supply and demand for primary places; and ensuring a place for every child of statutory school age. We will continue to provide capital funding and monitor the situation with all local authorities to help ensure there are sufficient school places.

Schools

Pat Glass: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools of each (i) administrative type and (ii) religious designation in each area of the country he has visited since May 2010. [74726]

Tim Loughton: The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), has visited the following schools between May 2010 and 22 November 2011.

Schools	Administrative type	Religious designation
18 Primary Schools	8 Community Schools	1 Jewish
	1 Foundation School	1 Roman Catholic
	2 Voluntary Aided Schools
	4 Converter Academies
	2 Free Schools 1 Sponsored Academy
33 Secondary Schools	9 Community Schools	4 Church of England
	4 Foundation Schools	1 Roman Catholic
	5 Voluntary Aided Schools
	1 Voluntary Controlled
	5 Converter Academies
	9 Sponsored Academies
3 all-through schools (primary and secondary provision)	3 Academies	n/a

Schools	Administrative type	Religious designation
2 Special schools	2 maintained schools	—

n/a = Not applicable.

He has also visited two Further Education colleges.

Schools: Sports

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what long-term plans he has to promote a sustainable legacy for school sport post-2014; and if he will make a statement. [84835]

Tim Loughton: The Government believe that the best way to create a lasting legacy for school sport is to give schools the freedom to organise sport for themselves, rather than imposing a centralised Government blueprint. Schools are already required to provide physical education for all pupils and the National Curriculum review will strengthen the sport content of the subject. Additionally, the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), has made funds available to enable secondary schools to release a PE teacher for one day a week to increase opportunities for competitive sport for young people. This funding is in place for the two academic years 2011/12 and 2012/13. After then we expect schools to have embedded this work into their core provision.

Alongside the significant investment from the Department of Health, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and Sport England for the School Games, these measures will enable schools to provide more competitive sport as part of a rounded education.

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what legacy he expects school sports to receive from the London 2012 Olympics; and if he will make a statement. [84877]

Tim Loughton: The education legacy of the London 2012 Games will be that a generation is inspired by, and embraces, the Olympic and Paralympic Values. This programme will encourage schools and pupils: to make a positive contribution; to be more outward looking within their communities, nationally and internationally; and to adopt healthy and active lifestyles, whether by participation in sport or through other activities. With support from the Department for Education, LOCOG is delivering a new Get Set programme called 'Plan your 2012', which is designed to help schools to plan and deliver Get Set activity in the lead up to the Games.

Special Educational Needs: Stoke on Trent

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent assessments Ofsted has carried out of the specialist education service for deaf children in Stoke-on-Trent. [83272]

Tim Loughton: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM chief inspector, Miriam Rosen, has written to the hon. Member, and a copy of her response has been placed in the House Libraries.

Letter from Miriam Rosen, dated 29 November 2011:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

Services for disabled children and those who have special educational needs were last evaluated by Ofsted in Stoke-on-Trent's Joint Area Review in 2008. This review-found that support services for children who have sensory impairment were good.

The Joint Area Review programme ceased in 2008 and currently Ofsted does not specifically inspect support services for disabled children and those who have special educational needs.

Ofsted does, however, inspect safeguarding services and services for looked after children in local authorities. These inspections focus on children in need of, and children who may be in need of, protection - including where appropriate children with disabilities and those with special education needs. A report on these services in Stoke on Trent was published in August 2011 and found that children and young people with disabilities were supported well overall, with good and improving levels of consultation with parents and carers.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Tim Loughton MP, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children and Families, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Special Educational Needs: Visual Impairment

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what support his Department provides for partially sighted and blind pupils in (a) primary and (b) secondary education. [85179]

Sarah Teather: It is for individual schools and local authorities to decide what support services are needed by partially sighted and blind pupils. There are clear statutory duties in this area.

Nationally, the Department for Education is funding Dyslexia Action and RNIB to make more than 650 texts available in electronic formats for blind pupils and those with significant difficulties reading. The Department also funds the National Sensory Impairment Partnership to support schools and local authorities to learn from each other and improve services.

Students: Finance

Kate Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what his Department's estimate is of the total cost to the public purse of learners aged 19 years claiming Care to Learn at the start of their course if his Care to Learn policy remained unchanged in 2014-15. [85359]

Mr Gibb: It is not possible accurately to predict the cost in 2014-15 of payments to students aged 19 at the start of their course under the Care to Learn scheme, were it to remain unchanged, as this depends on the level of take-up from teenage parents. In 2010/11, around half of all planned payments under the Care to Learn scheme were to young parents aged 19 and over at the start of their course. We expect the number of teenage parents in education or training to rise as we move towards the raising of the participation age (to 18 in 2015), and the budget for Care to Learn is due to rise, to £44.7 million in 2014-15.

Teach First

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of graduates from each Russell Group university applied to the Teach First programme in each year since the programme's creation. [84264]

Mr Gibb: The following table shows the number of graduates (by cohort) applying to the Teach First programme from Russell Group universities, since the programme was founded.

We are not able to present these figures as a proportion of the total graduates from each university as requested, because the Department for Education does not collect data on the numbers graduating from individual universities.

Teachers: E-mail Database

Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how he obtained the private e-mail addresses of teachers who had not provided that information to his Department to e-mail them about changes to their pensions on 24 November 2011. [85363]

Mr Gibb: [holding answer 7 December 2011]: The e-mail addresses were obtained from the General Teaching Councils for England and Wales who shared the information under section 14 of the "Teaching and Higher Education Act 1998".

The data were reconciled by the administrator of the Teachers' Pension Scheme against e-mail addresses already held by them, on the Department's behalf, and that database was subsequently updated.

The reconciled e-mail address database was used to communicate with teachers regarding the Teachers' Pension Scheme.

Teachers: Training

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what is the greatest number of times a teacher trainee has had to re-sit the compulsory (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills test required for Qualified Teacher Status in the last 10 years; [86260]

(2) how many teachers retook the compulsory (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills test required for Qualified Teacher Status (i) once, (ii) twice, (iii) three times, (iv) four times, (v) five times, (vi) six times, (vii) seven times, (viii) eight times, (ix) nine times and (x) 10 or more times in the last year for which figures are available; [86329]

(3) how many teacher trainees who achieved Qualified Teacher Status had to re-sit the compulsory (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills test, (i) once, (ii) twice, (iii) three times, (iv) four times and (v) five or more times in each of the last 10 years. [86330]

Mr Gibb: The greatest number of times an individual has re-sat skills tests required for Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) over multiple years is unavailable from centrally held data. The available information includes only the greatest number of re-sits by an individual in a single year, which is the following:

(a) For literacy, 36 re-sits by a candidate in 2007/08

(b) For numeracy, 39 re-sits by a candidate in 2006/07

The number of teachers who re-sat the compulsory (a) literacy and (b) numeracy skills test required for QTS (i) once, (ii) twice, (iii) three times, (iv) four times, (v) five times, (vi) six times, (vii) seven times, (viii) eight times, (ix) nine times and (x) 10 or more times in 2009/10 can be found in Table A. These figures represent the latest year for which data are available.

Centrally held data do not currently allow the identification of the number of re-sits taken by teacher trainees who have also achieved QTS.

Table A: Number of teachers who retook the required QTS skills tests in 2009/10 by the number of times they were retaken

Skills test	Literacy	Numeracy
1 re-sit	4,140	3,120
2 re-sits	1,300	1,330
3 re-sits	540	700
4 re-sits	400	430
5 re-sits	130	250
6 re-sits	80	200
7 re-sits	60	120

Third Sector

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many letters he has received on funding for civil sector organisations within his Department's area of responsibility in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12 in each month since 1 June 2010; and if he will make a statement. [73988]

Tim Loughton: The information is not held in the format requested. Identification of the number of letters received regarding funding for civil sector organisations would incur disproportionate costs.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department is having with the Government of Sudan on fulfilling its international and domestic legal obligations to allow humanitarian access to civilians fleeing Sudanese armed forces aerial bombardment in Sudan and South Sudan. [86339]

Mr Bellingham: We are deeply concerned by the ongoing conflicts in Southern Kordofan and Blue Nile State. During my visit to Sudan in July I made very clear to the Government of Sudan their responsibility to protect civilians and allow humanitarian access, and the British embassy in Khartoum takes every opportunity to reiterate these points. We condemn the Sudanese armed forces' indiscriminate aerial bombardments. We continue to make clear to the Government of Sudan and the Sudanese Peoples Liberation Movement North that they must allow full humanitarian access to conflict affected areas immediately, and that there can be no military solution to their dispute. We hope that the Government of Sudan will take the opportunity of the planned visit of the UN Under-Secretary General for Humanitarian Affairs later this month to resolve this issue in accordance with international norms and agreements.

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on the prospects for continuing insecurity along the border between Sudan and South Sudan of violence and human rights abuses and aerial bombardment in Blue Nile State and Darfur; and what steps he plans to take as a result of that assessment. [86340]

Mr Bellingham: We are greatly concerned at the continued insecurity along the Sudan and South Sudan border, as well as the violence in Blue Nile State. We urge both Governments quickly to resume discussions on the area to be covered by a safe demilitarized border zone, which they have already agreed to in principle, so that a border monitoring mission is able to deploy quickly. We strongly condemn unilateral, destabilising actions by any party.

The situation in Darfur continues to be of serious concern. The signing of the Doha Document for Peace in Darfur in July this year was a positive step, but violence continues. We now must see that agreement implemented, and are encouraging the Government of Sudan and the Liberation and Justice Movement, the signatories to the agreement, to move forward with implementation, and pressing other rebel movements to join the peace process.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on the stability of the National Congress Party in Sudan of (a) recent uprisings in the Arab world, (b) Sudan's economic situation, (c) youth and opposition protest movements in Sudan and (d) the rising cost of food in Sudan. [86341]

Mr Bellingham: Some of the factors that have contributed to recent changes in the Arab world, such as a lack of freedom of democratic expression, are also found in Sudan. We encourage the Government of Sudan to undertake a process of inclusive reform based on dialogue with all parts of society. We equally urge groups currently engaged in armed conflict to seek political reform through peaceful negotiation.

Following the South's secession, loss of oil revenue has reduced the ability of the Government of Sudan to respond to increasingly severe economic pressures, including the high food prices which have led to some popular protests. The efforts of the African Union High Level Implementation Panel to resolve outstanding issues between Sudan and South Sudan have our full support.

Tony Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to further the Comprehensive Peace Agreement in Sudan by (a) pursuing a political solution that involves devolution of power to all regions, (b) engaging with all opposition parties without duress and (c) other means. [86342]

Mr Bellingham: We share the assessment of the African Union Peace and Security Council, as set out in its 30 November communiqué, that there must be a comprehensive approach to achieving peace, justice and reconciliation in Sudan, taking into account the longstanding governance problems in Sudan, especially the challenge of governing a diverse country in an equitable manner. We urge all parties in Sudan to seek such reform through peaceful negotiation and, in particular, the Government to open up a process of inclusive dialogue.

Syria: Politics and Government

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what support he plans to provide to the Arab League in its efforts to bring an end to repression in Syria. [86076]

Alistair Burt: The British Government strongly support the Arab League in its efforts to increase the pressure on the Syrian regime to stop their violent repression.

We commend its leadership within the international community and its recent unprecedented decision to impose sanctions on the Syrian regime. The UK has been at the forefront of action in the EU to impose sanctions. These stand alongside those introduced by the Arab League.

We continue to support the Arab League's efforts and continue to work with partners in the international community to address the appalling situation in Syria.

TRANSPORT

Buses: Licensing

Alex Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what plans she has to bring forward proposals to change the powers of the traffic commissioners to make checks on applicants for passenger carrying vehicle licences; [85786]

(2) whether she plans to require passenger carrying vehicle (PCV) drivers to undergo a Criminal Records Bureau check before a PCV licence can be granted; [85872]

(3) what steps she plans to take to check whether applicants for a passenger carrying vehicle licence have had a Hackney carriage or private hire licence refused or revoked by a local authority due to inappropriate behaviour. [85873]

Mike Penning: There are no plans to require passenger carrying vehicle (PCV) drivers to undergo a CRB check before a PCV licence can be granted, to alter the current application checking process or to change the existing powers of the traffic commissioners in respect of making checks for PCV licensing.

Capita

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many contracts her Department has awarded to Capita since May 2010; and what the (a) purpose, (b) monetary value and (c) net worth was of each such contract. [84744]

Norman Baker: The Department of Transport has awarded 13 contracts to Capita since May 2010.

Department/agencies	Purpose	Monetary value (£)
DFT(c)	Programme Office Manager	64,500
	Programme Office Manager (extension 1)	79,000
	Programme Office Manager (extension 2)	12,190
	Interim Procurement Officer	35,400
DVLA	Vehicle Excise Duty and Continuous Insurance enforcement and includes vehicle immobilisation, removal, storage, disposal and enforcement notice issuing services[1]	144,280,000
HA	Project Support Framework (Consultancy) 2010-14—Type A Suppliers[2]	[3]0
	A595 Parton to Lillyhall Improvement, Construction Supervision Duties	59,769
	TOS Training Framework Contract—Consultancy/Other[3]	[3]0
	Project Support F/W: Areas 3, 6 and 8 Contract Document Preparation	324,522
	Project Support F/W: M40 J15 Commercial Consultancy Contract	150,000
	Project Support F/W: Lot 3 Asset Support Contract (Area 10) Procurement Support	104,702
	Project Support F/W: A14/A12 Copdock interchange and A14/A154 Dockspur roundabout improvements	722,555
	TOS Training Framework Contract—Mock Motorway Call-Off	23,946

[1] The monetary value is £144,280,000 over seven years (includes option to extend year on year after five years). There is no net worth as this is a new contract which only started on 7 November 2011

[2] Project Support Framework (Consultancy) 2010-14—Type A Suppliers: This a multi-award framework with a pre-tender estimated value of £385,000,000

[3] TOS Training Framework Contract—Consultancy/Other: This is a multi-award framework with a pre-tender estimated value of £7,628,000.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many internal audits have taken place (a) in her Department and (b) in the non-departmental bodies for which her Department is responsible in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [82537]

Norman Baker: The following table records the number of internal audits completed during the period 1 November 2010 to 31 October 2011 for the Department for Transport, its executive agencies, trading funds and non-departmental public bodies.

Internal audit reports by entity, 1 November 2010 to 31 October 2011

Entity	Total
Department for Transport	73

Internal audit reports by entity, 1 November 2010 to 31 October 2011

Entity	Total
British Transport Police Authority	[1]10
Directly Operated Railways Ltd	3
Driver Vehicle and Licensing Agency	70
Driving Standards Agency	15
Government Car and Despatch Agency	7
High Speed Two Ltd	[2]2
Highways Agency	87
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	16
Passenger Focus	5
Renewable Fuels Agency	[3]5
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	25
Vehicle Certification Agency	8

[1] Includes internal audits conducted in the British Transport Police Force and the Authority.
[2] The status of HS2 Ltd changed during 2010-11, which included a new requirement for internal audit services. Consequently, a full cycle of audit activity was not conducted for 2010-11.
[3] RFA ceased to be a separate entity on 31 March 2011. Consequently, there is no audit activity in 2011-12.
Note:
The table covers internal audit activity only, and does not extend to compliance audits undertaken by quality assurance teams deployed in a number of agencies.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether food and catering services in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85862]

Norman Baker: Within the Department for Transport on-site catering facilities are only available at the Department's headquarters building, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) in Swansea and at the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) in Bedford. There are no specific plans to add calorie labelling to menus or display boards at the Department's headquarters building or at the DVLA.

The Driving Standards Agency's facilities management contractor, Interserve, are currently working with their suppliers to calculate the nutritional value of all foods. This will be presented on menus and display boards, where practicable, by mid 2012.

The Department cannot identify the nutritional value of food purchased under other arrangements including as part of external room hire or conference packages.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the food and catering services in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible are taking to ensure the countries of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85863]

Norman Baker: Within the Department for Transport on-site catering facilities are available only at the Department's headquarters building, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) in Swansea and at the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) in Bedford. There are no specific plans to add country of origin information to menus or display boards at the Department's headquarters building or at the DVLA.

The Driving Standards Agency's facilities management contractor, Interserve, does not currently include the requested information on menus and display boards; however they are working with their supplier to achieve this, where practicable, by mid-2012.

The Department cannot identify the country of origin of food purchased under other arrangements including as part of external room hire or conference packages.

Procurement

Gordon Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the cost to the public purse of employing civil servants to undertake procurement for her Department in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; and what estimate she has made of the cost of (i) employing civil servants and (ii) engaging consultants to undertake procurement for her Department in 2011-12. [73187]

Norman Baker: The cost of employing civil servants to undertake procurement for my Department and its Agencies was as follows:

2008-09	10.26
2010-11	9.68

The estimated cost of (i) employing civil servants and (ii) engaging consultants to undertake procurement for my Department and its Agencies in 2011-12 is:

(i) £8.20 million

(ii) £3.17 million

It should be noted that the figures for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 do not include consultancy spend, and so are not comparable with the combined 2011-12 figures.

Departmental Publications

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) leaflets, (b) posters and (c) reports her Department has published since May 2010; how much each cost; and which company (i) published and (ii) designed each. [83004]

Norman Baker: The only data that are readily available from the central department DFT (c) is in relation to the number of different items produced in the period. This is broken down by: (a) leaflets = 100 (b) posters = 18 (c) reports = 33. However, I regret to say that further information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) her Department and (b) its public bodies; and if she will make a statement. [85664]

Norman Baker: The Department aims to take into account social value considerations during procurement if and where they are relevant to the requirement, where consideration is in accordance with the Public Contracts Regulations and the European Treaty Principles of Equality of Treatment, Transparency and Freedom of Movement and where they can be applied in a proportionate, non-discriminatory manner. Socio-economic considerations are appropriately reviewed in the pre-procurement phase when making project investment decisions.

The growth review considered the role of social value in contract award criteria. The review confirmed that value for money remained the overriding factor when awarding public sector contracts. Value for money assessments could and should include relevant socio-economic considerations where it was appropriate in delivering on certain contracts.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which her Department is responsible; and if she will make a statement. [85711]

Norman Baker: The public bodies for which the Department for Transport is responsible all hold organisational risk registers. The only exception is the Disabled Persons' Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC), which is a relatively small non-departmental public body, with a primarily advisory role. The Department does however hold an information management risk register for DPTAC.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what secondments there have been to her Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86140]

Norman Baker: For the central Department our records show that four people entered the Department on secondment since May 2010. Highways Agency Records show one person entered the agency on secondment since May 2010. Owing to the small number of individuals involved we are unable to provide further information as individuals could be identified.

Our Agencies—Driving Standards Agency, Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency, Government Car and Despatch Agency, Vehicle Certification Agency and Vehicle and Operator Service Agency—do not have any secondments, and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency does not hold central records, so this information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85925]

Norman Baker: So far in the 2010-12 Session, Department for Transport Ministers have answered 3,031 ordinary written questions within 10 sitting days of tabling, 513 within 11 to 20 sitting days, none within 21 to 30 sitting days, and 29 more than 30 sitting days after tabling.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the committee at the end of the session. Statistics relating to Government Department's performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Electric Vehicles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding her Department provides to assist the development of electric cars. [86242]

Norman Baker: The Government have made provision of over £400 million for measures to promote the uptake of ultra-low carbon vehicle technologies, including electric cars. These measures include support for consumer incentives, development of recharging infrastructure, and a programme of research, development and demonstration projects.

EU Fuel Quality Directive

Dr Huppert: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brighton, Pavilion of 28 November 2011, Official Report, column 649W, on EU fuel quality directive, what meetings Ministers in her Department had with non-governmental organisations to discuss the EU fuel quality directive. [86093]

Norman Baker: Department for Transport Ministers have had numerous meetings with a variety of national and international environmental and social non-governmental organisations to discuss the fuel quality directive, including:

Greenpeace;

Action Aid;

Royal Society for the Protection of Birds;

World Wide Fund for Nature; and Friends of the Earth.

Ministers and officials will continue to meet with non-governmental organisations on this issue as necessary.

High Speed 2 Railway Line: Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her policy is on constructing a tunnel through the Chilterns Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty as part of her proposed High Speed 2 scheme. [85767]

Justine Greening: No decisions have been taken yet. As I said in my statement, I have concluded that I should allow myself until early in 2012 to announce my decision in order to ensure this is based on careful consideration of all relevant factors.

Metal Theft

David Rutley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with Ministerial colleagues on reducing metal theft from (a) railways and (b) motorways. [81561]

Norman Baker: I have had a number of discussions with ministerial colleagues from the Home Office and other Departments about metal theft and options for tackling this. These discussions have covered the impact of theft on railways, motorways, and other transport modes, as well as other sectors of the economy.

We are examining as a matter of urgency not only whether there are additional steps we can take within existing legislation to crack down on theft, but also whether there may be a case for some proportionate additional regulation of the scrap metal industry, where much of the stolen material currently ends up.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the right hon. Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), in his autumn statement on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, announced that we will invest £5 million to set up a nationwide taskforce to target metal thieves and scrap metal dealers who illegally trade in stolen metal.

Motor Vehicles: Fuels

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking to encourage increased fuel efficiency in new cars. [86245]

Norman Baker: The Government's Carbon Plan was published on 1 December 2011 and sets out our overall strategy for reducing carbon emissions, including in the transport sector where increased fuel efficiency of new cars (and vans) is a major policy focus. The Carbon Plan is available here:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/publications/basket.aspx?filetype=4&filepath=11%2ftackling-climate-change%2fcarbon-plan%2f3702-the-carbon-plan-delivering-our-low-carbon-future.pdf#basket

The main policy levers for delivering improvements to new car efficiency are the EU new car CO_2 regulation; consumer information, including the new car fuel efficiency label; and fiscal levers which, while primarily aimed at securing the public finances, can help to reduce emissions. In addition, the uptake of Ultra Low Emission Vehicles (ULEVs) will over time reduce the overall dependence of the fleet on fossil fuels and cut carbon emissions. As set out in the Carbon Plan in detail, Government have made provision for over £400 million support for ULEV uptake, covering consumer incentives, support for charging infrastructure trials and Research, Development and Demonstration.

Network Rail

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, what progress she has made on developing and publishing a sustainable railway strategy including reform of Network Rail. [86576]

Mrs Villiers: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement on this subject, laid before the House on 15 November 2011, Official Report, column 42WS.

Network Rail: Standards

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress Ministers in her Department have made on making Network Rail more accountable to its customers. [85801]

Mrs Villiers: The Government have a commitment to make Network Rail properly accountable to its customers.

On 15 November the Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Putney (Justine Greening), announced her intention to publish early next year a Command Paper that sets out detailed proposals to deliver a sustainable and better value railway, including proposals affecting Network Rail.

Office of Rail Regulation

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in turning the Office of Rail Regulation into a powerful passenger champion. [85798]

Mrs Villiers: The Government and the Office of Rail Regulation will shortly consult on the scope to transfer and case for transferring certain powers and functions relating to the protection of passenger interests from the Department for Transport to the regulator.

Railway Stations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway stations she and her predecessor visited on departmental business in the last 12 months. [82954]

Norman Baker: The Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening), and ministerial colleagues visit railway stations on a regular basis, whether as a specific visit or incidentally as part of ministerial travel.

Railways: Buckinghamshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects work on the east-west rail link between Oxford and Milton Keynes to (a) begin and (b) be completed. [85766]

Mrs Villiers: Work on the east-west rail link requires prior agreement of a appropriate local contribution to the cost of the project and confirmation of a satisfactory business case. If this is concluded in July 2012 as currently envisaged, the East West Rail Consortium proposes planning work to commence immediately, with physical work commencing in 2015 or earlier, and completion in 2017.

Railways: Electrification

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's statement that the Transpennine Express line will be electrified between Manchester and Leeds, whether her Department plans to request Network Rail to draw up a business case for the further electrification of that railway service between Middlesbrough station and the East Coast Main Line at Northallerton. [86368]

Mrs Villiers [holding answer 12 December 2011]: I intend to ask Network Rail to establish the cost and whether there is a business case for electrification of the line between Northallerton and Middlesbrough.

Railways: Fares

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the coalition agreement on rail pricing, what steps her Department has taken in respect of its commitment to fair pricing for rail travel. [85825]

Mrs Villiers: This Government recognise the serious concern about rail fares—that is why we secured the funding to keep the increase in average regulated rail fares to an average of RPI+1% for 2012.

Railways: Mobile Phones

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make it a condition of any new rail franchises that train operators must cooperate with mobile telephone operators to ensure improved mobile network coverage on trains. [84284]

Mrs Villiers: Bidders for new franchises will be expected to consider whether wi-fi and specific mobile telephone service provision should be continued or introduced on fleets or routes.

Railways: Standards

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will consider inserting clauses into rail franchise agreements requiring companies to communicate effectively with passengers during times of disruption. [85800]

Mrs Villiers: Passengers should be able to expect consistently reliable and up-to-date information from train operating companies so that they can sensibly plan and make their journeys.

The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) has recently set out its intention to underpin the rail industry's initiatives for providing appropriate, accurate and timely information for passengers during disruption.

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/ConWebDoc.10724

We are supportive of this approach to the issue.

Rescue Services

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the nature is of the activity to be carried out at coastguard coastal operations hubs; and how many new jobs she expects to be created at such hubs. [86363]

Mike Penning [holding answer 12 December 2011]: A coastguard coastal operations hub will be located in each of the 18 coastal areas and will be the focus for the management of the volunteer coastguard rescue teams (CRTs) in that area. The hub will house a coastal operations team leader who will be responsible for, and lead, a team of four or five coastal safety officers who will be stationed throughout the area. Each coastal safety officer will be responsible for the management and training of four to five volunteer CRTs.

In some areas it may be practicable to house one or more of the coastal safety officers and a volunteer CRT at the hub.

The following table sets out the existing and proposed coastal operations arrangement. The increase in posts will be 25, spread across the 18 hubs.

Coastal operations

	Number Existing
Coastal Safety Manager	9
Sector Manager	64
Resilience Manager	3
Counter Pollution	3
London Manager	1
Total	80
Proposed
Coastal Safety Managers	6
Coastal Operations Team Leaders	18
Coastal Safety Officers	78
Counter Pollution	3
Total	105

The figures do not include volunteers who make up the CRTs.

Rescue Services: Liverpool

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what coastguard operation activities she expects to be continued by the Maritime Coastguard Agency at its Liverpool site. [86362]

Mike Penning [holding answer 12 December 2011]: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency site at Liverpool will continue to provide a maritime and coastal emergency response and co-ordination function until the closure of the Maritime Rescue Co-ordination Centre. The volunteer coastguard rescue team; counter-pollution and salvage; survey and inspection; and the associated administrative functions currently carried out at the site will continue when the rescue co-ordination function ends.

In accordance with the ministerial announcement made on 22 November 2011, it is intended to establish one of the 18 coastal operations hubs at the Liverpool site.

Rescue Services: Wales

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what changes there have been in staffing levels at each coastguard station in Wales since May 2010. [86303]

Mike Penning: The following table shows the difference in full-time equivalent (FTE) employed at each Welsh Maritime Rescue Co-ordination Centre (MRCC) in May 2010 and October 2011.

Organisation	1 May 2010	31 October 2011	FTE Change
Holyhead MRCC	22.00	23.00	1.00
Milford Haven MRCC	24.00	23.00	-1.00
Swansea MRCC	27.00	22.00	-5.00
Grand total	73.00	68.00	-5.00

Road Traffic: Olympic Games 2012

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, what progress has been made on providing powers for improved traffic management procedures during the London 2012 Olympics. [86583]

Norman Baker: The Department's business plan contains a commitment to provide powers through DCMS's Olympics Bill for improved traffic management procedures during the Olympics by December 2011. I am pleased to confirm that the Bill has now completed its parliamentary stages, and will receive Royal Assent before the House rises for the Christmas recess. The relevant provisions will come into force two months later.

Roadworks

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, for what reason work on reforming management of roadworks to increase maximum penalty charges for works which overrun their agreed period has not been completed. [86577]

Norman Baker: We inherited plans to raise overrun charges to £25,000 per day from the previous Government. This Government are committed to reducing the burden of regulation on business, and we are examining the proposals to ensure they are proportionate and comply with better regulation principles. I expect to make an announcement early in the new year.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, what progress she has made on reforming management of roadworks to finalise regulations enabling new lane rental schemes. [86582]

Norman Baker: Our consultation on draft regulations and guidance about lane rental closed on 31 October and we are now working to finalise the proposals. I expect to make an announcement in the new year.

Swanland: North Wales

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress the Marine Accident Investigation Branch has made on its investigation into the sinking of the Swanland near the North Wales coast; and when she expects its report to be published. [86092]

Mike Penning: Marine Accident Investigation Branch inspectors have been making good progress with their investigation of this tragic accident which has claimed six lives. They have interviewed the two survivors, as well as the master of a nearby ship that answered the mayday call. A number of interviews have also been conducted with involved parties including the coastguard, the search and rescue units, the ship's agent, and the local police, and these are ongoing. Excellent co-operation has also been received from representatives of the Cook Islands, which is the vessel's flag state.

The wreck of the vessel has been located and an underwater survey using remotely-operated vehicles will be conducted as soon as practicable.

MAIB's report is expected to be published in summer 2012.

Thameslink Railway Signals

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations her Department has received on signal failures on the Thameslink line north of London on 7, 11 and 23 November 2011. [85797]

Norman Baker: The Department has received three representations, two from the right hon. Member for Hitchin and Harpenden (Mr Lilley), and one from the hon. Member for St Albans (Mrs Main).

Transport: North-east England

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans she has for future investment in transport infrastructure in the north-east including on the (a) A1, (b) A66, (c) A19 and (d) Tyne tunnel. [86059]

Norman Baker: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the right hon. Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), announced in his autumn statement on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, a number of transport infrastructure investments which will benefit the north-east, including the electrification of the northern Transpennine rail route which will improve journey times and the reliability of services between Liverpool and Newcastle. In addition, the Chancellor announced the bringing forward of some of the £350 million funding allocated for the Tyne and Wear Metro Improvement Programme to 2011-12, reflecting the good progress which Nexus is making in its renewal programme.

On local transport, investment will continue to be made through integrated transport block which, for local authorities in the north-east, totals £129 million for the period 2011-12 to 2012-13—£87 million for highways maintenance and £42 million for small transport improvement schemes. This will be enhanced by the £50 million additional funding for all councils which was announced in the autumn statement, recognising the vital role that transport plays in local economies. We have also recently given local authorities the opportunity to bid for a number of newly announced funds, including the third round of the green bus fund and the new better bus areas fund, which together amount to an additional £70 million worth of funding.

Local authorities in the north-east have also been successful in securing awards from the first round of the £560 million local sustainable transport fund. Redcar and Cleveland, Durham and Darlington councils and the Tyne and Wear ITA have secured investment totalling £12.5 million for sustainable transport schemes which will help support growth and cut carbon. The ITA and other local authorities in Tyne and Wear and Tees Valley are at an advanced stage of developing bids for investment from the second round of the fund, which the Department will consider in the new year.

Transport schemes in the north-east have also been successful in attracting support from the regional growth fund. Subject to due diligence, RGF awards will support a number of transport-related port developments as well as a scheme to significantly improve access to Newcastle station.

Tyne tunnel

The £260 million new Tyne tunnel opened in February this year after 28 months of construction. The old tunnel has been refurbished so that by the end of 2011, both tunnels will be open carrying two lanes of traffic in each direction, providing faster journey times at this key regional crossing. The £6 million refurbishment of the pedestrian tunnel is ongoing, enabling improved transport options for pedestrians and cyclists.

Highways

The 2010 comprehensive spending review detailed the Government's investment decisions for major road projects on the strategic road network, which included the A1 Leeming to Barton. An additional 18 schemes, including the A19 Testos and the A19/A1058 Coast road junction, were identified for delivery in future spending review periods, subject to statutory processes, value for money and affordability. There are no current plans for major investment on the A66.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Biofuels

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what information he has on the level of radioactivity of fly ash residue consequent upon burning wood in biomass power plants; what assessment he has made of the (a) locations and (b) mechanisms of its subsequent safe disposal; and if he will make a statement. [83033]

Richard Benyon: I have been asked to reply.

The Environment Agency advises that levels of radioactivity in fly ash from the burning of uncontaminated wood are low; therefore no radiological assessments are necessary to ensure its safe disposal. Sites for the treatment and disposal of fly ash residue require a permit from the Environment Agency to ensure protection of the environment and human health.

Departmental Secondment

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff in his Department are seconded from (a) private sector energy companies and (b) non-governmental organisations, charities and other voluntary organisations dealing with climate change and the environment. [85805]

Gregory Barker: There are currently 32 people who are seconded to the Department of Energy and Climate Change. The details of the organisations that they are seconded from and the business area that they are currently working in is shown as follows.

The purpose of the secondment and whether it was to a policy development role is not held centrally. To obtain this information would incur a disproportionate cost.

Energy: Prices

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether he has made an assessment of the effect on the cost of gas and electricity for each income decile of applying the Energy Company Obligation levy to energy bills on a sliding scale based on the amount of energy consumed rather than as a flat rate. [86484]

Gregory Barker: The ECO requires energy suppliers to achieve outcomes but primary powers do not include scope to specify how energy suppliers raise the funds required.

The assumption underlying the distributional analysis of the impact on energy bills presented in the Draft Impact Assessment is that the Energy Company Obligation levy is recouped by energy suppliers on a per household basis. However, Annex H of the Impact Assessment includes a qualitative assessment of the possible impacts of different approaches to the allocation of ECO targets. The assessment is available here:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/assets/decc/11/consultation/green-deal/3603-green-deal-eco-ia.pdf

Fuel Poverty: Birmingham

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the level of fuel poverty in Birmingham. [86619]

Gregory Barker: In 2009, the most recent year for which data are available, an estimated 116,000 households, or 29% of the population, in Birmingham local authority were fuel poor.

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of people living in fuel poverty in Birmingham. [86620]

Gregory Barker: The coalition Government are committed to tackling fuel poverty and supporting vulnerable consumers to heat their homes at an affordable cost.

The warm home discount scheme will provide over 600,000 of the poorest pensioners with a Core Group discount of £120 off their electricity bills this winter. Other low income vulnerable households may also be assisted through the scheme. Overall we expect 2 million low income vulnerable households a year to be assisted through the warm home discount scheme.

We continue to fund the Warm Front scheme, providing low income vulnerable households, living in energy inefficient properties, with energy efficient heating and insulation measures. Since 2005 Warm Front has assisted 42,719 households in Birmingham.

In addition, the Department for Work and Pensions provide pensioner households with winter fuel payments to help with additional heating costs during the winter. Cold weather payments are also made to low income and vulnerable households where there is an average temperature of 0°C or below for seven consecutive days. These payments have been permanently increased to £25 per week and in winter 2010-11 over 17 million cold weather payments were paid in Great Britain these were worth an estimated £430 million.

Natural Gas

Steve Brine: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many and what proportion of homes do not have access to the gas network in (a) Winchester constituency and (b) England. [86444]

Charles Hendry: Data on the number of households by constituency without access to the gas network are not available.

An estimate of the number of households off the gas grid at Government Office region and national level can be derived using data from the English Housing Survey (EHS), produced by the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG). In 2009, based on the EHS, there were around 452,000 households in the South East that did not have access to the gas network. This represents around 13% of all households in that region. In England, around 2.9 million households did not have access to the gas network, representing around 13% of all households in England.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails his Department has received on gas security in the last 12 months. [86238]

Charles Hendry: We do not keep specific data on the number of letters and e-mails received on energy security matters. This means that the information requested cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Natural Gas: Exploration

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails he has received on shale gas extraction in England in the last 12 months. [86240]

Charles Hendry: The Department's central register of correspondence does not list the specific addressee, but I can confirm that, during the last 12 months, DECC has responded to approximately 180 letters and e-mails relating to shale gas.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what recent discussions he has had with the Northern Ireland Executive on shale gas and oil in Northern Ireland; [86254]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on shale gas and oil in Scotland. [86255]

Charles Hendry: DECC Ministers are in regular contact with the devolved Administrations across a wide range of issues.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) letters, (b) e-mails and (c) telephone calls his Department has received on shale oil and gas in the last 12 months. [86256]

Charles Hendry: The Department's correspondence unit has responded to approximately 180 letters and e-mails relating to shale gas in the last 12 months. As far as the number of e-mails or letters received on shale oil and gas received by individuals, this information cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. No record of the subject of incoming telephone calls is held within the Department.

Fuel Poverty: Older People

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to ensure elderly and vulnerable people do not suffer ill health or die as a result of severe weather in the winter of 2011-12. [86621]

Gregory Barker: The coalition Government are committed to tackling fuel poverty and supporting vulnerable consumers to heat their homes at an affordable cost.

This year is the first year of the mandatory Warm Home Discount scheme, which will provide over 600,000 of the poorest pensioners with a Core Group discount of £120 off their electricity bills this winter. Other low income vulnerable households may also be assisted through the scheme. Overall we expect 2 million low income vulnerable households a year to be assisted through the Warm Home Discount scheme.

We continue to fund the Warm Front scheme, providing low income vulnerable households, living in energy inefficient properties, with energy efficient heating and insulation measures. We are also requiring suppliers to provide energy efficiency measures to low income vulnerable households through the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target, Super Priority Group.

In addition, the Department for Work and Pensions provide pensioner households with winter fuel payments to help with additional heating costs during the winter.

Cold weather payments are also made to low income and vulnerable households where there is an average temperature of 0°C or below for seven consecutive days. These payments have been permanently increased to £25 per week and in winter 2010-11 over 17 million cold weather payments were paid in Great Britain worth an estimated £430 million.

We are also working closely with the Department of Health on their cold weather plan, which aims to avoid the adverse health effects of winter by raising public awareness and triggering actions by those in contact with people most at risk. The plan sets out what needs to happen before and during periods of severe winter weather in England, and builds on established national and local campaigns for winter health with a more co-ordinated approach. The plan will work through a system of cold weather alerts, linked to the existing winter weather warning system developed by the Met Office, in operation from 1 November to 31 March.

Wind Power: Powys

Glyn Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions his Department has had with (a) Powys county council and (b) the Welsh Assembly Government on planning applications for wind farms in Powys. [85974]

Charles Hendry: The Department is currently dealing with six applications for consent under section 36 of the Electricity Act 1989 for wind farms in Powys ("the S36 applications") where Powys county council ("Powys CC") is the relevant planning authority for the purposes of that Act. Therefore the Department has regular communication with Powys CC to monitor the progress of the applications while it awaits Powys CC response to them. In particular, I have recently been in communication with Powys CC in connection with the deadline for their responses to the S36 applications.

The Welsh Government have been consulted on all of the S36 applications. Their representations in respect of the S36 applications will be taken into consideration when the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, my right hon. Friend the Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne), makes his decision on them.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr Donohoe: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many of the 140 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on the banding structure supported (a) the retention of a four-band structure, (b) a three-band structure and (c) a two band structure; [85903]

(2) how many of the 70 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel supported (a) premium economy passengers to be liable for reduced rate and (b) premium economy passengers to remain liable for standard rate; [85942]

(3) how many of the 70 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel supported seats with 40-inch seat pitch and less being liable for the reduced rate. [85943]

Henry Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many of the 140 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on the banding structure supported (a) the retention of a four-band structure, (b) a three-band structure and (c) a two-band structure; [85976]

(2) how many of the 70 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel called for seats with 40 inch seat pitch and less to be liable for the reduced rate. [86187]

Paul Maynard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of the 140 responders to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on the banding structure called for (a) the retention of a four-band structure, (b) a three-band structure and (c) a two-band structure. [86183]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Government decided not to change the air passenger duty (APD) bands as doing so would lead to an increase in APD for 91% of passengers. The APD consultation received 136 responses to the question on banding structure. Of this total, 77 supported a move to two distance bands, eight supported retaining the existing four-band structure and a further eight advocated moving to a three-band structure. A further 43 discussed the question and suggested other alternatives. Supporters of the two-band option argued that it would generate fewer anomalies and be simpler for passengers to understand and airlines to administer. Those in favour of the current four-bands or a system based on more distance bands argued that it would be fairer. However, there was no agreement on the composition of these bands.

The APD consultation received 70 responses to the question on class of travel. Of this total, 54 supported a reclassification of premium economy while 11 favoured retaining the existing rules. A further five respondents discussed the issue but offered no clear preference. Most of those who wanted premium economy to be taxed at the reduced rate advocated the use of a 40-inch seat pitch definition.

The Government considered this evidence carefully. A revenue neutral change to the current banding structure would have required those flying to band A and band B destinations (91% of passengers) to pay more. The Government therefore decided to retain the existing four APD distance bands.

It was clear from consultation responses on class of travel that premium economy products vary significantly between airlines. Any attempt to define premium economy for taxation purposes would increase the complexity of the tax, increasing the burdens for both industry and HMRC. A definition based on seat pitch would inevitably discriminate between similar products offered by different airlines.

Bank Levy

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will assess the merits of re-introducing a bank payroll tax; and if he will make a statement. [86027]

Mr Gauke: The bank payroll tax was introduced in the last Parliament as a one-off, interim measure ahead of changes in remuneration practices from corporate governance and regulatory reforms.

The Government have introduced a permanent bank levy to ensure that the banking sector makes a fair contribution to reflect the potential risk to the UK financial system and wider UK economy. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), recently announced an increase in the levy rate from 1 January 2012, with resulting revenues for the life of this Parliament expected to exceed £10 billion. The levy is expected to raise more every year from the banking sector than the net revenue from the one-off bank payroll tax.

Building Societies Act 1986

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he has any plans to carry out a review of the Building Societies Act 1986; [86573]

(2) whether he has any plans to bring forward proposals to increase the deceased investors' limit as defined in the provisions of the Building Societies Act 1986; [86574]

(3) whether he has any plans to bring forward proposals to amend section (a) 9A and (b) 9B of the Building Societies Act 1986. [86575]

Mr Hoban: The Treasury keeps building societies legislation under review. The Government are committed to assessing whether changes are required to update building societies legislation. Amendments to section 9B of the Building Societies Act are being made as part of the Financial Services Bill that is currently undergoing pre-legislative scrutiny in Parliament.

Business: Solar Power

Chi Onwurah: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what support the Government offer to banks holding loans by companies engaged in the solar panel business not to foreclose on these businesses. [84920]

Miss Chloe Smith [holding answer 5 December 2011]: The Government are not offering any specific support to banks holding loans by companies engaged in the solar panel business.

The Government are supporting lending to small and medium-sized businesses through:

a commitment announced on 9 February 2011 from the UK's biggest high street banks to lend £190 billion of new credit to businesses in 2011, with £76 billion of this lending to SMEs; and a package of credit-easing measures announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), on 29 November, comprising a National Loan Guarantee Scheme of up to £20 billion of guarantees for bank funding to lower the cost of loans to smaller businesses; and a new Business Finance Partnership, initially of £1 billion, to deliver additional finance to mid-sized businesses through non-bank lending channels.

Carbon Sequestration: Finance

Mr Weir: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he had with (a) the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change and (b) industry stakeholders on the reallocation of funding for carbon capture and storage. [84896]

Miss Chloe Smith: Treasury Ministers meet with a wide range of other Ministers and organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the usual policymaking process. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

The Government have already made clear that £1 billion is available to support the commercialisation of CCS.

Dr Whiteford: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will provide support for the development of a commercial-scale carbon capture and storage project in each year to 2015. [84975]

Miss Chloe Smith [holding answer 7 December 2011]: The Government have made clear that £1 billion remains available to support the commercialisation of carbon capture and storage (CCS). The final profile of spending on CCS will be determined when projects have come forward following the competition next year.

Cash Dispensing

Mark Lancaster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has any plans to require banks to provide unrestricted cash machine use for basic bank account holders. [86070]

Mr Hoban: The Government are committed to ensuring that individuals are able to access an appropriate range of financial products and services.

Decisions on the products and services offered by individual banks are a commercial matter for the institution concerned.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85844]

Miss Chloe Smith: HMT's catering subcontractor has no plans to introduce calorie labelling.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85845]

Miss Chloe Smith: HMT's catering subcontractor does not currently show the country of origin of foods on their menus and display boards. However, the subcontractor is a member of the Red Tractor Scheme and all produce certified by the scheme is clearly labelled on display boards.

Child Benefit

David Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what support he plans to give to families who will be ineligible to receive child benefit following the introduction of his planned changes. [85889]

Miss Chloe Smith: Child benefit will be withdrawn from families including a higher rate taxpayer from January 2013. The policy will be administered through the tax system using existing systems and processes. Affected families are within the top 20% of the incomes of all families (including those without children). Currently the threshold for a higher rate taxpayer is around £42,500. At a time when many difficult decisions have to be taken, it is not fair that people on low incomes go on being taxed to pay for the child benefit of those earning much more.

Debit Cards and Credit Cards: Fees and Charges

John Thurso: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take following the Office of Fair Trading's recommendations on Which?'s super-complaint on retailers' surcharges for paying by credit or debit card; and if he will make a statement. [86455]

Mr Hoban: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 407W.

Departmental Communications

Pete Wishart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) press officers, (b) internal communications officers, (c) external communications officers, (d) communications strategy officers and (e) other positions with a communications remit were employed by (i) his Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) each non-departmental public body sponsored by his Department on the most recent date for which figures are available. [84184]

Miss Chloe Smith: In accordance with the Government's Transparency agenda, HM Treasury's departmental organogram is available online at:

http://reference.data.gov.uk/gov-structure/organogram/?pubbod=hm-treasury&post=19678

This includes details of the number of people employed in communications roles.

The UK Debt Management Office currently employs two press officers; the roles take up approximately half of each of their time.

The Asset Protection Agency currently employs one individual with a communications remit.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1022W, on food, when his Department's current catering contract comes up for renewal; and whether the new contract will state that the Government's buying standards for food and catering must be met. [85962]

Miss Chloe Smith: HM Treasury's catering services at 1 HGR are supplied by a sub-contractor to the PFI provider. The contract expires in July 2014. HMT will ensure that the new contract references the Government's buying standards for food and catering as far as possible within the new contract.

Departmental Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether any senior staff in (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary; and if he will publish his policy on such payments. [85070]

Miss Chloe Smith: No senior staff in HM Treasury or its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85936]

Miss Chloe Smith: The full information requested is not available. In the current Session Treasury Ministers have responded substantively within 10 days to 3,484 of the 3,775 (92%) of ordinary written questions tabled to the Treasury.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Excise Duties: Gaming Machines

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the administrative burden on businesses in seaside towns of the introduction of machine games duty; [85802]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of machine games duty on domestic seaside tourism; [85803]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effect of machine games duty on levels of investment in seaside towns by businesses. [85804]

Miss Chloe Smith: The latest assessment of the impact of machine games duty on individuals and businesses, as well as on administrative burdens faced by gaming machine operators, is available in the Tax Information and Impacts Note published on 6 December together with draft legislation for machine games duty. This publication is available online at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/machine_games_duty.pdf

The detailed tax impact on, and within, specific gambling sectors will be estimated after MGD rates are set.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on machine games duty. [85806]

Miss Chloe Smith: Treasury Ministers and officials meet with a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the usual policy making process. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Gift Aid

Julian Sturdy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has any plans to provide further incentives for use of the gift aid scheme. [86230]

Miss Chloe Smith: Budget 2011 announced a significant package of reforms to encourage charitable giving, including new measures on gift aid. These included raising the gift aid benefit limit from £500 to £2,500 and a gift aid small donations scheme, so that charities can claim a gift aid style payment when collecting small donations and where circumstances for collecting the necessary donor details are difficult. The Government are also committed to reducing the administrative burdens on charities through the introduction of an online filing system for making gift aid claims and supporting the charity sector in developing a gift aid database.

The Government keep all taxes and reliefs under review, and any changes are announced at Budget.

Inflation: Families

David Morris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to mitigate the effect on families of the current rate of inflation. [85886]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Government are taking action to mitigate the effect on families of the current rate of inflation. In particular, the personal allowance for under-65s will increase faster than inflation to £8,105 in 2012-13. Working-age benefits will be uprated in line with September's CPI inflation rate of 5.2%, including the disability elements of tax credits and the child element of the child tax credit. The 3.02 pence per litre fuel duty increase that was due to take effect on 1 January 2012 will be deferred to 1 August 2012, and the inflation increase that was planned for 1 August 2012 will be cancelled. In addition, the Government have set aside an extra £675 million for local authorities in England who freeze or reduce their council tax in 2012-13.

PAYE

Stephen Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he will include small businesses in his pilot of real-time PAYE information. [86563]

Mr Gauke: The employers involved in the pilot are volunteers and have been chosen to be a representative group of organisations operating PAYE. They range in size and complexity from those with one employee to very large complex employers with many employees or pensioners. The group of pilot employers includes small employers.

Poverty: Children

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the effects of his changes to child and working tax credits, child benefit and access to child care on (a) farming and (b) rural households; [85963]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effects of his changes to child and working tax credits, child benefit and access to child care on levels of rural poverty. [85964]

Miss Chloe Smith: The budget deficit inherited from the previous Government has meant that some very difficult choices have had to be made. The Government have been clear that they see reducing this deficit as their most urgent task. The June Budget 2010, the spending review 2010 and the autumn statement 2011 have made changes to tax credits, child benefit and child care to tackle the deficit in a fair way and ensure that spending is targeted at those who need it most.

Looking at the cumulative impact on households of tax, tax credit and benefit reforms introduced at this autumn statement and previous fiscal events, the top income decile sees the largest reduction in income, both in cash terms and as a percentage of net income.

The Government have not assessed the impact of these changes on particular occupations or geographical areas. However, the Government are committed to ensuring that rural residents, communities and businesses benefit fully and fairly from all of their policies and programmes. Rural communities are benefitting from a wide range of Government initiatives, including:

the £530 million that they are injecting into rolling out superfast broadband across the country; the new approach to housing outlined in the recent Housing Strategy; and a number of fuel poverty and energy efficiency measures, including Warm Front, feed-in tariffs and the renewable heat premium payment.

The Government have also recognised the particular needs and interests of rural populations through the Open Public Services White Paper, which has explicitly challenged Departments to find ways of ensuring fair access to services to people who live in rural areas; and the recent Rural Economy Growth Review, which announced a range of measures designed to help and encourage rural businesses to grow, including:

new Rural Growth Networks;

a new £100 million funding package; and initiatives to promote the rural tourism and agri-food sectors.

Public Sector Debt

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the forecast trajectory of national debt in the final year of this Parliament. [86028]

Miss Chloe Smith: The independent Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) has published its forecast for public sector net debt in its November 2011 "Economic and Fiscal Outlook", available on the OBR website.

Railways

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration he gave to the inclusion of a high-speed rail link between Gatwick and Heathrow airports in his National Infrastructure Plan. [85357]

Danny Alexander: The National Infrastructure Plan 2011 sets out the Government plans to publish a consultation on their aviation strategy in March 2012. This will consider all the options for maintaining the UK's international aviation hub status, with the exception of a third runway at Heathrow.

Renewable Energy

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent steps he has taken to encourage growth in the renewable energy sector. [84930]

Miss Chloe Smith [holding answer 6 December 2011]: The Government have taken a number of steps to encourage growth in the renewable energy sector in recent months, including:

announcing at Budget 2011 the introduction of a carbon price floor from 1 April 2013, targeting £30 a tonne of CO_2 in 2020, to support investment in low-carbon electricity generation; launching of the Renewable Heat Incentive on 28 November this year to provide support for renewable heat; publishing a White Paper in July setting out significant reform of electricity markets to support more investment in low carbon generation and flexible capacity to ensure secure supplies and tackle climate change; launching of a consultation in October on changes to the support bands under the renewables obligation to bring forward 70 to 75 TWh of renewable electricity in the UK; and intending to make investments in green infrastructure projects through the £3 billion made available for the Green Investment Bank from April 2012 and over the spending review period.

Renewable Energy: Feed-In Tariffs

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will have discussions with the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on increasing the feed-in tariff rate for micro-combined heat and power to 15 pence per KWh. [85961]

Miss Chloe Smith: The comprehensive review of the feed-in tariffs (FITs) scheme is considering all aspects of the scheme, including the level of support for each of the technologies supported. The first phase of the review, which was launched on 31 October, proposed changes to tariffs for solar photovoltaic installation.

The second phase of the review will consider the level of support for other FITs technologies, together with wider issues relating to the administration and implementation of the scheme. The Government are intending to publish a consultation on phase 2 of the review around the end of the year.

Tax Allowances: Individual Savings Accounts

Mr Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the annual revenue cost of the tax reliefs available on individual savings accounts; and if he will make a statement. [85973]

Mr Hoban: The latest published estimate of the annual revenue cost of tax reliefs available on individual savings accounts can be found on the HMRC National Statistics website in published Table 1.5 at the following link:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-5.pdf

Updated estimates are due to be published on 30 December 2011.

Taxation: Environment Protection

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to review the control framework for DECC levy-funded spending. [84027]

Miss Chloe Smith: As set out in the 'Control framework for DECC levy-funded spending' published on the Treasury's website:

"the strong presumption will be that the cap will only be reviewed as part of a Spending Review. However, there may be exceptions to this, including if there are significant changes to the energy tax regime which have knock-on effects for DECC's policies which entail levy-funded spending."

Taxation: Olympic Games 2012

Ms Abbott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many types of tax exemption will be put in place for non-residents involved in the London 2012 Olympics; how many people will be afforded tax exemptions during the Games; what the thresholds are for the tax exemptions; and if he will make a statement. [86153]

Mr Gauke: The tax commitments required by the International Olympic Committee for non-residents involved in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games include exemptions for visiting athletes and certain persons temporarily entering the UK to carry out 'Olympic or Paralympic-related' business. Qualifying non-resident individuals will be exempt from any income tax arising from activities directly related to the London Games. Details of how the exemptions will work in practice can be found here:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/2012games/tax-exemptions/index.htm

The Government are unable to estimate the number of individuals to whom these exemptions will apply.

There are no thresholds for these exemptions.

VAT

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the rise in VAT on consumer confidence. [86026]

Mr Gauke: Sustainable public finances are essential for consumer confidence.

Decisive action taken by the Government in the comprehensive spending review and June 2010 Budget, including the increase in VAT, put the public finances and Government spending on a sustainable footing. This has prevented the turmoil seen in other countries' sovereign debt markets spreading to the UK and undermining confidence and the recovery in the private sector.

VAT: Business

Laura Sandys: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average length of time was for HM Revenue and Customs to reimburse VAT to small businesses between 1997 and 2011. [85879]

Mr Gauke: From 2007-11, the average length of time for HM Revenue and Customs to reimburse value added tax is shown in the following table.

	Percentage of correct VAT returns repaid within target (10 days)	Average number of working days taken to repay from date return received
2007-08	91.91	10
2008-09	92.09	10
2009-10	93.36	5
2010-11	91.79	4
2011-12 (until November 2011)	91.04	3

Information by business size and for the year 1997 to 2006-07 is not available and could be produced only at disproportionate cost.

VAT: Energy

Caroline Flint: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the increase in VAT receipts arising from the increase in energy bills. [85781]

Mr Gauke: No direct estimate has been made. However, if expenditure on domestic fuel was funded by less spending on goods and services that attract the 20% standard rate of VAT, HMRC would receive less VAT revenue, since domestic fuel and power is taxed at the reduced rate of 5%.

In its 2011 November Economic and Fiscal Outlook the OBR assumes that higher utility prices will result in a lower share of expenditure which is subject to VAT at the standard rate of 20% in future years.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85832]

Chris Grayling: (a) Since 1998 the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) occupies the majority of its accommodation under a private finance Initiative (PFI) known as the Prime contract. Under the terms of this PFI the Department leases back fully serviced accommodation from its private sector partner Telereal Trillium. This covers a variety of facilities including, where appropriate, the provision of catering services which is delivered through Telereal Trillium's service partner Compass Group UK. Compass undertakes all catering related activity.

In line with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs guidance, DWP reports on how the Government Buying Standards (GBS) criteria are being met. This will feature in periodic updates on the DWP public website—the following link gives details:

www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/gbs-food-catering.pdf

This link advises on DWP's commitment and that we are working closely with Telereal Trillium/Compass to maximize compliance with this commitment. One of the best practice GBS criteria, which will feature in future updates on the public website, is around calorie labelling on menus. Compass has indicated that they have implemented full Guideline Daily Amount (GDA) labelling on menus, which includes calorific values, into the DWP HQ site at Caxton House, London and will be rolling out GDA labelling across all other DWP sites between January and July 2012.

(b) Non-departmental public bodies that share accommodation with the DWP on Prime contract sites are included in the response at (a) above. For those NDPBs not covered by the PRIME contract, none have responsibility for catering arrangements, e.g. the Pension Advisory Service and the Independent Living Fund (ILF) only occasionally buy food and snacks on an ad hoc basis in small quantities from local food retailers. Remploy no longer has a catering business. Their canteens are operated by local third party organisations. The Health and Safety Executive's HQ at Bootle has a similar PFI contract to DWP, covering accommodation and all services. HSE has no direct management responsibility for the caterers. However, menus here include a healthy (reduced calorie) option and a vegetarian option. All non-departmental public bodies are aware of the Government Buying Standards.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85833]

Chris Grayling: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Since 1998 the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) occupies the majority of its accommodation under a private finance initiative (PFI) known as the Prime contract. Under the terms of this PFI the Department leases back fully serviced accommodation from its private sector partner Telereal Trillium. This link advises on DWP's commitment and that we are working closely with Telereal Trillium/Compass to maximize compliance with this commitment. One of the GBS criteria, which will feature in future updates on the public website, is around indicating the country of origin of meat, meat products and dairy products. Country of origin information is currently published on menus in the Caxton House, London site and Compass aims to provide this information on menus in the remainder of DWP sites by June 2012. In the meantime this information is available on request.

(b) Non-departmental public bodies that share accommodation with the DWP on Prime contract sites are included in the response at (a) above. For those NDPBs not covered by the Prime contract, none have responsibility for catering arrangements, e.g. the Pension Advisory Service and the Independent Living Fund (ILF) only occasionally buy food and snacks on an ad hoc basis in small quantities from local food retailers. The Health and Safety Executive's HQ at Bootle has a similar PFI contract to DWP, covering accommodation and all services. HSE has no direct management responsibility for the caterers. HSE's caterer sources ingredients from suppliers who are committed to using British food sources whenever possible. However, they do not consistently advise on food country of origin but signage does advise customers of British bacon, eggs and meat. All non-departmental public bodies are aware of the Government Buying Standards.

Departmental Publicity

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what public information advertising campaigns his Department ran in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2011-12 to date; and what the cost was of each such campaign. [86071]

Chris Grayling: The following figures are public information campaign costs across the Department for each financial year, including research, design, print and advertising.

	Campaign	£
2008-09	Find Your Way Back to Work	3,014,757
	Lone Parents	99,493
	Jobsearch Channels	25,965
	Pension Working Age Communications	230,000
	Pension Credit	870,000
	Winter Fuel	280,000
	Benefit Fraud	5,800,000
	Personal Best (a campaign to promote the range of training opportunities linked to volunteering for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.)	50,261
		10,370,476
2009-10	Find Your Way Back to Work	6,958,000
	Pension Working Age Communications	5,970,000
	Pension Credit	1,190,000
	Winter Fuel	230,000
	Benefit Fraud	4,800,000
	Fit Note (informing employers, public and GPs of changes to the 'sick note' from April 2010)	163,735
		[1]9,311,735
2010-11	Pension Working Age Communications	1,260,000
	Benefit Fraud	20,000

	Campaign	£
		[2]1,280,000
2011 to 31 October 2011	Pension Working Age Communications	[3]140,000

[1] 86% increase on 2008-09.
[2] 93% decrease on 2009-10.
[3] 81% decrease on 2010-11.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86135]

Chris Grayling: An inward secondment occurs when an individual is temporarily assigned from an outside organisation (not covered by the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme) into the Department. Secondees into our Department are not recorded on our personnel computer system and therefore details are not held centrally; as a consequence this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of written questions for answer on a named day received a substantive answer within five working days in each of the last six months. [85050]

Chris Grayling: In the six months to 30 November 2010, the Department answered 449 written questions for answer on a named day, of which 441 (98%) received a substantive answer within five working days. The monthly breakdown is in the following table:

Month	Number of named day questions answered	Number of named day questions answered within 5 working days	Proportion of named day questions answered within 5 working days (percentage)
June 2010	117	112	96
July 2010	73	73	100
August 2010	0	0	—
September 2010	43	42	98
October 2010	97	97	100
November 2010	119	117	98

Employers' Liability: Personal Injury

Mr Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of trends in the number of employer liability personal injury cases in the last five years. [86104]

Julie Elliott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of trends in the number of employer liability personal injury cases in the last five years. [86109]

Chris Grayling: The information is tabled as follows:

	Employer liability
Financial year	Accident	Disease	Number Total
2006-07	70,783	27,695	98,478
2007-08	68,497	18,701	87,198
2008-09	72,342	14,615	86,957
2009-10	65,450	13,294	78,744
2010-11	66,142	15,328	81,470

The table reflects the volume of employment claims registered with the Compensation Recovery Unit (CRU) between the periods 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2011. The data are broken down by accident and disease claims and financial year.

Information from compensation claims registered by compensators with the CRU is provided on the DWP internet site accessible through Directgov Performance and Statistics—DWP. This information may be used by appropriate parties, including the insurance industry, to examine any trends for compensation claims that are made with insurance companies. Therefore, the CRU information on Directgov provides statistics to allow trends to be assessed by interested parties such as the insurance industry. The CRU itself does not undertake any specific trend analysis as the role of the unit is to register claims for compensation, ensure that double compensation does not occur and recover relevant monies from compensators.

Employment Schemes

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department spent on work experience placements in each month since January 2011. [85533]

Chris Grayling: With work experience, there are no direct costs to Government—places are provided by employers on a voluntary basis. However, organising and administering the placements does require resources, and Jobcentre Plus meets reasonable travel and child care costs while the participant is undertaking work experience.

This Government have already agreed funding to allow the Department to put in place 100,000 placements over two years.

In our autumn statement, we announced plans to introduce a new Youth Contract in 2012. A range of additional help for unemployed young people, worth nearly £1 billion will include provision for an extra 250,000 work experience or sector-based work academy places over the next three years. This will ensure that there is an offer of a work experience place for every 18 to 24-year-old who wants one, before they enter the Work programme.

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which firms in (a) the east midlands and (b) Leicester City are participating in his work experience programme. [85784]

Chris Grayling: Jobcentre Plus works with a wide range of organisations in Leicester City, and across the east midlands, to provide suitable work experience opportunities. A list of those organisations has been placed in the Library.

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether it is the case that his Department confirms whether a Work programme participant is in work and that their prime provider is entitled to a job outcome payment; and if he will make a statement. [86562]

Chris Grayling: Work programme providers receive job outcome payments when the person they have helped into work has stayed in work for three months—or six months if they are long-term JSA claimants.

DWP requires providers to confirm employment details when participants find work, including information about the employment and the employer contact details. This enables the Department to conduct an off-benefit check and verify any job outcomes claimed by the provider.

Employment Schemes: Young People

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of young people participating in the work experience scheme moved from work experience placements into work in each month since January 2011. [85534]

Chris Grayling: This information is currently unavailable. However, recent early analysis, based on a sample of 1,300 participants, indicates that less than half of participants are claiming working age benefits after 13 weeks of starting a work experience placement.

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the off-flow rate has been of young people who (a) have and (b) have not undertaken work experience placements since January 2011 from benefits into work. [85537]

Chris Grayling: The available statistics on work experience participants were published on 9 November 2011. These show that 51% of those who started on the programme in January to March 2011 were not in receipt of benefit 13 weeks later.

Independent Living Fund

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will carry out an impact assessment on the effect on (a) disabled people and their families and (b) local authorities of his decision to close the Independent Living Fund to new applicants. [85545]

Maria Miller: The Independent Living Fund is a discretionary trust and payments from the fund are discretionary awards, not statutory benefits. These payments do not take precedence over the responsibility of the local authority to make an assessment of a disabled person's needs. Local authorities retain primary responsibility for the care of disabled people and as part of this responsibility, they need to consider the requirements of people who may otherwise have received an additional package from the Independent Living Fund.

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which disability organisations he is consulting on his plans for the Independent Living Fund. [85546]

Maria Miller: As announced in the written ministerial statement of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 8WS, the consultation on how best to support the needs of current users of the Independent Living Fund beyond the end of this parliament will be launched in spring 2012. We have committed to consulting with disabled people, the current users of the fund and their families, local authorities, the devolved Administrations and other interested parties, including any disability organisations who wish to participate. All views and suggestions received during the consultation period will be carefully considered.

A full list of the organisations who contributed to the consultation will be published in the Government response.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Prisoners

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what reports he has received of prisoners claiming jobseeker's allowance while in custody. [86038]

Chris Grayling: People are not entitled to jobseeker's allowance (JSA) when they are in prison. There are safeguards in place to prevent the continued payment of benefit for individuals who are sent to prison. The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) general matching service (GMS) performs a data match of what is held on both prison and DWP systems for all newly convicted prisoners, and will identify those who are in receipt of a DWP benefit. This will generate a report prompting closure of the claim and final payment of any benefit due up to the point of them entering custody. DWP does not routinely collect information of JSA claims closed in these circumstances.

The GMS scan will compare basic information such as a person's name and date of birth across prison and DWP systems. In a small minority of cases, where a prisoner has used an alias or where there are several prisoners with the same name, GMS might not identify their claim. Therefore, to mitigate this risk, Jobcentre Plus employment and benefit advisers (EBAs) who are based in prisons also receive a list of all those entering custody and are able to check both prison and DWP systems to ensure that any claims to benefit have been closed.

PAYE

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how his Department will be involved in HM Revenue and Customs' pilot of real time PAYE information. [86564]

Chris Grayling: DWP and HMRC are working closely to agree shared objectives for the pilot of PAYE real time information. DWP are represented on the HMRC real time PAYE information pilot steering group and will receive regular updates on progress.

Pensions: Females

Brandon Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of full-time female employees are members of a pension scheme. [86376]

Steve Webb: In 2010, 59% of full-time female employees in Great Britain were members of an occupational pension scheme. This compares with 54% of full-time male employees in Great Britain who were members of an occupational pension scheme.

Remploy: Mental Health

Kate Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what minimum standards his Department has specified in relation to qualifications and experience of frontline advisers in his Department's contract with Remploy for mental health support services for access to work customers; and if he will make a statement. [85495]

Maria Miller: The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, my right hon. Friend the Member for Chingford and Woodford Green (Mr Duncan Smith), set and published the minimum standards required for the Mental Health Support Service Contract within the Invitation to Tender Documentation as:

> Use an appropriately trained professional(s) with a minimum of 2 years relevant background and experience of working with people with mental health issues in a vocational setting. The contractors shall provide and fund continuing professional development at their own cost for their staff and it shall not interfere with or interrupt the contractor's obligations and delivery.

Sick Leave

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what research his Department is undertaking into the causes of sickness absence from work. [85758]

Chris Grayling: The Department carried out a representative survey of over 2,000 employers in 2010 on health and well-being at work. This looked at the causes of short-, medium- and long-term sickness absence from work. The findings can be found in the Department research report number 750.

The Department has also commissioned a number of research projects to evaluate the statement of fitness for work or fit notes. Two of these projects (an employee survey and a project involving the collection of fit note data) will examine causes of sickness absence from work where a fit note was issued.

The Department commissioned an independent review of sickness absence earlier in the year which reported in November. This examined the current system of sickness certification and its effectiveness. The reviewers, Dame Carol Black and David Frost, made a number of recommendations which the Government will consider in the response to the review next year.

Social Security Benefits: Birmingham

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure his Department has incurred on (a) benefits, by benefit and (b) administration costs in Birmingham, for the latest financial year for which figures are available. [85541]

Chris Grayling: The information is as follows:

(a) Benefit by benefit expenditure for Birmingham for 2010-11 is shown in the following table, where estimates are available.

Benefit expenditure for Birmingham, 2010-11

	£ million
Attendance Allowance	93.3
Bereavement Benefit/Widow's Benefit	9.8
Carer's Allowance	42.5
Disability Living Allowance	231.1
Incapacity Benefit/Severe Disablement Allowance	110.8
Income Support	214.0
Jobseeker's Allowance	153.6
Pension Credit	199.3
State Pension	875.1
Winter Fuel Payments	38.6
Employment and Support Allowance	46.8
Housing Benefit	469.2
Council Tax Benefit	103.7
Total expenditure	2,587.9

Note:
Figures rounded to nearest 100,000.
Source:
DWP statistical and accounting data, and local authority subsidy returns.

(b) The cost of administering benefits for Birmingham residents is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Brandon Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of levels of benefit fraud in Great Yarmouth constituency in each year since 2006. [86377]

Chris Grayling: The information requested is not available.

Brandon Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many successful prosecutions for benefit fraud have been made in Great Yarmouth constituency in each year since 2006; and what sum was involved in each such case. [86378]

Chris Grayling: Prosecution data specific to your Great Yarmouth constituency is not available.

Social Security Benefits: Medical Examinations

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what research his Department has undertaken together with GPs to evaluate the effectiveness of fit notes; what the findings of such research were; and if he will make a statement. [85762]

Chris Grayling: The Department has and continues to carry out research with GPs to evaluate the statement of fitness for work. The research includes:

a representative survey of 1,400 GPs; in-depth qualitative interviews with 45 GPs from different locations and practice sizes, and with different personal characteristics; and a study involving the collection of fit note data from a small number of GP practices for comparison with sick note data to examine effectiveness.

The first two projects have published their findings. These can be found in the Department's research reports numbers 733 and 780.

Social Security Benefits: Students

Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what benefits are available to students with a long-term illness or disability (a) in full-time, (b) in part-time education and (c) who have suspended their studies; [85270]

(2) what benefits are available to students with a long-term illness or disability who have (a) drawn and (b) not drawn on their student loan. [85271]

Maria Miller: Students in full-time education are not normally eligible for social security benefits as they should be supported by the higher education system. The Government have no plans for allowing exceptions to these rules in respect of students.

When a student becomes too seriously ill to continue their course and, with the agreement of their university or college authority, suspends their studies, they may apply for employment and support allowance, subject to the qualifying conditions. If they have drawn down their loan it will be treated as income for the quarter it was meant to cover when assessing a claim to a means tested benefit. If the loan has not been drawn down it will not be treated as income in the benefit claim.

Students in part-time education may qualify for jobseeker's allowance or income support if they meet the conditions for claiming either of those benefits.

Full-time and part-time students receiving disability living allowance may receive income-related employment and support allowance provided they meet the conditions of entitlement.

Statistics Authority

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of each item of correspondence between his Department and the UK Statistics Authority between May 2010 and November 2011. [85531]

Chris Grayling: Correspondence between the UK Statistics Authority and the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, my right hon. Friend the Member for Chingford and Woodford Green (Mr Duncan Smith), is published on the authority's website and has been placed in the Library:

http://www.statisticsauthority.gov.uk/reports---correspondence/correspondence/index.html

Other official correspondence not previously published between the head of profession and the UK Statistics Authority has also been placed in the Library.

Statutory Sick Pay

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of fit notes in assisting people to make a phased return to work. [85760]

Chris Grayling: The Department has a programme of work to evaluate the statement of fitness for work or fit notes. Independent research carried out for the Department published earlier in the year found that 70% of GPs agreed that the fit note had helped their patients make a phased return to work.

A separate piece of research involving in-depth interviews with 45 GPs from different locations and practice sizes conducted for the Department found many GPs believe that patients with conditions that are compatible with phased returns can return to work sooner than they could have done under the previous certification system. Conditions that they found to be highly compatible with phased returns included myalgic encephalomyelitis or ME (often referred to as chronic fatigue syndrome), common mental health conditions and musculoskeletal problems. Phased return, for example two or three days a week, can be used to build patient confidence and eventually enable a full return leading to positive health outcomes for these patients through having the opportunity to work. Some GPs did note, however, that they perceived that smaller companies may be limited in the number of alternative roles that they can offer employees during the course of a phased return.

The Department will continue to examine the effectiveness of fit notes in assisting people to make a phased return to work through:

in-depth interviews with employers and employees (to be published early next year); a representative survey of employees (to be published at the end of next year); and a comparative study of fit and sick notes (to be published in 2013).

Universal Credit

Mr Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to discuss with representatives of Bacs Payment Schemes Ltd mechanisms whereby rent payments in the universal credit could be paid immediately and automatically to housing associations as soon as credits are made into a claimant's account. [86560]

Chris Grayling: The assumption will be for universal credit to be paid directly into claimants' bank accounts every month. The Department is exploring budget support mechanisms for claimants.

Vocational Training

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely take-up by businesses of the job subsidies announced in the autumn statement. [85679]

Chris Grayling: As part of the Youth Contract, we are making available 160,000 wage incentive payments worth £2,275 each, for employers who recruit an 18 to 24-year-old from the Work programme.

We are designing the detail of the Youth Contract measures, including how wage incentives payments will be made, in partnership with employers, providers and experts from the private, public and voluntary sectors to ensure that they are effective.

Welfare Reform Bill

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to his contribution of 15 June 2011, Official Report, column 879, on the Welfare Reform Bill, if he will reject Professor Harrington's recommendation to end the exemption from the work capability assessment for cancer patients receiving chemotherapy in hospitals. [86558]

Chris Grayling: Professor Harrington and Macmillan Cancer Support have provided evidence to me that we should make changes to the assessment of individuals suffering from cancer.

The evidence provided clearly shows that there is no longer a basis for differentiating between most types of cancer treatment (such as oral or intravenous chemotherapy). But the evidence also shows that there is considerable individual variation in terms of the impact of treatment on each claimant and that work can be very important for some individuals with cancer.

As a result the Department has drawn up proposals, supported by Professor Harrington, to improve the assessment. These would increase the number of individuals receiving treatment for cancer being placed in the Support Group while also reducing the number of people who would have to go through a face-to-face assessment. At the same time, individuals who wanted to return to work would be supported to do so.

We are disappointed Macmillan have been unable to support these proposals developed based on the evidence they submitted. We had hoped to introduce them in April 2012, but we are now seeking a wider range of views from cancer specialists, cancer sufferers and employers through an informal consultation. Ministers will not reach a final decision until the outcome of the consultation is known.

Stephen Gilbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether it is his policy that following enactment of the Welfare Reform Bill, people over the age of 65 currently receiving disability living allowance (DLA) will not be reassessed for personal independence payment and will continue to receive DLA. [86559]

Maria Miller: Personal independence payment will replace disability living allowance for working-age (16 to 64) adults from 2013. We want to build on the experience of developing an assessment and applying it to new and existing claimants of working age to inform our decisions about the arrangements for current disability living allowance recipients who are over the age of 65. Therefore we will not extend personal independence payment to people over the age of 65 already receiving DLA, until we have had an opportunity to consider the effectiveness of the new arrangements for working age people.

Winter Fuel Payments

Ben Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has made an estimate of the cost of means-testing winter fuel allowance payments. [85240]

Steve Webb: Means-testing winter fuel payments would significantly increase administrative costs, but it is likely that these would be more than offset by decreased benefit expenditure. For example, if the payments were to be made only to those in receipt of pension credit the benefit expenditure would be £600 million in 2012-13. With current entitlement conditions benefit expenditure on winter fuel payments is forecast to be £2,100 million in 2012-13.

Note:

All figures rounded to the nearest £100 million.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Serious Fraud Office

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Attorney-General how many cases were investigated by the Serious Fraud Office in 2010-11; how many resulted in charges being brought; and how many cases in which charges were brought (a) were settled and (b) resulted in a successful prosecution. [84551]

The Solicitor-General: The Serious Fraud Office investigates and prosecutes the most serious and complex economic crime. At any given time in 2010-11 the SFO was investigating around 100 cases including those at the earliest stages of investigation (to see if they were appropriate for the SFO to take on), and cases that had been to trial but where proceeds of crime issues were being pursued.

Because of their complexity, it can take a number of years to investigate cases, get them through the court system and bring them to conclusion. Outcomes from the work and effort put into cases are sometimes not seen until many months later. Cases investigated in 2010-11 therefore may not have been charged or have gone to trial within the same period.

The 17 cases prosecuted in 2010-11 involved 31 defendants. Of these, 26 defendants were convicted and five defendants were acquitted, giving a trial conviction rate of 84%. In every case that went to trial at least one defendant was convicted.

	2010-11 (number)
Average number of active cases	103
Cases where charges have been brought[1]	36
Cases successfully concluded and leading to prosecutions	17
Cases settled by civil recovery	1

[1] The figure relates the number of cases that at the end of the financial year were either awaiting trial, where the trial was part heard, or where the trial had concluded. In all these cases charges will have been brought against the defendants but not necessarily during 2010-11.

JUSTICE

Court Proceedings: Broadcasting

20. Andrew Bridgen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to permit the broadcasting of court proceedings. [86117]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: We are planning to legislate, as soon as parliamentary time allows to remove the ban on cameras in courts, subject to certain safeguards, and we are working closely with the Lord Chief Justice on achieving this. Initially, we will allow judgments in the Court of Appeal to be broadcast for the first time, and will expand this to the Crown court in due course. We will not allow filming of juries, victims and witnesses under any circumstances.

Law Centres

21. Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what future support he plans to provide to law centres. [86118]

Mr Djanogly: The Ministry of Justice does not provide direct support for law centres. However, law centres are able to bid for contracts issued by the Legal Services Commission to provide legal aid services in specified areas of law and will continue to be able to do so in the future.

The Ministry of Justice is also working closely with the Cabinet Office to support the cross-government review into the funding of the Not-for Profit sector announced on 21 November.

County Courts

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with which organisations his Department had discussions on the subject matter of its consultation on solving disputes in the county courts (a) before and (b) after the consultation closed. [86155]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The Department has engaged in discussions with the following organisations during the course of this year:

Association of British Insurers
Civil Mediation Council
Forum of Insurance Lawyers
Association of Personal Injury Lawyers
Motor Accident Solicitors Society
The Law Society
The British Bankers Association
Citizens Advice
Her Majesties' Association of District Judges
R3 (Association of Business Recovery Professionals)
Civil Courts Users Association
Office of Fair Trade
Shergroup
The Land Registry
Centre for Peaceful Solutions and Brent Mediation Centre
Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution
Law Works Mediation
National Health Service Litigation Authority
Medical Protection Society
Weightmans Solicitors.

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects to publish his Department's response to its consultation on solving disputes in the county courts; [86156]

(2) what the reasons are for the time taken to publish the Government's response to the consultation on solving disputes in the county courts; [86157]

(3) when he expects the Government's response to his Department's consultation on solving disputes in the county courts to be published. [86158]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the right hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The Government expect the consultation response to be published in the new year. The response was initially scheduled for publication in October but this was postponed due to ongoing discussions within Government.

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many submissions his Department received to its consultation on solving disputes in the county courts. [86159]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the right hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The Department received 319 responses to the consultation.

Legal Opinion: Costs

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times his Department has instructed 1 Brick Court in each year between 2006 and 2011; and how much his Department paid to 1 Brick Court on each such occasion. [86569]

Mr Djanogly: The Ministry of Justice does not keep a central record of the number of times it instructs particular chambers. However on inquiry the Department is aware of one occasion in which 1 Brick Court chambers was instructed over this period. The cost to the Department was £8,084 (inclusive of VAT).

Crime Prevention: Training

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost to his Department was of providing behaviour-related courses for offenders convicted of (a) violent crimes and (b) sexual offences in each of the last five years. [86317]

Mr Blunt: The cost of providing behaviour-related courses for offenders convicted of (a) violent crimes and (b) sexual offences are not collated centrally, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by obtaining highly complex information held on offender files or in local and national data systems, validating it, collating it in a common format and then calculating the overall costs in order to provide a response.

Crimes of Violence: Sexual Offences

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many defendants charged with (a) violent and (b) sexual offences have committed offences or been charged with committing further offences while on bail in the last three years. [86311]

Mr Blunt: Data are not held centrally on the number of offences committed during the bail period by people who have been charged.

Annual court proceedings data for 2011 are planned for publication in spring, 2012.

Consultants

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much (a) his Department and (b) the National Offender Management Service spent on external consultants in each of the last three years. [86603]

Mr Djanogly: The Ministry of Justice (excluding the National Offender Management Service) has spent the following on external consultants in each of the last three years:

November to October each year	Spend (net) (£)
2008-09	38,403,327
2009-10	21,651,659
2010-11	11,333,398

The National Offender Management Service has spent the following on external consultants in each of the last three years:

November to October each year	Spend (net) (£)
2008-09	9,622,423
2009-10	15,890,390
2010-11	14,560,996

Departmental Contracts

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the permanent secretary at his Department has met representatives of (a) Amey, (b) CCA, (c) G4S, (d) GEO, (e) Interserve, (f) MITIE, (g) MTC, (h) Reliance, (i) Serco and (j) Sodexo since May 2010; and if he will place details of any such meetings in the Library. [86290]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: My Department publishes details of meetings between the permanent secretary and external organisations on its website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/corporate-reports/moj/index.htm

Since May 2010, my permanent secretary has met with Serco on one occasion. Details of this meeting will be published in due course.

Electronic Tagging

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were sentenced to supervision by the courts in England and Wales with a condition of being electronically tagged, in each year since 2000. [86291]

Mr Blunt: According to data returns provided by electronic monitoring contractors the total number of orders sentenced by the courts with electronic monitoring, in England and Wales in each financial year since 1999-2000, was as follows:

Financial year	Total number of orders sentenced by the courts with electronic monitoring
1999-2000	3,039
2000-01	4,687
2001-02	6,900
2002-03	11,342
2003-04	18,296
2004-05	25,795
2005-06	30,787
2006-07	38,583
2007-08	49,760
2008-09	54,811
2009-10	55,894
2010-11	64,420
2011-12 (to end November 2011)	41,963

European Court of Human Rights

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases against the UK were pending in the European Court of Human Rights on the most recent date for which information is available. [86324]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: According to the Court's published statistics, the number of applications pending against the UK was 6,197 at 18 July 2011. This total included applications for which a completed application form had not yet been received and on which no decision had yet been made about admissibility.

The vast majority of these applications will be declared inadmissible and will not result in a judgment. This is illustrated by the Court's statistics for 2010, which state that only 23 of applications against the UK resulted in judgments. For this year, up to October, the total number of judgments in applications against the UK was 10.

Formal Punishment

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners were subject to formal punishment after adjudication in each prison in (i) 2009 and (ii) 2010. [86604]

Mr Blunt: Information in the form requested is not readily available. The offender management caseload statistics are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/statistics-and-data/prisons-and-probation/omcs-annual.htm

They show that in 2009, a total of 98,275 offences by male prisoners were punished at adjudications, and 6,471 offences by female prisoners. Statistics for 2010 have not yet been published.

HM Prison Ranby

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff at HM Prison Ranby have lodged a grievance in the last two years. [86453]

Mr Blunt: NOMS records indicate that 26 staff submitted grievances via their line managers at HM Prison Ranby between 7 December 2009 and 7 December 2011.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many allegations of staff at HM Prison Ranby bringing in (a) drugs and (b) mobile telephones have been made in the last 12 months. [86454]

Mr Blunt: It would be inappropriate for operational reasons, including implications for order and control, the integrity of security systems and to ongoing investigations and operations in to staff misconduct, to provide the information requested.

NOMS will always seek to deal robustly with any member of prison staff engaging in any form of staff corruption, including the conveying of prohibited items in to prisons, and will look to use internal disciplinary and/or criminal proceedings depending on the circumstances of the case.

Judges

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the total cost was of salaries for judges employed by the Tribunal Service to hear appeals to decisions made under the work capability assessment in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12; and what estimate he has made of the likely cost of such salaries in 2012-13; [86369]

(2) how many judges were employed by the Tribunal Service to hear appeals to decisions made under the work capability assessment in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12; and what estimate he has made of the likely number of such judges in 2012-13. [86370]

Mr Djanogly: Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service (HMCTS) hears appeals against Department for Work and Pensions decisions on entitlement to employment and support allowance (ESA) (decisions in which the work capability assessment is a key factor) rather than appeals against work capability assessment decisions themselves.

The Social Security and Child Support (SSCS) tribunal hears appeals on a range of benefits, of which ESA is one, and judges are not appointed to hear ESA appeals specifically.

Judges can hear a range of different appeal types in any given day so it is not possible to isolate the cost of salaries and fees specifically for hearing ESA appeals. The following table shows the cost of judicial salaries and fees paid to judges in the SSCS tribunal.

Judicial salaries

	Cost (£ million)
2008-09	25.7
2009-10	32.0
2010-11	39.4
2011-12 (planned)	48.2

Resource planning for 2012-13 has not yet been finalised.

Judges may be salaried or fee-paid. The number of sittings undertaken by fee-paid judges varies from judge to judge depending on their availability but subject to a minimum of 30 days per year. As they can hear a range of different appeal types in any given day, it is not possible to identify the number hearing ESA appeals specifically. The number of SSCS judges fluctuates during the course of the year due to appointments, retirements and resignations.

The data management system for the SSCS tribunal is a live database and it is not possible to extract retrospective figures for the numbers of judges hearing appeals. The following table shows approximate numbers of judges at specific points between February 2008 and December 2011 as recorded in locally-held management information.

Number of tribunal judges February 2008 to December 2011

	Number of salaried judges	Number of fee-paid judges
February 2008	73	571
February 2009	70	545
August 2010	72	518
December 2011	94	645

Resource planning for 2012-13 has not yet been finalised.

Legal Opinion

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department has commissioned external legal advice on which areas of legal aid could be taken out of the legal aid system without violating (a) treaty obligations and (b) European Convention rights; and if he will place a copy of any such advice in the Library. [86616]

Mr Djanogly: I can confirm that my Department has sought external legal advice on aspects of the legal aid reform programme but did not commission such advice specifically on which areas of legal aid could be taken out of the legal aid system without violating (a) treaty obligation and (b) European Convention rights.

Legal Opinion: Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which chambers his Department has instructed to give advice on matters relating to provisions in the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill; and what fees were paid to each such chamber in the latest period for which figures are available. [86617]

Mr Djanogly: External legal advice has been sought on aspects of the legal aid reform but no external legal advice has been sought directly on the provisions in the Bill itself. We have not classified advice pertaining to litigation as being matters relating to provisions in the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill.

Magistrates Courts: Wales

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 28W, on Magistrates Courts: Wales; which magistrates courts premises in Wales will be sold; and how much they each will be sold for. [85972]

Mr Djanogly: The following magistrates courts premises are for sale:

Aberdare magistrates and county court

Ammanford magistrates court

Barry magistrates court

Cardigan magistrates court
Denbigh magistrates court
Flint magistrates court
Llangefni magistrates court
Llwynypia magistrates court
Pwllheli magistrates court.

Negotiations with potential purchasers for these properties are 'subject to contract' and are regarded as commercial in confidence. It is therefore not possible to detail the sale price.

Offenders: Community Care

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, columns 27-29W, on offenders: community care, what the subsequent offences are for which discharged restricted patients have been convicted. [86306]

Mr Blunt: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only by a member of staff manually sifting through up to 2,094 files for over 150 working days at a disproportionate cost.

However, work to obtain information on further offences committed by those restricted patients discharged since December 2009 is under way, and I will write to my hon. Friend with that information as soon as it is available.

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, columns 27-29W, on offenders: community care, how many requests were made to him to release restricted patients into the community in each of the last five years; and how many such requests were granted. [86307]

Mr Blunt: It is not possible to provide the information requested relating to requests for discharge prior to 4 March 2009, the date on which an electronic caseworking system was introduced. To do so would require manual checks of 4,127 files for 98 days at disproportionate cost.

The number of requests to discharge restricted patients into the community received and granted from 4 March 2009 to 8 December 2011 are set out in the following table.

	Request for discharge	Discharge agreed	Discharge refused
4 March 2009 to 31 December 2009	74	64	10
2010	110	92	18
1 January 2011 to 9 December 2011	112	96	16

The Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice, the right hon. and learned Member for Rushcliffe (Mr Clarke), will discharge restricted patients into the community only if he is satisfied, based on the clinical evidence presented, that the patient no longer requires treatment in hospital and that arrangements for his safe management in the community have been made.

Offenders: Convictions

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted of each offence listed in Schedule 16 of the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill who had previously been convicted of any of those offences in each of the last 10 years. [86585]

Mr Blunt: The following table shows the number of people who were convicted of an offence listed in schedule 16 of the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill, in the years 2001 to 2010, who at the time had at least one previous conviction for any one of these offences. Attempted offences and offences involving aiding, abetting, conspiracy and incitement are classified with the main offence, and have not been separately identified.

Offenders would not be eligible for a mandatory life sentence under clause 114 of the current Legal Aid Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill unless each conviction had merited a determinate sentence of at least 10 years. These figures show all convictions in cases where the offender had been convicted previously of a schedule 16 offence.

The figures relate to separate sentencing occasions; where an offender was sentenced on the same occasion for several offences it is the primary offence that has been counted. These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

Personal Injury

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reason the round table consultation meeting on personal injury matters scheduled for 1 November 2011 was postponed; and on what date it will now take place. [86154]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the right hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The round table discussion was postponed as the publication of the Government's response to "Solving Disputes in the County Courts" has been delayed. The meeting will be rescheduled for the new year once the consultation response has been published.

Police Cautions

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many conditional cautions were issued by police authorities in each of the last five years; and for which categories of offence. [85959]

The Attorney-General: I have been asked to reply.

Conditional Cautioning was established by the Criminal Justice Act 2003, and is operated under a statutory Code of Practice. The Code of Practice requires the Director of Public Prosecutions to issue supporting Guidance on Conditional Cautioning, which sets out the practical details of how the scheme operates. The range of offences that may be considered for a Conditional Caution are set out in the Guidance at Annex A. This annex can be found at the following link to the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) website:

http://www.cps.gov.uk/publications/others/conditionalcautioning04annexa.html

A Crown Prosecutor decides whether a Conditional Caution is an appropriate disposal in a case, in consultation with the police.

CPS data recorded on its Case Management System, shows that nationally the number of Conditional Cautions issued in the last five years is 34,466. A breakdown of Conditional Cautions issued by police force area level between 2007 and October 2011 is set out in tables which have been deposited in the Library of the House.

The CPS commenced publishing details on its website of the Conditional Cautions issued by areas from March 2010. This is published on a quarterly basis. From the information currently available it is not possible to provide a breakdown of the numbers of Conditional Cautions issued for each category of offence by police force area level. The information does provide a breakdown of offence categories for which Conditional Cautions have been issued. A copy of the breakdown at national level has been placed in the Library of the House and is categorised as follows:

Common Assault
Assaulting a police officer
Section 4 and 4A Public Order Act 1986
Destroying or damaging property
Unlawful taking of a motor vehicle
Interference with vehicles
Section 5 Public Order Act 1986
Obstructing a police officer
Drunk and Disorderly
Indecent exposure
Simple drunk
Violent behaviour in a police station
Other summary only offences
Theft
Removal of articles from places open to the public
Abstracting electricity
False accounting
Handling stolen goods
Going equipped for stealing etc
Making off without payment
Making a false representation
Failing to disclose information
Fraud by abuse of position
Possession of articles for use in frauds
Making or supplying articles for use in frauds
Obtaining services dishonestly
Threats to destroy or damage property
Possessing anything with intent to destroy or damage property
Possession of any class of drug (consistent with personal use)
Other Forgery

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with the magistrates' service about the use of conditional cautions. [85989]

Mr Blunt: I met with the Magistrates Association on 24 May 2011 and 19 October 2011 to discuss wider sentencing issues.

The Minister for Policing and Criminal Justice, my right hon. Friend the Member for Arundel and South Downs (Nick Herbert), also met with the Magistrates Association on 29 September 2011 and 8 December 2011 to discuss proposals for the reform that included of out-of-court disposals.

Ministers will continue to engage with the Magistrates Association as we consider the development of conditional cautions policy as part of wider reforms.

Prisoners' Release: Lie Detectors

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1043W, on prisoners' release: lie detectors, for what reason some sex offenders did not attend a polygraph test; and whether any prisoners were returned to prison for breaching their licence conditions. [86312]

Mr Blunt: The answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1043W, stated that 650 offenders were released with a (polygraph) licence condition and that 599 attended at least one polygraph session. The reasons for non-attendance were as follows:

43 were recalled to prison before the date of the test (testing took place eight to 12 weeks after release). The project did not collect data on the reasons for recall before testing but any recall must be on the basis of a breach of licence condition(s).

The other eight "no tests" were for one of the following reasons: an offender being unlawfully at large at the time of his scheduled test; medical reasons that interfered with the testing apparatus (e.g. Parkinson's disease, respiratory problems); legitimate cancellation but then the licence(s) having ended before the test could be rescheduled; the offender not attending but then the licence(s) having ended before rescheduling was possible (in such a case, enforcement action would have ensued).

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1043W, on prisoners' release: lie detectors, if he will estimate the (a) total cost to the public purse of the pilot and (b) average cost to the public purse of each lie detector test. [86314]

Mr Blunt: The total budget for the mandatory polygraph pilot was £1,135,000. This paid for a total of 1,290 tests, at an average cost of £880 each. The average cost per test includes an apportionment of all the costs arising from the pilot, in particular the research contract, testing and associated management costs, training costs for offender managers supervising offenders subject to the polygraph condition, and the cost of an administrator's post to support the pilot.

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1043W, on prisoners' release: lie detectors, whether any offenders taking part in the pilot received any expenses in relation to their attendance or participation. [86315]

Mr Blunt: No incentives or rewards were offered to offenders in relation to their participation in the polygraph pilot. The testing was mandatory and offenders risked recall to custody if they did not attend for the polygraph test.

Some offenders may have had the cost of their travel between their home and the office, at which the test took place, reimbursed according to the rules of the probation trust responsible for their supervision. Trusts will reimburse some offenders for the cost of their travel to or from the office at which they are required to report, according to local policy and eligibility criteria.

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1043W, on prisoners' release: lie detectors, how many offenders who took part in the lie detector pilot have re-offended since their release from prison. [86313]

Mr Blunt: Testing in the mandatory polygraph pilot ended on 31 October 2011. A report on the evaluation of the pilot, to determine whether mandatory polygraph testing is an effective additional tool for managing the risk of harm presented by sexual offenders, is due for publication in the summer of 2012. This research will look at the number of offenders recalled as a result of a breach of licence. However, the research does not include a reconviction study because of the lack of a suitable follow-up period while the fieldwork is being undertaken.

Some licence breaches may be a result of a further offence (as opposed to a breach of specific licence conditions). The research aims to assess if polygraph testing leads to more clinically significant disclosures to the offender manager during statutory supervision. It is not a recidivism study and, therefore, does not examine directly if the polygraph leads to fewer or more incidents of alleged offending during the licence period.

Prisons: Energy

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of heating and lighting was for the prison estate in the last year for which figures are available. [86081]

Mr Blunt: The most recent full year cost where figures are available is for financial year 2010-11.

The unit cost of gas and electric fluctuates in accordance with global marketing trading, therefore the prices given in this answer are the average for FY 2010-11 period.

During that period, the average cost per kWh paid for electricity to provide lighting was 3.9 pence per kWh, and 1.4 pence per kWh to provide gas for heating.

Prisons: Manpower

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the level of staff turnover was by grade at HM Prison (a) Acklington, (b) Castington, (c) Coldingley, (d) Durham, (e) Hatfield, (f) Lindholme, (g) Moorland, (h) Onley and (i) Wolds, in 2010-11. [86288]

Mr Blunt: Information on the turnover rate, broken down by grade, of directly employed permanent staff from the named establishments between 1 April 2010 and 31 March 2011 is contained in the following tables.

Permanent staff turnover rates by grade, 2010-11

	Public sector
Establishment	Officer grades	Operational support grades	Other grades	All grades
Acklington	3.4	5.5	2.9	3.6
Castington	1.8	5.7	9.8	4.5
Coldingley	3.1	6.8	4.4	4.2
Durham	3.5	6.7	8.0	5.2
Lindholme	2.9	3.1	8.1	4.5
Moorland/ Hatfield	4.2	5.3	6.7	5.0
Onley	7.8	6.5	7.9	7.7

	Private sector
	Operational management	Prison custody officers	Other grades	Total
Wolds	11.8	3.8	6.3	5.5

Notes:
1. Information is on a headcount basis and relates directly employed staff who had a permanent contract of employment.
2. Turnover refers to staff leaving HM Prison Service and would not include staff leaving the establishments for other parts of the National Offender Management Service.
3. Hatfield staff are reported together with Moorland on the HR database and cannot be disaggregated.

Public Protection Arrangements

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people subject to multi-agency public protection arrangements have committed each type of offence. [86321]

Mr Blunt: Sections 325 and 327 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 provide for specified categories of offender to be subject to the multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) established in each area. These are summarised in the following table.

Categories of offender subject to MAPPA

	Offender
Category 1	Registered sexual offender
Category 2	Violent or other sexual offender: who has been sentenced to 12 months or more custody for an offence under Schedule 15 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003;or

Categories of offender subject to MAPPA

	Offender
	who has been sentenced to 12 months or more custody and is transferred to hospital under section 47/s.49 of the Mental Health Act 1983; or who is detained in hospital under section 37 of the Mental Health Act 1983 with or without a restriction order under section 41 of that Act.
Category 3	Other dangerous offender: a person who has been cautioned for or convicted of an offence which indicates that he or she is capable of causing serious harm and which requires multi-agency management. This might not be for an offence under Schedule 15 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003.

Table 2 of the Ministry of Justice Statistics bulletin 'Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements Annual Report 2010-11' which was published on 27 October 2011, provides information about the number of offenders in each of the three categories who were subject to MAPPA. Information for the past five years is reproduced in the following table.

Offenders subject to MAPPA by Category on 31 March[1]

	Category 1 Registered sexual offenders	Category 2 Violent offenders	Category 3 Other dangerous offenders	Total
2005-06	29,983	14,292	3,313	—
2006-07	30,416	14,921	3,132	—
2007-08	31,392	16,249	2,569	—
2008-09	32,347	11,527	884	44,758
2009-10	34,939	12,766	633	48,338
2010-11	37,225	13,785	479	51,489

Information is not centrally available on the number of offenders who committed specific offences within these categories. The information could be obtained only by a manual search of the records held by all the local Probation Trusts and police forces of all the offenders made subject to MAPPA in the last five years. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974

Dr Huppert: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to bring forward proposals to amend the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974. [86100]

Nick Herbert: We intend to bring forward reforms of the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974 by way of amendments to the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill.

Reoffenders: Alternatives to Prosecution

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1045W, on reoffenders: alternatives to prosecution, (1) how many offenders with 15 or more previous convictions received subsequent police cautions in each of the last five years; [86322]

(2) how many offenders have received more than one out-of-court disposal for offences committed in each of the last five years. [86323]

Mr Blunt: My hon. Friend's request for further information has been answered using MOJ's published proven reoffending statistics. In this case proven reoffending is measured over a one year period from the point an offender receives their first caution.

Table 1 shows the number of cautioned adult offenders (aged 18 or over) with 15 or more previous convictions who then received a subsequent caution within a year, for the last five years for which data are available (2005 to 2009).

Table 1

	Number of offenders
2005	337
2006	549
2007	575
2008	512
2009	374

Table 2 shows the number of cautioned adult offenders (aged 18 or over) who received more than one out of court disposal (caution) within a year for the last five years for which data are available (2005 to 2009).

Table 2

	Number of offenders
2005	8,169
2006	11,314
2007	11,923
2008	10,649
2009	8,149

Sentencing

Jesse Norman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to increase the effectiveness of community sentences. [86112]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: We are already taking action on strengthening community sentences through the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill, including making Community Payback more immediate and intensive.

We have identified through this work that we need to go much further and will be consulting on reforms to ensure that community sentences effectively punish and rehabilitate offenders, in due course.

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people are serving a life sentence; for what crimes they were convicted; and how many have already served their tariff. [86556]

Mr Blunt: On 21 June 2011, the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) published the following report: "Provisional figures relating to offenders serving indeterminate sentence of imprisonment for public protection (IPPs)". This can be found on the MOJ's website at the following address:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/downloads/publications/statistics-and-data/mojstats/provisional-ipp-figures.pdf

Data on life sentenced prisoners are also included in the report.

Based on data at the end of March 2011, 8,100 people were serving a life sentence.

The category of offence for which they were imprisoned is shown in the following table.

	Number
Violence against the person	6,730
Sexual offences	910
Other violence (including robbery)	480
Total	8,100

Of these, 3,200 had passed their minimum tariff date.

Figures have been rounded to the nearest 50 except for the more detailed offence categories which are rounded to the nearest 10. Figures have been rounded separately and will therefore not always sum to the totals.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Sexual Offences: Crime Prevention

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many sex offenders have undertaken courses whilst (a) in custody and (b) in the community for the purposes of preventing them from re-offending. [86316]

Mr Blunt: There are a range of interventions that could all potentially help reduce an offender's risk of further sexual offending and/or general offending.

In terms of interventions specifically designed to meet the treatment needs of sexual offenders figures for completions in the seven years to 2010-11 are as follows:

	Custody SOTP completions	Community SOTP completions
2004-05	1,232	803
2005-06	1,152	961
2006-07	1,224	1,301
2007-08	1,117	1,360
2008-09	1,114	1,367
2009-10	1,133	1,452
2010-11	1,142	1,572

These figures are only for completions. The figures stated do not include those individuals who started but did not finish courses specified. Information on attrition rates are not kept centrally for the periods requested. Obtaining this information would only be possible through collating information from local sources and this only at disproportionate cost.

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders subject to sexual offences prevention orders have subsequently (a) reoffended and (b) committed further sexual offences in each of the last three years. [86318]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: Table 7 of the Ministry of Justice statistics bulletin "Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements Annual Report 2010/11" which was published on 27 October 2011, provides information about offenders given sexual offences prevention orders (SOPOs) who are managed at level 2 and level 3 (that is, who are subject to active multi-agency management) under the multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) and who are sent to custody for breaching the terms of their SOPO. This information is given in the following table.

Information about offenders managed at level 1 (ordinary agency management), and information about the type of further offence committed by offenders at all levels, could be obtained only by a manual search of the records of all the 5,812 offenders given a SOPO in the last three years. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Returned to custody for breach of SOPO

	Level 2	Level 3	Total
2008-09	58	10	68
2009-10	81	8	89
2010-11	45	12	57

Tribunals Service: Work Capability Assessment

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any part of the Tribunals Service is planning to operate a six-day week to hear appeals against work capability assessment decisions; and which Tribunals Service centres are planning to do so. [86371]

Mr Djanogly: Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service (HMCTS) hears appeals against Department for Work and Pensions decisions on entitlement to employment and support allowance (ESA) (decisions in which the work capability assessment is a key factor) rather than appeals against work capability assessment decisions themselves.

The Social Security and Child Support (SSCS) tribunal hears appeals on a range of benefits, of which ESA is one. In response to significant and unforecast increases in appeals to the tribunal, HMCTS has taken a number of measures to increase its hearing capacity, by increasing the number of tribunal sessions held, increasing judicial and administrative productivity, and introducing more efficient processes and extended opening times. Total disposals by the SSCS tribunal in the period between April and October 2011 were 21% up on the same period in 2010, and 66% higher than in the same seven months in 2009.

All SSCS hearing venues hear appeals on the range of benefit types, including ESA. Saturday sittings have been introduced in a number of hearing venues. Appellants are asked whether they are willing to attend a hearing on a Saturday before their case is listed and the hearing will proceed exactly as it would on a weekday.

The following tribunal hearing venues are running Saturday sittings: Sutton, Bexleyheath, Fox Court (South London appeals), Cardiff, Wrexham, Langstone, Plymouth, Dundee and Hamilton.

The following tribunal hearing venues will run Saturday sittings from January 2012: Newcastle, South Shields, Leeds, and Sheffield.

The following tribunal hearing venues have run Saturday sittings and are evaluating the impact on clearance rates before deciding whether to run more: Watford, Wolverhampton, Leicester, Nottingham, Fox Court (North London appeals), and Anchorage House (London). Saturday sittings were also run in Liverpool during September, October and November 2011.

Young Offenders: Electronic Tagging

Mr Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to encourage courts to ensure juvenile offenders subject to curfew are also tagged electronically. [86171]

Mr Blunt: Any child or young person who comes before the court is subject to a rigorous assessment by the youth offending team which will include consideration of whether a curfew should be included in the sentence and whether this should be electronically monitored. For young children who are located in the family home it is not always considered necessary or appropriate to make a curfew subject to electronic monitoring. In these cases the child's parents would be expected to enforce the curfew reinforced by a police visit to confirm the child is at home.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether (a) he and (b) officials in his Department have met members of the American Legislative Exchange Council to discuss voter registration since May 2010. [85262]

Mr Harper: Neither I nor the Deputy Prime Minister has met with members of the American Legislative Exchange Council to discuss voter registration since May 2010. Nor do we have any record of Cabinet Office officials meeting with the Council.

HEALTH

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85842]

Mr Simon Burns: In the Department's London buildings, calorie labelling is provided at the point of purchase and displayed on weekly menus within the Department. Choice, value and wellbeing boards located at the restaurant entrances provide customer information including a weekly menu with calorie labelling.

Eleven of our arm's length bodies (ALBs) do not use contracts for food and catering services. Four ALBs use services provided under contracts arranged by the Department of Health or the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills and the answer for these bodies is provided by the Departments' replies. The remaining five ALBs anticipate discussing the inclusion of cross government standards of best practice with their suppliers, where possible, when negotiating new contracts or earlier.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85843]

Mr Simon Burns: In the Department, the weekly menus located on the Choice Card at each restaurant entrance highlight the country of origin for all meat based meals. This information is also provided on the daily menu at point of purchase.

Eleven of the Department's arm's length bodies do not use contracts for food and catering services. Four arm's length bodies use services provided under contracts arranged by the Department or the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills and the answer for these bodies is provided by those Departments' replies. The remaining five arm's length bodies anticipate discussing the inclusion of cross government standards of best practice with their suppliers, where possible, when negotiating new contracts or earlier.

Departmental Visits Abroad

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what overseas visits (a) he and (b) each Minister in his Department has undertaken since 1 October 2011; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) date of each such visit was. [85824]

Mr Simon Burns: Details of all ministerial overseas travel are published quarterly in arrears on the Department's website. Data from 1 January 2010 up to the end of June 2011 can be found at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/MinistersandDepartmentLeaders/Departmentdirectors/DH_110759

Data for periods July to September and October to December will be published in the new year.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 Session to date. [85931]

Mr Simon Burns: As of 6 December 2011, the Department has received 6,126 questions for ordinary written answer in this parliamentary Session. Of those, 5,889 or 96% received a substantive answer within five sitting days. The following table shows the number and proportion of questions in the format requested.

	Number	Percentage
Within 10 sitting days	6,111	99.7
Within 20 sitting days	6,125	99.9
Within 30 sitting days	6,126	100
More than 30 sitting days	0	0

E. Coli

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps the Government have taken to tackle outbreaks of E. coli 0157 which have taken place in the last 12 months; [85946]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to prevent outbreaks of E. coli 0157; [85947]

(3) what action was taken by his Department to inform the general public of the outbreak of E. coli 0157 which took place in December 2010; [85951]

(4) what steps he was recommended to take by the Food Standards Agency following the outbreak of E. coli 0157 in December 2010; and what steps he took. [85952]

Anne Milton: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) leads on food safety matters.

Between December 2010 and July 2011, the Health Protection Agency (HPA), Health Protection Scotland and Public Health Wales received reports of 250 cases of infection with a particular subtype of E. coli 0157 known as Phage Type 8 (PT8) distributed across England, Scotland and Wales.

This was first reported in February 2011, when the HPA reported an outbreak of E. coli 0157 of undetermined cause in its weekly Health Protection Report, and in subsequent monthly references to case numbers and reports to the HPA Board in March and May this year, all published on the HPA's website. From 3 February 2011, the FSA worked as part of the Outbreak Control Team, chaired by the HPA, to undertake comprehensive investigations into the possible cause(s) of the outbreak. This involved preliminary interviews with every identified case and detailed interviews with a number of cases. Statistical analysis of information was applied.

When those investigations revealed an association with handling raw vegetables, the FSA, in collaboration with the HPA, consumer groups and the food industry, alerted the general public to the outbreak of E. coli 0157 and its association with handling certain raw vegetables by publishing, in September, a reminder to consumers of the importance of washing all fruit and vegetables, including salad, before eating, unless labelled ready-to-eat, to ensure that they are clean.

The advice also stated that it is important to wash hands thoroughly as well as clean chopping boards, knives and other utensils after preparing vegetables to prevent cross-contamination. This targeted campaign formed part of FSA's Foodborne Disease Strategy which aims to increase awareness and understanding of general good domestic food hygiene as a means of reducing all types of foodborne disease and as a precursor to achieving changes in behaviour and improvements in domestic hygiene standards.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he was informed of the outbreak of E. coli 0157 which took place in December 2010; [85949]

(2) on what date the Health Protection Agency informed him that it had been notified of the outbreak of E. coli 0157 in December 2010; [85950]

(3) on what date the Food Standards Agency informed him that it had been notified of the outbreak of E. coli 0157 in December 2010. [85953]

Anne Milton: The Department was informed by the Health Protection Agency on 2 February 2011 that an outbreak control team was being called for 3 February to investigate increased numbers of cases of E. coli 0157 Phage Type 8 (PT8) reported across England, Wales and Scotland between December 2010 and July 2011, and the possibility that these could be due to a national foodborne outbreak.

The Food Standards Agency notified on 25 July 2011 about the ongoing incident of E. coli 0157 and the actions they proposed for advising consumers.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Health Protection Agency or the Food Standards Agency was designated by his Department as the lead agency in responding to the outbreak of E. coli 0157 in December 2010. [85954]

Anne Milton: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) formed an Outbreak Control Team (OCT) in February 2011 when an outbreak of vero cytotoxin-producing E. coli (VTEC) 0157 phage type (PT) 8 infection was declared based on 50 human cases reported between December 2010 and July 2011.

The OCT was chaired by the HPA in accordance with the agreed procedures for management of outbreaks of foodborne illness. The remit of the OCT was to identify the cause and source of the infection. The Food Standards Agency (FSA) is a member of the OCT.

Once an analytical study showed infection was associated with the handling of loose leeks and potatoes, the FSA was designated as the lead in the investigation into any possible links to food or food premises being the potential source of the outbreak.

Food Standards Agency: Publicity

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of each public awareness campaign undertaken by the Food Standards Agency in the last 12 months. [85756]

Anne Milton: There have been three public awareness campaigns undertaken by the Food Standards Agency (FSA) in the past 12 months. These have promoted awareness of the Food Hygiene Rating Scheme; the food hygiene risks associated with vegetables; and good food hygiene practice at Christmas. The expenditure on each campaign over the past 12 months is shown in the following table together with a breakdown by United Kingdom country. The E. coli and vegetables and Christmas campaigns are not yet complete so the final amounts may exceed the figures shown. The funding of the FSA in the devolved countries is provided by the Welsh Government, Scottish Government and Northern Ireland Assembly.

Food Hygiene Rating Scheme
Wales	180,000
Northern Ireland	179,000

Total	359,000

Wales	80,000
Northern Ireland	12,000
Scotland	167,000

Food: Radiation Exposure

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what additional assessment for radioactive contamination the Food Standards Agency (FSA) has carried out on foodstuffs imported from Japan since the incident at the Fukishima nuclear plant in March 2011; what additional costs have been incurred by the FSA in conducting such tests; and from which budget any such costs have been paid. [86005]

Anne Milton: Commission Implementing Regulation (EU) No. 961/2011 imposes special conditions governing the import of feed and food originating in or consigned from Japan following the accident at the Fukushima nuclear power station. This regulation requires the analysis for radioactive iodine and radioactive caesium from 10% of consignments from Fukushima, Gunma, Ibaraki, Tochigi, Miyagi, Yamanashi, Nagano, Saitama, Tokyo, Chiba, Kanagawa and Shizuoka Prefectures. In addition, 20% of consignments from all other Prefectures are also required to be analysed for these radionuclides. The tests are carried out on behalf of the Port Health Authorities and the costs are charged to the importers, so the Food Standards Agency has not had to pay out for these additional analyses.

Gangs

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department plans to spend on work relating to the recent cross-Government report on ending gang and youth violence. [86331]

Anne Milton: The Department has not yet confirmed its central budgets for 2012-13, which are in the process of being set through the Department's normal business planning processes. A number of different programmes that the Department currently funds, such as Family Nurse Partnerships and Youth Justice Liaison and Diversion, may make a long-term contribution to ending gang and youth violence.

Medical Records: Wales

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions he has had with Ministers in the Welsh Government on proposals for the use of Welsh resident patient data held by the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency for research purposes, including Welsh residents who have received treatment outside Wales; [86199]

(2) pursuant to his contribution of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 31, on life sciences, which datasets of the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency are held on an (a) UK and (b) England-only basis. [86337]

Mr Simon Burns: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) has been running the General Practice Research Database (GPRD), that is owned by the Secretary of State for Health, since 1999. The GPRD has arrangements with general practices in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland so that it is a generalisable sample dataset for each nation as well as the United Kingdom as a whole. GPRD is also linked to other national health service datasets such as Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), Cancer and Myocardial Infarction Registries. However, for operational reasons the current linkage is only undertaken for general practitioner practices within England.

The recently announced MHRA service, Clinical Practice Research Datalink (CPRD), is a partnership with the National Institute for Health Research and has been established to run a similar English service to the Secure Anonymised Information Linkage research service in Wales and that in Scotland (Scottish Health Informatics Programme), that are both already operating. However, there are research needs that require access to data across the four nations and additionally other services that need particular strengths of research groups in various parts of the UK; so co-operation will be required.

No discussions have taken place between Ministers but discussions have been ongoing with those involved in both the Welsh and the Scottish research systems, since the start of the precursor to CPRD, which is the Research Capability Programme. These discussions have now stepped up to ensure that what is the largest system, by virtue of population size of England, takes a lead in fostering a dynamic synergistic relationship to the benefit of all patients, the NHS as a whole and research teams wherever they are located. Ministers have been apprised of developments during these discussions.

Subject to agreements between the relevant groups it is expected that data access and data linkage for specific research purposes will be enabled across the UK provided all governance approvals are agreed and in place.

NHS: Disclosure of Information

Mr Leigh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to prevent public money being spent on (a) legal fees incurred in the pursuit of whistleblowers in the NHS and (b) independent reviews from companies such as Verita on such issues. [86390]

Anne Milton: People who raise concerns in the public interest are subject to certain protections under the Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998.

National health service trusts are independent employers and organisations in their own right and operate in accordance with their local disciplinary and grievance procedures and employment legislation.

The need for independent review on such issues would be considered on a case by case basis.

Pregnant Women: Grants

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he took to maintain the Health in Pregnancy and Sure Start Maternity Grant. [84377]

Steve Webb: I have been asked to reply on behalf of the Department of Work and Pensions.

In the June 2010 Budget, the Government announced a range of measures including limiting the Social Fund Sure Start Maternity Grant scheme to the first child and the abolition of the Health in Pregnancy Grant. These were part of the Government's deficit reduction plan.

Sure Start maternity grants are available to families in receipt of income support, income-related employment and support allowance, income-based jobseeker's allowance, pension credit, child tax credit at a rate above the family element, or working tax credit that also includes a disability or severe disability element. This broad eligibility ensures that the grant is as widely available as possible among families with lower incomes both in and out of work.

Restricting payment in this way ensures that the limited resources available support families when they need it most.

Prescription Drugs

Alun Cairns: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will assess the merits of requiring the manufacturing of blister packs of prescriptions in quantities of seven tablets rather than 10 in order to eliminate the need to cut blister strips to fill prescriptions and enable medicines to be dispensed in their original packaging; [86579]

(2) if he will take steps against medicines distributors who do not comply with his Department's requirements on the information which must appear on the outer and inner packaging of medicines when blister packs of medicines are split; [86580]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effects of the practice of cutting blister packs of medicines into strips due to a disparity between amounts of medicines prescribed and packaging quantities on (a) long-term and (b) other patients. [86581]

Mr Simon Burns: The requirements for medicines labelling are set out in European and national legislation. Blister strips are intended to be enclosed within outer packaging which is fully labelled with detailed information on the safe and effective use of the product. Each blister strip must be labelled with the name of the product, the expiry date, batch number and the name and address of the marketing authorisation holder. Legislation does not specify the quantities of tablets to be contained in particular types of packaging.

The Medicines for Human Use (Marketing Authorisations etc.) Regulations 1994 require the Marketing Authorisation holder to meet the requirement of European law on leaflets and labelling and makes it an offence for all those in the supply chain including wholesalers, dispensing doctors and pharmacists to supply medicines that fail to meet those requirements.

A high proportion of national health service medicines in England are already prescribed in complete pack quantities. However, the prescriber has clinical discretion over the exact quantity of a medicine that is prescribed, according to patient need. Sometimes the quantity will not be available exactly in the pack size. In this situation, the pharmacist is required legally to dispense the quantity prescribed and will need to break a pack to do so. An assessment has not been made of the effect of cutting blister packs on long-term and other patients.

Social Services

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent meetings Ministers in his Department have had with representatives of the Care and Support Alliance; whether he plans to bring forward proposals to reform the care system; and if he will make a statement. [86622]

Paul Burstow: The Care and Support Alliance have been involved throughout the engagement exercise, having met with officials and engagement leads to discuss their priorities for the reform of adult social care. Numerous events and meetings have also taken place with the constituent groups of the Care and Support Alliance, and a number of their members were chosen specifically to participate in "Caring for our future" as either co-leads or reference group members.

Ministers have attended a number of these events and have met with many representatives of the Care and Support Alliance since "Caring for our future" was launched on 15 September 2011.

The feedback received from the engagement will now be considered alongside the recommendations from the Commission on Funding of Care and Support and the Law Commission. The Government are committed to publishing a White Paper, and a progress report on funding, in spring 2012, and to legislating at the earliest possible opportunity.

Social Services: Registration

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to ensure that social workers registering or renewing their membership of the General Social Care Council before July 2012 will not pay duplicate full-year registration fees for its successor body the Health Professionals Council when it comes into being. [85992]

Paul Burstow: Subject to legislation, on 31 July 2012 the regulatory functions of the General Social Care Council (GSCC) will transfer to the Health Professions Council (HPC)—to be renamed the Health and Care Professions Council (HCPC)—which is an independent regulatory body.

For the past 10 years, social worker regulation has been heavily subsidised by the Government, thereby ensuring that the fee remained at £30 year on year. In the current economic climate it is no longer fair to ask the taxpayer to subsidise social workers in this way.

Having considered a number of options, the GSCC has decided to collect its fees as normal up until its closure. It is therefore possible that a social worker will be required to pay fees both to the GSCC and to the HCPC in 2012. However, once the register transfer to the HCPC, registrants will be offered a period of up to four months to renew their registration and will be given the choice of paying the registration fee in four instalments across the two-year period.

Departmental officials are working with the HPC and the GSCC to ensure that the processes for registrant fees are straightforward and clear and that registrants have the information to make decisions appropriate to their circumstances in the months approaching the transfer of regulatory functions.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Affordable Housing: Armed Forces

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers have been given to local authorities to provide affordable housing to serving or former service personnel since May 2010. [85693]

Grant Shapps [holding answer 8 December 2011]: Local authorities already have statutory powers enabling them to provide social housing to serving or former service personnel, and to offer such households greater priority in their allocation schemes.

We are determined that members of the armed forces and ex-service personnel should get the housing they deserve, and we are consequently taking the following measures:

giving service personnel top priority for Government-funded home ownership schemes, including the new FirstBuy scheme, and prioritising military personnel and their families for up to a year after active service ends;

providing tailored support through housing experts visiting military bases across the country to explain to service personnel how they can apply for one of the many new homes that will be built in the next few years; consulting shortly on plans to change the law so that former personnel with urgent housing needs are always given high priority on waiting lists and so that personnel who move from base to base do not lose their qualification rights; consulting on proposals to give local authorities greater freedom to dispose of vacant council homes at right to buy discounts to local people which could include existing or former military personnel;

providing support for wounded service personnel through increased funding for home adaptations, so that personnel returning from active service with serious injuries can live independently with dignity and respect; working with homelessness and veteran experts to help ex-service personnel who find the transition back to civilian life difficult;

providing £1.5 million (two-year funding) to help Rushmoor borough council and other councils support the integration of retired Gurkhas, who, having served in the British Army, now wish to settle in the UK.

Affordable Housing: Finance

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of the receipts from the sale of local authority-owned homes will go to local authorities for the construction of new social housing. [86197]

Grant Shapps: Local authorities currently retain all the receipts from the voluntary sale of local authority-owned homes, and 25% of the receipt from right to buy (or similar) sales. These receipts may be used to fund the building of new social housing, but that is a decision for each authority.

My Department intends to consult shortly on how, in future, right to buy receipts can be used to fund replacement social housing at affordable rents on a one-to-one basis either through registered housing associations or local authorities.

Council Tax Benefits

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the potential effect on council tax collection rates of (a) the localisation of council tax benefit and (b) the planned 10 per cent. reduction in its funding; and if he will make a statement. [82649]

Robert Neill [holding answer 24 November 2011]: An impact assessment on our broad plans for localisation of council tax will be published in due course. Under localisation, local authorities will have the flexibility to design local schemes taking into account local circumstances, including collection rates.

Procurement

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedures his Department has put in place to ensure value for money on purchases; and what savings have been identified using those procedures in the last year. [82314]

Robert Neill: In line with Government commitments to reduce public sector expenditure my Department has undertaken a comprehensive review of spend to identify savings and cost efficiencies.

Following Cabinet Office guidance the Department has placed an immediate freeze on consulting expenditure, unless it is of operational necessity and the work cannot be undertaken by civil servants.

Procedures have been introduced whereby the Minister and Permanent Secretary review all consultancy contracts of £20,000 or more on a three monthly basis and ensuring that any proposals to extend contracts longer than nine months are jointly approved by the Minister for the Cabinet Office and Paymaster General, my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr Maude), and the Chief Secretary to the Treasury, the right hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander).

Mechanisms to manage demand have been put in place to manage and reduce expenditure through the Government Procurement Card. My Department has also published online all its spending on goods and services since 2008 over £500 online which has helped identify waste and inefficiency.

Savings are borne out in Department accounts. Note 9 'other administrative costs' of the Department's Report and Accounts 2010-11 (page 129) reports that non-pay Gross Admin Costs for the Department reduced from £123 million in 2009-10 to £104 million in 2010-11, once early retirement costs of £64 million were taken into account. Figures in this report are prepared in accordance with HM Treasury's Financial Reporting Manual for central Government Departments and associated Treasury resource accounting and budgeting guidance.

Additionally, the Department's Public Sector Public Procurement Expenditure Survey shows a 29% reduction in third party expenditure from 2009-10 to 2010-11.

In particular the Department has made significant operational savings, by reducing demand and renegotiating commercial terms, £1.8 million in IT contracts and £2.4 million in temporary staffing and interim labour costs.

The Department has achieved estimated net property running costs reductions of £9.8 million per annum since the start of the spending review period which includes £1.9 million in Estates requirements in the last financial year. In addition the Department has reduced its research expenditure by 36% (£10.8 million) in 2010-11.

Ministers and officials review all budgets and business cases to evaluate value for money.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85700]

Robert Neill: All public bodies for which my Department is responsible have and maintain risk registers including, for example; board-level registers, sub-committee level registers and registers for those bodies undergoing significant reform. A list of all registers held could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86139]

Robert Neill: Since May 2010, there have been no secondments into DCLG from either industry or the third sector.

Discretionary Payment Regulations

Mr Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many appeals pursuant to section 45 of the Local Government (Discretionary Payment) Regulations 1996 he and his predecessors have received in each of the last five years; how many times ministerial directions have been ignored or challenged by local authorities in each of those years; what steps he is able to take against local authorities who act against his decisions under those regulations; and if he will make a statement. [83180]

Robert Neill [holding answer 25 November 2011]: Section 45 provides a right of appeal to the Secretary of State where an employer has not determined if there has been an accident or injury arising from an individual's employment which has resulted in a loss of earnings. The amount of any award where there is a loss of earning is a discretion of the employer and is not a question on which an employee can appeal to the Secretary of State.

Between March 2006 and November 2011 a total of 43 appeals have been received in the Department. No formal statistical return has been kept as there were too few cases to justify this, and the cost of determining how many were received in each of the last five years would be disproportionate. Since there is no recourse to the Secretary of State relating to the actual amount of any award, there is no record of any authorities refusing to implement their decisions. Should the employer fail to implement or award a sum in recognition, an individual has the right of appeal to the pensions ombudsman.

Fire Service College

Geoffrey Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on consideration of the future of the Fire Service College in Moreton-in-Marsh. [86512]

Robert Neill: In our response to the fire sector's fire futures reports earlier this year, the Government said that the Fire Service College could achieve their full potential only if there was greater involvement from other sectors (whether private, public or voluntary) in its ownership, operation and governance and that we would

"explore with the sector and other organisations options to secure the future of the Fire Service College."

We have taken that forward by conducting a pre-market engagement exercise throughout September and October to invite views of external partners and to assess the level of private sector interest in the college.

The response to the pre-market engagement from both the public and private sectors has been very encouraging and a number of private sector companies have expressed an interest in managing the college. The fire sector has also responded positively to the pre-market engagement and their views will be a vital element in our considerations of the future option.

We are now reviewing the responses and these will help inform the next phase of the project. We expect to be able to confirm the next steps, including a preferred future option, in the new year.

Fire Services

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which fire brigades have opted to use (a) trauma risk management and (b) applied suicide intervention skills training; and if he will make a statement. [86460]

Robert Neill: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Housing: Construction

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions he has had with representatives of the house building industry on the introduction of a voluntary agreement to publish data about the (a) size and (b) quality of new homes; and if he will make a statement. [86450]

Andrew Stunell: Details of DCLG Ministers meetings with external organisations are published on a quarterly basis and are available at:

www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/transparencyingovernment/ministerialdata/

Officials at the Department for Communities and Local Government have been working closely with the National House Building Council to explore options for improving the availability of statistical information about new homes, including size and quality.

Housing: Merseyside

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent progress the Homes and Communities Agency's Local Stewardship Committee has made in Merseyside. [85468]

Greg Clark: Following consultation with bodies across the local area, the Homes and Communities Agency has established a Stewardship Steering Group which includes two local representatives: Carole Hudson, chief executive of St Helens metropolitan borough council and Jack Stopforth, chief executive of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce. In addition to the two local representatives, the Stewardship Steering Group comprises a private sector/local enterprise partnership representative and a senior local authority officer from each of the other four partnership areas in the local area.

The steering group met for the first time on 10 November where members were briefed on the Economic Assets Programme and the nature of the assets and liabilities transferred from the North West Development Agency. The Home and Communities Agency's team has subsequently met individually with all local enterprise partnerships and local authority partners in the area to shape initial views on how to take the assets forward.

The Stewardship Steering Group will meet again on 15 December where the Homes and Communities Agency will present its initial proposals for how the assets and liabilities will be managed and what options exist for further investment or for early disposal.

These proposals will include the Homes and Communities Agency's plans for dealing with its major assets in the Liverpool city region which are predominantly in Liverpool and Wirral.

Housing: North-east England

Grahame M. Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the level of home completions needed to meet demand for housing in the north-east over the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [85563]

Andrew Stunell: The Department does not estimate housing need. However, the Department publishes household projections, which are a trend-based view of the number of households that would form given a projected population and previous demographic trends. Local authorities should use the projections as a part of the evidence base for assessing future housing demand.

Household projections are based on the sub-national population projections published by the Office for National Statistics, the most recent of which are 2008-based. The 2008-based household projections show that the number of households in the north-east is projected to increase from 1,137,000 households in 2011 to 1,183,000 households in 2016.

Land Use: Databases

Julian Sturdy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans he has for the future of the National Land Use Database; and if he will make a statement. [86231]

Robert Neill: The National Land Use Database of Previously Developed Land and Buildings provides an annual snapshot and inventory of the national stock of vacant and/or derelict land and buildings in England that may be available for development. It is the only countrywide source of information on previously used, or brownfield land and its data are classified as 'Official Statistics', published by the Office for National Statistics on its Neighbourhood Statistics website providing Parliament and the public with intelligence on land use.

The Homes and Communities Agency took over the responsibility for the data in 2008 and in preparing the annual data works closely with local planning authorities in England collecting individual site data in a standardised form. Recent efforts in modernising and simplifying the database and data collection have seen an increase in both data quality and the number of users of the data. The agency is continuing to examine ways in which technology might help in continuing this trend with a particular emphasis on data collection and its transparency/interpretation.

The Homes and Communities Agency expects to publish the figures for 2010 returns in the spring.

Local Government: Pensions

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps he has taken to improve employees' confidence in the Local Government Pension Scheme. [86029]

Robert Neill: The Government's plans to reform public service pension schemes, including the Local Government Pension Scheme in England and Wales, are intended to put in place new, good quality arrangements that are affordable, sustainable and fair both to taxpayers and to each scheme's members for the long-term. Developments taking place currently on several fronts within the scheme are intended to secure this important objective, including a statutory consultation exercise to secure fairly and progressively some £900 million savings in the scheme by 2014-15, and discussions with key business partners on longer term reforms, following Lord Hutton's recommendations to the Government earlier this year.

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether an economic impact assessment has been carried out on the effect of the proposed changes to the local government pension scheme (a) nationally and (b) in Coventry South constituency. [86030]

Robert Neill: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Members for Gedling (Vernon Coaker) and Stoke-on-Trent Central (Tristram Hunt), on 7 November 2011, Official Report, column 23W.

Local Government: Peterborough

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will treat as a priority any application from Peterborough city council to join the Capital Asset Pathfinders scheme; and if he will make a statement. [86396]

Grant Shapps: The Capital and Assets approach (area based asset management) was co-designed with 11 areas and the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, my right hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr Pickles), launched the findings and methodology in August 2011, highlighting the potential for any area to save 20% from the asset base. These are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/localgovernment/decentralisation/capitalassets/

Support for the programme is now overseen by the Local Government Association and they can support any individual area that needs assistance to help formulate plans. However there is nothing stopping individual local areas from working with partners in the sharing of public assets.

Non-domestic Rates: Tax Allowances

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether businesses that will not be eligible for business rate discounts will be able to vote in ballots to determine which industries are eligible; [86568]

(2) what assessment he has made of the use of ballots to determine which industries will be eligible for business rate discounts; and if he will make a statement. [86570]

Robert Neill: The use of the new power to grant business rate discounts will be entirely at the discretion of the relevant local authority. No ballots are required.

Planning Permission: Carbon Emissions

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how he proposes that the National Planning Policy Framework will deliver a low carbon transport infrastructure. [84148]

Greg Clark: The draft National Planning Policy Framework confirms the important role planning has in tackling climate change and making the transition to a low carbon economy. The draft Framework states that developments that generate significant movement should be located where the need to travel will be minimised and the use of sustainable transport modes can be maximised. It also states that planning strategies should protect and exploit opportunities for the use of sustainable transport modes for the movement of goods or people, and that developments should, where practical, incorporate facilities for charging plug-in and other ultra-low emission vehicles.

The consultation on the draft Framework ended in October and we are considering all the suggestions that have been made as part of the consultation.

Public Expenditure: Birmingham

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding his Department has allocated to Birmingham City Council in (a) ring-fenced and (b) non-ring fenced funding grants for each of the next three years. [85451]

Robert Neill: There is no full list of the Department's funding allocations to any local authority for any future year. The following table shows the revenue grants our Department is currently expecting to pay to Birmingham city council during 2012-13 as at 8 December 2011. Further grants may be announced in due course.

All these grants are non-ring-fenced. It is not DCLG policy to make ring-fenced grants to local authorities.

	£ million
Formula Grant	646.520
New Homes Bonus	7.416
DCLG grants feeding into Local Services Support Grant Preventing Homelessness	1.250

Troubled Families Unit

Michael Dugher: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what progress he has made in establishing the Troubled Families Unit; [85289]

(2) what estimate he has made of the budget for the Troubled Families Unit in each year of the comprehensive spending review period; [85290]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of staff of his Department who will work on the Troubled Families Taskforce in (a) 2011-12, (b) 2012-13, (c) 2013-14 and (d) 2014-15; [85294]

(4) what targets his Department has set to measure the performance of its Troubled Families Unit; and how his Department will monitor performance against such targets; [85298]

(5) what assessment his Department has made of the role of the Troubled Families Team in tackling social exclusion. [85279]

Robert Neill: A new Troubled Families Team was established on 1 November 2011, headed up by Louise Casey, to drive forward a programme of work to meet the Prime Minister's commitment to turn around the lives of 120,000 troubled families by the end of this Parliament. It will work across central Government and with local government and other local agencies to provide the leadership and ambition needed to get to grips with the problem of troubled families. The work will include simplifying delivery arrangements and ensuring co-ordination between programmes established for different purposes, such as getting people back to work, children into school, and addressing poor behaviour.

The team is currently developing its work programme that will establish the resources needed to tackle this important agenda. The approach to performance monitoring is being considered as part of this process and staffing levels for the team are yet to be finalised as they will be determined by the requirements of the work programme. Although the work programme is at an early stage of development, it is envisaged that turning around the lives of troubled families will have a significant impact on tackling the social exclusion of these families. More details will be given to the House on this work programme in due course.

Wildlife: Planning

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to provide specific protection for (a) local wildlife sites and (b) nature improvement areas in the National Planning Policy Framework. [85623]

Greg Clark: The Natural Environment White Paper sets out the steps the Government are taking to protect and improve the natural environment including through establishing nature improvement areas. In the consultation draft of the National Planning Policy Framework we set out planning's important contribution to safeguarding our natural environment and providing net gains in biodiversity where possible. We are carefully considering all of the responses to the consultation before finalising the framework.

CABINET OFFICE

Civil Servants: Location

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) what progress he has made on identifying alternative sites for the relocation of civil service jobs from Greater London; and if he will make a statement; [86025]

(2) whether he plans to develop a further programme of civil service employment relocation in 2012-13; and if he will make a statement. [86024]

Mr Maude: Our property strategy is driven by cost and we expect continued cost pressures to less of the civil service to be based in very expensive central London real estate.

The current spending controls on Government property are reducing the cost and size of the estate, and in the first year of this initiative, over 500,000 square metres of property was surrendered. As the estate reduces in size, retained buildings will be utilised more intensively wherever possible.

The Government have begun work on central London and Bristol pilots to rationalise the civil estate in these cities and will apply the lessons learned from these to develop strategies for other metropolitan areas.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards; [85826]

(2) what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85827]

Mr Maude: Pre-packed food items and beverages are labelled with nutritional information provided by the manufacturer. The calorific content of the food that is produced on the Cabinet Office estate is not labelled on menus or display boards. There are no plans to introduce this at present.

The Cabinet Office adheres to the Government's guidelines for sourcing food locally where possible while providing value for money. Currently we do not display the country of origin on our food menus. However, information on country of origin is available to all customers on request.

Departmental Pay

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what the (a) salary and (b) other costs associated with (i) the post of Cabinet Secretary, Head of Civil Service and Permanent Secretary, Cabinet Office, (ii) the post of Permanent Secretary, 10 Downing street and (iii) each other permanent secretary post in his Department (A) were in 2010-11 and (B) are expected to be between April and December 2011; what the equivalent figures for the posts of (1) Head of the Civil Service, (2) Cabinet Secretary, (3) Permanent Secretary, Cabinet Office and (4) each other official in the Cabinet Office holding Permanent Secretary rank are expected to be (x) between January and March 2012 and (y) in 2012-13; and if he will make a statement. [86588]

Mr Maude: As part of the commitment to making Government more transparent and accountable, Departments are required to publish structure charts every six months showing the names, job roles and pay details for their senior staff, including Permanent Secretaries. These structure charts include information on individuals salaries, set within £5,000 bands. Departmental structure charts can be found at:

http://data.gov.uk/organogram

Government Departments: Sustainable Development

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what progress he has made in holding Government Departments to account for their commitment to sustainable development through the quarterly business plan review process. [85770]

Mr Letwin: I am responding due to my role in the Business Plan process. We have recently completed the second round of quarterly review meetings, making headway on reviewing departmental progress against the published plans. The full outcome of this work will be reflected in the annual refresh of business plans to be published in April.

National Citizen Service

Mr Thomas: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Office and (c) senior officials met the Prince's Trust to discuss its withdrawal from the National Citizen Service; and if he will make a statement. [86470]

Mr Hurd: Details of ministerial meetings with external representatives are published on a quarterly basis on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/ministerial-gifts-hospitality-travel-and-meetings-external-organisations

Ministers and senior officials meet with sector representatives on a regular basis on a range of relevant issues.

Public Sector: Industrial Disputes

Guto Bebb: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether trade union representatives have requested the Government to postpone deductions in pay from public sector workers who went on strike on 30 November. [86016]

Mr Maude: No such request regarding the postponement of deductions from striking workers' pay has been received from the civil service trade unions. Were such a request to be made by the civil service trade unions, Government would consider it inappropriate to pay people for work that they have not done at this or any other time of year.

Voluntary Organisations

Mr Thomas: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether the Ministerial Group on the Big Society has considered the compact on working with the voluntary sector; and if he will make a statement. [85682]

Mr Hurd: The renewed compact has not been a formal discussion item at any meetings of the ministerial group on big society. However, Departments are aware of their commitments towards the compact and, from 2012-13, it is intended that Government Departments will include a statement on how the compact is being implemented in their business plans.

The NAO will shortly publish a report on how central Government Departments have implemented the principles set out in the renewed compact.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Cluster Munitions

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills if he will make it his policy to prohibit any company that produces cluster munitions and or components for cluster munitions from attending UK trade events or receiving Government contracts for demilitarisation; and if he will make a statement. [81340]

Mr Prisk: Under the Export Control Order 2008 it is prohibited for any person in the UK to do any act calculated to promote the supply or delivery of cluster munitions from one third country to another unless authorised to do so by a licence granted by the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, the right hon. Member for Twickenham (Vince Cable). A licence would be granted only where the activity was permitted by the convention on cluster munitions, for example to enable destruction of the munitions. However, provided companies which produce cluster munitions do not engage in such promotional activities in the UK the Government have no plans to prohibit such companies from attending UK trade events. The major UK defence exhibitions are commercial events and the admission of companies is a matter for the commercial organisers.

Under current plans, it is the Government's intention to destroy remaining stocks of UK cluster munitions by the end of 2013 under existing contracts. To date all Department for International Development funding for demining has been allocated to the UN and contracts let to non-governmental organisations. Funding is now committed to 2013.

As a state party to the convention on cluster munitions, the UK has prohibited the use, production, stockpiling, and transfer of cluster munitions. The UK is fully committed to the universalisation of the convention on cluster munitions and continues to use all appropriate opportunities to promote ratification or accession to the convention.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85838]

Mr Davey: The central Department's catering is contracted out to BaxterStorey who plan to introduce calorie labelling at the end of January 2012.

Information for non-departmental public bodies is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85839]

Mr Davey: The central Department's catering is contracted out to BaxterStorey who already include some key information (i.e. UK sourced—Union Jack added). BaxterStorey are committed to better information being displayed, subject to menus and display boards remaining clear and readable.

Information for non departmental public bodies is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86134]

Mr Davey: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Hartlepool (Mr Wright) of 8 November 2011, Official Report, column 302W. I can also confirm that none of the secondments is from the third sector.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 Session to date. [85929]

Mr Davey: The Department aims to answer ordinary written parliamentary questions (PQs) within five sitting days. Where it is not possible to provide a full answer within the usual deadline, the Department believes it will normally be preferable to provide an answer a few days late, rather than provide an incomplete answer.

During the period 18 May 2010 to 30 November 2011, a total of 4,157 ordinary PQs were answered of which 3,992 (96%) received a substantive reply within 10 sitting days. Two questions, for this period, remain to be answered.

In line with the format provided to the Procedure Committee in the last Session,[1] the Department's PQ data are recorded by (i) questions answered on time (ii) questions answered within 5-10 days and (iii) questions answered more than 10 days late. Data related to PQs answered 20; 30 days or more than 30 days late are not held centrally within BIS.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written PQ performance on a sessional basis and will provide the Committee with the information, using the same format as before, at the end of the Session.

These figures have been drawn from the Department's database which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

[1] Procedure Committee—First Special Report 7 December 2009 [HC 129]

Education: Visual Impairment

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what support his Department provides for partially sighted and blind pupils in (a) further and (b) higher education. [85180]

Mr Willetts: Higher education (HE) institutions and further education (FE) colleges have duties under the Equality Act 2010 to support disabled students, including blind and partially sighted students, when applying to higher and further education and when studying. The law establishes a framework of responsibility which higher education institutions and further education colleges must comply with and also promotes an anticipatory and proactive approach to supporting disabled students. Institutions are required to make reasonable adjustments for disabled students to ensure that they can fully participate in their education and enjoy the other benefits, facilities and services which are provided for students.

The Government provide support to disabled students in higher education. We provide funding to HE institutions, through the Higher Education Funding Council for England, to help them recruit and support disabled students; £13 million will be provided in academic year 2011/12.

The Government also provide direct support to disabled students through disabled students' allowances (DSAs). DSAs can help pay the extra costs a student may incur, because of a disability, when undertaking a course of higher education. DSAs are provided in addition to the standard student support package, are not income-assessed and do not have to be repaid.

'Investing in Skills for Sustainable Growth' (published November 2010) recognises the importance of access to further education and skills training for people with learning difficulties and/or disabilities. We have introduced a single adult skills budget from the 2011/12 academic year. This provides further education colleges and other training organisations with the flexibility to offer a range and balance of programmes and support in the mode of delivery that will best meet the needs of disabled students and students with learning difficulties. Funding for additional learning support is also provided to colleges and other training organisations to help support the additional needs of disadvantaged learners to enable them to participate fully in learning. The funding is intended to be flexible and support learners who have a range of learning difficulties and/or disabilities.

Empty Property: Kingston upon Hull

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether his Department holds the (a) leasehold and (b) freehold of any (i) empty or (ii) partially empty property in Kingston upon Hull; and what plans he has to maximise the occupancy of any such properties. [86475]

Mr Davey: The Department does not have any leasehold or freehold property in Kingston-upon-Hull.

English for Speakers of other Languages

Mr Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the statement of 18 July 2011, Official Report, columns 59-60WS, on English for speakers of other languages, what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on developing new forms of funding support for English for speakers of other languages courses. [86567]

Mr Hayes: The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills and the Department for Communities and Local Government are discussing how best to support the provision of English language to assist those areas facing the most significant integration challenges and an announcement will be made shortly.

Higher Education: Admissions

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what impact assessment he has carried out in respect of the effect on the social diversity of the student body at English universities of the implementation of the core and margin model. [85771]

Mr Willetts: The Department published an impact assessment and equality impact assessment on the proposals in the Higher Education White Paper in June 2011, can be found at the following link.

http://discuss.bis.gov.uk/hereform/all-documents/

Overall, our equality impact assessment concluded that we anticipated that the 'core and margin' proposals would not have an adverse affect on protected or disadvantaged groups. The impact assessment recognised that certain protected groups were over-represented in the non-AAB population. We concluded that the fair access framework we have introduced would help ensure a fair balance of places are offered to eligible students from less privileged backgrounds and under-represented backgrounds in institutions.

We have asked the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) to monitor the impact of these changes in terms of equality issues and to offer advice as soon as is practicable.

Higher Education: Office of the Independent Adjudicator

Charlotte Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what systems are in place to monitor the work of the office of the adjudicator for higher education; and if he will make a statement. [83933]

Mr Willetts: The Office of the Independent Adjudicator (OIA) is the designated operator of the student complaints scheme for higher education students in England and Wales. The OIA provides a valuable, independent service of last resort for students who have exhausted their institution's complaints procedures.

It is for the OIA board to monitor the performance and effectiveness of the organisation, to approve the rules and procedures for the operation of the OIA scheme and to preserve the scheme's independence. The majority of the board are independent directors, appointed through open competition.

The OIA publishes an annual report on its activities for the sector to review. The 2010 report was published on 14 June 2011:

http://www.oiahe.org.uk/media/30013/oia_annual_report_2010.pdf

BIS officials are in regular contact with the OIA and provide me with updates on their progress. I last met the OIA chair and chief executive on 6 September 2010.

Public Sector: Trade Unions

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the answer of 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 272W, on public sector: trade union officials, if he will consider bringing forward proposals to amend the relevant provisions in the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 as part of the review of facility time. [86326]

Mr Davey: There are no current plans to change the legislative framework.

The Government have said they will consult on several elements of civil service facility time agreements but none of these rely on legislative change.

Regional Growth Fund

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills for what reasons his Department decided to hold two bidding rounds for the Regional Growth Fund in 2011. [85157]

Mr Prisk: Two bidding rounds were held in 2011. The first closed in January, the second in July. The aim of the Regional Growth Fund is to create sustainable private sector jobs in areas of the country disproportionally dependant on the public sector. Two bidding rounds were held to create jobs at the earliest opportunity by companies and other organisations submitting applications to the first round while giving other companies and organisations the opportunity to develop bids over a slightly longer time scale by submitting applications to the second round of bidding.

Students: Fees and Charges

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made on the effects of the core and margin model on higher education institutions charging between £7,500 and £9,000 per year in tuition fees. [85514]

Mr Willetts [holding answer 8 December 2011]: The Higher Education (HE) White Paper 'Students at the Heart of the System', published in June, set out the proposal and aims to free up the current restrictive approach to allocating student places to higher education institutions. Alongside the HE White Paper, an impact assessment of the proposals was published on the BIS website which includes modelling of that policy. This impact assessment is available at:

http://discuss.bis.gov.uk/hereform/all-documents/

The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) consulted over the summer on the operation of teaching funding and student number controls in 2012/13, which included the freeing up of restrictions on the recruitment of new entrants. The outcomes from the consultation including responses, are available on the HEFCE website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/learning/funding/201213/

HEFCE is committed to monitoring closely the impacts of the new policy and will offer formal advice as soon as is practicable.

Students: Finance

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what proportion of the National Scholarship Programme funding he expects to be spent on (a) fee waivers, (b) subsidised accommodation, (c) cash bursaries and (d) free foundation years. [85774]

Mr Willetts: The National Scholarship Programme is designed to benefit students whose family income is no greater than £25,000. Participating universities and colleges establish their own eligibility criteria, based on their own circumstances, to determine whom to help from among this broad group of people.

Universities and colleges offer help from a menu of options. These are a fee waiver or fee discount; a free foundation year; discounted accommodation or other institutional service; a financial scholarship or bursary, capped at £1,000.

Higher Education Institutions and Further Education Colleges with access agreements have provided the Office for Fair Access with estimates of how much they expect to spend in each of these areas under the National Scholarship Programme in steady state (by 2015-16). No data are available yet for institutions without access agreements who have taken up the option of participating that is available to them.

Estimate	£ million	Percentage
Fee waivers	161.3	55.1
Subsidised accommodation	54.5	18.6
Cash bursaries	50.2	17.2
Free foundation years	2.3	0.8
Student choice/institutional funds not yet allocated	24.2	8.3
Total	292.5	100

Third Sector: Finance

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what funding over £100,000 his Department's Legal, People and Communications Directorate allocated to the (a) voluntary sector, (b) charities and (c) other third sector organisations in 2010-11; how much it plans to allocate to each in 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86467]

Mr Davey: The Legal, People and Communications Group did not allocate any funding over £100,000 to the voluntary sector, charities or third sector organisations last year and has no plans to do so this year.

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what funding over £100,000 his Department's Shareholder Executive allocated to the (a) voluntary sector, (b) charities and (c) other third sector organisations in 2010-11; how much it plans to allocate to each in 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86468]

Mr Davey: The Shareholder Executive does not allocate any funding to the voluntary sector, charities or third sector organisations. Its role is to ensure the Government get best value from their interests in a range of businesses and to provide commercial advice across Government for which it does not charge.

Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills which organisations have made written representations to his Department on the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations in the last 12 months; and which such representations proposed changes to the regulations. [86401]

Mr Davey: A range of individuals and organisations submitted proposing changes to the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations (TUPE) as part of the Red Tape Challenge spotlight on employment law. These can be viewed on the Red Tape Challenge website. In response to the "Plan for Growth" Balfour Beatty made a formal representation highlighting variations in the application of the Acquired Rights Directive (TUPE in the UK) across member states as an issue of concern.

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the operation of Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations compared with the operation of similar regulations elsewhere in the EU. [86443]

Mr Davey: As part of the call for evidence on the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations (TUPE) launched on 23 November 2011, I have asked for information on stakeholders' experiences with the implementation of such regulations across the EU. This evidence will be used to compare the operation of the regulations across European member states, should there be sufficient response.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Food

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what guidelines there are on the quality and quantity of food supplied to service personnel; what changes have been made to them since May 2010; and who is responsible for enforcing and monitoring them; [86012]

(2) what changes have been made to the suppliers of food to UK service personnel since May 2010. [86013]

Peter Luff: The Defence Fuel and Food Services Team are responsible for the issue of Ministry of Defence (MOD) food quality standards to ensure that products meet all the relevant criteria (legislation, nutrition, dietary, shelf-life, value for money, sustainability, surety of supply) required for operating in a number of unique global environments. These standards apply to all Defence food supply contracts and pre-date May 2010. They are regularly updated although no major changes have been made since May 2010.

Guidance in respect of quantity of food supplied to service personnel is contained within The Defence Catering Manual and basic military training which provides personnel with a fundamental knowledge of nutrition, to optimise physical and mental function, long-term health and morale. The manual also directs, through Front Line Commands, responsibility for enforcement and monitoring of the standards which apply to military personnel.

Although new contracts have been awarded since May 2010, the list of suppliers that provide catering services to the MOD has not changed.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the projected expenditure is on food for service personnel based (a) in the UK and (b) overseas in each year between 2010 and 2015; [86014]

(2) how much was spent on food for service personnel based (a) overseas and (b) in the UK in each year since 2000. [86015]

Peter Luff [holding answer 12 December 2011]: Armed forces personnel in the UK and permanent bases overseas are primarily catered for through a number of catering, retail, leisure and other multi-activity contracts (incorporating pay as you dine arrangements) to deliver this and other services. Food is procured at the contractors' risk and the only payment they receive in respect of this, with some minor exceptions, is at the point of sale. The price of the core meal (covering breakfast, lunch and dinner) is capped by the Armed Forces Pay Review Body.

For armed forces personnel not covered by these contractual arrangements and those serving on operations and overseas exercises, there is a single food supply contract for which expenditure is as follows:

Single food supply expenditure

Financial year	£ million
2001-02	113
2002-03	114
2003-04	139
2004-05	128
2005-06	139
2006-07	135
2007-08	145
2008-09	176
2009-10	165
2010-11	199

These figures include the cost of food, administration and transport and the net additional cost of military operations which was met from the Treasury Reserve.

The Ministry of Defence has also procured operational ration packs over the same period for which expenditure is as follows:

Operational ration pack expenditure

Financial year	£ million
2001-02	14.6
2002-03	16.6
2003-04	26.7
2004-05	23.7
2005-06	15.6
2006-07	15.3
2007-08	18.1
2008-09	25.4
2009-10	23.3

Financial records prior to financial year 2001-02 are no longer available.

Forecast expenditure does not take account of military operations. The forecast cost for the single food supply contract and operational ration packs are contained in the following tables:

Single food supply forecast expenditure

Financial year	£ million
2011-12	59.6
2012-13	55.6
2013-14	53.0
2014-15	47.7

Financial year	£ million
2011-12	19.6
2012-13	20.9
2013-14	21.4
2014-15	21.9

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards; [85848]

(2) what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85849]

Peter Luff: In accordance with the Government Buying Standards, we fully support the overarching commitment that suppliers should be able to indicate the origin of the meat, meat products and dairy products either on the menu or accompanying literature, or at least when the information is requested by the consumer. The Government Buying Standards, while not mandating calorie labelling on menus, does cite this as best practice and therefore we encourage the practice wherever possible.

Menus on display boards at Ministry of Defence (MOD) sites are designed to simply reflect the options available at each meal. This information will include any vegetarian options or where a dish may contain any potential allergens. Country of origin data and nutritional data are available from the food provider or the MOD's Defence Fuel and Food Services Team on request.

Consultants

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department plans to spend on management consultants in the current financial year. [81929]

Peter Luff [holding answer 23 November 2011]: As at 31 October 2011, the Ministry of Defence's forecast spend on management consultancy during financial year (FY) 2011-12 will total £25.5 million. This has been calculated using the Government Procurement Service's definition of management consultancy. Total spend on management consultancy in FY 2010-11 was £26 million and in FY 2009-10, £79 million.

Procurement

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many contracts awarded by his Department to management consultants (a) since publication of the Strategic Defence and Security Review and (b) in 2011-12 were awarded after competitive tendering; and how many competing providers there were for each contract awarded after competitive tendering. [82198]

Peter Luff [holding answer 23 November 2011]: The Ministry of Defence is at present conducting a review of its management consultancy contracts. I will therefore write to the hon. Member with further details once the review has been completed.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85933]

Mr Robathan: The Ministry of Defence received 3,698 ordinary written questions for answer between 1 June 2010 and 6 December 2011. The information requested is as follows:

Answered within 10 sitting days: 3,303 (89%)

Answered within 11 to 20 sitting days: 264 (7%)

Answered within 21 to 30 sitting days: 53 (2%)

Answered after more than 30 sitting days: 32 (1%).

46 (1%) ordinary written questions were still to be answered as at 7 December 2011.

The Government are committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide full information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Ex-servicemen

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many times each Minister in his Department has met the Royal British Legion to discuss armed forces veterans since 11 May 2011. [84082]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 1 December 2011]: Defence Ministers regularly meet representatives of charities which raise money for, and represent the interests of, current and former members of our armed forces and their families, either on a one-to-one basis or as part of wider fora, such as the Central Advisory Committee on Pensions and Compensation or the Ministry of Defence's Welfare conference.

Details of Ministers' meetings with external organisations are published on the Ministry of Defence website at the following address:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/FinancialReports/Expenses/MinistersHospitalityReceived.htm

The information currently published covers May 2010 to June 2011 and is being updated on a quarterly basis in accordance with the Government's transparency programme.

I regularly meet representatives of the Royal British Legion. I met their director-general as recently as last month, on Remembrance Sunday.

GPT

Dr Huppert: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates officials of Ministers of his Department have met representatives of GPT to discuss allegations of bribery by that company. [83175]

Peter Luff [holding answer 25 November 2011]: Officials in the Ministry of Defence meet regularly with representatives of GPT Special Project Management Ltd to discuss project progress and technical and commercial matters. On a number of occasions officials have met representatives of GPT and/or its parent company, European Aerospace and Defence Systems (EADS)/Astrium, when the allegations were discussed. The dates of such meetings, all in 2011, were:

28 January;

1 and 8 February;

7, 10 and 28 March;

11 April;

6 and 17 June;

22 September;

10, 11, 14 and 25 October; and

18 November.

Harrier Aircraft

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the Harrier fleet is due to be transferred to the US; and on what date he plans to reconstitute sea-deployable fixed-wing air power at short notice. [86213]

Peter Luff: The transfer of the Harrier fleet for use as spare parts to the USA has commenced with the arrival of 40 United States Marine Corps containers at RAF Cottesmore. The Harrier team are now loading the containers for removal and all Harrier assets are to be removed from UK collection points by 31 March 2012.

As announced in the Strategic Defence and Security Review, we plan to regenerate a carrier strike capability from around 2020, based upon an operational Queen Elizabeth class aircraft carrier fitted with catapults and arrestor gear and the F35C Joint Strike Fighter, and are currently investigating the optimum solution to meet that requirement, including the delivery timescales.

HMS Astute

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he plans that HMS Astute will be fully operational. [85427]

Peter Luff: HMS Astute is currently undertaking a period of comprehensive sea trials and training before being handed over to the Royal Navy for operational service, which on current plans will be in early 2013. HMS Astute will then conduct a period of operational sea training for approximately six weeks, after which it is planned that the ship will be declared fully operational.

Littoral Warfare

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the availability is of UK amphibious forces for long-range deployment; and if he will make a statement. [86212]

Nick Harvey [holding answer 12 December 2011]: We do not disclose specific readiness levels of our units but by implementing the proposals set out in the Strategic Defence and Security Review, three Commando Brigade Royal Marines, with the Royal Navy's amphibious shipping, will continue to provide strategic reach. This will provide an agile and capable amphibious landing force of up to 1,800 personnel together with protective vehicles and other equipment.

Navy: Training

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many naval personnel he plans will be trained using the Maritime Composite Training System in each of the next five years [85426]

Peter Luff: It is expected that the Maritime Composite Training System will be used by approximately 1,000 students per year in each of the next five years.

Nimrod Aircraft

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to publish the costs associated with the cancellation of the Nimrod MR4A aircraft. [85591]

Peter Luff: I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice commercial interests.

Rescue Services

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect of the withdrawal from service of the Sea King Search and Rescue helicopters on the ability to maintain combat search and rescue operational skills. [85588]

Peter Luff: As the Sea King retires after 47 years of service the Combat Search and Rescue (CSAR) role is expected to be met by Merlin or Chinook helicopters.

A Ministry of Defence study dated June 2010 found that the existing operational training undertaken by the support helicopter force is sufficient to ensure that fully trained personnel will continue to be available for deployment in the CSAR role.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the (a) Maritime Coastguard Agency and (b) Secretary of State for Transport on the provision of night vision goggles to civilian search and rescue helicopter crews from 2016. [85592]

Peter Luff: The competition for the future UK Search and Rescue Helicopter service announced on 28 November 2011, Official Report, columns 52-53WS, by the Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Putney (Justine Greening), will require industry to provide a capability, both aircraft and aircrew, that meets the requirement to operate aircraft safely at low level at night and in low light conditions in both the maritime and overland environments. It is likely that the contractor will need to provide night vision aids, e.g. goggles, to meet this requirement, but it is for them to develop appropriate solutions. These requirements have been developed through detailed work by officials from the Ministry of Defence, Department for Transport and the Maritime and Coastguard Agency. It has not been necessary for the Secretary of State for Defence, my right hon. Friend the Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr Hammond), to be involved in these discussions.

Somalia: Piracy

Mr Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to promote greater international military co-operation on pre-emptive action to prevent piracy off the coast of Somalia. [86085]

Nick Harvey: The UK continues to promote international co-operation to tackle piracy; both at its root through provision of humanitarian and development assistance and through a direct contribution to a number of military operations. In addition, the Prime Minister has recently announced a conference on Somalia to be held in London in early 2012, reaffirming UK commitment to the global effort in stabilising Somalia which includes countering piracy. The conference will form the basis for co-ordinated and sustained international leadership on Somalia and will support a broader, more inclusive political process to bring security and stability to the country.

Salvage Licences

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what wrecks of Crown owned vessels and aircraft have been sold for salvage. [86051]

Peter Luff: Records of salvage licences dating back to 1914 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Readily available files show that no salvage rights licences for military vessels have been granted since at least 2005.

The Ministry of Defence does not grant salvage licences in cases where military shipwrecks are considered to be the last resting place of personnel, and for all wrecks of military aircraft. However, historic licences will have been granted in accordance with the prevailing practice of the time.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Security

Paul Uppal: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which airports are taking part in pilot testing of EU Regulation 185/2010. [85174]

Mrs Villiers: The trial of the alternative process for the screening of religious headgear is being undertaken at many UK airports. These are listed as follows:

UK airports participating in headgear trial

Aberdeen
Belfast City Airport
Birmingham
Blackpool
Bristol
Cardiff
East Midlands
Edinburgh
Gatwick
Glasgow
Heathrow
HIAL—Barra, Benbecula, Campbeltown, Dundee, Islay, Inverness, Kirkwall, Stornoway, Sumburgh, Tiree and Wick London City
Luton
Manchester
Newcastle
Newquay Norwich
Oxford
Southampton
Stansted
Guernsey Jersey

Buses: Licensing

Alex Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) on how many occasions the traffic commissioners have granted or renewed PCV licences to people who have subsequently been found not to have fully declared their criminal records in the most recent period for which figures are available; [85751]

(2) on how many occasions the traffic commissioners revoked people's passenger carrying vehicle licences on the grounds that at the time of original application or application for renewal they had not fully declared their criminal records in the most recent period for which figures are available. [85871]

Mike Penning: The traffic commissioners' decisions are not held centrally or by reason and currently could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. I have, however, asked my officials to look into the feasibility of holding these decisions centrally in the future.

Electric Vehicles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had on electric cars with the Mayor of London. [82955]

Norman Baker: The Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening), has not yet had the opportunity to meet with the Mayor of London to discuss electric cars.

Motor Vehicles: Carbon Emissions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with her European counterparts on vehicle emissions. [82964]

Norman Baker: The Secretary of State has not yet had any such discussions since her appointment, but the Department for Transport has regular discussions with our EU counterparts.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the hon. Member for Caithness, Sutherland and Easter Ross, representing the House of Commons Commission, whether the House of Commons catering service plans to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85864]

John Thurso: The House of Commons catering service recognises that it has a role to play in encouraging people to choose healthier foods. It currently achieves this by using a 'traffic light' system of signposting healthier choices on its daily cafeteria menus and by running periodic 'healthy eating' promotions.

Although the service currently has no plans to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards, it is watching with interest the development of this initiative by the commercial catering organisations that have pledged to do so under the Government's 'Public Health Responsibility Deal' launched in March 2011.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the hon. Member for Caithness, Sutherland and Easter Ross, representing the House of Commons Commission, what steps the House of Commons catering service is taking to ensure the countries of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85865]

John Thurso: The House of Commons catering service recognises that the provenance of foods served in its restaurants is of interest to its customers, and its sustainable food procurement policy is being updated. The service does not plan to publish as a matter of course details about the countries of origin of foods on its menus and display boards, although the provenance of the main ingredient may sometimes be indicated in the description.

CABINET OFFICE

Business

Alun Cairns: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how small and medium-sized enterprises in Vale of Glamorgan constituency can bid for central Government ICT facilities management contracts. [86432]

Mr Letwin: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Calder Valley (Craig Whittaker) at Cabinet Office oral questions today.

Cabinet Sub-Committee on Infrastructure

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what the membership is of the Cabinet Sub-Committee on Infrastructure. [85369]

Mr Maude: Membership of the Infrastructure Sub-Committee is as follows:

Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Chair) (The Rt Hon. Danny Alexander MP)

Minister of State, Cabinet Office (Deputy Chair) (The Rt Hon. Oliver Letwin MP)

Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (The Rt Hon. Dr Vince Cable MP)

Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (The Rt Hon. Chris Huhne MP)

Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (The Rt Hon. Eric Pickles MP)

Secretary of State for Transport (The Rt Hon. Justine Greening MP)

Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (The Rt Hon. Caroline Spelman MP)

Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport (The Rt Hon. Jeremy Hunt MP)

Minister of State for Trade and Investment (Lord Green)

Commercial Secretary to the Treasury (Lord Sassoon)

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Crime Prevention) (James Brokenshire MP)

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Defence Equipment, Support and Technology) (Peter Luff MP)

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role; [86147]

(2) what secondments there have been to 10 Downing street from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86148]

Mr Maude: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office and is included in the reply.

Since May 2010, there have been 23 secondments into my Department from industry and one secondment from a third sector organisation.

These secondments ranged in duration from two months to two years, at an average duration of eight months.

Such secondment arrangements form part of the Cabinet Office's strategy to bring in expertise relevant to policy development, operational delivery or specialist areas such as procurement and digital delivery from commercial and third sector organisations, as well as the wider public sector.

Private and Public Sector: Females

Jessica Morden: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what estimate has been made of the proportion of people working in the (a) private sector and (b) public sector in Wales; and what proportion are female in each case. [86652]

Mr Hurd: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Stephen Penneck, dated December 2011:

As Director General for the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what estimate has been made of the proportion of people working in the (a) private sector and (b) public sector in Wales; and what proportion are female in each case. [086652]

Public Sector employment statistics for local areas can be calculated from the Annual Population Survey (APS). Individuals in the APS are classified to the public or private sector according to their responses to the survey.

Table 1 shows the proportion of people employed in public and private sector in Wales and the proportion of those employed in the public and private sector who are female. The figures have been provided from the APS for the 12 month periods April 2010 to March 2011, the latest period for which figures are available.

Table 1: Proportion of people employed in (a) public and (b) private sector in Wales and proportion of those employed in public and private sector who are female—April 2010 to March 2011

	Proportion (%)
	Public	Private
Wales	31.2	68.8
of which female	64.1	40.2

Source:
Annual Population Survey

As with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

National and local area estimates for many labour market statistics, including employment, unemployment and claimant count are available on the NOMIS website at:

http://www.nomisweb.co.uk

Senior Civil Servants: Meetings

Lisa Nandy: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what rules govern the (a) declaration and (b) recording of meetings held by senior civil servants. [86198]

Mr Maude: Meetings are recorded in accordance with departmental procedures on record keeping. The National Archives also produces "Guidance on the Management of Private Office Papers" which can be accessed at:

http://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/documents/information-management/popapersguidance2009.pdf

Social Exclusion

Mark Tami: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what assessment his Department has made of the role of the big society initiative in tackling social exclusion. [86420]

Mr Letwin: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Leicester South (Jonathan Ashworth) at Cabinet Office oral questions earlier today.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment Schemes

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much funding has been earmarked for job retention in the Work Choice Programme. [85986]

Maria Miller: All customers who enter employment through Work Choice are entitled to have support enabling them to retain their employment. Providers receive an overall service fee for delivering a range of services, rather than a specific payment for retention work.

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were (a) referred to Workstep for support in retaining their existing job in each year in which the scheme operated and (b) referred to Work Choice since 2010. [85988]

Maria Miller: The Department did not collect data about individuals who have been referred to Workstep for support to retain their existing job.

In line with UK Statistics Authority guidance, we will be publishing official statistics on referrals to Work Choice in spring 2012.

Housing Benefit: Females

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 396W, on housing benefit: females, how many lone parents receive local housing allowance in Wales; and what proportion of such claimants are female. [86627]

Steve Webb: The information requested on lone parents in Wales receiving housing benefit paid according to the local housing allowance scheme and the percentage that are female is provided in the following table:

	Lone parents
	Local housing allowance tenants (LHA)	Percentage that are female
Wales	22,030	94.3

Notes:
1. The figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Percentage has been rounded to the nearest decimal place.
3. Housing benefit figures exclude any extended payment cases. An extended payment is a payment that may be received for a further four weeks when they start working full time, work more hours or earn more money.
4. SHBE is a monthly electronic scan of claimant level data direct from local authority computer systems. It replaces quarterly aggregate clerical returns.
5. The data are available monthly from November 2008 and August 2011 is the latest available.
6. For this analysis lone parents are those who are single with child dependant(s).
7. Caseload figure includes less than 1% of cases where gender is not recorded/missing.
8. Local housing allowance was introduced in the Private Deregulated sector from April 2008. The methodology for recording claimants within the statistics as either LHA/non-LHA is under review.

Pensioners: Income

Ben Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate has been made of the number of pensioners whose incomes exceed the average income of an individual in employment. [86062]

Steve Webb: Table 1 shows the number of pensioners living in a household with an equivalised income greater than the median equivalised income for households where at least one member is in some form of employment (this could either be full- or part-time employment).

Results both Before Housing Costs and After Housing Costs have been provided. For Before Housing Costs, housing costs are not deducted from income, while for After Housing Costs they are.

Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100,000 pensioners and proportions rounded to the nearest percentage point.

Table 1: The number of pensioners living in households with an income greater than the median household income where at least one member of the household is employed, United Kingdom, 2009-10

	Number of pensioners (million)	Proportion of pensioners (%)
Before Housing Costs	3.3	29
After Housing Costs	4.1	36

Notes:
1. These statistics are based on the Households Below Average Income (HBAI) series, sourced from the Family Resources Survey (FRS). This uses disposable household income, adjusted using modified OECD equivalisation factors for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
2. Net disposable incomes have been used to answer the question. This includes earnings from employment and self-employment, state support, income from occupational and private pensions, investment income and other sources. Income tax payments, national insurance contributions, council tax/domestic rates and some other payments are deducted from both income measures. In addition a measure of housing costs are also deducted from the After Housing Cost incomes.
3. Analysis has been carried out based on equivalised household incomes. This takes an adult couple with no children as the reference point. For example, the process of equivalisation would adjust the income of a single pensioner upwards, so that we can use income to directly compare their standard of living with a working-age couple without children.
4. The median equivalised income for households where at least one member of the household is employed is; £485 per week Before Housing Costs and £424 per week After Housing Costs.
5. All estimates are based on survey data and are therefore subject to a degree of uncertainty. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
6. The reference period for HBAI figures is the financial year.
7. Measures for pensioners are generally on an After Housing Costs basis. This is because pensioners are far more likely to own their homes outright and so receive value from housing, without having to pay for rent or mortgage payments out of their current income. So for assessing pensioner poverty a Before Housing Costs basis does not provide a good comparison of living standards.

Council Tax Benefits

Michael Dugher: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average annual council tax benefit payment was for a (a) pensioner household and (b) household including at least one person of working age in each local authority area in 2010-11. [85343]

Steve Webb: The information has been placed in the Library.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Assets: Birmingham

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assets his Department owns in Birmingham; and what the book value is of each such asset. [85452]

Robert Neill: The Department for Communities and Local Government leases two buildings in Birmingham. They are: 5 St Philips Place, Colmore Row and 77 Paradise Circus. The leases for both properties are rack-rented operating leases and as such they have no asset value to the Department.

Council Tax

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will place in the Library a copy of each representation he has received from local authorities on the need for changes to single person's council tax discount. [86667]

Robert Neill: All responses to the Government's consultation on Localising Council Tax Support will be considered and a summary of responses will be published shortly. However, as indicated by my noble Friend, Baroness Hanham, on 3 November 2011, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA292, the Government have already made it clear that they do not intend to make changes to the council tax single person discount scheme.

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people in each local authority area are eligible for the single person's discount on council tax. [86668]

Robert Neill: Details of the number of people in each local authority in England that are recorded as being in receipt of the single person's discount for council tax purposes as at 3 October 2011 are available on line 8 of the table "Council tax base local authority level data 2011", which is available on the Department for Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/counciltaxbase2011

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the cost of establishing local schemes for distributing council tax benefit in each local authority area; and if he will make a statement. [86670]

Robert Neill: I refer the hon. Lady to the answer given on 22 November 2011, Official Report, column 225W, to the right hon. Member for East Ham (Stephen Timms).

Council Tax Benefits: Expenditure

Michael Dugher: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the level of expenditure on council tax benefit in each local authority in 2010-11; and how much such expenditure was incurred in respect of (a) pensioner and (b) working-age households in each such authority. [85342]

Steve Webb: I have been asked to reply.

The information has been placed in the Library.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85854]

Robert Neill: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its public bodies' caterers are contracted to comply with Government Buying Standards for Food and Catering Services. Calorie labelling forms part of an evolving strategy to offer a choice of diet to our staff. We are working with the Department for Education on a shared services arrangement and negotiating a new total Facilities Management Contract, which will be in place from April 2012. This contract will conform to Government Buying Solutions Standards and calorie labelling will form part of the new contract.

This answer incorporates all of the Department and its associated public bodies, with the exception of the Planning Inspectorate, where the information was not readily available.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the countries of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85855]

Robert Neill: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its public bodies' caterers are contracted to comply with Government Buying Standards for food and catering services and information on country of origin is available through the supply chain where requested. We are negotiating a new total facilities management contract, which will be in place from April 2012. This contract will conform to Government Buying Solutions Standards and we will work with the new catering supplier to improve the degree and quality of information provided to customers.

This answer incorporates all of the Department and its associated public bodies, with the exception of the Planning Inspectorate, where the information was not readily available.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will consider amending the requirements for energy performance certificates to be made available when a residential property is put up for sale to include information on floor area and energy usage; and if he will make a statement. [86449]

Andrew Stunell: Energy performance certificates already contain information about a dwelling's floor area and energy usage and must be made available to prospective purchasers within 28 days of a property being marketed for sale. We are making a number of changes to the energy performance certificate to significantly improve its format and content and ensure that it effectively supports the Green Deal. The revised energy performance certificate will be released in April 2012.

Government Procurement Card

Oliver Colvile: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Great Yarmouth of 3 November 2011, Official Report, column 782W, on the Government Procurement Card, which Minister in his Department visited Auckland in March 2007; and what the purpose of the visit was. [81608]

Robert Neill: The then Under-Secretary of State (Angela E Smith) visited Auckland in March 2007 to attend the Commonwealth Local Government Conference 2007.

Housing: Finance

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account his Department took of population variations between local authority areas in determining allocation of the New Homes Bonus. [86196]

Grant Shapps: The New Homes Bonus is based on the number of additional homes and those brought back into use, with a premium for affordable homes. Through the bonus, local authority areas which are growing in population will have more resources to meet the needs and aspirations of new and existing residents.

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons he (a) reduced the housing budget in 2010-11 and (b) increased the housing budget in 2011-12. [86332]

Grant Shapps: The last Administration left the biggest budget deficit in our peacetime history, with the state forecast to borrow £146 billion a year in 2010-11, or £400 million being borrowed every single day. This was unsustainable. The coalition Government, through the Emergency Budget and spending review, have taken steps to tackle this deficit, restoring market confidence. These measures will help eliminate the structural current deficit over the next five years. This will help keep interest rates down for home owners, restore economic stability and reduce the amount of taxpayers' money that would otherwise be spent on debt interest.

Within the agreed public spending envelope, we have taken steps to support house building, given the important contribution it makes to economic growth and the need to build more homes in light of demographic change. This has included using departmental unallocated funding to support housing (e.g. the Growing Places Fund). We have also configured our housing policies to tackle the particular problems currently being faced in the housing market:

Lenders are not lending enough—with high deposit requirements excluding young people and families from home ownership. Hence, we are promoting schemes such as Firstbuy, extending the Right to Buy and supporting a new and innovative new build indemnity scheme.

Builders are not building—without consumers ready to buy, and without enough land for development or access to finance. Hence, we are promoting policies such as the Getting Britain Building investment fund and the Build Now, Pay Later programme for public sector land.

We are also investing £4.5 billion in new affordable housing over the spending review period and £2.1 billion on Decent Homes to improve the condition of existing social housing.

Local Government: Land

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) brownfield, (b) green-belt and (c) green-field land is owned by each local authority in England. [85914]

Robert Neill [holding answer 12 December 2011]: There were an estimated 5,350 hectares of brownfield land owned by local authorities in England in 2009, according to the National Land Use Database of Previously-Developed Land. A table showing the amounts and number of sites by local authority has been placed in the Library of the House.

No information is available on the amount of local authority owned green-belt or green-field land.

My Department is taking a series of steps to encourage the development and regeneration of brownfield sites, as outlined in my answer of 25 October 2011, Official Report, column 123W.

New Deal for Communities Scheme

Mr Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what work has been carried out in each borough under the New Deal for Communities scheme; and what work carried out under the New Deal for Communities scheme has been continued following the ending of the scheme. [83268]

Andrew Stunell [holding answer 25 November 2011]: A table providing a summary of priorities for each of the 39 New Deal for Communities areas and details of projects developed by the Communities partnerships for each area has been deposited in the Library of the House. The Department does not have a full picture of the completion of all projects across the programme, which is a matter for the individual partnerships, their successor bodies and, where different, the local authorities in those areas. The National Evaluation of the Communities programme, published in March 2010, concluded that the New Deal for Communities had delivered improvements and that, in general, they had narrowed the gaps with the rest of the country in relation to six broad themes: crime, health, worklessness, education, community cohesion, and housing and the environment. Three quarters of New Deal for Communities have agreed succession strategies so that the benefits and improvements made over the life of the programme can be sustained into the longer term.

Non-domestic Rates

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the amount of business rates revenue which will be lost to each local authority as a result of schools becoming academies in the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [86666]

Robert Neill: None. Business rates reliefs for ratepayers are an integral part of the business rates system and we have no plans to amend them. Mandatory relief should be granted if a ratepayer meets the eligibility criteria.

Planning Permission

Julian Sturdy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on minimum density requirements in planning policy. [86232]

Robert Neill: The Department for Communities and Local Government has not recently commissioned any research specifically on minimum density requirements in planning policy. Whitehall minimum density requirements were abolished in June 2010 to help councils protect residential neighbourhoods from unwanted 'garden grabbing'. The draft National Planning Policy Framework asks local planning authorities to set their own approach to housing density to reflect local circumstances. Consultation on the draft framework has now closed and we are now considering all the responses.

Planning Permission: Urban Areas

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) for what reasons the inclusion of offices in the sequential town centre test contained in Planning Policy Statement 6 has not been carried over to the draft National Planning Policy Framework; [85913]

(2) pursuant to the oral answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 15, on high street development, whether it is his policy to include offices in the sequential town centre test. [86023]

Greg Clark [holding answer 12 December 2011]: A draft new National Planning Policy Framework was published for consultation in July 2011. We are now giving very careful consideration to all responses received to the consultation, before publishing a final version of the framework.

WALES

Government: Ministerial Meetings

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) on what date she last met the Secretary of State for Transport to discuss the implications for Wales of High Speed 2; [86262]

(2) on what date she last had a bilateral meeting with the Cabinet Secretary to discuss matters relating to Wales; and if she will publish a minute of the meeting; [86263]

(3) on what date she last had a bilateral meeting with the Minister for political and constitutional reform to discuss matters relating to Wales; and if she will publish a minute of the meeting; [86264]

(4) on what date she last met the Government spokesperson for Welsh affairs in the House of Lords; and if she will publish a minute of the meeting; [86265]

(5) on what date she last met the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions to discuss the effects of the Government's Work programme on Wales; [86270]

(6) on what date she last met the Chancellor of the Exchequer to discuss the implications for Wales of his autumn statement; [86271]

(7) on what date she last met the Home Secretary to discuss levels of crime in Wales; [86272]

(8) on what date she last had a bilateral meeting with each other Cabinet Minister to discuss matters relating to Wales; and if she will publish a minute of each meeting; [86278]

(9) on how many occasions she has met the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change to discuss the implications for Welsh businesses of the proposed abolition of the feed-in tariff; [86297]

(10) on what date she last met the Secretary of State for Justice to discuss prisons in Wales. [86269]

Mrs Gillan: Both the Under-Secretary of State for Wales, my hon. Friend the Member for Clwyd West (Mr Jones), and I regularly meet ministerial colleagues and senior officials across Government to discuss matters of importance to Wales. In line with the practice of successive Administrations, information relating to internal advice and discussion is not normally disclosed.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Females

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent discussions he has had with the Afghan Government on the involvement of women in the political processes at all levels in Afghanistan; [86161]

(2) if he will press the Afghan Government to ensure that women have an effective voice and role in all levels of the peace process in that country. [86162]

Alistair Burt: At the International Conference on Afghanistan in Bonn on 5 December, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), stated that:

"The principle of inclusiveness is vital, so that all Afghanistan's people have a stake in the country's future".

The Conference, chaired by Afghanistan, agreed a clear set of guiding principles for the reconciliation process and its outcomes and also an inclusive, representative peace process. The Conference also made it clear that the fundamental rights of women and children are key for Afghanistan's future.

The Government's International Violence Against Women Champion, the Minister for Equalities, the hon. Member for Hornsey and Wood Green (Lynne Featherstone), also attended the Civil Society Forum on Afghanistan held in Bonn on 2-3 December, where she reiterated the UK Government's commitment to an inclusive political process in Afghanistan and the importance of the protection of Afghan women's rights.

We will continue to make clear it to the Government of Afghanistan that any political process should be inclusive and address the concerns of all Afghan citizens.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what criteria (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies use when deciding whether and when to hold an internal audit; and if he will make a statement. [85638]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Internal Audit Department provides internal audit services to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, its Executive Agency (Wilton Park) and Trading Fund (FCO Services). This activity provides their accounting officers with an overall opinion on risk management, control and governance arrangements, as required by HM Treasury. For each of these bodies a discrete annual programme of work is agreed with their Audit Committee and the Permanent Under-Secretary (FCO) or Chief Executives of FCO Services and Wilton Park, as appropriate. The criteria used for deciding what to audit and when are as follows.

FCO

FCO Internal Audit works in the context of the FCO's risk management framework, an approach generally known as risk-based internal auditing. There is an annually agreed strategy setting out which areas of the FCO should be audited. There are two distinct approaches within the strategy: one for the risks in the UK and the other for overseas risk. For the home programme the strategy takes account of FCO risk registers, known and expected business change, input from FCO Directors and the risk of fraud and reputational damage. For the overseas network a risk model is used to help prioritise posts in terms of risk. Within any given year, the timing of an actual audit is at the discretion of the auditor leading it, unless management has expressed a particular view (i.e. because of the timing of other reviews or anticipated changes to the systems in question). Other issues around timing include logistics and, overseas, security. FCO Internal Audit also conducts some audits without notice.

FCO Services

The methodology for selecting audits is very similar to the FCO except that FCO Services adopts a three-year strategy (with an annual review) and audits are carried out exclusively in the UK. The methodology to populate the strategy with individual audits is risk based and takes account of FCO Services risk registers, discussion with senior management, forward objectives, key performance indicators and a review of other sources of assurance. Within any given year the timing of an actual audit is at the discretion of the auditor leading it unless management has expressed a particular view which it would be sensible to accommodate.

Wilton Park

FCO Internal Audit prepares a three-year strategy which is then reviewed and approved each year by the Audit Committee and Chief Executive. The methodology to populate the strategy with individual audits is risk based and takes account of business changes and input from the Finance and Operations Directors. It takes account of the risk of fraud and reputational damage and considers all other sources of assurance. Audits are carried out exclusively in the UK and the exact timing of an audit is a collaborative decision involving Wilton Park senior staff and the lead auditor. Timing takes into account seasonal peaks in business activity and the availability of audit staff.

Economic and Monetary Union

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for New Forest East of 29 November 2011, Official Report, column 863W, on Europe: politics and government, what assessment he has made of the potential effects of fiscal union between the states of the Eurozone on the maintenance of (a) elected, (b) representative and (c) democratic Governments in those states; what discussions he had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on such effects, prior to the Government recommending fiscal union for the states of the Eurozone; and if he will make a statement. [84842]

Mr Lidington: It is for each individual country of the Eurozone to assess the effects of fiscal union on these three issues. The UK remains committed to both a strong and stable Eurozone and to liberal democratic values. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Treasury ministerial teams work very closely in developing policy on the EU.

European Union: Treaties

David Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any new European Treaty will be subject to a referendum. [85897]

Mr Lidington: Under the European Union Act 2011, any Treaty change which transfers competence or power from the UK to the will require a referendum of the British people. The Act clearly defines what is meant by a transfer of competence or power.

Japan: Whaling

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many discussions he has had with the Japanese ambassador on Japan's annual whaling hunt. [86653]

Mr Jeremy Browne: This Government support the International Whaling Commission (IWC) moratorium on commercial whaling because we believe strongly that the annual whaling hunt involves unacceptable cruelty. Although the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, the right hon. Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), has not had the opportunity to raise this issue with the current ambassador of Japan, both he and I raised it during our visits to Japan late last year. Ministers and senior officials will continue to convey our concerns with the Japanese Government when suitable opportunities arise.

Libya: Arms Trade

Mr Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will press the new Libyan authorities to ensure that the terms of the compensation package to be offered to victims of the IRA's Libyan-supplied semtex campaign do not distinguish between those police or military personnel killed on duty and those off duty at the time of the attacks. [86591]

Alistair Burt: Properly addressing legacy issues will be an important part of the UK's relationship with Libya. I raised this with the Libyan Transitional Government during my visit to Tripoli on 6 to 8 December. I made clear our desire to see progress on outstanding issues from the Gaddafi era. The newly appointed Foreign Minister Ashour Ben Khayyal agreed that we would take forward discussions on this.

The campaigns seeking compensation for IRA victims are private. The terms of the campaigns and the range of victims are therefore also private. However, we understand at this stage that no settlement has been made.

Saudi Arabia: Politics and Government

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the findings of the report by Amnesty International entitled Saudi Arabia: Repression in the name of Security; and if he will make a statement. [86046]

Alistair Burt: The Amnesty international report on Saudi Arabia summarises the current human rights situation in Saudi Arabia. It covers the draft anti-terror law, detentions and trials, and freedom of expression. Our embassy in Riyadh has been engaged in a dialogue with the Saudi Arabian Government on these issues for some time. There is widespread acceptance in the Saudi Government and Saudi human rights organisations that the draft anti-terror law is unsuitable in its present form: the current draft is extremely unlikely to pass into law. Our embassy has raised the issue of arbitrary detentions with the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Justice and has been given permission to attend a forthcoming terror trial.

We have asked the Saudi authorities for more information with regard to the case referred to in the Report, which concerns 16 men convicted under anti-terror legislation to sentences ranging from five to 30 years, before we determine our next course of action. Freedom of expression concerns largely relate to the periods of unrest in the Eastern Province this year. Following the most recent outbreak of unrest in November, we note the Saudi Arabian Government issued a statement that security forces have been instructed to exercise restraint. We welcome the willingness of Saudi human rights organisations to engage with Amnesty on human rights concerns, which will raise awareness of the progress made by Saudi Arabia to date and give greater clarity on the requirements for further reform.

Sergei Magnitsky

Mr Raab: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has given any consideration to bringing forward proposals similar to the Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act proposed in the US Congress. [86072]

Mr Lidington: We are aware of the Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act, introduced to the US Congress in 2011, which, if passed, would see sanctions imposed on Russian officials allegedly responsible for the detention, abuse, or death of Sergei Magnitsky.

The Immigration Rules enable us to refuse a visa where, for example, information on an individual's character, conduct or associations makes entry to the UK undesirable. However, the UK has a long established practice of not commenting routinely on individual visa cases.

Mr Raab: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking together with his EU counterparts in response to the death in custody of Sergei Magnitsky. [86073]

Mr Lidington: We have discussed Mr Magnitsky's arrest, detention and death with a number of our European partners who share our concerns. The EU raised this case during EU-Russia Human Rights Consultations in November.

Mr Raab: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps he has taken in respect of the death in custody of Sergei Magnitsky. [86208]

Mr Lidington: We have repeatedly made clear to the Russian Government our concerns about Mr Magnitsky's arrest, detention and death, most recently during the Prime Minister's visit to Moscow in September, where he discussed this case with President Medvedev. The Prime Minister also referred to the Magnitsky case as a high profile human rights concern in Russia during his speech on 'Foreign Policy in the National Interest' on 14 November. We will continue to urge the Russian Government to complete a thorough and transparent investigation into this case and bring to justice those responsible for Mr Magnitsky's death.

Steria

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many contracts his Department has awarded to Steria since May 2010; and what the (a) purpose, (b) monetary value and (c) net worth was of each contract. [85477]

Mr Lidington: It is longstanding Foreign and Commonwealth Office practice not to comment on the detail of its security contracts or its security systems.

Turkey: Human Rights

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to his contribution of 9 November 2011, Official Report, column 304, on the middle east and north Africa, what discussions he had with the President of Turkey on (a) human rights and (b) the Kurdish minority in Turkey. [86361]

Mr Lidington: The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), did not have any substantive meetings with the President of Turkey during the state visit.

During the state visit there were several meetings between members of the Government and members of the Turkish delegation. A very wide range of topics was discussed. We do not reveal the details of private diplomatic exchanges.

Our embassy in Ankara regularly raises human rights with the relevant Turkish authorities. We will continue to monitor developments in human rights and issues surrounding the Kurdish minorities.

Zimbabwe: Diamonds

Geoffrey Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his UN counterparts on the decision to lift the embargo on the sale of diamonds originating from Zimbabwe; and what assessment he has made of the effect of the decision on the sanctions regime that has been placed on Zimbabwe. [86509]

Mr Bellingham: The EU, which represents Britain in the Kimberley Process (KP), had discussions with all 50 KP participants ahead of the KP Plenary meeting in Kinshasa in November. I have discussed diamond exports from the Marange region of Zimbabwe with the Governments of South Africa, the United States of America and Belgium.

The Kinshasa agreement does not impact on the EU Restricted Measures, which are up for their annual review by the 27 EU member states in February 2012.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Gloria De Piero: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to publish the response to her Department's consultation entitled More effective responses to anti social behaviour. [85488]

James Brokenshire: The Home Office has received over 1,000 written responses to the consultation from the police and other front-line professionals, members of the judiciary, local authorities, interest groups and members of the public. We want to ensure that our proposals reflect that wealth of knowledge and expertise, and will publish our response in due course.

Arrest Warrants

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people returned to the UK under the European Arrest Warrant returned to (a) face prosecution and (b) served an existing sentence in each year since its inception; and if she will make a statement. [78625]

Damian Green: Due to the way that the data are recorded, it is not possible for these figures to be broken down by the number returned to face prosecution or to serve an existing sentence in each year without a manual examination of each individual case file. This would incur a disproportionate cost.

Avon and Somerset Constabulary: Finance

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much core funding her Department allocated to Avon and Somerset police authority in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10, (c) 2010-11 and (d) 2011-12; and how much it plans to allocate in (i) cash and (ii) real terms in 2012-13. [86223]

Nick Herbert: The funding figures for Avon and Somerset police authority were:

(a) £116.4 million (2008-09);

(b) £115.1 million (2009-10);

(c) £118.5 million (2010-11);

(d) £120.9 million (2011-12).

The provisional resource allocation for 2012-13 is £112.7 million.

Civil Disorder

Malcolm Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many firms of loss adjusters have been employed by police forces to assess claims for compensation under the Riot (Damages) Act 1886 arising from the civil disorder of August 2011; at what rate firms have been remunerated; and what the total amount of fees paid to such firms has been, at the most recent date for which figures are available. [85572]

Nick Herbert: This information is not collected centrally. However, these data are available from the respective police authorities.

Official Hospitality

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on hospitality for events hosted by each Minister in her Department in each of the last 12 months. [73667]

Damian Green: As part of the interviewing for the new Metropolitan Police Commissioner, the Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), provided a working lunch at a cost of £32.83.

No other events have been hosted by Ministers of the Home Department where hospitality has been provided; this excludes the de minimus levels of expenditure on teas, coffees and light refreshments.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she receives any external funding for (a) her ministerial office and (b) her advisers; and what the (i) source and (ii) amount is of any such funding. [77590]

Damian Green: The Home Office does not receive any external funding for ministerial offices or for special advisers.

Domestic Violence

Hazel Blears: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has for the classification and recording of convictions for offences against a partner as domestic violence offences. [84903]

Lynne Featherstone: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) already records domestic violence convictions. The recently published CPS Violence Against Women and Girls Crime Report shows that in the last year (2010-11) the proportion of defendants convicted for domestic violence offences has stayed steady at 72%, against an 11% increase in both the volume of defendants prosecuted (82,187) and convicted (59,101).

Domestic Violence: Homicide

Hazel Blears: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) men and (b) women were killed by a current or former partner in each year since 2006. [83698]

Lynne Featherstone: The available data are given in the table and are taken from the Home Office Homicide Index and relate to homicides recorded by police forces in England and Wales, including the British Transport Police.

Data for 2010-11 will be available in January 2012.

Partner/ex-partner homicides currently[1] recorded by relationship of victim to principal suspect, 2005-06 to 2009-10, England and Wales

Number

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10
Men	22	30	34	31	21
Women	90	91	79	101	95
Total	112	121	113	132	116

1. As at 28 September 2010; figures are subject to revision as cases are dealt with by the police and by the courts, or as further information becomes available.

Habitual Residence Test

Tracey Crouch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the habitual residence test. [81663]

Chris Grayling: I have been asked to reply.

We have strict rules in place to prevent abuse of the benefit system and to prevent benefit tourism. One of the principal measures is the habitual residence test. The test ensures that people coming from abroad can only access income-related benefits if they have a right to reside and are habitually resident in the Common Travel Area[1]. The Department for Work and Pensions is considering all the details of the European Commission's Reasoned Opinion against the right to reside element of the habitual residence test and is committed to taking the necessary steps to ensure the UK retains control of its welfare policies.

Immigrants: Detainees

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, with reference to the detention data in Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, table dt.07.q, for what reasons each of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months has not been removed from the UK. [82103]

Damian Green: The following table sets out the total length of stay in the UK of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011.

Length of time (in years) in the UK based on first application raised	Number of individuals

The following table sets out the reasons why the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011 had not been removed from the UK. As the table shows, five of the individuals have now been removed from the UK. This information is taken from internal management information and is subject to change.

Barriers to removal	Number of individuals
Travel document	39
Appeals	6
Children issues	1
Country situation	1
Nationality not confirmed	1
Judicial review	15
Awaiting removal: multiple barriers	4
Rule 39[1]	2
Removed	5

[1] This is a request to the European court of human rights (under rule 39) that an applicant should not be removed from the UK.

Of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, 53 lodged an appeal against their deportation. In addition to this:

29 individuals submitted a judicial review (JR) against unlawful detention.

five submitted a JR on HR grounds.

five submitted a JR against unlawful detention and on HR grounds.

To determine in which court those of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011 have lodged an appeal against detention or removal would require the examination of individual case files, which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Immigration

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the UK Border Agency intends to resolve the case of Mr Garfield Rainford. [79437]

Damian Green: In order to safeguard an individual's personal information and comply with the Data Protection Act 1998, the UK Border Agency is unable to provide an update on an individual case when responding to a parliamentary question. The UK Border Agency will write to the right hon. Gentleman to provide an update on the case.

Immigration: Port of Hull

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people entering the UK through the Port of Hull were subject to full e-scan checks between July and November 2011. [81086]

Damian Green: All passengers entering the UK through the Port of Hull between July and November 2011 were subject to full immigration checks.

Rohypnol

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps she is taking to reduce the illegal use of Rohypnol; and what awareness campaigns she proposes to run; [85999]

(2) what studies her Department has undertaken on the illegal use of Rohypnol; [86000]

(3) whether she has recently reviewed the classification of the drug Rohypnol; [86001]

(4) what assessment she has made of recent trends in the illegal use of Rohypnol. [86002]

James Brokenshire: Flunitrazepam ('Rohypnol'), together with the other benzodiazepines, is a class C drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs informs the Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), and keeps under review the situation in the UK with respect to controlled drugs, including benzodiazepines. Its report "Drug Facilitated Sexual Assault" (2007) considered the use of benzodiazepines and indicated that adequate controls are in place for these drugs. The report is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/alcohol-drugs/drugs/acmd1/drug-facilitated-sexual-assault/

This Government are committed to tackling sexual offences and other forms of violence against women and girls. The Sexual Offences Act 2003 makes it a separate offence to give someone any substance without their consent and with the intention of stupefying them so that sexual activity can take place. We are also working closely with the Association of Chief Police Officers to look at ways to improve police investigations of rape, including cases where drugs are a contributing factor.

The Government's Drug Strategy sets out a multifaceted approach to tackling drug use under three themes: reducing demand, restricting supply and building recovery.

FRANK, the drug information and advice service, has information on tranquillisers (which includes Rohypnol) available on its website at:

www.talktofrank.com

We are currently running a campaign to promote the FRANK service.

Terrorism Prevention and Investigation Measures Bill

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to provide additional resources to the police as a result of implementation of the proposals in the Terrorism Prevention and Investigation Measures Bill. [70852]

James Brokenshire: The new system of terrorism prevention and investigation measures (TPIMs) will be accompanied by significant additional funding for both the police and Security Service. We do not provide detailed breakdowns of the money we provide for specific security activities as this would provide information about our capabilities and techniques which could undermine national security.

UK Border Agency: Security

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at which points of entry the UK Border Force used Level 2 security checks under her pilot scheme of summer 2011 to screen (a) EEA and (b) non-EEA passengers attempting to enter the UK; how often it used such checks; and on what dates. [81059]

Damian Green: The Level 2 risk-based pilot measures applied to EEA nationals were available to all UK ports. The following ports made use of them between 29 July and 4 November 2011:

Aberdeen Airport
Edinburgh Airport
Manchester Airport
Belfast International Airport
East Midlands Airport
Newcastle Airport
Birmingham Airport
Gatwick Airport
Newhaven Ferry Port
Bournemouth Airport
Glasgow Airport
Norwich International Airport
Bristol Airport
Harwich Ferry Terminal
Plymouth Ferry Terminal
Brussels
Heathrow Airport
Poole Ferry Terminal
Calais
Leeds Bradford Airport
Portsmouth Ferry Terminal
Cardiff Airport

Liverpool John Lennon Airport
Prestwick Airport
Coquelles
London City Airport
Stansted Airport
Dunkerque
London Luton Airport

The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has ordered an investigation into all the circumstances relating to the relaxation of border controls. It would be inappropriate to release any further information at this stage.

HEALTH

Ambulance Services: Training

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which ambulance trusts have opted to use (a) Trauma Risk Management and (b) Applied Suicide Intervention Skills Training; and if he will make a statement. [86532]

Mr Simon Burns: This is an operational matter for local ambulance trusts. As such, this information is not held centrally.

Departmental Pay

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the monetary value is of bonuses paid to staff in his Department for work on the national IT scheme in the last 12 months. [86518]

Mr Simon Burns: It is presumed that the hon. Member is referring to staff within the Department working on the National Programme for Information Technology.

No bonuses were paid to such staff in the last 12 months.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86137]

Mr Simon Burns: Since May 2010, the Department has not seconded anyone in from industry.

Five or fewer staff have been seconded in from the third sector during this period. No individual seconded from the third sector is working in a policy development role.

Doctors

Valerie Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he will take to reduce the time taken in allocating jobs to newly-qualified doctors. [86224]

Anne Milton: The United Kingdom Foundation Programme Office is responsible for defining the national application process and timetable. Key influences on timing are the dates on which UK medical schools announce results for final medical degree examinations and the dates on which the General Medical Council schedules examinations to ensure international medical graduates demonstrate they have the necessary skills and knowledge to practise medicine in the UK. Everyone involved in the national application process makes every endeavour to ensure that medical graduates know where they will be working at the earliest date possible.

Hospital Beds

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2011, Official Report, columns 960-2W, on hospital beds, if he will assess the reasons for delayed hospital discharge in May 2010. [86517]

Paul Burstow: Monthly delayed transfers of care data have been collected since August 2010. Prior to August 2010 delayed transfers of care data were weekly unvalidated management information. The equivalent monthly data for May 2010 have been provided in the following tables, which are the weekly snapshot of patient numbers at midnight on Thursday in the week ending 30 May 2010.

Mental Health Services

Mr Buckland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he has taken to meet each of the six shared objectives contained in his Department's mental health outcomes strategy; [86538]

(2) what meetings he has had with ministerial colleagues on cross-Government steps to achieve each of the six shared objectives contained in his Department's mental health outcomes strategy. [86539]

Paul Burstow: There have been no formal meetings between the Secretary of State for Health, the right hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr Lansley), and Ministers in other Government Departments in relation to implementation of the mental health strategy.

Officials across all the relevant Government Departments meet regularly to co-ordinate activity and implementation of the strategy.

The strategy's objectives are designed to be seen together, building a coherent picture of better mental health outcomes, rather than being seen in isolation. Much of the work currently under way will help to meet the strategy's objectives as a whole. Examples include:

the recently-published 'NHS Operating Framework for 2012-13' which highlights mental health services and specifically 'No health without Mental Health' and makes it clear that this should be a priority for primary care trust commissioning; ensuring that mental health is reflected in the outcomes framework for the national health service, and in the outcomes framework for public health and the draft framework for adult social care; working, alongside the NHS Confederation and others, to support the implementation through the introduction of Payment by Results and improved outcome measures for mental health.

work across Government to address the wider determinants of mental health.

We have established a ministerial advisory group for the mental health strategy to work in partnership to realise the strategy. This group includes senior representation from other Government Departments.

In October 2011, this group agreed proposals to develop an implementation framework for the strategy. This will be produced by a number of national mental health organisations, in partnership with the Government. The framework is due for publication in spring 2012.

The group receives regular updates on the wide range of work which contributes to meeting the objectives of the strategy. Meeting papers and minutes for this group are published on the Department's website:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_127788

Occupational Health: Research

Dr Huppert: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of levels of support for research into occupational health. [81613]

Chris Grayling: I have been asked to reply.

HSE has a budget of £11 million for applied research in 2011-12 and the major part is devoted to occupational health. Further details can be found on the HSE website at:

http://www.hse.gov.uk/research/content/science-plan-2011.pdf

HSE's occupational research programme is informed by contacts with other funding bodies active in this area to identify synergies and potential gaps in knowledge.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86144]

Mr Paterson: Since May 2010, there have been no secondments to my Department from either industry or the third sector.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86143]

John Penrose: There have been no secondments to this Department from industry and the third sector since May 2010.

FIFA: Corruption

Mr Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the findings of the International Olympic Committee investigation into corruption within FIFA; and if he will make a statement. [86554]

Hugh Robertson: The Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for South West Surrey (Mr Hunt), and I are aware of the recent action that the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Executive Board has taken following the IOC Ethics Committee's investigation of cash payments received by two IOC members from a sports marketing agency. I applaud the IOC for its efforts in this area. We are also aware that one of those members is a standing FIFA committee member and urge FIFA to deliver on the reform process announced earlier this year.

Olympic Games 2012

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what representations he has received on the long-term benefits of the London 2012 Olympic games opening ceremony to the economy. [86400]

Hugh Robertson: The Olympic opening ceremony, as well as the other Olympic and Paralympic ceremonies, is a unique opportunity to showcase the best of the UK to a global audience and boost the games business and tourism legacy. It is estimated that the ceremonies will broadcast to an audience of 4 billion people, and could be worth up to £5 billion in advertising value.

David Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what information his Department holds which country the London 2012 Olympic flame burner will be manufactured in. [86552]

Hugh Robertson: The London 2012 Organising Committee has confirmed that both the Olympic torch and cauldron are designed, manufactured and engineered by UK companies. They will showcase British creativity, ingenuity, and production across the UK and around the world. The Olympic torch is designed in Hackney, engineered in Basildon and manufactured in Coventry. Only one small part inside the cauldron will be supplied by a company outside the UK following a competitive tender process.

Olympic Games 2012: Wales

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of the legacy for Wales of the London 2012 Olympic games. [86200]

Hugh Robertson: Wales and the whole of the UK are already benefiting from the economic, sporting and cultural opportunities generated by the 2012 games, with 848 schools and colleges in Wales already registered as part of the London 2012 education programme "Get Set". 79 projects in Wales have also been awarded the Inspire Mark, including Criw Cymru, a project run in partnership with Galeri, Caernarfon and Theatre Brycheiniog in Brecon.

In addition, 10 businesses registered in Wales have won work directly supplying the Olympic Delivery Authority. These include Euroclad, which provided the external cladding for the Olympic stadium, and Williamson Technical Services, which provided specialist site services for the stadium. Many other businesses based in Wales have secured contracts to supply goods or services within the London 2012 supply chain. I am sure that you would join me in congratulating these companies on securing London 2012 contracts.

S4C

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had on the availability of S4C to television viewers outside Wales. [86202]

Mr Vaizey: The Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for South West Surrey (Mr Hunt), is aware that S4C is available outside Wales on Sky, Freesat and the internet. While he has had no formal discussions specifically on this matter, the subject has been raised in the context of the reforms to S4C.

SCOTLAND

Big Society

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps he is taking to promote the big society initiative in Scotland. [86426]

David Mundell: Scotland Office Ministers and officials have met social enterprises, voluntary organisations, local authorities and others to discuss their engagement with various Government policies.

I have hosted a series of roundtable events in towns across Scotland to discuss the ideas that underpin the big society.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agricultural Products

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to encourage UK businesses to buy agricultural products produced in the UK. [82854]

Mr Paice: The Government are supportive of a competitive agricultural industry, and DEFRA's first business plan commitment is to 'support and develop British farming and encourage sustainable food production'. This is embedded in much of the work that the Department carries out.

Within Government we have introduced new guidance on sustainable food procurement so that Government Departments source food, subject to no overall increase in costs, that meets British or equivalent standards of production—for example 'Red Tractor'.

We have also encouraged the voluntary code for the labelling of certain products with the true country of origin and supported the EU food information regulation, which makes country of origin labelling mandatory for fresh meat. EU rules prevent the Government from promoting "Buy British" campaigns, however the Levy Boards do carry out promotional campaigns on behalf of UK producers.

Agriculture: Apprentices

Andrew Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had on increasing the number of apprenticeships in the agricultural sector. [85431]

Mr Paice: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Meriden (Mrs Spelman), has discussed apprenticeships in the agricultural sector within her wider discussions on the food chain with the Food and Drink Federation, the Farmers' Club, IGD Policy Issues Council and the Women's Food and Farming Union. The ministerial team has also had discussions with the National Federation of Young Farmers Clubs, the National Skills Academy for Food and Drink and the IGD skills group on a number of issues including apprenticeships.

Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency: South-west England

Mr Chope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to address the concerns raised by the National Farmers Union on the effectiveness of the operation of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency in the South West. [81299]

Mr Paice: AHVLA needs to make significant efficiency savings to meet its spending review targets in future years. The restructuring of its operations in the South West is one aspect of this work and includes consolidating some of the administrative work in Exeter. Similar changes have been undertaken in other regions previously, and have delivered significant efficiency savings without negative service impacts. The Agency is confident that the same benefits can be achieved in the South West once changes are fully in place.

Up to the end of September performance in most areas in the region was improving. Ongoing problems with the new IT system (Sam) functionality, which went live at the end of September 2011, have unfortunately had an adverse impact on the quality of some services.

To address service issues, experienced staff are working overtime and additional temporary staff have been employed to support activities. Performance standards are now improving.

Key stakeholders such as the South West NFU are being kept informed by AHVLA managers at regional meetings and via regular verbal updates.

Animal Welfare: Slaughterhouses

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, pursuant to the answer of 3 October 2011, Official Report, column 1404W, on slaughterhouses: CCTV, what specific steps she is taking to prevent breaches of the law in slaughterhouses; and if she will make it her policy to report on progress in the implementation of such steps. [80878]

Mr Paice: I can confirm we remain committed to ensuring high standards of welfare in all slaughterhouses and abuse of animals anywhere, including slaughterhouses, is unacceptable.

Welfare in slaughterhouses is currently subject to the requirements of the Welfare of Animals (Slaughter or Killing) Regulations 1995, which are enforced in slaughterhouses by the Food Standards Agency acting on behalf of the Secretary of State. DEFRA and the Food Standards Agency are working closely on how this issue is to be resolved, including the development of an Enforcement Strategy to make clear what steps will be taken in the event of animal welfare breaches being found. The Food Standards Agency has also recently completed a survey of animal welfare standards in slaughterhouses, which will be published in early 2012.

Council Regulation 1099/2009 on the protection of animals at the time of killing comes into effect on 1 January 2013. This requires us to lay down rules on penalties which are effective, proportionate and dissuasive. We are currently developing proposals for implementation and are considering the role administrative and financial penalties might play alongside criminal prosecutions for welfare breaches. Our aim will be to ensure sanctions can be applied in a way that ensures immediate action is taken to resolve the issue, or halts production until the problem has been addressed. We will consult on these proposals in the normal way next year.

Many slaughterhouses have installed or are in the process of installing, CCTV and this is to be welcomed. Regulation 1099/2009 introduces new monitoring requirements in slaughterhouses and CCTV does have an important role to play alongside other methods, in providing inconspicuous monitoring. Our review of the role CCTV can play, including consideration of whether CCTV should be made mandatory, is continuing in that context.

Dairy Farming: Animal Welfare

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has received interim findings of the research which her Department commissioned the Scottish Agricultural College to undertake on the management and welfare of continuously housed dairy cows; when she plans to publish the results of that research; whether the Government plan to issue a response to the research after it is published; and if she will make a statement. [86185]

Mr Paice: The submission of the final report, which will include details of the critical phase of the analysis, has been delayed as a result of difficulties in obtaining all the necessary data on continuously housed dairy farming in the UK. However, we are now expecting to receive a substantive update from the researchers at the end of the year. The Department intends to publicise the results along with any necessary commentary in due course. I would be happy to place a copy of these in the Library of the House as soon as they are available.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many internal audits have taken place (a) in her Department and (b) in the non-departmental bodies for which her Department is responsible in the last 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [82545]

Richard Benyon: The number of internal audits reported upon in the period 1 November 2010 to 31 October 2011 was (a) 38 in core DEFRA and (b) 221 in the executive agencies, non-departmental public bodies and public corporations that DEFRA is responsible for (excluding the National Parks).

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which her Department is responsible; and if she will make a statement. [85704]

Richard Benyon: As part of good corporate governance, the Boards of DEFRA's executive non-departmental public bodies review the major risks to their organisation's objectives regularly. Information on the type of risks each organisation faces is contained in their annual reports or business plans. From 1 April 2012, annual reports will contain a governance statement which will describe the organisation's risk environment and the key risks it is facing.

In addition to corporate-level risks, NDPBs will hold risk information for their major projects.

Dog Wardens

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many dog wardens were employed in each of the last five years. [80999]

Mr Paice: This information is not held centrally by DEFRA.

Fisheries: Accidents

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information her Department holds on the number of serious accidents and fatalities reported in the commercial fishing sector in each of the last three years. [85153]

Mike Penning: I have been asked to reply.

The Marine Accident Investigation Branch of the Department for Transport is responsible for receiving reports of accidents involving registered fishing vessels and their crews.

For the three years for which complete data are available, the figures are:

	Injuries	Fatalities	Accidents to vessels
2008	52	8	257
2009	62	13	238
2010	40	5	268

Flood Control

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the Pitt review working group to report on the potential of natural flood management. [86513]

Richard Benyon: Sir Michael Pitt's recommendation was that DEFRA, the Environment Agency and Natural England should work with partners to establish a programme through Catchment Flood Management Plans and Shoreline Management Plans to achieve greater working with natural processes. In response, the Environment Agency and DEFRA established a working group to improve the understanding of natural processes in flood and coastal erosion risk management. In March 2010, this working group published guidance for practitioners which includes examples of good practice. This is available on the Environment Agency's website at:

A final report, which includes a summary of progress to date and suggestions of where further work would be beneficial, will be published at the end of March 2012.

Food: Waste

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to reduce levels of household food waste. [86379]

Mr Paice: The Government are providing advice to consumers through WRAP's "Love Food Hate Waste" campaign, working with the industry to improve products and practices that help households waste less through the Courtauld Commitment, and developing the evidence base on food waste causes and quantities.

In September, DEFRA published guidance on food date markings. This will help manufacturers apply clearer and consistent dates, making it easier for consumers to understand the meaning of the markings, and therefore reducing food waste.

On 15 November, WRAP announced a 1.1 million tonne, or 13%, reduction in annual UK household food waste since 2006.

Mining

Stephen Mosley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many mines were in use in England in 2010; and what minerals were quarried from each such mine. [86600]

Robert Neill: I have been asked to reply.

A detailed list of what minerals were extracted by which quarries and mines may be found in the British Geological Survey's Directory of Mines and Quarries 2010 which can be accessed at:

http://www.bgs.ac.uk/mineralsuk/mines/dmq.html

The directory indicates that there were over 1,250 active mines and quarries in England in 2010 (excluding rail heads and wharves), extracting 22 types of mineral. The minerals extracted included coal, sand and gravel, limestone, peat, clay and shale, sandstone, chalk, slate, silica sand, china clay and igneous and metamorphic rock.

Sustainable Development Commission: Finance

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the decision to withdraw funding to the Sustainable Development Commission was reported to the European Commission under the EU Sustainable Development Strategy. [84043]

Mr Paice: The decision to withdraw funding from the Sustainable Development Commission was reported at EU level through the European Sustainable Development Network, which brings together key sustainable development (SD) representatives from member states.

Sustainable Development: EU Action

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress she has made in implementing the EU Sustainable Development Strategy. [84042]

Mr Paice: In February this year, the Government announced their vision for mainstreaming sustainable development (SD) and ensuring that our policies take account of social, environmental and economic factors. Through this package we lead by example to reduce the impact of the Government estate on the environment and ensure that we procure more efficient and sustainable products. We engage with suppliers to understand and reduce the impacts of supply chains, while providing information and support for businesses and communities to do the same.

The UK is making good progress in developing and implementing policies that align with the objectives of the EU SD Strategy, and demonstrate the Government's commitment to a sustainable future.

In June, DEFRA published the Natural Environment White Paper, which recognised that a healthy, properly functioning natural environment is the foundation of sustained economic growth, prospering communities and personal wellbeing. The White Paper sets out an ambitious programme of action covering the next 50 years and ensures that the value of nature is properly taken into account when developing policies.

At an international level, DEFRA is leading on preparations for the Rio+20 conference on SD in 2012, working with our EU partners to ensure ambitious and action-focused outcomes are achieved next year. The Government will continue to work closely with other countries to ensure that SD remains at the top of the EU and international agenda.

Timber: EU Law

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has established a timetable for the passage of her proposed legislation to implement the provisions of the EU Illegal Timber (Due Diligence) Regulation in the UK. [85769]

Mr Paice: The detailed implementing regulations to prevent the first placing of illegally logged timber on the EU market need to be agreed by June 2012. Once agreed, the necessary secondary legislation will be put in place to implement the regulation in the UK. Under its provisions, the EU Timber Regulation must be implemented by 3 March 2013.

Trees: Disease Control

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of evidence that trees damaged by grey squirrels are particularly prone to infection by phytopthora ramorum and that grey squirrels are carrying disease spores from tree to tree; and what steps her Department is taking in response to that evidence. [85870]

Mr Paice: The Forestry Commission, which has statutory responsibility for the protection of forest trees and timber, carries out aerial surveys to identify tree dieback indicating possible Phytophthora infection. Follow up work has determined that over 300 of the sites surveyed had squirrel damage but found no evidence to suggest that there is a link between this damage and Phytophthora infection. On only 3.5% of sites surveyed are there suggestions of the co-occurrence of squirrel damage and Phytophthora infection, which does not demonstrate cause and effect.

TREASURY

Freight: Tees Valley

Helen Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to the public purse is of constructing and developing the Tees Multimodal Bio-Freight Terminal. [85345]

Mr Prisk: I have been asked to reply.

A conditional award has been made to developing the Tees Multimodal Bio-Freight Terminal project in round 1 of the Regional Growth Fund (RGF). The final amount of public RGF funding for this project will be released when the company completes its due diligence and receive a final grant offer letter, which is expected by the end of December.

Income Tax: Leicester

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residents in Leicester South constituency paid income tax at the 50 pence rate in the latest period for which figures are available. [86473]

Mr Gauke: An estimated 308,000 taxpayers are liable to Income tax at the 50% additional rate in the United Kingdom in 2011-12. In the East Midlands, which contains the Leicester South constituency the estimate is 12,000. These and estimates for other UK Government office regions are published on the HMRC website in tables 2.1 and 2.2, which are available at the following addresses;

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_tax/table2-1.pdf

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_tax/table2-2.pdf

Reliable estimates are not available at the parliamentary constituency level, due to greater uncertainties in projections for small geographical areas and small sample sizes.

These estimates are based on the 2007-08 Survey of Personal Incomes, projected using economic assumptions consistent with the Office for Budget Responsibility's March 2011 economic and fiscal outlook.

Estimates of income and tax by parliamentary constituency for 2007-08 and preceding years are available in table 3.1 5:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/income_distribution/menu-by-year.htm

Revenue and Customs: Telephone Services

Steve Brine: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Shipley of 6 July 2010, Official Report, column 513W, on Revenue and Customs: telephone numbers, what the terms of reference are of his Department's review of its telephone numbering strategy; and if he will make a statement. [86195]

Mr Gauke: HMRC initiated an internal and informal review of its numbering strategy for customer-facing helplines in January 2010 with the twin objectives of:

reducing the cost to vulnerable customers of calling HMRC, where that can be delivered at an appropriate balance with HMRC costs and business performance; improving the sustainability of it's Contact Centre business, by anticipating and mitigating future business costs associated with its numbering strategy.

The Government subsequently accepted the recommendations of the Treasury Sub-Committee in its 16th report "Administration and effectiveness of HM revenue and Customs" (HC731), published on 30 July 2011, that HMRC investigates alternatives to 0845 numbers, including 0345 and freephone numbers, as part of the process of agreeing its next telephony (due in June 2013) and that as an interim measure the Department should examine whether a non-0845 number could be provided for tax credit claimants.

The full text of the Government response was published by the Committee on 26 October 2011 (HC1533) and is available at http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm201012/cmselect/cmtreasy/1533/153303.htm

Additionally, and further to my answer to the hon. Member for Slough (Fiona Mactaggart) of 19 October 2011, Official Report, column 967W, I can now confirm that HMRC introduced a new 0345 prefixed number for its tax credit helpline on 8 December 2012.

Working Tax Credit: Females

Jessica Morden: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people who receive working tax credit in Wales; and what proportion of these are female. [86651]

Mr Gauke: The following table shows the gender breakdown of households receiving working tax credit in Wales:

Number of in-work households benefiting from working tax credit in Wales, by gender

	Thousand
Single female	72.9
Single male	16.1
Couple	169.3
Total	258.3

PRIME MINISTER

Ministers: Conduct

Mr Bone: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has considered bringing forward proposals to change the Ministerial Code in respect of the announcement of new Government policy. [86419]

The Prime Minister: The Ministerial Code states that when Parliament is in Session the most important announcements of Government policy should be made, in the first instance, in Parliament.

JUSTICE

Crimes of Violence: Ex-servicemen

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what information his Department holds on the number of former armed service personnel who were convicted of violent offences in each year since 1997. [86535]

Mr Djanogly: The Ministry of Justice court proceedings database holds information on offences provided by the statutes under which proceedings are brought but not all the circumstances of each case. It is not possible to identify from this centrally held court proceedings information whether a defendant was formerly a member of Her Majesty's armed forces.

However, in January 2010 the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD) published the initial results of a joint study to estimate how many prisoners in England and Wales had been in the regular armed forces. In September 2010 a more detailed report was published.

These reports were based on a one-off study, matching MOJ prison population and MOD veterans data to estimate the number of veterans in prison as at 6 November 2009. A similar one-off study was carried out to estimate the number of veterans under Probation Service supervision, with results published on 16 March 2011; the scope of this study did not include estimating the number of court reports relating to former armed service personnel.

All of these reports can be found under the Veterans section of the Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) website:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk//applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=66&pubType=3

Departmental Pay

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department records the names of private companies to which former senior managers in Pay Band D upwards in his Department have moved. [86605]

Mr Blunt: The Business Appointment Rules, set out in the Civil Service Management Code, place requirements on all serving civil servants, and on former civil servants for two years after their last day of service, who intend to take an outside appointment or employment after leaving the civil service. Before accepting any new appointment or employment, they must consider whether the rules require them to apply for approval. The circumstances are set out in the Civil Service Management Code and the level of approval required differs according to seniority.

All applications received are recorded, including the name of the company or organisation intending to make the appointment.

Prisoners: Repatriation

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether EU citizens serving custodial sentences in prisons in England and Wales before the commencement of the EU Prisoner Transfer Agreement will be liable for repatriation to their country of origin; [84291]

(2) which countries will be ready for the transfer of prisoners under the EU Prisoner Transfer Agreement. [84292]

Mr Blunt: Council Framework Decision 2008/909/JHA, which will govern the transfer of prisoners between member states of the European Union, enters into force from 5 December. Transitional arrangements set out in the Framework Decision enable member states to enter a declaration on its application. We understand that most member states will be applying the Framework Decision only to those prisoners sentenced after the implementation date of 5 December 2011.

An official list of those member states ready to implement the Framework Decision is not yet available. Our latest information indicates that the majority of member states will implement the Framework Decision in 2012/13 as their implementing legislation is enacted.

Reoffenders

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice, pursuant to the answer of 9 November 2011, Official Report, column 394W, on reoffenders, what plans he has to compare reoffending rates for offenders involved in the Intensive Alternative to Custody pilots with reoffending rates for similar offenders receiving custodial sentences of less than 12 months. [86628]

Mr Blunt: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 9 November 2011, Official Report, column 394W and the answer given today to PQ 86485. The MOJ is still looking at the feasibility of conducting an evaluation of the IAC pilots to compare reoffending rates for IAC offenders with reoffending rates for similar offenders receiving custodial sentences of less than 12 months.

Reoffenders: Alternatives to Prosecution

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of offenders who have completed intensive alternative to custody pilots subsequently re-offended in the latest period for which figures are available. [86485]

Mr Blunt: The MOJ is currently looking at the feasibility of conducting an outcome evaluation of the IAC pilots which would compare reoffending rates for IAC offenders with reoffending rates for similar offenders receiving custodial sentences of less than 12 months.

In July 2011, the MOJ published a short report with the main findings from a range of research exploring the learning from the Intensive Alternatives to Custody (IAC) pilot schemes.

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/research-and-analysis/moj/intensive-alternatives-custody.htm

The process evaluations covering the seven IAC pilot sites are currently being concluded and will be published in due course.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his counterpart in Uzbekistan on the withdrawal of UK military equipment from Afghanistan via rail; and if he will make a statement. [85226]

Mr Philip Hammond: There has been no ministerial-level engagement with the Uzbek authorities on the subject of the withdrawal of UK military equipment from Afghanistan by rail.

The highest level engagement by Ministry of Defence officials has been by the Assistant Chief of Defence Staff (Logistic Operations), the two-star military officer responsible for the support of UK forces in Afghanistan and the efficient and cost-effective draw-down of those forces. As part of a wider programme of liaison with countries in central Asia, the present and previous incumbents of that post have visited Uzbekistan three times, in August 2010, March 2011 and November 2011, to conduct discussions with Uzbek officials, including the Defence Minister. These discussions have included the role that Uzbekistan might play in the draw-down of UK forces in Afghanistan but to date no decisions have been taken on the way forward.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) when he expects the first upgraded Warrior to be fully operational; [85428]

(2) when he expects the Warrior upgrade to be completed. [85429]

Peter Luff: Delivery of vehicles upgraded through the Warrior Capability Sustainment programme will commence in 2018. Following a period of training and integration, an armoured infantry company equipped with the upgraded Warriors is planned to be fully operational by 2020. Delivery of all of the upgraded vehicles is currently planned to be completed in 2022.

Defence: Procurement

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many sole-sourced procurement contracts have been awarded in the last 10 years; which companies were invited to tender; where those companies are based; and what the value of the contract was; [70848]

(2) how many sole-sourced procurement contracts went over budget in each of the last 10 years; and by how much each such contract went over budget; [70850]

(3) what the cost to the public purse was of sole-sourced contracts that went over budget in each of the last 10 years shown as a proportion of his Department's (a) procurement budget and (b) budget. [70851]

Peter Luff: An estimated 59,700 new sole-source contracts were awarded between financial years 2001-02 and 2011-12, with a total estimated value of £53.6 billion. The other information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The detailed regulations governing the Ministry of Defence's (MOD) sole-source procurement arrangements are currently being reviewed by the MOD, and the noble Lord Currie of Marylebone has recently published his independent review of these arrangements. The conclusions, which are currently under consideration, include as a key requirement improved collection and analysis of data and financial information on all our sole-source contracts. This will ensure that the MOD is better placed to respond to such requests in the future.

The National Audit Office (NAO) undertakes an annual review of major Defence equipment projects, a proportion of which are sole-source. As an example, the NAO's 2010 Major Projects Report included analysis of a number of sole-source contracts—Type 45 destroyer, Queen Elizabeth Class carrier and Lynx Wildcat helicopter. The NAO reports are available on its external website at:

http://www.nao.org.uk/publications/1011/major_projects_report_2010.aspx

Official Hospitality

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what receptions and events have been hosted by his Department since May 2010, including those sponsored by a third party. [84174]

Mr Robathan: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. We do not keep a central record of all receptions and events hosted by the Ministry of Defence (MOD), but they may include engagement with foreign Governments, open days, air shows, military tattoos and commemorative occasions.

Our current rules are that the offering of hospitality at any event funded by the MOD will be authorised only in exceptional cases.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85702]

Mr Robathan: The following Ministry of Defence (MOD) public bodies keep risk registers relating to the management and mitigation of risk in delivering their business:

Defence Support Group (trading fund)

Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (trading fund)

National Army Museum (executive non-departmental public body)

Oil and Pipelines Agency (public corporation)

Royal Air Force Museum (executive non-departmental public body)

UK Hydrographic Office (trading fund).

In addition, the National Museum of the Royal Navy (an executive non-departmental public body) is planning to introduce a risk register.

The MOD operates a risk management process that ensures risks are identified, assessed, controlled and (when necessary) escalated up the command chain for information or mitigating action.

Most of our public bodies have no management need for a formal risk register as their function is principally to act as advisory bodies with risk being managed centrally in the Department.

Falkland Islands

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what recent assessment he has made of the level of potential military threat to British sovereignty over the Falklands Islands; what military resources the UK has available to defend the Islands at short notice; what substitute sources of deployable airpower remain in the absence of aircraft carriers; and if he will make a statement; [86210]

(2) what arrangements are in place to defend (a) UK military assets on the Falkland Islands from attack from (i) airborne, (ii) special and (ii) naval forces and (b) the air link to the Falklands Islands from potential surface-to-air threats from ships operating in international waters. [86211]

Nick Harvey [holding answer 12 December 2011]: The Ministry of Defence undertakes regular assessments of potential military threats to the Falkland Islands to ensure that we retain appropriate levels of defensive capabilities to address any such threats.

A range of military assets are deployed in defence of the Falkland Islands, including air defence aircraft, naval vessels and ground forces. These assets are capable of defending themselves and ensuring the security and territorial integrity of the Islands and its population. We also retain the ability to reinforce these assets with additional deployed forces, including air power, if required.

ISTAR

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what ISTAR will be created by his Department's Solomon programme; [86280]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the Solomon programme. [86281]

Peter Luff: The Solomon programme is designed to improve the efficiency, effectiveness, quality and timeliness of intelligence delivered to the commander. Capabilities include improved intelligence requirements management, tasking of intelligence, surveillance, target acquisition and reconnaissance assets, provision of imagery and electronic surveillance capabilities, improved connections between deployed and fixed intelligence communities, and enhanced interoperability with allies.

Approved costs to date are £8 million for programme support over four years and some £40 million for a number of project activities. Details on the estimated total expenditure will not be known until each project within the Solomon programme reaches its main investment decision.

Lynx Helicopters

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Lynx light attack helicopters he plans to convert from the battlefield reconnaissance version; and what the conversion cost will be for each such helicopter. [85589]

Peter Luff: We are planning to increase the number of Wildcat helicopters being purchased from 62 to 66. The fleet will consist of three types: 28 Helicopter Maritime Attack, 30 Army Helicopter (AH), and eight Light Assault Helicopter (LAH). Four of the LAH aircraft were previously to have been AH type. The costs of conversion are still under consideration.

RAF Wittering

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the use of RAF Wittering; and if he will make a statement. [86589]

Nick Harvey: RAF Wittering has a continued future as a RAF station hosting a range of units including the RAF's expeditionary engineering and logistics. Additionally, to maximise the use of resources, Headquarters 12 (Air Support) Engineer Group will relocate to RAF Wittering from Waterbeach Barracks during the summer of 2013.

Rescue Services

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) rotary and (b) fixed-wing assets are tasked to combat search and rescue. [85587]

Peter Luff: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) does not currently dedicate rotary or fixed-wing assets to the combat search and rescue role. Were a requirement to generate such a standing commitment be identified the MOD would allocate assets from its broad spectrum of capabilities according to the nature of the environment within which they were required to operate; this could be carried out by Merlin or Chinook helicopters. A combat recovery capability is in place in Afghanistan through the use of Chinook helicopters by the medical emergency response team.

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and which types of (a) rotary wing and (b) fixed-wing aircraft were deployed in the search and rescue operation for the Swanland; and if he will make a statement; [86505]

(2) whether aircraft deployed in the search and rescue operation for the Swanland were carrying EOSDS facilities; whether EOSDS was used during the operation; and if he will make a statement. [86506]

Nick Harvey: Three RAF and one Royal Navy Sea King Search and Rescue (SAR) helicopters were deployed in the search and rescue operation for the Swanland, during which both military and civilian assets were used. No RAF or Royal Navy fixed-wing aircraft were involved.

All four Sea King helicopters were equipped with infra-red turrets which were used during the operation as required. This provided an Electro-Optical Surveillance and Detection System (EOSDS) capability which transmits TV and infra-red video to the crew.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Boilers: Government Assistance

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households in (a) Carmarthenshire and (b) Pembrokeshire replaced a boiler under the boiler scrappage scheme. [85608]

Gregory Barker: No boilers were installed in Wales under the English boiler scrappage scheme, which was administered by DECC. The Department holds no information on boilers installed under the Welsh boiler scrappage scheme.

Carbon Emissions

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households in (a) England, (b) each local authority area and (c) each parliamentary constituency received assistance under the carbon emissions reduction target scheme in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10, (iii) 2010-11 and (iv) since April 2011. [86521]

Gregory Barker: Data on the number of households in England, each local authority area and each parliamentary constituency benefiting from cavity wall insulation and loft insulation under the carbon emissions reduction target scheme in each of the years 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 can be downloaded from the following web address:

http://www.energysavingtrust.org.uk/business/Business/Information/Homes-Energy-Efficiency-Database-HEED/CERT-reports-from-HEED

This information is published by the Energy Saving Trust on behalf of DECC. Households will also have benefited from other measures promoted under CERT, including heating, lighting, appliances and subsidised DIY loft insulation, but there are no distributional data on these.

Carbon Offset Credits

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if the Government will take steps to prevent the double counting of carbon offset credits against both developed country targets and developing country pledges. [86514]

Gregory Barker: At the UN convention on climate change meeting in Durban, both developed and developing countries agreed to provide further clarification in 2012 of the mitigation pledges they have tabled to date. For developed countries this process will specifically include clarification of the assumptions and conditions related to the use of carbon credits in meeting pledges. The UK will fully engage in this process with a view to preventing any double counting of credits by advocating robust and comprehensive common accounting rules. Within the Kyoto protocol rules, emission reductions from carbon credits under the Clean Development Mechanism can only be used for compliance against developed country targets.

In Durban countries also recognised that, when considering the wider opportunities for using markets to enhance the cost-effectiveness of, and to promote, mitigation actions, such approaches:

"must meet standards that deliver, real, permanent, additional and verified mitigation outcomes, avoid double counting of effort, and achieve a net decrease and/avoidance of greenhouse gas emissions"[1].

Community Energy Saving Programme

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households in (a) England, (b) each local authority area and (c) each parliamentary constituency received assistance under the community energy saving programme in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) since April 2011. [86522]

Gregory Barker: The companies obligated under the community energy saving programme (September 2009 to December 2012) are not required to report on the number of households benefiting or where their schemes are located until after the programme ends in December 2012.

However, the companies provide estimates to Ofgem of their progress towards meeting their obligations, which Ofgem publishes annually. The first of these estimates to June 2011 indicated that 9,937 properties had been treated in England (this information is available only at a regional level):

Region	Properties treated (to June 2011)
North East	1,611
North West	3,129
Yorkshire and Humberside	1,524

Region	Properties treated (to June 2011)
West Midlands	1,912
East Midlands	533
East of England	193
London	715
South East	41
South West	179
Total	9,937

As CESP schemes take time to set up and complete there were no completed schemes in the period September 2009 to June 2010 and all these properties were treated in the period July 2010 to June 2011.

The next estimate of CESP progress, including the period up to the end of 2011, will be published in May 2012.

Departmental Equality

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent steps his Department has taken to increase equality in his Department; and at what cost to the public purse. [86239]

Gregory Barker: DECC is an equal opportunities employer and we have a published statement stating that DECC is committed to treating all staff and eligible job applicants fairly and without discrimination. In addition, DECC has a Diversity and Equality Strategy and a published Single Equality Scheme that has an action plan on how the Department can embed both equality and diversity in the Department. Our strategy statement sets out the Department's commitments. DECC aims to ensure that nobody is treated less favourably because of their: age, disability, gender, marital status, sexual orientation, gender reassignment, race, colour, nationality, ethnic or national origins, religion or beliefs, employment status. For example, part-time staff should be treated the same as full-time employees.

The Department has taken a number of steps in the last year that may lead to an increase in equality. Some of these steps have direct costs attributed to them.

The Department has submitted its application to the Stonewall Workplace Equality Index in September, which was at no cost.

A half-day disability awareness talk has been arranged to take place in December for all staff to increase the awareness of disabilities and how they can affect working practices at the Department. This was at a cost of £470.

The Department has rolled out a diversity e-learning programme to all staff at a cost of £8,235. DECC has advertised Whitehall-wide development programmes for staff who are under-represented in senior positions. This financial year, 13 DECC staff have commenced one of these courses at a cost of £19,500.

The Department ran an awareness session on disability for a group of senior staff at a cost of £2,796.

Electricity Generation

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what steps the National Grid has taken to validate the meter readings provided by short-term operating reserve aggregators; [86380]

(2) on how many occasions representatives of the National Grid have inspected the metering equipment of short-term operating reserve aggregators in the last year; [86381]

(3) on how many occasions the National Grid has sought penalty payments from short-term operating reserve aggregators for failing to meet their contractual requirements in the last year. [86382]

Charles Hendry: To monitor and despatch services from STOR providers, including aggregators, National Grid installs a Standing Reserve Despatch (SRD) system. This is connected to the reserve provider's metering equipment to allow the amount of reserve provided from the contracted site to be read each minute and communicated back to National Grid.

The rules surrounding the provision of accurate metering signals by all STOR providers (including aggregators) are contained within a contractually enforced document known as the STOR despatch procedure[1]. Through the rights and obligations placed upon STOR providers in this document, National Grid has the right to gain physical access to ascertain the accuracy and adequacy of the metering equipment providing the metering signals and of the resultant data sent to the SRD system. In addition a STOR provider is required by the STOR despatch document to:

(a) ensure that all metering systems comply with the relevant industry metering standards as set out in the Balancing and Settlement Code Codes of Practice;

(b) ensure that all of those meters are kept in calibration; and

(c) provide National Grid with copies of the meter calibration certificates confirming the same.

Aggregators use their own technology to meter each sub-site and aggregate this information which is then fed into the SRD system. National Grid agrees the chosen methodology with each aggregator (which may vary depending on the combination of generation/demand reduction) and subsequently monitors the performance of aggregated sites using a combination of metering data fed into the SRD system and off-line metering data provided by the aggregator[2]. The latest version of the standard contractual agreements for aggregators introduces terms to clarify that, should National Grid wish to discharge its rights to gain access to metering equipment for verification purposes, then given not less than five business days notice of such request, the aggregator has an obligation to provide such access.

Government do not hold information on how many occasions representatives of National Grid inspect the metering equipment of STOR aggregators or sought penalty payments from STOR aggregators for failing to meet their contractual requirements. As the system operator, National Grid is responsible for keeping the system in balance (including the procurement of balancing services) under the terms of its transmission licence and is not required to report this information to the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, the right hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne).

Published on 19 October 2011

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the average price paid by the National Grid is for each megawatt of electricity it buys. [86383]

Charles Hendry: National Grid, as the system operator, is responsible for keeping the system in balance, including the procurement of balancing services under the terms of its transmission licence.

National Grid procures these services in order to ensure the security and quality of electricity supply across the GB Transmission System. National Grid is not required to report to the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, the right hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne), so does not inform the Government of the average price paid for the electricity it procures.

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what information he has received from the National Grid on the auditing criteria it applies to its contracts with short-term operating reserve aggregators; [86384]

(2) what information he has received from the National Grid on the number of short-term operating reserve contracts that it has audited in the last year. [86385]

Charles Hendry: National Grid, as the system operator, is responsible for keeping the system in balance, including the procurement of balancing services under the terms of its transmission licence. National Grid is not required to report to the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, the right hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne).

Electricity: Prices

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the effect on the average household electricity bill by 2020 of his decision to switch the source of funding carbon capture and storage technology from an additional levy on consumer bills to general taxation. [86495]

Charles Hendry: DECC previously estimated that the CCS levy would have added 2%-3% to average household electricity bills in 2020.

Energy: Private Rented Housing

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what inspection mechanisms he plans to put in place to ensure that private rented properties meet the minimum energy standards required by the provisions of the Energy Act 2011 by April 2016. [86456]

Gregory Barker: Under the provisions in the Energy Act 2011, regulations will be made no later than:

April 2016, so that residential landlords will not be able to unreasonably refuse requests from their tenants for consent to energy efficiency improvements, where financial support is available; and

April 2018, so that all private rented properties must be brought up to a minimum energy efficiency standard, likely to be set at 'E'.

Local authorities will enforce the domestic minimum standard regulations, with the ability to impose a civil fine of up to £5,000. Trading Standards will enforce the minimum standards in the non-domestic sector; the level of civil penalty will be defined in secondary legislation. We expect that the EPC database will be a key inspection mechanism as it will show the EPC rating of properties in the local area.

European Parliament Vote: Manpower

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff in his Department were deployed on the inquiry into the outcome of the European Parliament vote of 5 July 2011 on carbon emissions targets. [86527]

Gregory Barker: There has been no inquiry by my officials into the European Parliament's vote on EU greenhouse gas emission reductions, which took place on 5 July 2011.

Fuels: Poverty

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households have been removed from fuel poverty (a) since the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target was introduced, (b) since the Community Energy Savings programme was introduced and (c) since the start of the Warm Front scheme. [85909]

Gregory Barker [holding answer 12 December 2011]: The Community Energy Savings programme (CESP) was introduced in 2009, the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT) was introduced in 2008 and the Warm Front scheme was introduced in 2000.

There are a number of policies that have been in place since 2000 that will help customers pay or reduce their energy bills—including CESP, CERT, Warm Front, Decent Homes, Warm Home Discount and the benefit payments that are wholly or partly related to energy costs. It is likely that the current level of fuel poverty in England would be higher had these policies not been implemented. However, no assessment has been made of the aggregate impact of Government action in this area.

Green Deal Scheme

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff in his Department are assigned to work on (a) the Green Deal, (b) the Energy company obligation, (c) international climate change issues, (d) the Green Economy, (e) feed-in tariffs, (f) carbon capture and storage and (g) promoting the interests of energy consumers. [86608]

Gregory Barker: There are currently 57.6 staff working on the Green Deal, 16 staff on the energy company obligation, 48 staff on international climate change, 14 staff on feed-in tariffs, and 35.3 staff on carbon capture and storage. Many of DECC's policies, and the staff working on them, contribute towards the Green Economy and to promoting the interests of energy consumers.

Natural Gas: Exploration

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) when he plans to publish his Department's geomechanical study into the relationship between shale gas drilling and the seismic activity in the vicinity of Cuadrilla Resources Preese Hall-1 well on the Lancashire coast at Fylde in April and May 2011; [86814]

(2) what the terms of reference are for his Department's geomechanical study into the relationship between shale gas drilling and the seismic activity in the vicinity of Cuadrilla Resources Preese Hall-1 well on the Lancashire coast at Fylde in April and May 2011. [86815]

Charles Hendry: Following the seismic tremors experienced in Poulton-le-Fylde in Lancashire in April and May, DECC asked Cuadrilla to carry out a geomechanical study to look specifically at the geological and seismic properties of the rock strata and shale in and around Poulton-le-Fylde, and any linkages between the recent seismic tremors and hydraulic fracturing operations in the area. The study, which confirms a connection between the hydraulic fracturing at the Preese Hall-1 well and the seismic activity which took place on 1 April and 27 May 2011, was submitted to DECC, and published by the company, on 2 November 2011.

No decision on the resumption of these hydraulic fracture operations will be made until the implications of this report, and of any further analysis which may prove necessary, has been fully considered and appropriate practical measures have been approved by Ministers to minimise the risk of such events occurring again. Other key regulators will be consulted before any such decision is taken.

Natural Gas: Prices

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the effect on the average household gas bill by 2020 of his decision to switch the source of funding for the Renewable Heat Incentive from an additional levy on consumer bills to general taxation. [86494]

Gregory Barker: After the February 2010 consultation on the RHI, the decision was taken to fund the RHI through general taxation rather than an additional levy. At the time of this decision, the scheme was expected to have led to a peak increase in the average household gas bill of £104 per year in 2020 (ramping up from a very small impact in the first year of the scheme).

Since the decision to fund through general taxation, the RHI design has undergone a number of changes. However, no subsequent further assessment of the potential impact on household bills has been undertaken, as the decision to fund through general taxation had been made.

Nuclear Power

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what additional costs his Department will incur in implementing the recommendations in Dr Weightman's report on the implications for the UK nuclear industry of the Japanese earthquake and tsunami. [86747]

Charles Hendry: Nuclear safety is a top priority. The relevant recommendations from Dr Weightman's report will be implemented as part of our ongoing commitment to continuous improvement and any such associated costs to the Department will be borne by the overall departmental budget. Any increase in costs for new nuclear power stations will be borne by the operators.

Ofgem: Fines

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many fines Ofgem has imposed in each of the last 10 years; and what the monetary value was of each fine. [86525]

Charles Hendry: The information requested is a matter for Ofgem. The chief executive of Ofgem will write to the hon. Lady and place a copy of the letter in the Libraries of the House.

Renewable Energy: Feed-in Tariffs

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change, pursuant to the answer of 25 November 2011, Official Report, column 616W, on feed-in tariffs, when he expects the second consultation on the comprehensive review to be published. [85778]

Gregory Barker: We intend to publish the second consultation on the comprehensive review in January 2012.

Solar Power: Feed-in Tariffs

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what representations he has received on his proposals to reduce the feed-in tariff applicable to new solar photovoltaic installations; if he will consider a transition period with an intermediary tariff rate for the purpose of mitigating the effects of such changes on communities and households; and if he will make a statement. [83493]

Gregory Barker: The Department has received a number of representations on the proposals set out in the consultation on feed-in tariffs (FITs) for solar photovoltaics. These include representations suggesting different approaches to implementing the proposed new tariffs including through transitional arrangements such as an intermediary tariff rate.

The consultation closes on 23 December 2011 and we will consider all representations made.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Billing

Joseph Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what discussions he has had with his French counterpart on the efficacy of limiting payment periods between companies to 60 days as required by the French loi de modernisation de l'économie 2008. [86063]

Mr Davey: BIS officials have been in regular discussion with their French counterparts about late payment legislation in France, in the context of the working group on the development of the recast directive on combating late payment in commercial transactions.

This Government have made clear their objective of challenging the long-standing culture of late payment, which persists across all sectors of the economy and across businesses of all sizes, and we have supported a multi-faceted strategy for improving business cash flow alongside the UK's leading business and finance organisations.

We continue to monitor payment across the economy and will not rule out any measures which have the support of the business community in the UK. However, there has been long-standing and widespread opposition from UK business to Government intervention in contractual freedoms, including on payment terms. I understand that the French legislation allows sectors to apply for exemption and that this has been utilised by a large number of sectors.

Joseph Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment his Department has made of recent trends in the average length of payment terms by suppliers to small and medium-sized enterprises. [86065]

Mr Prisk: The Department does not hold data on the average length of payment terms agreed between suppliers and customers. There is no effective way of collecting and collating the enormous volume of formal and informal agreements that take place between suppliers and their customers every day across the UK.

However, the Department has a long-standing partnership with the UK's leading business representatives and finance organisations to develop a culture of prompt payment, and our work with them suggests that the typical payment term offered by customers in the UK is 30 days net monthly—that is, 30 days following the end of the month in which the invoice is received.

While we do not hold data on average payment terms, we do measure actual payment performance. The Department commissions Experian to provide data on customer payment performance each quarter. For payment by firms who are not in liquidation or receivership (and can therefore be considered to be live trading firms), data for the third quarter of 2011 (July-September) show that small and medium-sized firms (those with fewer than 250 employees) were paid on average 16.45 days beyond contract terms. This is half a day higher than the previous quarterly figure of 15.96 days. This is the first quarterly increase in this figure since the fourth quarter of 2010. However, the current level of late payment is still 0.2 days lower than the same period last year. This measure peaked during the recession in Q1 2009 at 20.3 days beyond term.

Experian measures payment performance based upon the terms provided by the supplier in their invoice. We know that many suppliers assume a 30-day payment period while customer terms are typically 30 days net monthly. This might in part explain the apparent difference in supplier expectation and actual payment as recorded by Experian. To enable effective cash flow management it is therefore vital that suppliers agree payment terms in advance of supply to avoid unexpected and unplanned cash flow pressures—we believe advance agreement of payment terms does not happen in at least half of all UK transactions.

Business Cash Flow

Joseph Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps his Department is taking to improve cash flows for small and medium-sized enterprises. [86067]

Mr Prisk: The Government understand the importance of managing cash flow and are determined to do everything they can to help business do this successfully. Transforming the longstanding culture of late payment requires a multi-faceted strategy to engage and educate business.

Late payment legislation gives businesses a statutory right to claim interest from other businesses for the late payment of commercial debt, and where there are no pre-agreed payment terms, the legislation provides that the payment period is 30 days from the later of either delivery of goods or receipt of invoice. Further advice on this legislation and on claiming interest for late payments can be found at:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file37581.pdf

The Prompt Payment Code developed with the Institute of Credit Management (ICM) seeks to identify payment exemplars across both the public and private sectors and to codify good practice. Signatories to the code are required to pay within agreed terms and to communicate effectively with suppliers. As at 1 December 2011, nearly 1,060 organisations have signed up to the Prompt Payment Code. Further information on the code can be found at:

http://www.promptpaymentcode.org.uk/

We have also worked with the ICM to produce a series of checklists on all aspects of cash flow management, available at:

http://www.creditmanagement.org.uk/bisguides.htm

As at November 2011, there have been nearly 265, 000 downloads of the guides.

It is also important that the public sector sets a strong example, and central Government Departments now aim to pay 80% of undisputed invoices within five days. In October 2011, this Department paid 95.6% of its invoices within this timeframe. To ensure the benefits of prompt payment to main contractors are felt through the supply chain, all Departments have included a clause in their contracts that requires main contractors to pay their suppliers within 30 days.

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he plans to take to penalise institutions which do not meet their widening participation obligations as defined in their access agreements. [86607]

Mr Hayes: It is a matter for the director of fair access to determine whether an institution has complied with the terms of its access agreement.

Where the director decides that an institution has failed to meet the conditions of its access agreement, he may impose a financial sanction (via the funding body) up to a maximum of £500,000 or refuse to renew the access agreement. He may also require restitution if students have been disadvantaged or commitments have not been honoured.

The Government have committed to strengthen the Office for Fair Access (OFFA) so it can provide a more active and energetic challenge and support to universities and colleges. We will make significantly more resources available, increasing capacity up to around four times its original level and equipping OFFA to use fully its powers to monitor and review access agreements.

We are currently considering whether the director of fair access has the right powers, taking into account the responses to the White Paper and the technical consultation that followed. We will set out our plans in the draft Bill that we shall be presenting to Parliament next year.

Court Orders: Kingston upon Hull

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many court orders have been obtained through the Kingston upon Hull Official Receiver's office for foreign nationals in each of the last five years. [86531]

Mr Davey: Information concerning the number of bankruptcy orders in relation to foreign nationals is not collated and the costs of obtaining it would be disproportionate.

Degrees

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent discussions he has had with the Higher Education Funding Council for England on the future of degree-awarding powers. [86548]

Mr Hayes: The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) continues to be actively involved at official level in meetings and discussions on the proposed reforms to higher education, including the future of degree-awarding powers. For example, HEFCE was represented at two stakeholder meetings in September on the proposed regulatory framework as part of the Department's recent technical consultation, which ran until 27 October. These meetings included discussion of degree-awarding powers. HEFCE's own response to the consultation is available at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/reform/response.htm

In addition, I met with the chief executive and the chairman of HEFCE on 18 November to discuss various aspects of HEFCE's role in the future regulatory system.

A quarterly-updated list of all BIS ministerial meetings with external organisations is available at:

http://www.bis.gov.uk/transparency/staff

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what risk registers are held by the non-departmental public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85698]

Mr Davey: Non-departmental public bodies associated with BIS have responsibility themselves to ensure that they have appropriate risk management tools and processes in place. The core Department does not hold information on individual organisations' risk registers.

Details of the Department's risk and control framework can be found in the annual report and accounts 2010-11:

"The Department's approach is to assign risks to those best placed to manage them. Our approach is to establish clear accountability and ownership of risk so as to ensure the risk is managed at the appropriate level and mechanisms are in place to escalate significant risks to senior management".

Employment: Young People

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether 18 to 24-year-old citizens of other EU member states will be eligible for the Youth Contract. [85677]

Chris Grayling: I have been asked to reply.

Support offered through each element of the Youth Contract will have its own eligibility requirements. EU citizens aged 18 to 24 are able to access the support on offer provided that they meet the relevant requirements.

Higher Education: Admissions

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether designated higher education course places will be included in the Higher Education Funding Council for England student number allocation in the next academic year. [86032]

Mr Hayes: Existing legislation does not allow us to impose conditions or sanctions relating to student number controls on privately funded institutions, therefore these courses will not be included in the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) student number allocation in the next academic year. HEFCE's allocations will include places on designated higher education courses at institutions that they fund (and which accounts for most of the designated higher education course places).

However, as we set out in the Higher Education White Paper and associated technical consultation, the future regulatory framework will ensure that providers which access student support funding will have to meet, in a proportionate and risk-based manner, a number of conditions in future including reformed student number controls.

In the meantime the Department receives quarterly updates on the number of students accessing student support on these courses from the Student Loans Company.

Higher Education: Dartford

Gareth Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many students from Dartford constituency were accepted on to courses at (a) Oxford university and (b) the University of Cambridge in each of the last five years. [85461]

Mr Hayes: The information is not held centrally. UCAS holds this information, but its policy is that for reasons of confidentiality it does not release figures for individual institutions where the cell counts for accepted applicants are low.

Higher Education: Greater Manchester

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many students from Oldham East and Saddleworth constituency were accepted on to courses at (a) Oxford university and (b) the University of Cambridge in each academic year since 2001. [85212]

Mr Hayes: The information is not held centrally. UCAS holds this information, but its policy is that for reasons of confidentiality it does not release figures for individual institutions where the cell counts for accepted applicants are low.

Insolvency

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) what recent assessment he has made of the levels of bankruptcy tourism in the UK; and what steps he is taking to support the Insolvency Service in tackling that practice; [86461]

(2) what steps he is taking to support the Insolvency Service in introducing safeguards against abuse by foreign nationals declaring themselves bankrupt in England and Wales. [86530]

Mr Davey: Under European insolvency law, bankruptcy proceedings can only be commenced where the individual's centre of main interests lies. Where an abuse of that law is proven to have taken place and a bankrupt's centre of main interests is found not to have been in the country where the application is made, an application to annul a bankruptcy order will be made. Analysis of bankruptcy orders undertaken by the Insolvency Service in respect of England and Wales indicates that incidences of abuse of this process are extremely rare.

The Insolvency Service has already taken action in such cases and also against companies involved in encouraging individuals to make false applications to our courts.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many insolvencies were identified for further investigation in Official Receivers' offices in each of the last five years. [86466]

Mr Davey: The number of insolvencies identified for further investigation (FI) in the last five years are:

Period in which FI decision made	Cases identified for FI	Total insolvencies
1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008	7,970	69,227
1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009	7,484	74,163
1 April 2009 to 31 March 2010	5,518	79,498
1 April 2010 to 31 March 2011[1]	4,158	57,385
1 April 2011 to 30 November 2011	2,179	28,036

[1] Data for October 2010 not available.

Official Receivers deal only with Compulsory Liquidations and Bankruptcies and on average a further investigation decision is made within 56 days of an insolvency order.

The number of cases identified for further investigation has been compared, in the table above, with the number of insolvencies dealt with for a corresponding period commencing two months prior to reflect the time taken to make the further investigation decision.

Not all cases identified for further investigation result in criminal or civil proceedings as further inquiries can reveal satisfactory explanations or mitigating factors. The Insolvency Service periodically reviews its guidance and training to improve efficiency in terms of the number of cases which are marked as further investigation but do not result in either criminal or civil proceedings.

The Insolvency Service introduced a new computer system in October 2010 and due to technical issues it is not possible to extract the data for October 2010 without disproportional costs being incurred.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent assessment he has made of trends in the number of (a) bankruptcy restriction orders and undertakings and (b) disqualification orders and undertakings obtained by the Insolvency Service in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [86476]

Mr Davey: In respect of director disqualifications, the Insolvency Service plan range for 2011/12 is 1,250 to 1,350, which is broadly in line with previous years.

In respect of bankruptcy and debt relief restrictions, the plan range for 2011/12 is 700 to 1,000, reflecting the significant fall in new bankruptcy case numbers.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, pursuant to the answer of 24 October 2011, Official Report, columns 95-96W, on insolvency, how many staff at each grade will be transferred to alternative offices as a result of implementation of the delivery strategy. [86536]

Mr Davey: The Insolvency Service's delivery strategy aims to restructure the organisation to make it more able to respond flexibly to future volatility in the case numbers that it deals with.

Staff will not, in the short term, be required to move office as a result of the implementation of the delivery strategy. It is being implemented in a virtual, i.e. non-physical, way, until at least 2014. The process by which the Insolvency Service moves to physical implementation of the delivery strategy, beyond 2014, is still being discussed and will form part of future consultations with staff.

The Insolvency Service has, however, announced its intention to proceed to public consultations on the closure of its offices in Stockton, Bournemouth and Medway. This is part of its response to significant reductions in case volumes. The closures are also subject to funding being secured. It is intended that the staff and work of these offices would be merged with neighbouring offices.

The current number of staff, identified by grade, in each of those offices is shown in the following table.

	D3	D2	C2	C1	L3	L2	L1	B3	B2	B1	A2	A1	Total
Stockton	0	0	2	0	7	4	4	0	2	4	13	3	39
Bournemouth	0	1	3	0	3	1	4	0	1	1	6	0	20
Medway	0	1	3	0	6	3	1	0	1	3	12	4	34

The number of staff required in each office, in respect of the Official Receivers Services, part of the Insolvency Service, is a factor of how many cases the Insolvency Service receives. These have been declining, and are expected to decline further, and staffing complements are likely to be adjusted if this trend continues. This is a separate issue from the delivery strategy whose purpose is to deliver a new and more flexible operating model for the Insolvency Service.

The delivery strategy does, however, anticipate further office closures/mergers that have not yet been identified. The Insolvency Service has announced a move towards a revised structure of eight Insolvency Service centre locations across England and Wales, with a network of around a further 17 Insolvency Service local office locations. In the longer term, this would reduce the total number of locations to about 25, some 10 fewer than now.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how much his Department has recovered from payments made to the family and friends of a bankrupt who had a bankruptcy restriction order or undertaking made against them in each of the last five years. [86542]

Mr Davey: This information cannot be provided as the amount of payments recovered from family and friends of a bankrupt is not identified separately.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many bankruptcy restriction (a) orders and (b) undertakings have been obtained against individuals who have repaid family and friends rather than other creditors in each of the last five years. [86543]

Mr Davey: No statistics are maintained for bankruptcy restriction cases in the last five years that concern repayments to family and friends as creditors rather than other creditors.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (a) how many and what grades of staff and (b) what other resources are required by the Insolvency Service to obtain a disqualification (i) order and (ii) undertaking for (A) one to five years, (B) six to 10 years and (C) 11 to 15 years. [86544]

Mr Davey: Statistics are not maintained for how many and what grades of staff and what "other resources" (howsoever defined) are needed for obtaining disqualification orders or undertakings in each of quoted brackets and the costs of collating them would be disproportionate.

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what the average cost was of obtaining a disqualification (a) order and (b) undertaking for a period of disqualification of (i) one to five, (ii) six to 10 and (iii) 11 to 15 years, in each of the last five years. [86551]

Mr Davey: Statistics are not maintained for the "average cost" of obtaining disqualification orders or undertakings and the costs of collating them would be disproportionate.

Insolvency: Northern Region

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, pursuant to the answer of 24 October 2011, Official Report, columns 95-96W, on insolvency, how many staff at each grade are employed in each of the northern offices of the Insolvency Service; and how many will be employed in each such office following implementation of the delivery strategy. [86537]

Mr Davey: The Insolvency Service's delivery strategy aims to restructure the organisation to make it more able to respond flexibly to future volatility in the case numbers that it deals with. This will change the current regional structure.

The offices in the existing north region currently have the following staffing complements broken down by grade.

	D3	D2	C2	C1	L3	L2	L1	B3	B2	B1	A2	A1	Total
Newcastle	0	1	4	0	7	5	3	0	1	3	10	5	40
Stockton	0	0	2	0	7	4	4	0	2	4	13	3	39
Leeds	0	2	5	1	15	5	12	0	3	9	22	4	78
Blackpool	0	1	4	0	9	4	10	0	1	3	15	6	53
Manchester	3	6	24	6	27	9	7	0	6	3	32	4	127

	D3	D2	C2	C1	L3	L2	L1	B3	B2	B1	A2	A1	Total
Liverpool	0	0	3	1	3	4	2	1	0	2	7	7	30
Chester	0	0	2	0	5	2	7	0	2	3	10	3	34
Stoke	0	1	4	0	5	2	4	0	2	5	25	1	49
Hull	0	0	3	0	9	2	9	0	1	4	16	7	51

Staffing levels are not intended to change in the short term or as a direct result of the implementation of the delivery strategy. It is being implemented in a virtual, i.e. non-physical, way, until at least 2014. The process by which the Insolvency Service moves to physical implementation of the delivery strategy, beyond 2014, is still being discussed and will form part of future consultations with staff.

A possible exception to this is the Stockton office as the Insolvency Service has announced its intention to issue a public consultation on the closure of this office in 2013, subject to funding being secured. There may be further, as yet unidentified, office closures/mergers in the northern offices as the Insolvency Service has indicated that, in the longer term, it anticipates reducing its total number of locations to around 25, some 10 fewer than now.

The number of staff required in each office, in respect of the Official Receivers Services, part of the Insolvency Service, is a factor of how many cases the Insolvency Service receives. The number of new cases has been declining, and is expected to decline further, and staffing complements are likely to be adjusted if this trend continues, including in the northern offices. This is a separate issue from the delivery strategy, whose purpose is to deliver a new and more flexible operating model for the Insolvency Service.

Accordingly, subject to these complementing issues, while at specific northern locations the staffing numbers may change and some locations may close, it is intended that, under the delivery strategy, the overall staffing levels across the northern offices would remain consistent.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills if he will take steps to ascertain what has become of the letter from him to the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr D. Wightman, which his Department sent on 17 October 2011, but which has not reached the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton. [85471]

Mr Davey: All letters from the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills to the House of Commons are delivered by Government Mail.

I can assure the right hon. Member that the letter would have been delivered in that manner.

The movement of letters within the House of Commons is not within the control of the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills.

A further copy of the letter of 17 October 2011 has been sent electronically and in hard copy to the right hon. Member's office.

Productivity

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the most recent industrial and manufacturing production figures; and what assessment he has made of the effect of his Department's policies on the levels of industrial production and manufacturing. [86214]

Mr Prisk [holding answer 12 December 2011]: The latest official figures for October 2011 show that manufacturing output fell by 0.7% in the three months to October 2011 compared with the previous three months, the first fall on this basis since October 2009. However, this is still 0.9% higher than the same period last year.

We recognise that the overall economic position is very difficult given the legacy and the external environment but we are determined to promote recovery. In the Autumn Statement last week, the Government announced a wide-ranging package building on the programme of reforms set out in the Plan for Growth, including £5 billion in new commitments to improve UK transport and broadband networks, as well as steps to attract major private sector investment.

Scholarships

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he is taking to assess the use of the National Scholarship Programme by institutions in 2012-13. [86549]

Mr Hayes: The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) has commissioned CFE Research and Consultancy, an independent research and consultancy body, to undertake an evaluation of the National Scholarship Programme.

The first phase of the project, running until early next year, will look at the set up of the programme by institutions, and the report will be published next spring. The second phase, which will include consideration of the first year of the programme, will survey both students and institutions, and will report in the autumn of 2013.

HEFCE will also monitor the targeting and take up of the awards through the annual returns that institutions make to the Higher Education Statistics Agency.

Third Sector

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, pursuant to the answer of 7 December 2011, Official Report, columns 330-1W, on third sector, (1) how much funding his Department provided to each organisation listed in 2010-11; and if he will make a statement; [86655]

(2) how much funding was provided to the organisations listed by other Directorates in his Department in 2011-12; and if he will make a statement; [86656]

(3) how much funding his Department provided to (a) the Royal Society, (b) the British Academy, (c) the Royal Academy of Engineering, (d) the Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Network, (e) the British Science Association, (f) the UK Resource Centre for Women in Science, Engineering and Technology, (g) the Design Council, (h) Natural England, (i) the UK Council for International Students, (j) Tate Britain, (k) the British Council, (l) the Royal Anniversary Trust, (m) the Raleigh International Trust (n) the Association of Commonwealth Universities, (o) the National Foundation for Education and (p) Royal Botanic Kew Gardens in 2010-11. [86657]

Mr Hayes: The following table lists the information held by the Department for 2010-11 and 2011-12 and supersedes the answer of 7 December 2011, Official Report, columns 330-31W. None of the bodies concerned receive direct departmental funding in 2011-12 other than through the Knowledge and Innovation Group.

	2010-11	2011-12
Royal Society	48,558	47,830

Universities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills if he will make it his policy to require universities to have in place a policy on academic conflicts of interest; and if he will make a statement. [86469]

Mr Hayes: The Government do not intend to put in place any new regulations on universities regarding the treatment of conflicts of interest. This issue is already addressed in a number of ways including grant funding terms and other governance arrangements in the university, although a number of institutions do bring these together in a single institution-wide policy.

WOMEN AND EQUALITIES

Equality and Human Rights Commission

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities for what reason the need for political balance in respect of the composition of the Commissioners of the Equality and Human Rights Commission was not included as an issue in the recent public consultation; and if she will make a statement. [85332]

Lynne Featherstone: Public appointments should be on the basis of merit, not political affiliation. As we set out in our consultation, we want to see a smaller board with stronger corporate skills and experience, gained in the private, voluntary and public sectors.

Fawcett Society: Finance

Karl McCartney: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities (1) what funding from the public purse has been allocated to the Fawcett Society in any future years for which figures are available; [81405]

(2) what funding the Fawcett Society received from the public purse in each of the last five years. [81406]

Lynne Featherstone: This information is not collected centrally. However, the Government Equalities Office (GEO) made two payments during 2008-09 in respect of publications amounting to £11,150.

There are no future plans to fund the Fawcett Society.

The Equality and Human Rights Commission is an arm's length body; the following is based on information it has provided.

The Equality and Human Rights Commission procured publication services from the Fawcett Society in 2010 to the value of £5,700.

The Commission has allocated no future grant funding to the Fawcett Society.

EDUCATION

Children: Disability

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) how many (a) deafblind and (b) multi-sensory impaired children with a statement have been provided with intervenor support in each of the last five years; [85557]

(2) how many (a) deafblind and (b) multi-sensory impaired children received a statutory assessment in each of the last five years; [85558]

(3) how many children (a) are deafblind (b) have another form of multi-sensory impairment in England. [85559]

Sarah Teather: The school census collects information on pupils with different types of special educational needs. It includes a category for 'multi-sensory impairment' but not a separate category for 'deafblind'.

In January 2011, the school census showed that there were 935 pupils with multi-sensory impairment as their primary type of need who were receiving support through either School Action Plus or through a statement of special educational needs.

Information on the number of children with multi-sensory impairment who received a statutory assessment, and the numbers provided with intervenor support is not held centrally.

Early Intervention Grant

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what funding he is providing to local authorities through the early intervention grant in financial year 2012-13. [85791]

Sarah Teather: OCLG announced the provisional local government finance settlement on 8 December. This included revised figures for the indicative early intervention grant (EIG) allocations for 2012-13. The indicative EIG allocation for 2012-13 is £2,365,200,000.

Information on individual local authorities indicative EIG allocations is available on the Department's website at:

http://www.education.gov.uk/childrenandyoungpeople/informationforprofessionals/a0070357/early-intervention-grant-frequently-asked-questions/

These figures are still indicative and the allocations will be confirmed in February when the Department issues the 2012-13 EIG determination letter.

Education: Rural Areas

Dr Poulter: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps his Department is taking to ensure future funding models do not disadvantage rural areas. [84094]

Mr Gibb: The recent consultation on reforming the school funding system looked carefully at how rural schools should be supported. The Department for Education is considering responses to the consultation and discussing options with interested parties, including those who represent rural areas, before we decide how to proceed. We aim to consult on more detailed proposals in the spring.

Free Schools: Vetting

Ian Mearns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he has taken to ensure that all free school employees have been CRB checked. [84112]

Mr Gibb: Free schools have a statutory duty to ensure that all members of staff have received an enhanced CRB check prior to their appointment or as soon as practically possible thereafter, and that this check confirms their suitability to work with children.

General Teaching Council

Mr Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what assessment he has made of the (a) cost and (b) benefits of the abolition of the General Teaching Council; [86389]

(2) how many staff will cease to be employed as a result of the abolition of the General Teaching Council; [86343]

(3) how many representations he has received on the abolition of the General Teaching Council; [86344]

(4) what plans he has to establish communication mechanisms between teachers and his Department following the abolition of the General Teaching Council; [86345]

(5) what plans he has to promote professional skills for teachers following the abolition of the General Teaching Council. [86346]

Mr Gibb: The Education Act 2011 provided for the General Teaching Council for England (GTCE) to be abolished on 31 March 2012. Those functions of the GTCE that are continuing will be carried out by the Teaching Agency, an executive agency of the Department for Education, which will be established on 1 April 2012. The impact assessment for the Education Act 2011 is available from the Department's website:

http://media.education.gov.uk/assets/files/pdf/h/education%20bill%20%20%20impact%20assessment%20ia.pdf

Included within this is an assessment of the cost and benefits of the abolition of the GTCE. The cost of abolition is estimated to be £15 million and the savings from abolition are estimated to be £11 million per annum between 2012-13 and 2019-20.

During the passage of the Education Act 2011 the Department received 93 pieces of correspondence relating to the abolition of the GTCE. In addition, officials have met unions to discuss the abolition of the GTCE and a public consultation was held on the teacher disciplinary and induction regulations. The consultation ran from 20 July to 12 October 2011 and a summary of responses will be published on the Department's website shortly at:

www.education.gov.uk/consultations

GTCE employees are able to transfer to the DfE or its agencies, or accept voluntary redundancy under the GTCE's own scheme. Until the GTCE has closed its voluntary redundancy scheme we will not know how many staff members have decided not to accept a transfer to the Department.

The Department has transition plans in place to continue any essential communications that are required following the abolition of the General Teaching Council. Plans are under way to transfer essential web content and other materials, and to consider any direct communications that may be needed. In line with our wider efficiencies work and work to reduce the bureaucratic burdens on teachers, we are taking the opportunity to refine our communications, slim down guidance and cut unnecessary activity. Communications with teachers will continue through the Teaching Agency from 1 April.

The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), outlined his plans to develop the professional skills of teachers in the Schools White Paper: The Importance of Teaching and the ITT Strategy. This approach is based on research that shows that teachers learn best from other professionals through observing teaching, being observed, and receiving feedback from peers. On 8 November the Department published an implementation plan for changes to initial teacher training (ITT) from 2012/13. This includes proposals to reform training so that more ITT is led by schools and there is focus on the most important elements of being a teacher.

New Teacher Standards will come into force from September 2012 and will focus on the essential elements of effective teaching and the professional conduct expected of every teacher. We are also creating a national network of teaching schools on the model of teaching hospitals and launching a new scholarship scheme for teachers. It will be the role of the Teaching Agency to promote the use of the Standards at all levels in professional development, performance management and in procedures for underperforming teachers.

National Curriculum: Cybercrime

Mr Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if there are any plans to introduce the subject of cyber-security into the national curriculum. [84073]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 1 December 2011]: We aim to reform the national curriculum so that it properly reflects the body of essential knowledge in key subjects, leaving teachers greater flexibility to use their professional judgment to design wider school curricula that best meet the needs of their pupils. Teachers will be able to use this increased flexibility to teach pupils about important topics such as internet safety.

We will be announcing our initial proposals for the national curriculum next year, following which there will be full public consultation before final decisions are made.

Pre-school Education

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what criteria his Department will use to determine eligibility for free nursery places for two-year-olds announced in the Autumn Statement; [85792]

(2) how many children he expects to participate in the scheme providing free early years entitlement to children aged two in each financial year to 2014-15; [85793]

(3) what assessment he has made of the ability of local authorities to provide sufficient child care places to meet the demand for free early years entitlement for children aged two years; [85794]

(4) whether he will provide support to help local authorities increase local child care capacity to the levels needed to deliver free early years entitlement for children aged two years. [85795]

Sarah Teather: The Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Autumn Statement that the early education entitlement for two-year-olds will be expanded to cover around 260,000 children—around 40% of two-year-olds—by 2014-15. The Government intend to take a phased approach to the implementation of the new entitlement. The 20% most disadvantaged two-year-olds—around 130,000 children—will be eligible from September 2013. From 2014, the entitlement will be extended to 40%. Currently, around 20,000 two-year-olds access free early education places.

We are already consulting on proposals for eligibility criteria for the first phase of implementation from September 2013. We propose that two-year-olds who meet the criteria for free school meals, or who are looked after, should be eligible for the entitlement. We will publish further proposals in due course about eligibility criteria to reach 40% of two-year-olds from 2014, focusing on the children and families that need them most. We will seek the views of parents, early education providers and local authorities on how this can best be achieved.

In recognition of the costs involved in reaching around 40% of two-year-olds, the Government have announced additional funding. A further £68 million has been included in the Early Intervention Grant (EIG) in 2012-13, in addition to the £223 million that was previously announced in December 2010. This funding is available to local authorities to build towards the new entitlement. Many are already using this funding to offer places to the two-year-olds who need them most, as well as to build capacity locally and support quality improvements. The early years market is dynamic and diverse, and we expect that it will respond positively to the increase in demand that the new entitlement will create.

We are working with local authorities, providers, and their representative organisations to support them in delivering the entitlement. The Government have set aside £4 million in the current financial year for 18 local authorities who are testing new approaches in providing free early education for two-year-olds. There will also be £5 million funding available in 2012-13 to support local authorities' delivery of two-year-old places. The Department for Education will discuss how this resource can best be deployed with local government partners and other sector representatives.

Primary Education: Bournemouth

Mr Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent assessment he has made of the shortage of primary school places in Bournemouth. [84151]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 1 December 2011]: The Department collects information from each local authority on school capacity in maintained schools through an annual survey, which includes local authorities' own pupil forecasts. The most recent survey data relate to the position in May 2010 and are available on the Department for Education's website:

http://www.education.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STR/d000982/index.shtml

The Department provides capital funding to local authorities to ensure there are sufficient school places. It is the responsibility of each local authority to manage the supply and demand for school places in its area and to secure a place for every child of statutory school age who wants one.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Pat Glass: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if he will ensure that the funding per pupil in voluntary-aided schools is comparable to the funding per pupil in an academy school in the same local authority area if the local authority central spend equivalent element of an academy's general annual grant is disregarded. [84006]

Mr Gibb: We aim to fund academies at the same level as equivalent schools in the same local authority area, and the academies funding system is designed to achieve this.

Academies' funding agreements specify that their funding should be equivalent to their maintained peers. They are therefore funded according to the local funding formula which applies to maintained schools, including voluntary aided schools. There may be legitimate differences within this formula in recognition of voluntary aided schools' specific responsibilities and costs.

Schools: Rural Areas

George Freeman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether he has any plans to review the use of the Acorn funding formula for schools in rural areas; and if he will make a statement. [81345]

Mr Gibb: On 19 July 2011, the Department for Education published "A Consultation on School Funding Reform: proposals for a fairer system". The consultation sought views on the components and indicators of a potential new funding formula for schools. The consultation proposed using Free School Meals data to target money to deprived pupils rather than an area-based measure of deprivation. The consultation closed on 11 October and the Department is currently considering the responses. Further information on the reform of school funding will be made available in due course.

Sixth Form Education

Alex Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what consideration is given to existing post-16 provision in areas where a free school seeks to provide sixth form education. [84468]

Mr Gibb: Under section 9 of the Academies Act 2010, the Secretary of State for Education is under a duty to consider the impact of establishing a new school on maintained schools, academies and further education institutions in the area in which the new school is situated or proposed to be situated. This requirement applies in relation to the establishment free schools, including a free school proposing to offer post-16 provision.

Specialised Diplomas: Environment

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Education for what reason the Specialist Diploma in Environmental and Land-based Studies has been withdrawn. [86654]

Mr Gibb: Following consultation this summer, Ofqual is revising the regulatory arrangements for diplomas to allow awarding organisations to make their own decisions about whether to offer it as a qualification, based upon demand from schools and colleges. As a result, some awarding bodies have chosen to withdraw from the full diploma. Some awarding bodies will continue to offer the Principal Learning components as qualifications in their own right. These high quality vocational qualifications can support progression outside of the framework of the diploma and can be combined with other qualifications to meet the needs of a broad programme of study.

Teachers: Pensions

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment his Department has made of the pension entitlements of teachers in (a) the UK and (b) other OECD countries. [83611]

Mr Gibb: The provisions of the pension schemes covering teachers in England and Wales, Northern Ireland, and Scotland are broadly the same and consequently the pension entitlements for teachers across the UK will be more or less the same. The Department has made no assessment of the pension entitlements of teachers in the UK and other OECD countries.

Following the recommendations made by Lord Hutton of Furness in the report of the Independent Public Service Pensions Commission, the Department is currently discussing proposed reforms to the Teachers' Pension Scheme with the teacher unions and other stakeholders. The aim of those discussions is to secure a pension scheme that continues to be valued by the profession and which helps to continue to attract people of high ability into teaching.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Females

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will increase support for development programmes in Afghanistan that promote women's rights. [86163]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) is placing women and girls at the heart of its development programme and is already supporting women's rights in Afghanistan. During my recent visit to Kabul I launched the Strengthening Afghanistan's Civil Society Project ('Tawanmandi'—'Strengthening' in Dari). Jointly funded with Denmark, Norway and Sweden, Tawanmandi will provide grants to civil society organisations across Afghanistan to help them to engage more effectively with the Government and hold it to account. Human rights, particularly women's rights, and access to justice will be major themes.

In addition, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) provides support to the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission and the Human Rights Support Unit at the Ministry of Justice. The FCO also provides support to paralegal services working with women and girls in adult prisons and juvenile detention centres.

Conciliation Resources

Mr MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect on the work undertaken by Conciliation Resources in Abkhazia of Russia recognising Abkhazia as an independent state; and if he will make a statement. [86040]

Mr Lidington: I have been asked to reply.

Conciliation Resources has been working in Georgia since the mid 1990s. It continues to work on projects which are designed to improve the prospects for peace by connecting people across the conflict divide, challenging existing prejudices, and working to tackle the root causes of the conflict. These projects are consistent with the work of the internationally mediated Geneva Talks process. The work undertaken by Conciliation Resources in Abkhazia, Georgia promotes conflict resolution between Abkhazia and the rest of Georgia and in our assessment has had no bearing on Russia's decision to recognise Abkhazia as an independent state. The UK fully supports Georgia's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Mr MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he has received reports that the work of Conciliation Resources is going beyond its remit in Abkhazia; and if he will withdraw funding from Conciliation Resources if that is the case. [86041]

Mr Lidington: I have been asked to reply.

Conciliation Resources and other organisations like it are undertaking valuable work to build the foundations for future conflict resolution in Georgia. The Government of Georgia have raised the work of Conciliation Resources in Georgia with us. We have received no reports that show that the work of Conciliation Resources is going beyond its remit in Abkhazia, Georgia. We have no plans to amend funding levels.

Mr MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures his Department has in place to monitor the activities of Conciliation Resources in Abkhazia. [86042]

Mr Duncan: DFID provides support to Conciliation Resources through the Governance and Transparency Fund (GTF). The Conciliation Resources' programme works with groups in Sierra Leone, Guinea, Liberia, Uganda, Georgia-Abkhazia and Fiji to help women, men and youth in conflict-affected communities to work effectively with politicians and policymakers on issues that impact on their lives.

DFID monitors the GTF programmes through the assessment of annual reports and independent mid-term reviews.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85860]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development's two United Kingdom office staff restaurants have operated under contract to Mitie Technical Facilities Management since December 2010 on a non-subsidised basis.

Mitie Catering Services is currently working towards providing calorie labelling at the point of choice for standard food and drinks items. Prior to this information being displayed on menu boards for daily specials, Mitie Catering Services is testing the most effective way for this to be implemented into the business on such items as pre-packaged food products.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the countries of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85861]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development's (DFID) two United Kingdom office staff restaurants have operated under contract to Mitie Technical Facilities since December 2010 on a non-subsidised basis.

Mitie Catering does not currently display the country of origin on DFID's staff restaurant menus and display boards. However, the country of origin information is readily available along the supply chain and all products can be traced back to source.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85707]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: There are two non-departmental public bodies that fall under the responsibility of the Department for International Development (DFID): (a) the Independent Commission for Aid Impact (ICAI) and (b) the Commonwealth Scholarships Commission (CSC).

ICAI publishes in an annual corporate plan its approach to risk management and specific information on how it mitigates key risks. ICAI maintains a risk register as a central part of that risk management process. DFID scrutinises ICAI's risk management as part of the regular assurance activities, including internal audits, provided for in the framework agreement with ICAI.

CSC maintains a risk register which is reviewed annually by the Audit and Risk Management Committee and presented to the Commission each July.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86142]

Mr Duncan: From May 2010 the Department for International Development has:

(a) Two secondments from industry, both in policy development roles and both short-term.

Duration October to December 2011

(b) Six secondments from the third sector, all to policy development roles;

Four senior research fellows to work alongside the integrated policy and research teams. Duration for two years from March 2011.

Two social development advisers to work on Violence against Women. Duration for one year from October 2011.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85923]

Mr Duncan: The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the session. Statistics relating to the Government Department's performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Between May 2010 and November 2011 the Department for International Development (DFID) answered 1,499 ordinary written parliamentary questions within 10 sitting days and 90 within 20 sitting days. No ordinary written parliamentary questions took more than 20 sitting days to answer.

Developing Countries: Water

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what programmes his Department supports to educate children in international crisis zones on the importance of clean water. [85875]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides core funding to the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) which has an important role in ensuring children's basic needs are met, including access to and education in water and sanitation. UNICEF protects the health and well-being of children through the promotion of safe drinking water, especially during humanitarian crises.

DFID will provide £40 million in annual voluntary core funding to UNICEF for each of the next two financial years (2011-12 and 2012-13). There is also a provisional funding allocation of £40 million per year for financial years 2013-14 and 2014-15, dependant on a mid-point review.

In addition to this multilateral funding, DFID have also committed directly to delivering on a series of challenging targets concerning water and sanitation. These include making sure 15 million more people have access to clean drinking water, 25 million more people have access to improved sanitation facilities and 15 million more people are reached by hygiene promotion.

Development Aid

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on the Busan agreement on aid effectiveness. [86166]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The three main UK priorities of results, transparency and fragility are now enshrined in the Busan outcome document which can be found here:

http://www.aideffectiveness.org/busanhlf4/en/component/content/article/698.html

Further to this, the UK played a central role in developing an outcome document that could be supported by emerging economies including China, India and Brazil.

I have outlined in more detail the outcomes of Busan in my written ministerial statement dated 7 December 2011, Official Report, column 30WS.

I have engaged with a wide variety of actors throughout the process, including other donor countries, emerging economies, eg China during my visit just before Busan, developing country leaders, the UKAN (UK Aid Network) group of NGOs during the conference and more recently with BOAG (British Overseas Aid Group) upon my return. This was with the intention that as broad a set of stakeholders could sign up to the Busan outcome document as possible.

Kashmir: Overseas Aid

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department sponsors in Kashmir; and how much it spent in Kashmir in the last 12 months. [85755]

Mr Duncan: Under our International Partnership Agreement Programme, the Department for International Development provided £63,536 during 2010-11 to support Save the Children's work in Jammu and Kashmir. Our support to the Government of India's universal primary education programme (Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan) and National AIDS Control Programme also included Jammu and Kashmir.

Sri Lanka: International Assistance

Mr Virendra Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with the International Committee of the Red Cross on the progress of reconstruction and resettlement in Sri Lanka. [85939]

Mr Duncan: The Secretary of State for International Development, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr Mitchell), has not had any recent discussions with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) on the progress of reconstruction and resettlement in Sri Lanka. However, the British high commission in Colombo meets regularly with all international agencies present in Sri Lanka. They have regular discussions with the ICRC about the situation in Sri Lanka.

Mr Virendra Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the World Food Programme on the provision of emergency food assistance in the Northern Province of Sri Lanka. [85940]

Mr Duncan: The Secretary of State for International Development, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr Mitchell), has not had any recent discussions with the World Food Programme (WFP) on the provision of emergency food assistance in the Northern Province of Sri Lanka. However, the British high commission in Colombo meets regularly with all international agencies present in Sri Lanka, including those based in the north. They have regular discussions with the WFP about the situation in Sri Lanka.

World Toilet Day

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he took to raise awareness of World Toilet Day 2011. [85915]

Mr Duncan: In the run up to World Toilet Day, the Under-Secretary of State for International Development, my hon. Friend the Member for Eddisbury (Mr O'Brien), visited a sanitation project in Bangladesh to publicise the need for strong support in providing access to clean water, improved sanitation facilities and better hygiene practices.

These initiatives complement DFID's commitments to making sure 15 million more people have access to clean drinking water, 25 million more people have access to improved sanitation facilities and 15 million more people are reached by hygiene promotion.

DFID country offices were also involved in activities to promote sanitation on World Toilet Day. For example, DFID's Head of Office in Sierra Leone participated in an event organised by the Ministry of Health, the Urban WASH Consortium and UNICEF at a school in the east of the capital, Freetown.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 15 December 2011

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Live Music Industry

8. Kevin Brennan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to support the live music industry. [86791]

John Penrose: The Government are supporting the live music industry through delivering their commitment to free live performances from unnecessary red tape.

We are supporting the Live Music Bill which I hope, with the continued support of the Benches opposite, will successfully complete its remaining stages in the new year.

In addition, I am starting to consider responses to our consultation on proposals for wider deregulation of music and other cultural activities from the requirements of the Licensing Act 2003.

Secondary Ticketing Market

13. Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what recent representations he has received on the regulation of the secondary ticketing market. [86799]

Mr Jeremy Hunt: On 28 November I met the hon. Member and my hon. Friend the Member for Hove (Mike Weatherley) with a delegation from the cultural industries and sport. I made clear at that meeting my view that industry solutions, particularly technical ones, should be exhausted before looking at regulatory ones.

Broadband: Mobile Phones

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport when he expects to meet his target to extend (a) mobile telephone coverage to 99 per cent. of the population and (b) superfast broadband to 90 per cent. of homes. [86803]

Mr Vaizey: It is expected that both targets will be met by 2015.

Local Broadcasting: Television

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport when he next expects to make an announcement on provision of local television in Wales. [86201]

Mr Vaizey: The Government's response to the consultations on the Framework for Local TV consultation and Pioneer Locations was published on 13 December 2011. This includes details of the first locations that Ofcom expects to invite applications for local TV licences and confirms the legislative proposals.

It is expected that Cardiff and Swansea will be licensed in the first tranche, followed by Bangor and Mold subsequently.

Olympic Games 2012: National Lottery

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the extra lottery funding that will become available for good causes after the London 2012 Olympics; and if he will make a statement. [86886]

John Penrose: After the transfers to the Olympics have been taken into account, income for the good causes in the current financial year is estimated to be £1,349 million, based on our most recent September projections. Income in the 2013-14 financial year, when the Olympic transfers will have finished, is estimated to be £1,749 million.

Olympic Games 2012: Plastic Bags

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport whether the organisers of the London 2012 Olympics have any plans to discourage usage of plastic carrier bags at the Games. [86496]

Hugh Robertson: The London 2012 Organising Committee (LOCOG) will not be providing single-use or short-life disposable plastic bags to customers in its shops. High-quality recyclable bags will be provided, but only on request, when they will be promoted as being reusable for multiple occasions. LOCOG is identifying the most sustainable solution and will announce this in due course.

LOCOG's sponsors and suppliers will be required to adhere to the London 2012 Sustainable Sourcing Code as they develop their plans for any packaging, including bags where appropriate.

Sports: Facilities

Charlotte Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to prevent the closure of community sports facilities as a result of reductions in local authority funding. [86800]

Hugh Robertson: Sport England is investing £135 million of lottery funding through the 'Places, People, Play' programme, the majority of which will be invested in facilities to deliver a tangible sporting legacy. It has also developed a range of support tools, including an online toolkit for national governing bodies, local authorities and sports clubs to use the opportunity of community asset transfer to take control of sports facilities on a sustainable basis.

In addition, the Localism Bill includes provisions to give community groups a great opportunity to bid to take over assets listed as Asset of Community Value, if they are made available for sale.

Television Licenses (Northern Ireland)

Mr Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport if he will consider offering two licences in Northern Ireland at the initial stage as part of his plans for local television. [86084]

Mr Vaizey: On 13 December 2011, the Government published details of the first locations that Ofcom expects to invite applications for local TV licences.

These are subject to further consultation; however it is expected that Belfast will be in the first tranche and Derry/Londonderry and Limavady subsequently.

HEALTH

Heart Diseases: Screening

Mr Buckland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions he has had with healthcare commissioners on the potential inclusion of pulse checks in NHS health checks for the purposes of achieving early diagnosis of atrial fibrillation; [86540]

(2) what consideration he has given to the inclusion of pulse checks as a compulsory part of NHS health checks for the purposes of achieving early diagnosis of atrial fibrillation. [86541]

Mr Simon Burns: The UK National Screening Committee provides advice on population screening issues and it currently recommends against a population based approach to early detection of atrial fibrillation, such as the inclusion of a pulse check in the NHS Health Check. There have been no discussions with commissioners about the inclusion of pulse checks in the NHS Health Check.

HIV Infection: Screening

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guideline on increasing the uptake of HIV testing to reduce undiagnosed infection and prevent transmission among men who have sex with men, how many primary care trusts have developed a local strategy to increase the uptake of HIV testing among men who have sex with men in England; [86647]

(2) how many of the primary care trusts with a diagnosed HIV prevalence in their local population exceeding two in 1,000 offer HIV testing to all men and women registering in general practice and general medical admissions in England; [86648]

(3) with reference to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guideline on increasing the uptake of HIV testing to reduce undiagnosed infection and prevent transmission among black African communities living in England, how many primary care trusts developed a local strategy to increase the uptake of HIV testing among black Africans in their area. [86649]

Anne Milton: The Department does not collect information on local HIV testing services and strategies. It is the responsibility of local primary care trusts to ensure that sexual health services, including HIV prevention and testing, meet the particular needs of their local population taking into account HIV prevalence and other health priorities. We are aware that in some areas of high HIV prevalence (including Brighton, Leicester and London) commissioners and practitioners have already introduced wider HIV testing programmes to reduce undiagnosed HIV.

Mental Health Services: Ex-servicemen

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has any plans to extend the service provided by the 24-hour Combat Stress Support Helpline. [86393]

Mr Simon Burns: The Department committed £200,000 to run a one-year pilot of the 24-hour helpline. The Department plans to carry out an evaluation of this pilot, and, based on the outcome, to make a decision regarding the future of the service.

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) veterans and (b) veterans' families have accessed the 24-hour Combat Stress Support Helpline since it came into operation. [86394]

Mr Simon Burns: The 24-hour helpline for veterans launched in March 2011. Since then, the service has received over 3,600 calls, from 1,397 different individuals. 477 of these calls have been from families and carers of veterans. The service does not record the 'other' callers to the helpline (i.e. those who are neither veterans nor families of veterans).

NHS Trusts

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by what process (a) local authorities and (b) hon. Members can seek to initiate a reconfiguration of NHS trusts; and if he will make a statement. [86717]

Mr Simon Burns: The reconfiguration of health services should be a locally led process, with plans developed in partnership between commissioners, providers, local authorities and the public. The aim of reconfiguration is to improve the quality of services for patients. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health has been clear that reconfigurations should have the support of general practitioner commissioners, a clear clinical evidence base, support for patient choice, and effective patient and public engagement.

It is the responsibility of commissioners to plan and secure the provision of the great majority of health services that their population needs. Therefore, if local authorities or hon. Members believe there is evidence that the current configuration of services in their locality could be improved to deliver better patient outcomes within available resources, they should approach the relevant local national health service commissioner.

NHS: ICT

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions his Department has had with the Computer Sciences Corporation on extending its contract. [86519]

Mr Simon Burns: A series of discussions have been held with the Computer Sciences Corporation relating to the existing contract. Discussions have been based upon a number of options relating to alternative contractual approaches to secure value for the taxpayer.

As the contractual discussions have not concluded, specific details cannot be provided at this time.

Social Services: Finance

Chris Skidmore: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of users of adult social care services are not self-funding in each local authority area. [86718]

Paul Burstow: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Telehealth

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the likely take-up of telehealth schemes; [86545]

(2) what discussions he has had with private companies on funding of telehealth schemes. [86546]

Paul Burstow: The Department's modelling suggests that at least 3 million people with long-term conditions could benefit from telehealth leading to a potential efficiency gain of around £1.2 billion over the next five years.

The Department has been discussing with industry about new models of delivery but it will be for the national health service to commission services locally.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Policy Announcements

Alun Michael: To ask the Leader of the House what steps he is taking in respect of the announcement of major policy initiatives by Ministers. [86678]

Mr Heath: The House debated this issue during the Backbench Business debate on 5 December 2011 and rejected the proposal tabled by my hon. Friend the Member for Kettering (Mr Hollobone), and others.

As my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons said during that debate, Ministers are very mindful of the requirement in the Ministerial Code that:

"when Parliament is in session the most important announcements of Government policy should be made, in the first instance, to Parliament."

My right hon. Friend and I do not hesitate to remind colleagues of that requirement.

Private Members' Bills

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Leader of the House if he will bring forward proposals for a supplementary ballot for additional private Members' Bills in any future parliamentary Session which lasts for longer than one year. [86683]

Sir George Young: Following the current one-off adjustment to spring-to-spring Sessions, the Government does not envisage any future Sessions of a similar length. The Government nevertheless believes that the current single ballot would operate satisfactorily in the event of a future, extended Session.

Queen's Speech

Mr Spellar: To ask the Leader of the House on what date the Queen's Speech will be held in the next Session of Parliament. [86768]

Sir George Young: The date of the Queen's Speech will be announced in the usual way.

Times of Sitting

Claire Perry: To ask the Leader of the House what recent assessment he has made of the House's sitting hours. [86681]

Sir George Young: I have noted with interest the consultation on sitting hours produced by the Procedure Committee. I look forward to giving oral evidence to that Committee during its inquiry.

WALES

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much her Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 month period for which information is available. [86991]

Mr David Jones: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 8 March 2011, Official Report, column 909W, to the hon. Member for Glasgow North East (Mr Bain).

Driving Under Influence: Rehabilitation

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what discussions her Department has had with the (a) Welsh Government and (b) Driving Standards Agency on (i) the provision of drink drive rehabilitation courses in Wales and (ii) ensuring a consistent approach to such courses in each constituent part of the UK. [86595]

Mr David Jones: The Department has regular discussions within Whitehall and with the Welsh Government about a range of matters relevant to Wales.

Under amendments introduced to the Road Traffic Offenders Act 1988 by provisions in the Road Safety Act 2006, responsibility for drink drive rehabilitation training in Wales will lie with Welsh Ministers. The Driving Standards Agency will continue to liaise with the Welsh Government on the future operation of drink drive rehabilitation training in Wales.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure his Department has incurred in (a) Birmingham, (b) Newcastle, (c) Wakefield, (d) Manchester, (e) Leeds, (f) Liverpool, (g) Coventry, (h) Bristol, (i) Sheffield, (j) Bradford, (k) Leicester and (l) Nottingham in the last fiscal year for which figures are available. [85543]

More detailed benefit expenditure tables including outturn data for all local authorities can be found here:

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/index.php?page=expenditure

	Local authority	Benefit expenditure 2010-11 (£ million)
(a)	Birmingham	2,587.9
(b)	Newcastle upon Tyne	681.1
(c)	Wakefield	817.6
(d)	Manchester	1,170.2
(e)	Leeds	1,649.2
(f)	Liverpool	1,418.4
(g)	Coventry	767.2

Employment and Support Allowance: Drugs

Nicola Blackwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many appeals have been made by employment and support allowance recipients receiving residential treatment for drug or alcohol misuse who were not classified as limited capability for work without the requirement to attend a face-to-face assessment in 2011; and how many of those appeals were determined in favour of the appellant. [86840]

Chris Grayling: The specific information requested is not available.

The Department does not hold centrally collated information on employment and support allowance (ESA) claimants receiving residential treatment for drug or alcohol misuse. However, for claims starting between October 2008 and August 2010 (the latest period for which there is sufficient data for publication) where the primary condition recorded relates to drug or alcohol misuse, 9,300 were assessed by the Department as fit for work and have had an appeal heard to date. Of these, 38% were found in favour of the appellant meaning their entitlement to ESA was reinstated.

Entitlement to ESA is based on functional capabilities, not on an individual's condition. The medical condition recorded on a claim form does not in itself confer entitlement to ESA. So, for example, a decision on entitlement for a person claiming employment and support allowance on the basis of alcoholism would be based on their ability to carry out the range of activities assessed by the work capability assessment, or on the effects of any associated mental health problems. It is also important to note that, where someone has more than one diagnosis or disabling condition, only the predominant one is currently recorded.

The Department regularly publishes official statistics on employment and support allowance and the work capability assessment. The latest report was published in October 2011 and can be found on the internet at the link below. Information relating to appeals for the ESA case load as a whole can be found in Table 3.

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/workingage/index.php?page=esa_wca

The data presented above come from benefit claims data held by the Department for Work and Pensions, functional assessment data from Atos Healthcare and appeals data from the Tribunals Service. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100, or 1%.

Information on drug and alcohol misuse has been calculated using the International Classification of Diseases categories, "Mental and behavioural disorders due to multiple drug use and use of other psychoactive substances" and "Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol".

Due to the time it takes for appeals to be submitted to and heard by HM Courts and Tribunals Service, it is likely there are more appeals that have not yet been heard. The number of appeals is therefore likely to change as more up to date information becomes available.

Employment and Support Allowance: Public Finance

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of reassessing those on contributory employment and support allowance in the work-related activity group to see if they qualify for the support group at the end of the 12 month time limit. [86981]

Chris Grayling: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer I gave the right hon. Member for Oxford East (Mr Smith) on 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1112W.

Employment: Young People

Owen Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential effect of the Youth Contract on the level of employment. [86858]

Chris Grayling: The Youth Contract will provide nearly half a million new opportunities for young people, including job subsidies, apprenticeships and work experience placements.

Job subsidy programmes have an impact on the labour market, for example, OECD research from 2005 found that private sector subsidised employment programmes frequently have a positive impact on employment[1]. However, the full impact of this package of measures on the level of employment will depend on decisions on the detail of provision which are not yet finalised. The Department is currently developing an evaluation strategy for the Youth Contract.

Independent Living Fund

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to make an announcement on the arrangements for the consultation for changes to the Independent Living Fund. [86729]

Maria Miller: In a written statement on 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 8WS, I announced that the Government would consult on future support arrangements for ILF users in spring 2012, alongside the publication of the planned White Paper on the future of care and support in England.

London Underground: Industrial Health and Safety

Stephen Mosley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many underground inspections were undertaken by Health and Safety Executive personnel at each active mine in England in 2010. [86508]

Chris Grayling: There were 128 underground inspections/investigations made at active producing mines in England in 2010. This figure does not include visits where only surface structures and equipment were inspected/investigated. A detailed breakdown of the statistics is as follows.

Number of underground inspections at active producing mines in England in 2010

Social Security Benefits: Bexley

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate he has made of the number of people in the London borough of Bexley in receipt of out-of-work benefits as a result of (a) alcohol and (b) drug dependency. [86165]

Chris Grayling: Drug and alcohol addiction is one of the most damaging root causes of poverty, and helping people who are trapped on benefits through drug and alcohol addiction so that they can recover and find employment is a top priority for the Government.

A breakdown by medical condition is only available for incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance (IB/SDA) and employment and support allowance (ESA), and is shown in the following table. Medical condition is not available for the other out-of-work benefits: jobseeker's allowance (JSA) and income support (IS).

Total number of incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance and employment and support allowance claimants with drug abuse and alcoholism as a main disabling condition—Bexley local authority, May 2011

Bexley	IB/SDA	ESA
Alcoholism	60	50
Drug abuse	50	10

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Employment and support allowance (ESA) replaced incapacity benefit and income support paid on the grounds of incapacity for new claims from 27 October 2008.
3. To qualify for incapacity benefit (IB), claimants have to undertake a medical assessment of incapacity for work called a personal capability assessment. Under the employment support allowance regime, new claimants have to undergo the work capability assesment. From April 2011 incapacity benefit recipients will begin also to undertake this assessment. The medical condition recorded on the claim form does not itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefit or employment support allowance. So, for example, a decision on entitlement for a customer claiming IB or ESA on the basis of mental and behavioural disorders would be based on their ability to carry out the range of activities assessed by the personal/work capability assessment.
4. Data include those entitled to national insurance credits only.

Work Programme

Mr Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how the effectiveness of the Work programme will be measured; and if he will make a statement. [87160]

Chris Grayling: Individuals stay on the Work programme for two years, so we expect to see substantial indications of the effectiveness of the programme from spring 2013. A full independent evaluation has been commissioned for that year and I look forward to sharing the results with the House in due course. We will closely monitor the operation of the programme in the interim.

Work Programme: Employment

Toby Perkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people over the age of 50 years have found paid employment as a result of the Work programme. [86944]

Chris Grayling: The Department intends to publish official statistics on referrals to the Work programme from spring 2012 and on job outcomes from autumn 2012. This is in line with guidelines set by the UK Statistics Authority to ensure published statistics meet the required high quality standards.

CABINET OFFICE

Construction: Procurement

Julian Sturdy: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what the cost to the public purse was of use of the Official Journal of the European Union public procurement tendering process for UK construction projects in the latest period for which figures are available; and what the value was of the construction works procured. [86292]

Mr Maude: Information on the cost of individual procurements is not held centrally.

The total value of Central Government funded construction projects during 2011-12 is approximately £10 billion.

Employment: Financial Services

Hazel Blears: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many people were employed in the financial services sector in (a) the South West, (b) the South East, (c) London, (d) the West Midlands, (e) the East Midlands, (f) the East of England, (g) the North West, (h) Yorkshire and the Humber, (i) the North East, (j) Scotland, (k) Wales and (l) Northern Ireland on the latest date for which information is available. [87073]

Mr Hurd: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Stephen Penneck, dated December 2011:

As Director General for the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people are employed in the financial services sector in (a) the South West, (b) the South East, (c) London, (d) the West Midlands, (e) the East Midlands, (f) the East of England, (g) the North West, (h) Yorkshire and the Humber, (i) the North East, (j) Scotland, (k) Wales and (l) Northern Ireland at the latest date for which information is available. (87073)

Table 1 contains the seasonally adjusted number of Workforce Jobs in SIC2007 Section K (financial and insurance activities) for Q3 2011 (September 2011), the latest date for which information is available. Section K includes financial service activities, insurance, reinsurance and pension funding (except compulsory social security), and activities auxiliary to financial services and insurance activities.

Workforce Jobs is a quarterly measure of the number of jobs in the United Kingdom (UK) and is the preferred measure of the change in jobs by industry. It is a compound source that draws on a range of employer surveys, household surveys and administrative sources. WFJ is the sum of employee jobs (EJ) measured primarily by employer surveys, self-employment jobs (SEJ) from the Labour Force Survey (LFS), and government-supported trainees (GST) and Her Majesty's Forces (HMF) from administrative sources.

Government Departments: Internet

Dr Huppert: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what assessment he has made of the risks posed by malware downloaded onto people's computers via Adobe Reader on the basis of advice given on Government websites. [86770]

Mr Maude: I refer the hon. Member to the new national cyber security strategy published on 25 November at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/cyber-security-strategy which has assessed the risks to UK Government, private sector and individuals from cyber threats including the threat from malware. The strategy outlines how individuals have an important role to play in keeping cyberspace as a safe place to do business and live their lives by taking steps to protect themselves online.

Get Safe Online is a joint Government/industry initiative to raise awareness of internet security which we support. In November I launched the annual Get Safe Online Week which is an important means of alerting people to the latest online threats including malware and the importance of updating their anti-virus and anti-spyware as well as their operating systems.

The majority of threats can be avoided by following some simple measures, and via Get Safe Online we will continue to work to raise awareness and to educate and empower people and firms to protect themselves online.

Ministers

Bill Esterson: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what assessment he has made of the potential for a reduction in the number of Government Ministers and advisers following the planned reduction in the size of the House of Commons. [86846]

Mr Maude: The Government are committed to keeping the number of Ministers under review.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Constituencies

Alun Michael: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when the proposals for new parliamentary constituencies in Wales will be published. [86854]

Mr Harper: The Boundary Commission for Wales determines the timing of the parliamentary boundary review in Wales and all the stages within it. It has announced that it plans to publish its initial proposals for the 2013 review of parliamentary constituencies in January 2012, and that it expects to complete the 2013 review within the deadline stipulated by Parliament.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Working Hours

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she had on the European Aviation Safety Agency's notice of proposed amendments on flight time limitations. [86248]

Mrs Villiers: Officials from the Department for Transport and the Civil Aviation Authority attended a meeting of the European Aviation Safety Agency's (EASA) Advisory Group of National Authorities on 26 October at which the proposals were discussed.

Business: Administration

Steve Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to alleviate the administrative burden of the provisions of EU Council Regulation 1071/2009 for small and micro-businesses. [86801]

Mike Penning: The Department has adopted all flexibilities that the regulation allows to minimise any additional burdens on business. Existing businesses that were formerly outside the requirements of operator licensing, but are now required to comply with the requirements of the regulation, will be given appropriate time to do so.

Crossrail Line: Bexleyheath

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to help maximise the benefits of Crossrail for Bexleyheath and Crayford residents. [86168]

Mrs Villiers: We are committed to delivering the agreed Crossrail scheme which will run to Abbey Wood. Rail passengers in Bexleyheath and Crayford will be able to access Crossrail services via Abbey Wood, from where fast connections into the City, the West End and beyond will be available, improving access to jobs, business and leisure facilities.

The extra capacity that is created by Crossrail will also reduce congestion on many tube and rail lines including Southeastern services.

Official Photographs

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many official photographs have been taken of (a) Ministers and (b) senior officials in her Department for use in Government publications since May 2010; how many staff of her Department are expected to undertake photography of the Ministerial and senior leadership team as part of their duties; and if she will make a statement. [82566]

Norman Baker: The following table provides information on the number of official photographs that have been taken since May 2010, as well as the numbers of staff who perform this function as part of their duties in the column headed (c):

	(a) Ministers	(b) Senior staff	(c) Number of staff
Central Department	5	16	2
Highways Agency	7	11	1
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	0	0	0
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	0	4	1

Highways Agency

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, what progress has been made on work to review the Highways Agency. [86804]

Mike Penning: The review, undertaken by Alan Cook, the non-executive chairman of the Highways Agency, was published on 24 November 2011. A copy of the report can be found at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/publications/strategic-roads-network

Intercity Express Programme

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment her Department has made of the business case for the Intercity Express programme fleet to be deployed on the (a) Great Western Main Line and (b) East Coast Main Line. [86849]

Mrs Villiers: Business cases for large projects are periodically refreshed—for example, to reflect the latest economic forecasts.

Business case updates were prepared for deployment of the IEP fleet on both the Great Western and East Coast Main Lines in November 2011.

The economic case for the Intercity Express Programme remains strong, with a combined (ECML and GWML together) benefit:cost ratio of 2.3:1.

Railway Stations: Worcester

Harriett Baldwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with Network Rail on the creation of a Worcester Parkway station. [86940]

Mrs Villiers: We have had no recent discussions with Network Rail about the creation of a Worcester Parkway station. It is for the promoter, Worcestershire county council, to lead on discussions with the rail industry on this project.

Rescue Services: Liverpool

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the potential effects on public safety of the closure of Liverpool coastguard station. [86845]

Mike Penning: No individual assessment specific to the closure of Liverpool Maritime Rescue Coordination Centre has been made of the potential effects on public safety.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has assessed on a national basis the safety risks in relation to HM Coastguard's current operation and how these are mitigated by the new structure announced on 22 November 2011. The MCA has also assessed the impact of the new structure on HM Coastguards capability to deliver its national service.

These assessments, as well as a location impact assessment, coastguard centre rationale and supporting tables showing factors taken into consideration in the choice of coastguard centres can be found on the MCA's website:

www.dft.gov.uk/mca

Rescue Services: Wales

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the adequacy of search and rescue services based in England which cover South Wales. [86451]

Mike Penning: We are confident that search and rescue helicopter services in South West England will continue to provide comprehensive cover in South Wales, as they do at present.

Shipping

Karl Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the total number of new training roles for UK seafarers that will be created from the approved core training commitments submitted by company groups that have entered the tonnage tax scheme for 2011-12. [86664]

Mike Penning: Approved core training commitments for the 2011-12 training commitment year are for around 600 new first year officer trainees. Company groups are additionally required to provide second and third year training for trainees taken on during the previous two years when they were in the tonnage tax, so the cumulative training commitment for 2011-12 is for around 1,800 officer trainees.

Shipping: Flags

Karl Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vessels are owned by each company group that qualified for inclusion in the tonnage tax in 2011-12; and under which flag each such vessel sails. [86663]

Mike Penning: The vessels operated by a tonnage tax company or group may be owned, leased or chartered-in. I am unable to give a breakdown of the vessels operated by company group, as this information is tax confidential. However, the anticipated total number of vessels for all companies entered in the tonnage tax as at 1 October 2011 was 883. Of these, 425 were UK flagged, 105 were under other EEA flags, and 353 were under non-EEA flags.

Karl Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which flags are flown by ships owned by company groups that qualified for inclusion in the tonnage tax in 2011-12. [86665]

Mike Penning: The ships which company groups anticipated would be included in the tonnage tax at the beginning of the 2011-12 training commitment year were under the following flags: United Kingdom, Antigua and Barbuda, Australia, Bahamas, Barbados, Bermuda, the Cayman Islands, Cyprus, Finland, Germany, Gibraltar, Greece, Honduras, Hong Kong, Isle of Man, Italy, Liberia, Malta, the Marshall Islands, the Netherlands, Norway, Panama, St Vincent and the Grenadines and Singapore.

Underground Railways: Tyne and Wear

Catherine McKinnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the oral statement of the then Secretary of State for Transport of 26 October 2010, Official Report, column 178, on transport (investment), whether the £4 million funding to accelerate the upgrade of the Tyne and Wear Metro announced in section A.26 of the Autumn Statement 2011 is additional to the £350 million investment announced in the oral statement. [86708]

Norman Baker: The Autumn Statement announcement related to funding brought forward to 2011-12 and reflected the good progress which Nexus is making in delivering its renewal programme. This is part of the Department for Transport's existing contribution towards the asset renewal programme and is not additional.

Council Tax

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the average percentage change in the level of council tax benefit for (a) working families and (b) single people in work as a result of the localisation of council tax benefit in each local authority area; and if he will make a statement. [86669]

Robert Neill: [holding answer 14 December 2011]: An impact assessment will be published alongside the legislation providing for the localisation of council tax support in England. The actual average impact in each local authority area will depend on how local authorities design their schemes.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Owen Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many mortgages supported by the Government's new build indemnity scheme he expects to be additional mortgages; and how many such mortgages he estimates would have been issued in any case. [86860]

Grant Shapps: The Government will support up to 100,000 mortgages at up to 95% loan to value through the new build indemnity scheme. As 95% loan to value mortgages for new build are currently available only for properties on a few sites, we expect nearly all mortgages under the scheme to be additional to such mortgages which would have been granted in any case.

Senior Civil Servants: Pay

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) salary and (b) other costs associated with each Director General in his Department (i) were in 2010-11 and (ii) are expected to be (A) between April and December 2011, (B) between January and March 2012 and (C) in 2012-13; whether he expects any change in salary or other costs from January 2012 in consequence of the appointment of the permanent secretary in his Department to hold the post of Head of the Civil Service; and if he will make a statement. [86587]

Robert Neill [holding answer 15 December 2011]: I do not expect any change in salary or costs for any DCLG director-general as a result of the appointment of Sir Bob Kerslake as Head of the Civil Service. Information on remuneration for board level officials, including director-generals, is published in my Department's annual report and accounts. The information published for director-generals in the 2010-11 annual report and accounts is reproduced in the following table, using the same categories (of salary, bonus payments and benefit-in-kind), together with the equivalent information for April to December 2011 and forecast information for the remaining periods. As bonus payments depend on annual performance as assessed following the end of the performance year, it is not currently possible to forecast whether any of the individuals will receive a bonus payment. All amounts in the table reflect only payments made by DCLG.

[1] The figure quoted for Richard McCarthy for 'April to December 2011' is for the period 1 April to 10 November 2011, when Mr McCarthy left the Department. The full year equivalent is in the range £175,000-£179,999. The Department is currently recruiting a replacement Director-General, advertised on the basis of a salary of circa £140,000.
[2] The figure quoted for Irene Lucas for '2010-11' includes temporary responsibility allowance for a period where Ms Lucas was acting permanent secretary. The full year director general salary is in the range £145,000-£149,999.
[3] The figure quoted for Joe Montgomery for '2010-11' is for the period 1 April 2010 to 31 January 2011, when Mr Montgomery left the Department. The full year equivalent is in the range £150,000-£154,999.
[4] The figure quoted for David Rossington for 'April to December 2011' is for the period 1 April to 31 July 2011, during which period Mr Rossington was acting director-general, finance and corporate services. The full year equivalent is in the range £130,000-£134,999.
[5] The figure quoted for Shirley Pointer for '2010-11' is for the period 1 April 2010 to 3 January 2011, during which period Ms Pointer was acting director-general, HR and business change. The full year equivalent is in the range £135,000-£139,999.
[6] The figure quoted for Sue Higgins for 'April to December 2011' is for the period 1 August (when Ms Higgins joined DCLG) to 31 December 2011. The full year equivalent is in the range £135,000-£139,999.
[7] The figure quoted for Louise Casey for 'April to December 2011' is for the period 1 November (when Ms Casey joined DCLG) to 31 December 2011. The full year equivalent is in the range £130,000-£134,999.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Henry Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of the 70 respondents to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel called for seats with less than 40 inches of seat pitch to be liable at the reduced rate. [86477]

Mike Freer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many of the 70 respondents to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel called for seats with 40 inch seat pitch and less to be liable for the reduced rate; [86479]

(2) how many of the 140 respondents to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on the banding structure supported (a) the retention of a four band structure, (b) a three band structure and (c) a two band structure; [86481]

(3) how many of the 70 respondents to the Government's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty who commented on class of travel called for (a) premium economy passengers to be liable for the reduced rate and (b) premium economy passengers to remain liable for standard rate. [86483]

Miss Chloe Smith: I refer the hon. Members to the answer given on 13 December 2011, Official Report, column 683W, to the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire (Mr Donohoe).

Mike Freer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost was of his Department's consultation on the reform of air passenger duty; and how many working hours were spent on the consultation by civil service staff. [86480]

Miss Chloe Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 532W, to the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire (Mr Donohoe).

Mike Freer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date UK airlines were informed of the new air passenger duty rates applicable from 1 April 2012. [86482]

Miss Chloe Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 533W, to the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire (Mr Donohoe).

Bell Pottinger Group

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) Ministers, (b) officials and (c) political advisers in his Department have met representatives of (i) Bell Pottinger Group or (ii) each of its subsidiaries in the last five years; on what dates any such meetings took place; and what was discussed. [80045]

Mr Watson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) he, (b) his officials and (c) his political advisers have met representatives of (i) Bell Pottinger Group and (ii) clients of Bell Pottinger Group on the recommendation of that Group since May 2010; on what dates any such meetings took place; and what was discussed. [86775]

Miss Chloe Smith: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

A list of ministerial meetings with external stakeholders is published quarterly on the HM Treasury website:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/minister_hospitality.htm

Capital Gains Tax

Owen Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of individuals who will incur a net loss as a result of the freezing of the Capital Gains Tax annual exempt amount announced in the Autumn Statement. [86857]

Mr Hoban: Freezing the annual exempt amount (AEA) in 2012-13 will affect all individuals with a Capital Gains Tax (CGT) liability in that year. The number of individuals liable to CGT in 2009-10, the latest year for which figures are available, is estimated at 148,000 and is published at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/capital_gains/table14-1.xls

An additional 12,000 taxpayers each year could become liable to CGT over the next five years, as a result of the freeze. However, some individuals will arrange their disposals to keep the gains below the AEA and will therefore have nothing to pay.

Commodity Markets

Heidi Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the proposed review of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive in relation to commodity derivatives markets. [85219]

Mr Hoban [holding answer 6 December 2011]: The Government strongly supports the European Commission's review of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (MiFID) and the objectives to strengthen the Single Market in financial services, to ensure resilient and sound financial markets.

In the MiFID review, the Government supports the principle of strong regulatory oversight powers on commodities markets through the application of a position management regime based on strong supervision and market monitoring, and through measures designed to increase transaction reporting requirements and improve trading transparency. While it is important to keep the scope of exemptions for specialist commodity trading firms under review, the Government does not believe there is currently a strong case for a significant change in the boundaries of MiFID for these firms.

We will be working closely with the European Commission and other EU member states as negotiations proceed to ensure that commodity derivative markets provide robust and consistent price discovery mechanisms for the underlying commodities, and are sufficiently liquid to enable participants to hedge and manage their risks.

Departmental Manpower

Mr Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which employers are working with his Department to collect real time income data in support of the universal credit. [86707]

Mr Gauke: HMRC is working with a group of employers and software developers to pilot Real Time Information (RTI) in 2012-13. The employers involved in the RTI Pilot are volunteers and have been chosen to be a representative group of organisations operating PAYE. They range in size and complexity from those with one employee to very large complex employers with many employees or pensioners. Those participating include local government, banks, payroll bureaux and agents, retail and manufacturing, farmers, universities, colleges and schools, charities, hotels, film companies, software developers, pension providers and services companies.

HMRC expects all employers and pension providers to be using RTI by October 2013 and appropriate data will be made available to the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) to support the administration of universal credit.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what secondments there have been to his Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86130]

Miss Chloe Smith: Since 1 August 2010 there have been 41 secondments into HM Treasury from industry. There have been no secondments from the third sector. Appointments have varied in length between two months and two years, with a median of seven months. Secondees into the organisation are used in a variety of roles where internal knowledge is scarce or where specialist skills are required.

Financial Services: Manpower

Hazel Blears: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were employed in the financial services sector in (a) the North West and (b) the UK in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007, (iv) 2008, (v) 2009 and (vi) 2010. [87075]

Mr Hurd: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Stephen Penneck, dated December 2011:

As Director General for the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question concerning how many people were employed in the financial services sector in (a) the North West and (b) the UK in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006, (iii) 2007, (iv) 2008, (v) 2009 and (vi) 2010. (87075)

The following table contains the seasonally adjusted number of Workforce Jobs in Standard Industrial Classification 2007 (SIC2007) Section K (financial and insurance activities) for the North West and UK for 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2010. Section K includes financial service activities, insurance, reinsurance and pension funding (except compulsory social security), and activities auxiliary to financial services and insurance activities.

Workforce Jobs (WFJ) is a quarterly measure of the number of jobs in the United Kingdom (UK) and is the preferred measure of the change in jobs by industry. It is a compound source that draws on a range of employer surveys, household surveys and administrative sources. WFJ is the sum of employee jobs (EJ) measured primarily by employer surveys, self-employment jobs (SEJ) from the Labour Force Survey (LFS), and government-supported trainees (GST) and Her Majesty's Forces (HMF) from administrative sources.

Workforce Jobs[1, 2]. SIC 2007 section K. Seasonally adjusted

Thousand

	North West	UK
2005	108	1,158
2006	106	1,148
2007	110	1,169
2008	111	1,189
2009	114	1,180
2010	94	1,125

Income tax: Females

Claire Perry: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 October 2011, Official Report, column 130W, on income tax: females, what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of taking the (a) 59 per cent. in April 2011 and (b) 56 per cent. in April 2012 of people out of taxation who are women. [86499]

Mr Gauke: Personal allowances for those aged under 65 have increased by £1,000 in 2011-12 to £7,475 and will increase by a further £630 in 2012-13 to £8,105.

The estimated cost of these measures published at Budget 2011 is shown in the following table:

	2011-12 measure	2012-13 measure
2011-12	-3,340	0
2012-13	-3,580	-1,050
2013-14	-3,620	-1,210
2014-15	-3,710	-1,200
2015-16	-3,820	-1,230

It is estimated that around 1.2% of total exchequer costs of the 2011-12 personal allowance increase were associated with those females taken out of tax as a result of the measure in 2011-12. A comparable figure for the 2012-13 personal allowance increase is 0.3% in 2012-13.

These estimates are Budget 2011 estimates based on the 2007-08 Survey of Personal Incomes, projected using economic assumptions consistent with the Office for Budget Responsibility's March 2011 economic and fiscal outlook.

Money Advice Service

Chris Leslie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will place a copy of the Money Advice Service draft business plan for 2012-13 in the Library; [83463]

(2) how much has been spent on legal advice on staff restructuring by the Money Advice Service in the last 12 months; [83465]

(3) how much has been spent on (a) bonus payments and (b) foreign travel for senior management by the Money Advice Service in the most recent financial year; [83466]

(4) how many people have started a Money Advice Service financial health check since they were introduced; and how many have been completed; [83467]

(5) what assessment he has made of changes in the level of provision of financial education outreach services through schools, further education colleges, higher education institutions and workplaces by the Money Advice Service in the last 12 months; [83468]

(6) how many (a) face-to-face meetings and (b) responses to telephone enquiries he expects the Money Advice Service will deliver in each of the next three financial years; [83469]

(7) how much of Money Advice Service's budget has been spent on (a) advertising, (b) public relations and (c) marketing in the last year; and how much it plans to spend on such activities next year; [83470]

(8) whether the Money Advice Service is a public body under the Freedom of Information Act provisions. [83805]

Mr Hoban: The Money Advice Service is an independent body, funded by a levy on the financial services industry. The Financial Services Authority (FSA) is responsible for approving its Business Plan and Budget. The Money Advice Service will publish its Business Plan and Budget for 2012-13 in March 2012.

I have asked the Money Advice Service to respond to the detailed points you have raised in writing. A copy of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

The Government are committed to the principle of open Government. They want to make it easy for people to find out information that is relevant to them, to aid accountability and increase public understanding of decisions which affect them. The Freedom of Information Act does not currently apply to the Money Advice Service. The Government are however seeking to extend coverage of the Act to further bodies under section 5 of the Act, and will keep the position of the Money Advice Service under review.

Ofgem: Fines

Caroline Flint: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue his Department has collected as a result of fines imposed by Ofgem in each of the last 10 years. [86526]

Miss Chloe Smith: The following fines/penalties have been collected by Ofgem over the past 10 years and paid into the Consolidated Fund:

2001-02	—
2002-03	2,000,000
2003-04	400,000
2004-05	1,900,000
2005-06	—
2006-07	—
2007-08	25,000
2008-09	1,800,000
2009-10	2,000,000
2010-11	15,810,000
2011-12 (to 12 December 2011)	10,000,000

In addition, Ofgem has announced two further fines in 2011-12 totalling £4,500,000 (of which £2,500,000 is proposed and £2,000,000 awaiting collection).

Personal Pensions

Mr Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what dates (a) he, (b) other Ministers in his Department and (c) senior officials in his Department have met representatives of (i) the British Bankers Association and (ii) the Association of British Insurers to discuss the charges, commission or fees paid by people with a private pension since May 2010; and if he will make a statement. [86866]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers and officials have discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Rebates: Fraud

Dr Huppert: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of payments for tax refunds being fraudulently redirected as a result of websites that impersonate Government websites in the last three financial years. [86764]

Mr Gauke: HM Revenue and Customs do not have an estimate of the cost of tax refund payments being fraudulently redirected as a result of websites that impersonate Government websites.

Taxation: Switzerland

Owen Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by what date he expects the UK-Switzerland taxation agreement announced on 24 August 2011 to be implemented. [86856]

Mr Hoban: The Government's aim is for the agreement between the UK and Switzerland on co-operation in tax matters to come into force on 1 January 2013. This allows for the time needed to complete parliamentary procedures in both countries.

Union of Good: USA

Robert Halfon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what communication he has had with the US Treasury on the activities of the Union of Good; and if he will make a statement. [86594]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of international partners, as well as organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Democratic Republic of Congo: Elections

Mr Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will raise at the UN the issue of electoral irregularities during the recent elections in Democratic Republic of Congo. [86086]

Mr Bellingham: I have been asked to reply.

The British Government raised our concerns about reports of irregularities in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) elections when the Head of the UN Peacekeeping Mission to DRC (MONUSCO) briefed the Security Council on 2 December. Following this meeting the UN Security Council issued a statement welcoming the good turnout of voters in the elections, but expressing concern at the reports of logistical problems during the election process. Following the release of the full provisional election results, on 12 December MONUSCO released a further statement urging the electoral commission to address the irregularities identified by observer groups.

We will continue to work with international partners to urge the DRC authorities to investigate and address all irregularities.

EU External Trade: Cocoa

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contribution his Department plans to make to the development of a new European standard for sustainable and traceable cocoa; and what steps he plans to take to ensure that the standard meets the demands of smallholder cocoa producers in developing countries and acts as a driver to improve their social and economic development. [86720]

Mr Duncan: The new European standard for sustainable and traceable cocoa is being developed by the standards body for the industry itself. This body is independent.

The Department for International Development has not engaged in any consultation with the British Standards Institute. The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs have also confirmed that they have not engaged in any consultation.

Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria

Jeremy Lefroy: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of total (a) commitments and (b) payments to the Global Fund for (i) HIV/AIDS, (ii) malaria and (iii) tuberculosis have been made by the UK in each of the last five years. [86191]

Mr Duncan: UK pledges (commitments) and contributions (payments) to the fund over the past five years are as follows:

UK's share of total pledges and contributions to the Global Fund for 2007-11

	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011
UK pledge	187,202,000	78,520,000	184,071,300	199,680,000	199,680,000
All pledges	2,532,763,541	2,920,108,597	3,121,074,520	3,296,886,375	2,840,838,958
UK share (percentage)	7.39	2.69	5.89	6.05	7.02
UK contribution	187,202,000	78,520,000	184,071,300	308,341,640	434,126,769
All contributions	2,534,998,752	2,920,108,597	2,949,139,270	2,783,321,164	1,813,644,669
UK share (percentage)	7,38	2.69	6.24	11	23.9

Cumulative proportion of total pledges since inception:

The UK has pledged a total of £1,409 million to the Global Fund. This is equivalent to USD $2,306,282,555 and constitutes nearly 8% of the total USD $29,047,815,412 pledged by all government donors to the fund.

Cumulative proportion of total contributions:

The UK contribution to date amounts to £997.1 million, equivalent to USD $1,665,201,387 and constitutes 8.4% of the total of USD $19,711,676,679 received in contributions to the fund.

Donors do not earmark their contributions to any particular disease, country or activity. The cumulative proportion of actual grant expenditure between the three diseases, as of January 2011, is HIV 57%, Malaria 29%, TB 14%.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Farms: Regulation

Andrew Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress her Department has made on reducing the administrative demands placed on farmers by environmental regulations. [85567]

Mr Paice: The Government have introduced the one-in, one-out rule, meaning that no new domestic legislation imposing costs on business can be introduced without the identification and removal of existing regulations with an equivalent value. Since January 2011, only two measures impacting the farming sector have been introduced. Both are of a deregulatory nature, with a net saving of approximately £730,000 per annum.

In my written statement of 3 November 2011, Official Report, columns 40-41WS, I announced the publication of the interim response to the independent Farm Regulation Task Force. We will publish a final response in early 2012.

We also aim to reduce burdens placed on farmers by environmental regulations under the Red Tape Challenge Environment Theme, on which an announcement will be made in the spring, and the Water and Marine Theme, which will be launched in February.

Food: Illegal Imports

Fiona O'Donnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding she has allocated to the "Don't bring me back campaign" (a) in 2011-12 and (b) in each of the next three years. [86566]

Mr Paice: To date, no funds have been allocated to the "Don't bring me back" campaign for 2011-12, in line with the Government's commitment to deliver communications at no or low cost. An indicative budget of no more than £25,000 may be drawn upon in the event that paid-for activity is required, but we will continue to make use of no cost channels as the first choice option.

For the next three years, DEFRA will continue to prioritise no cost or low cost communications activity to raise awareness about illegal imports of products of animal origin, and anticipates a budget of less than £25,000 per annum on paid-for communication. The aim of the communication is to raise awareness and to reduce the risk of contaminated food being brought into the UK and putting people, animals and agriculture at risk of disease.

DEFRA is also exploring with other Government Departments such as the UK Border Agency and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office the use of free/low cost communication media to continue to help raise travellers' awareness of the rules on personal imports of animal products.

Food Supply

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the prospects for UK food security at each extreme of population range projected by the Office for National Statistics for 2050. [86819]

Mr Paice: I refer my right hon. Friend to the reply given to the hon. Members for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Cathy Jamieson) and Totnes (Dr Wollaston) on 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1053W.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Business: Government Assistance

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what funding over £100,000 his Department's Finance and Commercial Directorate allocated to partner organisations in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86888]

Mr Davey: BIS's Finance and Commercial Directorate did not allocate any funding to partner organisations in either 2010-11 or 2011-12.

Details of the amounts of grant in aid for each of BIS's partner organisations may be found in the notes pages to the 2010-11 and 2011-12 Main Estimates.

Export Credits Guarantees: Libya

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills which projects have led to debt being owed by Libya to the Export Credits Guarantee Department since 1981. [84108]

Mr Davey: There are no outstanding amounts owed by Libya to ECGD.

Intellectual Property

Mike Weatherley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he plans to take to implement the recommendations on exception in the Hargreaves Report on intellectual property. [86789]

Mr Davey: On 14 December, the Government launched their consultation on how to take forward the copyright recommendations of the Hargreaves Report, including the recommendation to modernise the UK's exceptions to copyright. The consultation will run until 21 March 2012 and the Government hope that all those with an interest in how we can best ensure that our copyright system is fit for the digital age will take the opportunity to respond to it.

During 2012 the Government will continue to deliver the commitments set out in their response to the Hargreaves Review of Intellectual Property and Growth, and this will include a response to the consultation on copyright.

The Government have separately announced, on 22 November, the appointment of Richard Hooper to lead a feasibility study into a Digital Copyright Exchange.

Scholarships

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the amount per student that the National Scholarship Programme will be worth in (a) 2012-13, (b) 2013-14 and (c) 2014-15. [86492]

Mr Hayes: The National Scholarship Programme is designed to benefit students whose family income is no greater than £25,000. Participating universities and colleges establish their own eligibility criteria, based on their own circumstances, to determine whom to help from among this broad group of people.

All institutions that intend to charge more than the basic rate for tuition from 2012 are required to participate in the programme and contribute match funding. Universities are responsible for advertising their criteria and making the awards.

In the first year, the Government will contribute £50 million towards the NSP. The Government's contribution rises to £100 million in 2013-14 and £150 million in 2014-15. The minimum level for an award in 2012/13 is set at £3,000 for each eligible full-time student. Part time students studying to a minimum intensity of 25% can receive a pro-rata award. Arrangements for future years have not been announced.

Universities and colleges can use their match funding to either increase the number of awards available, or the value of an award.

Students: Loans

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the proportion of access to higher education student loans taken out in the academic year 2013-14 which will be repaid in full if the proposed changes to further education fee structures are implemented. [81529]

Mr Hayes: The Impact Assessment published alongside the New Challenges, New Chances consultation on further education (FE) loans included an assumption that 40% of the value of loans taken out will be repaid. This applies to all loans taken out from the academic year 2013/14 onwards, for all types of course. There is, however, no information available specifically for the subset of FE learners who are taking 'Access to HE' qualifications. The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills is carrying out further research and analysis to improve the accuracy of the simulation model used to calculate the figure above.

The Impact Assessment can be found on the BIS website on the following link:

http://www.bis.gov.uk/assets/biscore/further-education-skills/docs/f/11-1218-further-education-loans-impact-assessment

Tourism: Arts

Angie Bray: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the consequences for inbound tourism to London of planned changes to the art market in 2012. [86785]

Mr Davey: On 1 January 2012, the Artist's Resale Right Directive 2001 will be fully implemented in the UK, when Resale Right is automatically extended to sales of in copyright works by qualifying deceased artists. On the same date, Statutory Instrument No. 2873 will come into force, correcting the requirements as to the nationality of those entitled to exercise Artist's Resale Right.

No specific assessment of the effect of these changes on tourism has been made, however the total economic impact of the right once extended to deceased artists has been assessed at less than 0.15% of market turnover (around £12 million in royalties in a market worth £8 billion per year) and accordingly the extension is not considered likely to damage the market. The changes made by the Statutory Instrument on the other hand are actually estimated to reduce administrative costs for the art market by 10% to 20%.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Electronic Equipment: House of Commons

Simon Hart: To ask the hon. Member for Caithness, Sutherland and Easter Ross, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many iPads have been purchased for use by House of Commons staff; and what the cost of such purchases was in 2011. [85869]

John Thurso: Since 1 January 2011, 17 iPads have been purchased for use by staff of the House of Commons and 17 iPads have been purchased for the use of PICT staff. They are being used to explore how mobile computing might be used to support the work of Parliament, and what cost savings or environmental benefits might be gained. A similar pilot is taking place with hon. Members on the Administration Committee.

The iPads were models iPad 1 and 2 with 3G and wi-fi connection. The total cost of the devices was £17,019.59.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Democratic Republic of Congo: Elections

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the conduct of the recent election in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [86875]

Mr Bellingham: I was pleased that the observer missions reported that polling day in Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) elections was largely peaceful with a good turnout of voters. I am also pleased that, following lobbying by the British Government and others, the DRC electoral commission published results from each polling station. However I remain concerned at the reports of irregularities throughout the process, and particularly during the compilation of results. We continue to urge the Commission Electorale Nationale Indépendante to address all reported irregularities quickly and transparently. We also encourage anyone with evidence of wrongdoing to make it public so that an overall assessment of the election process can be made and lessons learned.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85858]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office are in discussion with our UK catering contractor, Compass, who are committed to the Responsibility Deal, to explore how and when we might introduce this initiative without an overall increase in costs.

It would incur disproportionate cost to source this data from our network of posts and our public bodies as this information is held locally.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the countries of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85859]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's UK catering contractor, Compass, provide this information to staff when requested within the UK.

It would incur disproportionate cost to source this data from our network of 260 posts and our public bodies, as this information is held locally.

Departmental Civil Proceedings

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which organisations that have received funding from his Department have brought legal proceedings against his Department in the last five years; which such organisations were not successful in their actions; and whether his Department (a) applied and (b) was paid for costs in respect of such cases. [83888]

Mr Lidington: Our records show that the only organisation that has received funding from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) that has brought legal proceedings against the Foreign Secretary in the last five years is Reprieve. Reprieve receives a modest grant from the FCO to support work to prevent the execution of British nationals facing the death penalty overseas.

In February 2010 Reprieve brought judicial review proceedings against the Foreign Secretary and other Government Ministers in connection with guidance to UK officials on their role and responsibilities in relation to the interviewing of detainees in foreign detention who may be subject to mistreatment. The proceedings were not successful. The Administrative Court refused Reprieve permission to bring the judicial review proceedings and ordered them to pay part of the Government's costs, amounting to £2,000. Reprieve has now paid this sum.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85705]

Mr Lidington: The Westminster Foundation for Democracy, the Great Britain-China Centre and the Marshall Aid Commemoration Commission all hold single risk registers assessing the following categories of risk: strategic/corporate/reputational, financial, operations and projects and programmes. The British Council also has a risk register covering these issues. They also hold risk registers for each country, each sector, each business unit and customer management. Establishing how many registers they maintain globally would incur disproportionate cost.

Khaled al-Johani

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of Saudi Arabia on Khaled al-Johani. [86724]

Alistair Burt: We have not specifically raised Mr al-Johani's case with the Saudi Arabian Government. However, Ministers and officials do take every opportunity to raise with the Saudi authorities our full range of human rights concerns, including detention without trial. I did so most recently when I called on the National Society for Human Rights on 23 November, a Saudi human rights organisation with close links to the Saudi Arabian Government.

Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill 2010-12

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 56W, on Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill 2010-12, and with reference to his confirmation of the UK's commitment to the Ruggie principles, what assessment he has made of the letter sent by Professor Ruggie to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, the hon. Member for Huntingdon (Mr Djanogly), on the effects of his proposed reforms in the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill on the ability of impecunious people to secure representation and justice in cases (a) against businesses and (b) of human rights abuse. [86843]

Mr Jeremy Browne: Following the UN Human Rights Council's endorsement in June of the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights, in which the UK played an important role, the Government are fully committed to implementing those principles as part of a wider strategy on business and human rights. We do not believe that the reform of the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill is incompatible with this commitment. We believe that it will still be possible to bring claims against (a) multinational companies or (b) those allegedly guilty of human rights abuses once these reforms are implemented. However, reforms will help ensure that meritorious claims will be resolved at a more proportional cost; while unnecessary and avoidable claims will be deterred from progressing to court.

Libya: Terrorism

Vernon Coaker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made by the specialist unit in his Department in negotiations with the new Libyan government on compensation for victims of terrorism in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [86227]

Alistair Burt: A specialist unit was set up under the previous Administration in 2009. The remit of the officers in the dedicated FCO Unit has been to offer facilitation, logistical support and general advice to the campaign seeking compensation for the victims of IRA terrorism that was sponsored by Libya through the supply of Semtex. They have also accompanied representatives of the victims at meetings with the Libyan Government.

Properly addressing legacy issues will be an important part of the UK's relationship with Libya. I raised this with the Libyan Transitional Government during my visit to Tripoli on 6-8 December. I made clear our desire to see progress on outstanding issues from the Gaddafi era. The newly appointed Foreign Minister Ashour Ben Khayyal agreed that we would take forward discussions on this.

The campaigns seeking compensation for IRA victims are private. The terms of the campaigns and the range of victims are therefore also private. However, we understand at this stage that no settlement has been made.

Saudi Arabia: Counter-terrorism

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Saudi Arabian counterparts on a proposed anti-terror law for Saudi Arabia. [86725]

Alistair Burt: We have been aware of the draft counter-terrorism law since Amnesty International reported on this matter in June and officials have raised concerns with the Saudi Arabian Government. There is widespread acceptance in the Saudi Government and Saudi human rights organisations that the draft anti-terror law is unsuitable in its present form: the current draft is extremely unlikely to pass into law.

Sergei Magnitsky

Mr MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates Mr William Browder visited his Department to discuss the case of Sergei Magnitsky; and which (a) Ministers and (b) officials he met on each such occasion. [86848]

Mr Lidington: The information requested is as follows:

(a) I met Mr William Browder on 7 March 2011 to discuss the case of Sergei Magnitsky.

(b) The Director Eastern Europe and Central Asia met Mr William Browder on 19 March 2009, 20 November 2009, 6 October 2010 and 13 December 2011 to discuss the case of Sergei Magnitsky.

Union of Good: USA

Robert Halfon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the US government on the Union of Good; and if he will make a statement. [86593]

Alistair Burt: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of international partners, as well as organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors, as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Extradition: USA

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Attorney-General with reference to the contribution by the Minister of State for Immigration of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 128, on UK extradition arrangements, whether any of the evidence against Babar Ahmad that is in the possession of the US authorities was gathered by (a) UK authorities and passed to the US and (b) US authorities on UK soil. [85893]

Damian Green: I am replying as the Minister with responsibility for mutual legal assistance as that is the mechanism by which evidence is transferred from one jurisdiction to another in a criminal case. It is our usual policy neither to confirm nor deny whether the UK authorities have provided evidence or other formal assistance in support of foreign criminal proceedings so as not to prejudice those proceedings; and therefore I cannot confirm or deny whether or not that took place in this case.

WOMEN AND EQUALITIES

Nightclubs: Fees and Charges

Mark Menzies: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities what representations she has received on the practice of charging differential fees to men and women for entry to nightclubs. [86060]

Lynne Featherstone: I have received no representations on the practice of charging men and women differential entry fees for entry to nightclubs.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the completion date for the two aircraft carriers that are currently under construction have changed; and what the causes of any such delay are. [85234]

Peter Luff: The currently approved planned in-service dates for HMS Queen Elizabeth and HMS Prince of Wales are quarter four of 2016 and quarter four of 2018 respectively.

The completion dates for construction have not changed. However, the Strategic Defence and Security Review called for one operational Queen Elizabeth class carrier to be converted to support the more capable Carrier Variant of the Joint Strike Fighter and we are investigating the optimum solution to meet that requirement. On current plans, we expect to conclude work to enable firm decisions on the optimum conversion solution for the operational carrier in late 2012. Depending on the outcome of that work, the completion date for the construction of the carriers may change. Either way we will have an operational carrier from around 2020.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2011, Official Report, column 977W, on armed forces: recruitment, what the cost per recruit was of medical assessments for potential pilots; and if he will make a statement. [86502]

Mr Robathan: We do not hold records for the cost per recruit of medical assessments for potential pilots. All officer candidates undergo medical assessments, although there are additional tests for potential aircrew.

Armed Forces: Young People

Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average expenditure per Army recruit was of recruiting and training to identical roles recruits who were aged (a) under 18 years and (b) 18 years or above in the latest period for which figures are available. [86636]

Mr Robathan: The average cost of recruiting an Army recruit in financial year (FY) 2010-11 was £10,000; this covers the full recruitment process, including selection, and does not vary between those who are under or over 18 years of age.

The following table provides the average expenditure for the full cost of providing Phase 1 training, including accommodation, meals, welfare, health and other support per Army recruit for FY 2010-11.

	Duration of course (weeks)	Under 18 (£)	Over 18 (£)
Full cost of training per recruit at Army Technical Foundation College, Winchester	23	53,985	n/a
Full cost of training per recruit at Army Foundation College, Harrogate	50	64,458	n/a
Full cost of training per recruit at Army Training Centre, Pirbright	14	n/a	21,318
Full cost of training per recruit at Army Training Regiment, Bassingbourn	14	n/a	26,992
Full cost of training per recruit at Infantry Training Centre, Catterick (Phase 1)	14	n/a	26,543

n/a = not applicable

The average unit rate varies depending on both the number of recruits being trained and the course duration at each training site.

Information relating to the average expenditure per recruit for Phase 2 training is not available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. This is because Phase 2 (trade training) varies for each of the over 220 trades offered by the Army, both in terms of content and course length. However, as Phase 2 training is not age dependent, there would be no difference in any average training cost for a specific trade between those who are under or over the age of 18.

Defence Equipment

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Blaydon (Mr Anderson) of 21 October 2011, Official Report, column 1167W, on defence equipment, what the cost was of using Ministry of Defence-owned road vehicles to transport military kit in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08, (c) 2008-09 and (d) 2009-10; on how many occasions Ministry of Defence-owned road vehicles were used to transport military kit in each of those years; and if he will make a statement. [86501]

Peter Luff: The use of Ministry of Defence owned road vehicles to transport defence equipment is primarily undertaken at unit level. Journeys are not individually costed or recorded centrally and the requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Members: Correspondence

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to reply to the letter of 25 November 2011 from the hon. Member for Harrow West to the Minister for Defence Personnel, Welfare and Veterans; and if he will make a statement. [86887]

Mr Robathan: A reply was sent on 12 December 2011. The hon. Member's letter was received on 1 December 2011 and received a response within eight working days. The Ministry of Defence aims to answer correspondence from hon. Members within 15 working days.

Military Aircraft

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of upgrading the two purchased F-35B variants to the standards required by the US Marine Corps after the completion of testing. [86282]

Peter Luff: The previous Government ordered three F-35B aircraft for test and evaluation purposes. One has been exchanged for a F-35C variant. The mission systems for the F-35B and F-35C are largely the same but, the UK is upgrading the Short Take Off and Vertical Landing Joint Strike Fighter (JSF) for its own purposes in order to conduct initial operational test of JSF alongside US Services. We have included sufficient funding within the original financial approval for these aircraft to ensure that they are upgraded to the appropriate standard for these tests. The US Marine Corps have no input to these decisions.

RAF Leuchars

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2011, Official Report, column 234W, on RAF Leuchars, when he plans to place in the Library a copy of the sustainability appraisal. [86640]

Nick Harvey: A copy of the sustainability appraisal report was placed in the Library of the House on 13 December 2011.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what alterations will be required to RAF Leuchars to transform it to an operational Army base; what estimate he has made of the cost of any such alterations; and if he will make a statement. [86646]

Nick Harvey: Work has begun to determine the precise capacity of the defence estate as we seek to maximise its use and rationalise where appropriate. Until this work is completed it is too early to say what alterations will be required to RAF Leuchars or how much this will cost.

EDUCATION

Schools: Manpower

Chris Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many (a) teachers, (b) teaching assistants, (c) special educational needs (SEN) teachers and (d) SEN assistants were employed in each local authority in (i) May 2010 and (ii) the latest period for which figures are available. [83474]

Mr Gibb: The following table provides the headcount of teachers and teaching assistants in publicly funded schools in England broken down by local authority and region in November 2010, the latest information available. Those employed in local authority maintained special schools are separately identified.

SEN teachers/assistants have been defined as those (a) working in special schools, (b) having a SEN co-ordinator role in other publicly funded schools or (c) having a learning support assistant for SEN pupils role in other publicly funded schools.

PRIME MINISTER

Bell Pottinger

Mr Watson: To ask the Prime Minister whether his (a) Chief of Staff and (b) Director of Strategy has met representatives of (i) Bell Pottinger Group and (ii) clients of Bell Pottinger Group on the recommendation of that Group since May 2010; on what dates any such meetings took place; and what was discussed. [86774]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 22 November 2011, Official Report, column 234W, to the hon. Member for Bassetlaw (John Mann).

EU Action

Ms Ritchie: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what discussions he had with the Office of First and Deputy First Minister in Northern Ireland on the most recent European Council meeting; [86709]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on Northern Ireland of the outcome of the most recent European Council meeting. [86710]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 529, to the right hon. Member for Belfast North (Mr Dodds).

Ministerial Policy Advisers

Alun Michael: To ask the Prime Minister what the (a) name and (b) payscale is of each special adviser appointed since 14 October 2011. [86855]

The Prime Minister: An updated list of special advisers, and their pay bands, is published quarterly. This is available on the Cabinet Office website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/special-adviser-data-releases

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Energy Performance Certificates

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the number of private rented sector accommodation units in energy performance certificate bands (a) E, (b) F and (c) G in the London borough of Brent. [86478]

Andrew Stunell: I have been asked to reply.

The English Housing Survey does not enable an estimate to be made at local authority level. However, the survey does provide a national estimate of the numbers of privately rented accommodation in each energy performance certificate band. The national estimate is included in the latest published English Housing Survey Tables (Housing Stock Summary Statistics Table 7.1):

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/statistics/xls/1937429.xls

Carbon Sequestration

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he had with representatives of the carbon capture and storage industry before the announcement by the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on carbon capture and storage funding in this Parliament. [85901]

Charles Hendry [holding answer 12 December 2011]: My right hon. Friend the Chief Secretary to the Treasury has not made an announcement on CCS funding in this Parliament. My colleagues and I, at ministerial and official level, meet regularly with industry representatives to discuss CCS. This includes discussions about funding and we have been clear that £1 billion is available to support CCS projects.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what support staff (a) he and (b) his special advisers employ other than the staff in his private office. [86609]

Gregory Barker: None.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the (a) salary grade and (b) title is of each member of staff in his private office who is (A) a civil servant, (B) a special adviser and (C) another political appointee. [86611]

Gregory Barker: Please see following table showing details of staffing in the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change's private office. All staff are civil servants and there are no other political appointees.

Grade	Title	Number
Senior Civil Servant, PB1	Principal Private Secretary to Secretary of State	1
Special Adviser, PB2	Special Adviser to Secretary of State	2
Grade 6	Deputy Principal Private Secretary to Secretary of State	1
Fast stream	Private Secretary to Secretary of State	3
HEO	Diary Manager to Secretary of State	1
Grade 7	Speech Writer to Secretary of State	1

Salary information is already published. Please see following links.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff in his private office (a) previously worked for a political party and (b) are on secondment. [86612]

Gregory Barker: None.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many staff in the private office of the (a) Minister of State for Climate Change and (b) Minister of State for Energy are on secondment. [86613]

Gregory Barker: None.

Electricity Generation

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ipswich (Ben Gummer), of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 40W, on electricity generation, what estimate his Department has made of the costs of moving to a pooled system of retail energy sales; and what cost-benefit analysis he has undertaken of such a move; [86672]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on competition in the retail energy sector of moving to a pooled system of retail energy sales; [86673]

(3) what discussions his Department has had with small retail energy suppliers on the effect on their business model of moving to a pooled system of retail energy sales. [86671]

Charles Hendry [holding answer 14 December 2011]: The UK operated under a pool system prior to privatisation, thereafter we moved to a system of bilateral contracting (NETA), in common with most other European counties. However, a reversion to a pool system would be costly, disruptive and would take years to implement. As an illustration, estimated costs in 2004 of the transition from the pool to NETA were in the region of £700 million.

There are alternative approaches to improving energy market competition. Ofgem, are leading work aimed at increasing market liquidity in order to ensure that small and independent suppliers and generators have fair access to the market. A pool would not necessarily solve the problems facing smaller market participants—in particular a pool would not in itself improve forward market liquidity.

Nuclear Power: Safety

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the costs to (a) his Department and (b) operators of civil nuclear installations resulting from the implementation of the recommendations in the report on implications for the UK nuclear industry of the Japanese earthquake and tsunami by HM Chief Inspector of Nuclear Installations. [85787]

Charles Hendry: Nuclear safety is a top priority and as such any associated costs to the Department will be borne out of the overall departmental budget.

The Government are not able to comment on any associated costs to the nuclear operating companies, as such costs are part of the overall and ongoing costs of ensuring the safe operation of nuclear facilities.

Renewable Energy: Wales

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had on renewable energy development in Wales. [86247]

Charles Hendry: The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change has regular discussions with ministerial colleagues across the UK on renewable energy issues, including those in Wales.

Solar Power: Feed-in Tariffs

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his Department's most recent estimate is of the cost of extending the eligibility date for the reduction in tariff level for solar PV from 12 December 2011 to 31 March 2012. [85780]

Gregory Barker: The impact assessment published alongside the consultation on feed-in tariffs for solar PV estimated the range of costs to consumers with a reference date of 12 December 2011 (option 2) and a reference date of 1 April 2012 (option 3). Under the central scenario we estimated that the additional costs associated with a reference date of 1 April would be approximately £60 million per year (2011 prices, discounted) over the spending review period.

We have undertaken an initial update of the estimates in the impact assessment to take account of higher than projected uptake in October 2011. Our preliminary update suggests that under the central scenario the additional costs associated with a 1 April reference date would be around £120-140 million per year (2011 prices, discounted) over the spending review period. These estimates should be treated as preliminary, as full updated estimates will be published in the final impact assessment supporting the Government's response to the consultation.

Warm Front Scheme

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households in (a) England, (b) each local authority area and (c) each parliamentary constituency received assistance under the Warm Front scheme (i) in each of the last 10 years, (ii) between July 2010 and December 2010 and (iii) since April 2011; and what the average level of grant provided under the scheme was in each such period. [86523]

Gregory Barker: This information is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households received assistance under the Warm Front scheme in England in each month of the last 10 years; and what the average level of grant provided under the scheme was in each such month. [86524]

Gregory Barker: I will be placing a copy of the information requested in the Libraries of the House.

Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000

Mr Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the operation of the Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000 since July 2010; and if he will make a statement. [R] [84458]

Gregory Barker: I discuss fuel poverty issues with ministerial colleagues on a regular basis.

Mr Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials in his Department have had with (i) HM Treasury and (ii) other ministerial colleagues on the operation of the Warm Homes and Energy Conservation Act 2000; and if he will make a statement. [R] [84485]

Gregory Barker [holding answer 5 December 2011]: Ministerial colleagues, officials and I regularly meet with other Government Departments to discuss fuel poverty issues.

JUSTICE

Care Homes: Hampshire

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many care homes in (a) Hampshire and (b) Southampton have been subject to (i) successful and (ii) unsuccessful prosecutions in the last two years. [86596]

Mr Blunt: The Ministry of Justice Court Proceedings Database holds information on offences provided by the statutes under which proceedings are brought but not all the circumstances of each case. It is not possible to identify from these centrally held data whether a care home was proceeded against or found guilty.

Chief Coroner: Public Appointments

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department has contacted any potential candidates for the role of Chief Coroner. [86773]

Mr Djanogly: The Ministry of Justice has not contacted any potential candidates for the role of Chief Coroner. Under Schedule 8 to the Coroners and Justice Act 2009 it is for the Lord Chief Justice to appoint the Chief Coroner, following consultation with my right hon. and learned Friend the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice.

Civil Disorder

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which courts dealt with cases concerning persons suspected of criminal involvement during the public disorder of August 2011. [86308]

Mr Djanogly: To date public disorder cases have been heard at 79 magistrates courts and 17 Crown courts, a list of which follows.

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the costs to the courts of processing cases concerning people involved in the public disorder of August 2011. [86309]

Mr Djanogly: These cases have been mainly accommodated within the normal sittings of the magistrates and Crown courts with extra cost primarily attributed to the operating of some 24 hour courts in the first days of the disorder and having other courts on stand-by at the time of the public disorder. The most recent assessment of this marginal cost to Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service is £100,000.

We are not able to assign an accurate cost to processing these cases as cases are still progressing through the courts and there are likely to be large differences in costs of individual cases in terms of numbers and lengths of hearings. For example there may be one where a guilty plea was entered and the offender sentenced at the first hearing in the magistrates court or a case that proceeds to trial before a jury in the Crown court.

County Courts

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he had expected to publish the Government's response to the consultation on solving disputes in the county courts; for what reasons publication of the Government's response has been delayed; and when he expects to publish the Government's response. [86727]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The Government expect the consultation response to be published in the new year. The response was initially scheduled for publication in October but this was postponed due to ongoing discussions within Government.

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which organisations his Department had discussions with on the consultation on solving disputes in the county courts (a) before and (b) after the consultation closed; and how many submissions to the consultation were received. [86728]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 190W. The Department received 319 responses to the consultation. The Department has engaged in discussions with the following organisations during the course of this year:

Association of British Insurers
Civil Mediation Council
Forum of Insurance Lawyers
Association of Personal Injury Lawyers
Motor Accident Solicitors Society
The Law Society
The British Bankers Association
Citizens Advice
Her Majesties' Association of District Judges
R3 (Association of Business Recovery Professionals)
Civil Courts Users Association
Office of Fair Trade
Shergroup
The Land Registry
Centre for Peaceful Solutions & Brent Mediation Centre
Centre for Effective Dispute Resolution
Law Works Mediation
National Health Service Litigation Authority
Medical Protection Society

Departmental Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any senior staff in (a) his Department and (b) its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary; and if he will publish his policy on such payments. [85074]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: The Ministry of Justice uses external resources in order to meet skills, capacity and capability shortages. Contractors and interims can be deployed in temporary senior management positions when it has been established that there is no suitable internal resource available. When doing so the Ministry ensures that it receives value for money and complies with procurement legislation, HM Treasury's rules and Cabinet Office Efficiency and Reform Group (ERG) requirements.

The process for procurement of contractors and interims is via a single managed service provider, Capita Resourcing Limited. Payments are made to this service provider. All resource requests are raised directly with Capita via their online recruitment system called 'TalentLink'. Capita then act as the single point of contact for the end to end process for handling the contractor procurement. In addition, Capita manage all contractual and second tier supplier relationships, thus achieving cost savings and time-efficiencies.

Within the Ministry of Justice there are four senior managers (senior civil servants) engaged on an interim basis through Capita. Within its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies, there is currently one senior manager engaged on an interim basis through Capita.

Market Testing Evaluation Panels

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what his policy is on the level of profit margin market testing evaluation panels in his Department should allow for private bidders; [86515]

(2) whether his Department's market testing evaluation panels seek information on the profit margins anticipated by private bidders. [86516]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: In running offender services competitions, evaluation panels seek to ensure that bids from potential providers from all sectors will deliver the standards of safety, decency and security set out in the relevant NOMS specifications for that service. Panels also evaluate the cost effectiveness and operational viability of bids in order to ensure that the desired outcomes can be delivered. Bidders were requested for profit as a percentage of their total operating cost for the purposes of the Prisons Competition phase I awarded in March 2010.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to answer the letter from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton of 26 October 2011 with regard to Mrs M Fallows. [85148]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: I have now replied.

Personal Injury

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the round table consultation meeting on matters relating to personal injury was postponed; and when he expects the round table to be held. [86711]

Mr Djanogly: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer given on 6 December 2011, Official Report, column 194W. The roundtable discussion was postponed as the publication of the Government's response to 'Solving Disputes in the County Courts' has been delayed. The meeting will be rescheduled for the new year once the consultation response has been published.

Prisoners' Transfers

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which companies hold contracts with (a) his Department and (b) the National Offender Management Service for escorting prisoners; and how much each such company has received from his Department in each of the last three years. [86602]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: All the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) requirements for escorting prisoners are now delivered through the Prison Escort and Custody Services (PECS) contracts.

The latest PECS contracts were awarded in March 2011 by the MoJ to Serco Wincanton and GEOAmey PECS Ltd. Prior to 29 August 2011 NOMS did receive a separate Inter Prison Transfer (IPT) service which was provided nationally by G4S Care and Justice as well. As part of the improvements and efficiencies introduced by the latest PECS contracts IPT was integrated in to a single PECS service requirement. Consequently, the following data include reference to both PECS and IPT.

All the financial information requested is provided in the following table, with the new PECS contracts is shown separately, and is based on the MoJ financial year which runs from April to March each year.

Financial year	Service period	Service	Company	Contract spend (£)
2011-12	29 August 2011 to 30 November 2011	PECS (new)	GEOAmey PECS Ltd	27,925,624

2008-09	1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009	PECS	Reliance	39,936,130

Prisons: Public Sector

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the public sector bid to operate HM Prison Featherstone 2 was unsuccessful. [86289]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: The winning bidder (G4S Care and Justice Services (UK) Limited) submitted a more economically advantageous bid overall than the bid submitted by the public sector. In particular, the winning bidder scored higher overall in relation to non-price criteria, and submitted a lower priced bid over the duration of the contract.

Probation

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to ensure that his forthcoming proposals for reform of the probation service do not place the public at risk. [86623]

Mr Blunt: The first stage of our work to look at the future shape of probation services in England and Wales is nearing completion. Throughout our work safeguarding public protection has been one of the key criteria when considering any possible reforms.

We expect to announce our emerging findings early in the new year and will then consult widely.

Work Capability Assessment: Appeals

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the potential cost to the public purse of the introduction of a six day week for HM Courts and Tribunals Service to hear appeals on decisions of the work capability assessment. [86847]

Mr Djanogly: Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service (HMCTS) hears appeals against Department for Work and Pensions decisions on entitlement to employment and support allowance (ESA) (decisions in which the work capability assessment is a key factor) rather than appeals against work capability assessment decisions themselves.

Saturday sittings are one of a number of measures taken to increase the capacity of the Social Security and Child Support (SSCS) Tribunal in response to the significant and unforecast increase in appeals. Appellants are asked whether they are willing to attend a hearing on a Saturday before their case is listed and the hearing will proceed exactly as it would on a weekday.

Saturday sittings hear a mixture of case types which prevents analysis specifically for ESA cases. The use of Saturday sittings is at the discretion of local managers and judiciary and therefore a specific budget has not been set aside for it. Between April and October 2011 379 sessions were held on a Saturday, which disposed of 1,848 cases. Based on the average cost of an SSCS appeal in 2010-11 of £239 the estimated total cost of these sittings is £0.4 million, although the actual cost of an appeal may be slightly higher on a Saturday as some administrative staff involved will receive overtime payments.

Total disposals by the SSCS Tribunal in the period between April and October 2011 were 21% up on the same period in 2010, and 66% higher than in the same seven months in 2009. In each of the last 12 months more ESA appeals have been disposed of than were received.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects to provide a substantive reply to Question 84642 tabled on 29 November 2011 for named day answer on 5 December 2011. [86706]

Mr Djanogly: I have now replied to the hon. Member's question.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the backlog of cases in the UK Border Agency, broken down by case type and the number of cases in each category. [79780]

Damian Green: The current number of work in progress cases in the UK Border Agency is shown as follows:

	Number
Temporary Migration[1, 5, 6]	42,800
Permanent Migration[1, 5, 6]	53,000
Asylum[2, 5]	37,900
Other[3, 4, 5, 6]	16,400

The number of applications over the last six months were:

	Number
Temporary Migration[5, 6]	105,700
Permanent Migration[5, 6]	147,300
Asylum[5, 7]	9,900

[1] Figures were produced on 4 November 2011.
[2] Asylum cases also known as the asylum WiP was published on the HM Government website in August 2011 http://data.gov.uk/dataset/asylum-performance-framework
[3] Figures were produced on 7 November 2011.
[4] Includes cases from case assurance and audit unit (CAAU).
[5] All figures rounded to the nearest hundred.
[6] With the exception of Asylum all figures quoted are management information which has been subject to internal quality checks.
[7] Asylum application figures are management information which has been subject to internal quality checks.

No 'Other' cases were received within the last six months.

Civil Disorder

Malcolm Wicks: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many claims for compensation under the Riot (Damages) Act 1886 arising from the civil disorder of August 2011 have been settled in each borough in Greater London; and what the total amount of compensation was in each case, at the latest date for which figures are available. [85573]

Nick Herbert: The Home Office does not hold the detail on the number or value of claims made specifically by individual boroughs of the Metropolitan Police Service.

Closed Circuit Television

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has received from police authorities on the decision by some local authorities to cease or reduce funding for the operation of CCTV; and what assessment her Department has made of any potential effect on the prevention and detection of crime. [86222]

James Brokenshire: No such representations have been received. The provision and deployment of CCTV by local authorities is a matter for them to assess in the light of local need and resources available.

Criminal Investigations: Care Homes

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many care homes in (a) Hampshire and (b) Southampton have been subject to police investigations in the last two years. [86597]

Nick Herbert: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Departmental Manpower

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were employed in the Liverpool offices of the (a) Criminal Records Bureau, (b) Identity and Passport Service and (c) United Kingdom Border Agency in 2010; and how many such people she expect to employ in 2015. [83709]

Damian Green: Table 1 following includes workforce figures for 2010 (as at 31 December 2010) using Office for National Statistics guidelines for workforce management reporting.

Table 1: People employed in Liverpool on 31 December 2010

Department	HC FTE	HC
Criminal Records Bureau	605.13	648
Identity and Passport Service	363.57	398
United Kingdom Border Agency	1,710.88	1,853
Grand total	2,679.57	2,899

Note:
Includes all permanent and paid civil servants as per ONS reporting guidelines.
Extract Date:

Data View, the Home Office's single source of monthly Human Resources data.

Home Office workforce plans are designed to be flexible to best support evolving business priorities throughout the spending review period and to be affordable within the Home Office's spending review settlement. It is not possible to forecast the number of people who will be employed in Liverpool in Criminal Records Bureau, Identity and Passport Service and United Kingdom Border Agency in 2015, as this falls into the next spending review period and workforce plans have not yet been drawn-up.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department at how many events organised by (a) charities, (b) other civil society groups, (c) businesses and (d) lobbying organisations Ministers and senior officials in her Department have given speeches in each month since May 2010; and if she will make a statement. [77342]

Damian Green: This information is not held centrally and could be collated only at disproportionate cost.

Detainees: Children

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under 16 years are being held in detention for immigration purposes; and how many were being held in (a) May 2011, (b) January 2011 and (c) June 2010. [77052]

Damian Green: The latest published management information for the number of children under 16 years of age entering detention, held solely under Immigration Act powers in immigration removal centres, short term holding facilities and pre-departure accommodation at Cedars is six in October 2011; seven in May 2011; two in January 2011 and 26 in June 2010.

This information is a subset of published data that correspond closest to the dates requested. These figures exclude those detained in police cells, Prison Service establishments and short-term holding rooms at ports and airports (for less than 24 hours), those recorded as detained under both criminal and immigration powers and their dependants. They may include age disputed cases. Cedars pre-departure accommodation for families opened on 17 August 2011.

Information on numbers of children entering detention is published monthly and is available from the Home Office Science, Research and Statistics web pages at:

http://homeoffice.gov.uk/science-research/research-statistics/migration/migration-statistics1/

A copy of the latest month has been placed in the Library of the House. November 2011 figures will be available on 29 December 2011.

Information on children detained under immigration Act powers, on any single day, is only published for the last day of each quarter. This information is available from the same web site and from the Library of the House. Figures for those detained on 30 September 2011 have been published on 24 November 2011.

Drugs Testing

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her Department's policy is on mandatory drugs testing for its staff. [86618]

Damian Green: The Home Office does not have mandatory drug testing arrangements in place for its staff.

Extradition: Russia

Mr David: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has any plans to review the operation of extradition arrangements between the UK and Russia. [86550]

Damian Green: The UK keeps its extradition relations with other countries under constant review. As the UK and Russia are both members of the Council of Europe, extradition between our two countries is governed by the 1957 Council of Europe Convention on Extradition. There are currently no plans to review this Convention.

Forensic Science

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she considers crime scene investigators to be front line staff. [86181]

Nick Herbert: In its report Demanding Times, published in March 2011, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) defined and categorised police roles. The report can be found at:

www.hmic.gov.uk

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will take steps to safeguard the services provided by crime scene investigators; and if she will make a statement. [86182]

Damian Green: Decisions about the deployment of police resources, including crime scene investigators, are a matter for chief constables to take locally in conjunction with their police authority and, from November 2012, their police and crime commissioner.

Human Trafficking Ministerial Group

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what dates the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on human trafficking has met since May 2010; who its members are; and which members attended each such meeting. [86446]

Damian Green: The Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on human trafficking met on 17 February 2011 and 11 October 2011. A list of members and attendees for each meeting is provided in the following list:

Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group (IDMG) on human trafficking—ministerial-level meeting attendees and non-attending members

Immigrants: Citizenship

Mr Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many immigrants to the UK have successfully applied for UK citizenship in each of the last 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [86561]

Damian Green: The available statistics are given in the following table. It is not possible to identify separately grants of British citizenship made to migrants as opposed to those that are UK born within the published data.

The number of applications for and grants of British citizenship has risen significantly since the mid-1990s. This increase is likely, in part, to reflect increased grants of settlement over the same period to non-European economic area nationals—after a period of residence those granted settlement become eligible to apply for citizenship.

The latest Home Office immigration statistics on persons granted British citizenship, from which the data in this reply are derived, are given in table 'cz.02' of the statistical release 'Immigration Statistics July-September 2011'. This publication is available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Science web site at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/science-research-statistics/research-statistics/immigration-asylum-research/immigration-q3-2011/

Immigrants: Detainees

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the detention data tables Immigration Statistics April-June 2011 table dt.07.q, whether any of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months (1) is appealing against (a) their detention and (b) their removal from the UK on human rights grounds; [82104]

(2) has an appeal case against their (a) detention and (b) removal from the UK lodged with (i) a domestic court and (ii) the European Court of Human Rights. [82105]

Damian Green: The following table sets out the total length of stay in the UK of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011.

Length of time (in years) in the UK based on first application raised	Number of individuals
5	13
8	10

The following table sets out the reasons why the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011 had not been removed from the UK. As the table shows, five of the individuals have now been removed from the UK. This information is taken from internal management information and is subject to change.

Barriers to removal	Number of individuals
Travel document	39
Appeals	6
Children issues	1
Country situation	1
Nationality not confirmed	1
Judicial review	15
Awaiting removal: multiple barriers	4
Rule 39[1]	2
Removed	5

[1] This is a request to the European court of human rights (under rule 39) that an applicant should not be removed from the UK.

Of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011, 53 lodged an appeal against their deportation. In addition to this:

29 individuals submitted a judicial review (JR) against unlawful detention.

five submitted a JR on HR grounds.

five submitted a JR against unlawful detention and on HR grounds.

To determine in which court those of the 74 individuals detained for more than 24 months referred to in the Immigration Statistics April to June 2011 have lodged an appeal against detention or removal would require the examination of individual case files which would incur a disproportionate cost.

Immigration Controls

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people she expected to enter the UK through ports operating the pilot scheme of reduced checks at border control points during the pilot scheme. [81094]

Damian Green: There were 20.2 million passenger arrivals to the United Kingdom during the first quarter (January to March) of 2011 of which 2.4 million were non-EEA nationals, 11.2 million were British citizens and 6.5 million were from other EEA countries and Switzerland. These figures are numbers of journeys and include passengers in transit who do not pass through immigration controls.

Further information relating to the second quarter (April to June) of 2011 was published on 24 November 2011 in the Home Office Science publication, 'Immigration Statistics July to September 2011', and the third quarter will be published on 23 February 2012. These data will be available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Science website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/science-research-statistics/research-statistics/immigration-asylum-research/

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to reform the sponsorship rules for family migration. [84816]

Damian Green: The family migration consultation closed on 6 October 2011. It proposed new measures to tackle abuse, promote integration and reduce burdens on the taxpayer. The Government are considering the responses to the consultation and will publish their response in due course.

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which border control checks were suspended on (a) 30 June 2011 and (b) 30 November 2011; whether those suspensions had ministerial approval; and when any such approval was given. [86088]

Damian Green: In advance of industrial action on 30 June and 30 November an operating protocol was authorised by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department. The protocol ensured that appropriate immigration and customs checks were conducted on all passengers arriving at UK ports and airports during the period of industrial action.

Immigration Controls: Cyclamen Machines

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) ports and (b) airports did not operate cyclamen machines on 30 November 2011. [86089]

Damian Green: Cyclamen remained operational on 30 November 2011 at all ports and airports where fixed equipment is installed. Screening was undertaken following standard operating procedures.

Members: Correspondence

Sir John Stanley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to reply to the letters from the right hon. Member for Tonbridge and Malling dated 26 January, 17 May and 8 July 2011 regarding correspondence received from Mr F. G. Thurygill. [86372]

James Brokenshire: A response was sent on 15 December 2011.

Police

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces have opted to use (a) trauma risk management and (b) applied suicide intervention skills training; and if she will make a statement. [86459]

Nick Herbert: This information is not held centrally.

Police: Accountability

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the cost of introducing police commissioners in Wales; and how much of such costs is attributable to (a) commissioners' pay, (b) staffing costs and (c) other costs. [85994]

Nick Herbert: I have previously laid before Parliament the recommendations of the Senior Salaries Review Body in respect of the salaries for police and crime commissioners (PCCs), including the PCCs of the four Welsh forces; my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department and I are currently considering these recommendations and will provide our response to the report in the near future. Once elected it will be for each PCC to determine the cost of their staff and publicly account for all costs of their office. The total estimated day-to-day costs of PCCs in Wales are not expected to be any higher than the current costs of police authorities in the area.

Union of Good

Robert Halfon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the US Government on the Union of Good; and if she will make a statement. [86592]

James Brokenshire: Home Office Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of international partners, as well as organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors, as part of the process of policy development and delivery.

As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Windsor Review of Police Officers

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) representations she has received and (b) discussions she has had with the Police Federation of England and Wales on the Windsor Review of Police Officers' and Staff Remuneration and Conditions; and if she will make a statement. [86650]

Nick Herbert: The Independent Review of Police Officer and Staff Remuneration and Conditions is in two parts. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department referred recommendations about police officers' pay and conditions from part 1 of the review to the police negotiating machinery and that process is ongoing. We will consider the outcome of that process carefully before any decisions are made as to the implementation of Tom Winsor's recommendations. Part 2 of the review is due to report in January.

Ministers meet and engage regularly with the Police Federation.

Written Answers to Questions

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Japan Tobacco International

Mr Hain: To ask the Leader of the House whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers of his Office have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87603]

Sir George Young: Information about hospitality received by Ministers and special advisers is published quarterly by Departments. Information for the period 13 May 2010 to 30 June 2011 can be accessed on departmental websites. Information for 1 July onwards will be published in due course on the Cabinet Office website at http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/ministerial-gifts-hospitality-travel-and-meetings-external-organisations

and

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for South West Devon, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, what estimate the Electoral Commission has made of the number of people not registered to vote in (a) 2010 and (b) the most recent period for which figures are available. [86951]

Mr Streeter: The Electoral Commission informs me that it estimates that at least 6 million people were not registered on Great Britain's December 2010 electoral registers.

The most recent estimate of the number of people not registered in Great Britain is 8.5 million, which is based on the April 2011 electoral registers.

These estimates are set out in the Commission's December 2011 report, 'Great Britain's electoral registers 2011', available in the House of Commons Library or at:

www.electoralcommission.org.uk

NORTHERN IRELAND

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86990]

Mr Paterson: From December 2010 to November 2011, my Department has spent £125,648 on food purchased by its food and catering service.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency: Wales

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason her Department has not undertaken a (a) public consultation and (b) impact assessment on the proposed closure of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency regional laboratories in Wales. [85967]

Mr Paice: No AHVLA sites will be closed.

The rationale was based on value for money. No impact assessment or wider consultation took place as this was an internal AHVLA review of operational delivery services which does not require policy or regulatory change. The proposal does not significantly change the nature of service delivery but does contribute to the need to generate the £2.4 million of associated savings as soon as possible.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account she took of the density of animal stock in Wales in taking the decision to close the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency regional laboratories in Wales. [85968]

Mr Paice: No AHVLA Laboratory sites will be closed in Wales as a result of the rationalisation of laboratory services.

The decision to cease the delivery of laboratory services at the Welsh delivery sites was taken on the basis that fewer than 2% of tests for England and Wales were carried out in these laboratories and it was important to ensure that the national laboratory network was as well set up as possible to deliver high quality services in a value for money way all over England and Wales. Criteria that were taken into account included:

- the need to retain the necessary capabilities within the workforce across the network, in particular specialist scientific and technical skills;
- the need to retain sufficient staff capacity nationally to deliver the volumes of work required;
- consideration of the facilities required to maintain services required, e.g. specialist laboratory infrastructure;
- the need to reduce the number of sites at which the department operates in order to increase efficiency and reduce management and other overheads (equipment replacement and maintenance, quality and health and safety audits etc);
- the need to retain resilience of service delivery, e.g. Containment Level 3 (CL3) laboratory capacity.

Because laboratory testing can be carried out at any site, and does not require to be carried out at the same site as post mortem activity, density of animal stock is not a significant consideration in deciding on the sites of laboratories.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department is taking to ensure that laboratory testing will be completed in 24 hours following the closure of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency regional laboratories in Wales. [85969]

Mr Paice: Laboratory testing has never been guaranteed to be completed within 24 hours. The AHVLA publishes approximate turnaround times on its website. These are given in working days and are for guidance only. Although very dependent on the test in question, the minimum published turnaround time is two working days but for the majority of tests it is greater than this. These turnaround times will not change.

Following the rationalisation of the Laboratory Services department, AHVLA will still retain capacity at the site of the post-mortem examination to carry out tests that are considered to be essential by our veterinary experts, e.g. for anthrax and TB, and these will be reported urgently.

At present no AHVLA laboratory operates on weekends or bank holidays. This will actually improve as a result of the rationalisation to allow weekend working to improve turnaround times for samples received over this period.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps her Department is taking to ensure that samples taken for laboratory testing do not deteriorate over time and adversely affect results following the closure of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency regional laboratories in Wales. [85970]

Mr Paice: Samples taken for laboratory testing have always relied on remote laboratory testing arising from post mortems, with no perceived impact on test quality. Studies are now being undertaken to ensure this continues to be the case when the changes are implemented across the wider network. Initial findings indicate that there is no deterioration, but work continues on this and mitigations put in place to limit any possible negative impact.

AHVLA laboratories are accredited under ISO 17025 and there is a very strong protocol in place to ensure test quality is safeguarded.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reason her Department did not inform the Wales Office of its decision to close the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency regional laboratories in Wales. [85971]

Mr Paice: Animal Health and Welfare is a devolved matter in Wales and as such the Wales Office was not informed of the decision to de-couple laboratory services from surveillance and post-mortem testing at both sites in Wales.

The Chief Veterinary Officer (CVO) for Wales was briefed on the decision and formally written to, as is protocol in these cases. I would have informed Welsh Assembly Ministers if required. In this instance the CVO for Wales did not inform Welsh Ministers as the decision was regarded as an operational matter for AHVLA.

Slaughterhouses

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions she has had with animal welfare organisations on breaches of the law in slaughterhouses; and if she will make a statement. [80879]

Mr Paice: I met representatives of the slaughter industry, the British Veterinary Association, the Humane Slaughter Association, the Veterinary Public Health Association and the Food Standards Agency to discuss welfare in slaughterhouses earlier this year. We have arranged a follow up meeting with industry representation to address ongoing concerns about poor welfare standards in some slaughterhouses and how we can work together to address this issue.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Harriett Baldwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cases of bovine tuberculosis have been recorded in each month since the introduction of the Sam computer system. [83568]

Mr Paice: The implementation of Sam release 6, which captures TB data, was at the end of September 2011. The latest TB statistics available are to the end of August 2011 and are published on DEFRA's website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/statistics/foodfarm/landuselivestock/cattletb/

As soon as it is available, information for September and October 2011 will also be published on DEFRA's website.

Cattle: Animal Welfare

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many trained inspectors able to investigate allegations of acts of cruelty to cattle, and cattle being kept in conditions which neglect their welfare, there were in each region of England and Wales in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12 to date; and if she will make a statement. [82595]

Mr Paice: Currently, there are 240 veterinary officers and veterinary inspectors who are appointed under the relevant legislation.

This figure relates only to veterinary staff who would investigate any allegations of acts of cruelty to cattle and cattle being kept in conditions which neglect their welfare.

There are no figures for previous years or months as the Identity Card database is only there to inform who currently holds an ID card. When staff leave, they are deleted from the database.

However, it should be noted that the number of staff currently appointed under the relevant legislation is far greater than 240 and includes animal health officers, dairy hygiene inspectors, RSPCA and local authority staff etc. While these officers may be aware of cases of cruelty and neglect, they themselves would not investigate such cases; instead, they would pass them on to the veterinary officers and veterinary inspectors to action.

Cattle: Transport

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the new Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency cattle movement computer system to be fully functional. [83161]

Mr Paice: Significant improvements are being made to the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency IT system, called Sam, every week. It is expected that the system will be functioning normally by mid-December.

Dangerous Dogs

Dr Poulter: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment she has made of the merits of bringing forward proposals to amend the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 to hold a dog owner criminally responsible where a dog is found to be dangerously out of control in any place. [86688]

Mr Paice: My noble Friend Lord Taylor, who leads on the subject of dangerous dogs in DEFRA, has been working alongside Lord Henley to see how the proposed antisocial measures currently being developed in the Home Office can be best applied to such behaviour relating to dogs. DEFRA has also been developing proposals on reducing dog attacks and promoting more responsible dog ownership. This is now at an advanced stage and we expect to be able to make an announcement early in the new year.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible are taking to ensure that they meet the Government's buying standards for food and catering. [83724]

Mr Paice: The Government Buying Standards for Food provide for the first time minimum standards for food and catering services across central Government. They were not yet published at the time of the competition for DEFRA's catering contract. However, it was made clear in the tendering specification that when established and as amended from time to time, the successful caterer will be required to comply with the Government buying standards. The current contract and therefore this condition applies to the whole of the DEFRA estate and we are determined to ensure that they are met in full.

In addition officials are taking action to encourage these standards to be adopted as a minimum across the public sector and this will include all agencies and arm's length bodies with which DEFRA is engaged. Performance reporting will include all aspects of both mandatory and best practice elements of the standards.

Departmental Travel

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much her Department has spent on first class travel by (a) air, (b) boat and (c) train since May 2010. [75530]

Richard Benyon: The following table shows payments for first class travel (excluding upgrades) for the period since May 2010 and the same preceding period May 2009/

Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs—core DEFRA only

	May 2009 to September 2010	May 2010 to September 2011
Air	17,708	3,467
Rail	747,091	100,656

We have no record of any first class boat travel.

Detergents: Environment Protection

Ben Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department holds information on damage caused to the environment by chemicals used in domestic detergents. [86750]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA has undertaken several projects aimed at understanding the impact on the environment of chemicals contained in domestic detergents. Research indicated that the principal chemical which has the potential for detrimental impact on the environment is phosphorus, which in high levels can lead to eutrophication, reducing oxygen levels in the aquatic system.

In 2007, DEFRA commissioned an impact assessment to understand the contribution of phosphorus to water bodies failing to meet good ecological status, as defined within the water framework directive. The study showed that domestic detergents accounted for 5% of the phosphorus levels found in water courses.

Based on this evidence a ban was proposed on levels of phosphorus in domestic detergents greater than 0.4%, under the UK Detergents Regulations 2010, SI 740.

This ban is due to come into force in 2015. However, the European Parliament is currently proposing a ban on phosphorus levels which, if passed, will bring the UK's timetable forward to 2013. Also, under this proposal, the European Parliament is pursuing an extension to the ban that prohibits the inclusion of phosphorus in automatic dishwasher detergent. It aims for this to come into force in 2017.

Eggs: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the EU Egg Marketing regulations to be amended. [87217]

Mr Paice: We will continue to press in Europe to have the relevant EU legislation amended to enable a good enforcement strategy that helps prevent the marketing of eggs when they come from hens reared in conventional cages.

In the meantime we have taken steps to establish as much compliance as is possible with the conventional cage ban. A number of retailers, egg processors, food manufacturers and the food service industry are working to ensure that they have stringent traceability tests in place so that they can guarantee they are not sourcing conventional eggs from caged hens from either the UK or other member states. The industry has risen to the challenge and come out in support of producers who have stopped using conventional cages, reducing the risk of conventional cage eggs and egg products being marketed in the UK. My written statement to the House of 6 December 2011, Official Report, columns 15-19WS, includes a list of companies able to make this pledge and we will keep this list up to date.

Farming and Wildlife Advisory Group

Julian Sturdy: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions she has had on the future of the Farming and Wildlife Advisory Group. [85192]

Mr Paice: Pursuing the twin objectives of a competitive farming sector that plays a full part in protecting and improving the environment is a priority for this Government and the Farming and Wildlife Advisory Group (FWAG) epitomised that dual purpose.

The Farming Regulation Task Force identified the importance of ensuring that the environmental messages we give to farmers and their advisors are clear and well-prioritised. In the Natural Environment White Paper we have committed to undertake a review of advice and incentives for farmers. In taking this work forward we are very conscious of the role of independent environmental and conservation advice providers, such as the FWAG.

Officials from DEFRA and Natural England have been in close contact with FWAG over recent weeks to establish the facts of the unfolding situation and to understand the implications.

FWAG played an important role in the delivery of advice for a number of Government initiatives, including helping farmers to participate in agri-environment schemes and the Campaign for the Farmed Environment. The need for this work will continue and independent advice delivered by organisations like the FWAG will continue to play a key role in supporting and developing British farming. While it is very saddening to see the closure of the FWAG it is heartening to see that, in a number of regions, there are already efforts afoot to create successor organisations to deliver advice.

Government Procurement Card

Charlie Elphicke: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) transaction date, (b) supplier and (c) amount was of each transaction made on a Government procurement card held by the private office of the Secretary of State in her Department between 28 June 2007 and 11 May 2010. [82152]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA introduced an improved GPC transaction processing system in the summer of 2009. Data from 1 May 2009 to 11 May 2010 will be placed in the House of Commons library.

To identify data prior to May 2009 would incur disproportionate cost.

Hazardous Substances: International Co-operation

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department has given support to Safe Planet: the UN Campaign for Responsibility on Hazardous Chemicals and Wastes. [86486]

Richard Benyon: My Department has not given any direct support to the UN Safe Planet Campaign, but we strongly support the work and aims of the three UN conventions that form part of the campaign and underpin its work, namely the Basel, Rotterdam and Stockholm conventions.

Livestock: Exports

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps she is taking to tackle the live export of horses for slaughter; and if she will make a statement. [85568]

Mr Paice: We will continue to push the EU Commission for a review of the rules on long journey transportation of all animals, including horses. In the interim, we will also be playing a full part in the work which the EU Commission believes will ensure better enforcement of the existing transportation rules, as outlined in the EU Commission's recent report on the impact of Council Regulation (EC) 1/2005, concerning the protection of animals during transport.

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the costs to the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency were of inspecting live animal export shipments from UK ports (a) in each year from 1997 to 2010 and (b) in 2011 to date. [86497]

Mr Paice: The Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency does not record this information.

Livestock: Transport

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans she has to review rules on animal movements. [85790]

Mr Paice: The independent Farming Regulation Task Force made recommendations for changes to the livestock movements' regime. We have implemented some of the recommended changes already. Others require more evidence and detailed risk-assessment before we can make informed, risk-based decisions about whether they can be accepted as proposed. The initial response to the Task Force recommendations, published on 3 November, provided an overview of progress. We will provide our final response early in 2012.

Oil: Exploration

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions her Department has had with the (a) Department for Transport and (b) European Commission on the environmental effects of extracting oil from tar sands. [82215]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA has been involved in reaching a collective Government position on the UK's negotiating position for EU discussions on oil sands in the context of the fuel quality directive.

As the Department for Transport leads on the issue in Government, DEFRA has not had any direct discussions with the European Commission on the matter.

Plastic Bags

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has any plans to bring forward legislative proposals to establish a producer responsibility regime for plastic carrier bags. [86487]

Richard Benyon: We are currently exploring a range of options, including legislation, and hope to bring forward a proposal next year.

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has made an assessment of the effectiveness and consequences of recent legislation in Italy banning plastic carrier bags and its implications for UK waste policy. [86488]

Richard Benyon: No assessment of the Italian legislation has been made. We are currently waiting for the European Commission to express views on whether such an outright ban is contrary to the single market provisions in the EU Directive on Packaging and Packaging Waste (94/62/EC), which guarantee access to markets.

Poultry: Animal Welfare

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has made an assessment of the risk of infraction proceedings being brought against the Government by the European Commission should it decide to proceed with a unilateral ban on shell and processed eggs from non-enriched hen cages. [87189]

Mr Paice: At the October Agriculture Council, the Commission ruled out the option of an intra-Community trade ban, and gave strong warnings to member states seeking to introduce a unilateral ban.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the cost to (a) manufacturers, (b) food processors and (c) retailers of policing the illegal import of non-compliant eggs under the EU directive on welfare of laying hens. [87218]

Mr Paice: No such assessment has been made by DEFRA. It is the role of the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency to enforce the marketing rules in relation to shell eggs.

Rural and Farming Network

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when she expects the Rural and Farming Network to be operational. [86334]

Mr Paice: Many of the groups that offered to be members of the Rural and Farming Network are already established and operating. We aim to have announced membership of the new network before Christmas with a view to the first meeting of RFN chairs and DEFRA Ministers taking place in the new year.

Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria have been used to determine the decisions on the restructuring of the Veterinary Laboratories Agency; and what consultations took place prior to the decisions being taken. [85617]

Richard Benyon: The Veterinary Laboratories Agency and Animal Health merged in the face of significant reductions in budgets over the spending review period to create a more resilient agency with shared expertise in animal disease management.

The Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency (AHVLA) has to make savings of more than £8.5 million for the next four years to meet spending review allocations (cumulative £34 million). These savings are in line with savings to be made across DEFRA.

All aspects of delivery are being reviewed to ensure that services are delivered in the most cost-effective way possible. Current changes to laboratory service delivery are designed to enable cost savings of more than £2.4 million per annum.

The proposed changes are based on the outcomes of the 2010 DEFRA-led GB-wide review of surveillance (including laboratory testing and post mortem and other aspects) which identified that savings needed to be made in this area by thinking about changing models of delivery. This review involved contributions from professionals in the field around Great Britain.

A review of possible changes to the current model which could deliver a service at least as effective as the current one at significantly less cost was carried out earlier in 2011. The review recommended that laboratory testing could be carried out in locations other than those used to carry out post mortems. A representative of front line veterinary staff was involved in this work, as well as relevant experts in epidemiology and state veterinary medicine.

The effect of this decision—to decouple laboratory testing from post mortem work more widely—was to enable a review of laboratory testing to identify opportunities to materially reduce the costs and increase the efficiency of the function as quickly as possible, while protecting its efficacy as a scanning surveillance tool.

In 2006-07, the Laboratory Services Department (LSD) as a whole delivered 2.8 million tests of all types. By 2010-11, this number had fallen to less than 1 million, a reduction of 65% in test throughput as a result of changing requirements. During the same period, the number of staff in the LSD fell by 5% and pay costs increased by 6%.

The decision on where to retain laboratory services was based on a number of factors including:

the need to retain the necessary capabilities within the work force across the network, in particular specialist scientific and technical skills;

the need to retain sufficient staff capacity nationally to deliver the volumes of work required;

consideration of the facilities required to maintain services required, e.g. specialist laboratory infrastructure;

the need to reduce the number of sites at which the department operates, in order to increase efficiency and reduce management and other overheads (equipment replacement and maintenance, quality and health and safety audits etc);

the need to retain resilience of service delivery, e.g. Containment Level 3 (CL3) laboratory capacity.

The fundamental criterion for the decision related to value for money. No wider consultation took place as this was an internal AHVLA review of operational delivery services, which does not significantly change the nature of industry service delivery.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the saving to the public purse from proposed restructuring of regional veterinary laboratories. [85619]

Richard Benyon: The Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency announced plans to reorganise its regional laboratory structure to enable savings of approximately £2.4 million in staff costs per annum.

There will also be some modest non-pay savings of approximately £120,000 per annum, assuming there are no savings on consumables and reagents. These savings are mainly on equipment maintenance costs.

There may be additional cost savings as part of the estates rationalisation, but at this time, this has yet to be quantified.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many staff in regional veterinary laboratories (a) have been offered and (b) have accepted relocation as a result of the restructuring of the Veterinary Laboratories Agency. [85622]

Richard Benyon: The redeployment and redundancy of staff in the regional veterinary laboratories is being handled in accordance with departmental policy. As part of this process, we are providing individuals with priority access to the roles we have available across the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency (and the wider civil service). Where an individual is at risk of redundancy and they apply for a role that is in a different location, we will support their relocation financially if there is a good business and financial justification for doing so. As yet, we have not had any requests from staff in the regional laboratories to support their relocation financially.

All staff have been invited to state whether they would consider relocation as an option for redeployment purposes. Only five have stated that they would consider this option if it was available.

Water: Meters

Mr Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether her Department has undertaken any analysis of the effectiveness of water meters in reducing long-term levels of water consumption. [86952]

Richard Benyon: In 2009, Anna Walker published her Independent Review of Charging for Household Water and Sewerage Services, a copy of which is available on the DEFRA website.

The review reported that one of the main benefits of metering is that it incentivises more efficient use of water. The review team considered a range of evidence and concluded the best available studies indicate that when people pay for water according to volume used, total water consumption falls by approximately 10%.

Water: Prices

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the proportion of water-bill payers in (a) the South West and (b) other regions of the UK who spend more than five per cent. of their income on their water bills. [R] [86937]

Richard Benyon: In May 2011 Ofwat published 'Affordability and debt 2009-10: Current evidence', which can be found on the Ofwat website.

This document contains analysis of the 2008-09 Family Resources Survey, which are the most recent publically-available data on this issue. This analysis found that 16% of households in the south-west spend more than 5% of their disposable income on water and sewerage charges. Across England and Wales, 11% of households spend more than 5% of their disposable income on water and sewerage charges.

WaterSure: Finance

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding was allocated to WaterSure in 2010-11; and how much she plans to allocate in each year of the comprehensive spending review period. [86458]

Richard Benyon: WaterSure is not funded by Government and there is therefore no funding allocated via the comprehensive spending review. WaterSure is funded by cross-subsidy by other water customers at company level.

Cabinet

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Prime Minister (1) whether he has invited hon. Members to (a) regional Cabinet meetings and (b) events related to such meetings taking place in or near their constituency; [86215]

(2) in which cities and towns he plans to hold regional Cabinet meetings in the next 12 months; [86216]

(3) what criteria were used to select the locations of regional Cabinet meetings since May 2010; [86217]

(4) in which locations regional Cabinet meetings have taken place since May 2010; and what the estimated cost to the Exchequer was of each such meeting. [86218]

The Prime Minister: Since May 2010, regional Cabinets have been held in the following locations:

Location		Cost (£)
Bradford	June 2010	3,000
Derby	March 2011	3,000

Location		Cost (£)
Cardiff	July 2011	1,850
Ipswich	December 2011	1,950

Departments and agencies will also have incurred costs in terms of travel, staff time and other support. The cost of any security provided by the police is a matter for the relevant police force. Regional Cabinets and associated visits allow Ministers to hear at first hand the views of people in different areas of the country. The location of future meetings will be announced in due course. There has been no change in the practice followed by the previous Administration for inviting hon. Members to meetings and related events.

Copyright

Mr Watson: To ask the Prime Minister whether he discussed the issue of copyright infringement with his Chinese counterpart in June 2011; on what dates any such meetings took place; what issues were discussed; and what (a) internal and (b) external advice he received on the merits of holding any such meeting. [86780]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave during the press conference with Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao on 27 June 2011. A transcript of the press conference is available on the No. 10 website:

http://www.number10.gov.uk/news/speeches-and-transcripts/2011/06/press-conference-with-premier-wen-jiabao-65285

EU Action

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Prime Minister (1) what discussions he has had with the devolved Administrations on (a) the potential use of the veto and (b) other matters relating to the European Council meeting of 8 and 9 December 2011 since the Joint Ministerial Committee held on 21 November 2011; [87220]

(2) what discussions he had on (a) the potential use of the veto and (b) other matters relating to the European Council meeting of 8 and 9 December 2011 at the Joint Ministerial Committee held on 21 November 2011. [87221]

Angus Robertson: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he had with the (a) Scottish Executive, (b) Welsh Government, (c) Northern Ireland Executive and (d) Mayor of London on use of a veto by the UK before the recent European Council. [87008]

Ann McKechin: To ask the Prime Minister (1) when he was most recently in contact with the First Minister of Scotland (a) orally and (b) in writing concerning (i) the operation of the Eurozone and (ii) the meeting of the European Council on 8 and 9 December 2011; [87146]

(2) what representations he received from the First Minister of Scotland prior to the meeting of the European Council on 8 and 9 December 2011. [87147]

The Prime Minister: International and EU issues are a matter reserved for the UK Government. We liaise through the Joint Ministerial Committee in the usual way. As usual, a Joint Ministerial sub-Committee on Europe was held before the December European Council. All devolved Administrations were given the opportunity to feed in their views.

Public Expenditure

Steve Rotheram: To ask the Prime Minister what plans he has for machinery of government changes up to 2015. [86954]

The Prime Minister: The machinery of government is kept under review.

SCOTLAND

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 month period for which information is available. [86989]

David Mundell: The Scotland Office does not have food and catering services.

Tugboats

Mr MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland (1) what (a) discussions and (b) meetings his Department has had with (i) the oil and gas industry, (ii) HM Coastguard and (iii) the Department for Transport on the future of the emergency towing vessel service after 31 December 2011; [87315]

(2) what steps he has taken to maintain the emergency towing vessels service after 31 December 2011. [87316]

David Mundell: The Scotland Office has held numerous discussions and meetings with the oil and gas industry, HM Coastguard and the Department for Transport to examine long-term options for the emergency towing vessel service in waters around Scotland. We have also worked very closely with other interested parties including the Maritime and Coastguard Agency, Scottish Government and local authorities.

The Secretary of State for Scotland, the right hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Michael Moore), intends to make a statement to the House on this matter shortly.

Young People

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on the operation of the Youth Contract in Scotland. [87051]

David Mundell: The Secretary of State for Scotland, the right hon. Member for Berwickshire, Roxburgh and Selkirk (Michael Moore), and I are in contact with ministerial colleagues from the Department for Work and Pensions on a range of issues, including the Youth Contract.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many mothers in (a) Leicester South constituency, (b) Leicester and (c) England receive financial assistance from the Child Support Agency. [86471]

Maria Miller: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested and I have seen the response.

Letter from Noel Shanahan:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many mothers in (a) Leicester South constituency, (b) Leicester and (c) England receive financial assistance from the Child Support Agency. [86471]

The Commission does not provide, financial assistance directly. However the Child Support Agency (CSA) operates two existing statutory child maintenance schemes. If a parent opens a case, the CSA will determine how much child maintenance should be paid and can also collect and pass on child maintenance payments.

In the quarter to September 2011 there were 900 cases with a female parent with care benefiting from maintenance in Leicester South Constituency, 3,000 in Leicester Local Authority and 551,900 in England.

Cases benefiting from maintenance are referred to as cases with a positive maintenance outcome. In addition the table below provides the number of cases, with a female parent with care in the specified areas, where maintenance was due and the number and percentage of these cases with a positive maintenance outcome in the three months to September 2011.

Cases benefiting from maintenance—September 2011

	Maintenance due	Positive outcome	Percentage with positive outcome
Leicester South constituency	1,200	900	75
Leicester local authority	3,900	3,000	77
England	709,800	551,900	78

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100.
2. Areas are provided by matching the residential postcode of the parent with care to the Office for National Statistics Postcode Directory.
3. Cases are classed as having maintenance due if an ongoing liability to pay maintenance exists or arrears of maintenance have been requested. This group of cases consists of assessed not charging, compliant, nil compliant, maintenance direct and others with receipts.
4. Cases are counted as having a positive maintenance outcome if they have received a payment via the collection service in the quarter or have a maintenance direct agreement in place. Cases are classed as maintenance direct if this is their status at the end of the quarter.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Employment Schemes

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many organisations have provided support in the Work Choice programme since 2010. [85987]

Maria Miller: DWP has contracts with eight prime providers who deliver the Work Choice programme. Between them, the prime providers have 73 subcontractors. Other organisations provide support, such as supported employment places, on an ad hoc basis.

Employment: Disability

Mr Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Government's response to the Sayce review, what further consideration he has given to the recommendations in the Sayce review on data collection on disability; and if he will make a statement. [86979]

Maria Miller: The Government consultation on the recommendations of the Sayce review closed on 17 October 2011, and more than 1,400 responses were received. It will take time to analyse the consultation responses in detail and carefully consider the implications for future policy. We will publish a summary of responses received and a statement on future policy as soon as practicably possible.

Housing Benefit: Armed Forces

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the number of families with a son or daughter in the armed forces and classed as non-resident for the purposes of housing benefit who will have their housing benefit reduced because they are deemed to be underoccupying their property from April 2013. [87326]

Steve Webb: The information needed to provide an estimate is not available.

The number of working-age housing benefit claimants living in the social rented sector and under-occupying their accommodation has been estimated using data from the Department's Family Resources Survey. However, the information needed to estimate the number of affected claimants with non-resident sons or daughters in the armed forces is not collected.

The impact assessment, entitled "Under-occupation of social housing", provides information about the effect of the housing benefit change on different groups of claimants, and can be found at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/docs/social-sector-housing-under-occupation-wr2011-ia.pdf

On 14 December 2011, Official Report, House of Lords, columns 1300-02, the Minister for Welfare Reform, the noble Lord Freud, announced £30 million in additional funding for discretionary housing payments, starting from 2013-14. This is intended to provide additional help for working-age claimants living in the social rented sector who under-occupy their homes. We are in the process of developing guidance for local authorities on the groups of claimants that this additional funding is intended to help.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Public Finance

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the public purse of introducing weekly signing for all 18 to 24-year-olds in receipt of jobseeker's allowance from the fifth month of their claim. [87052]

Chris Grayling: The cost of providing weekly signing was included as part of a package of support within the Youth Contract that is expected to cost nearly £1 billion over the next three years. The final costs for weekly signing will be driven by the volume of claimants and the Department for Work and Pensions does not forecast unemployment levels.

Pay

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely take-up by businesses of the wage incentives announced in the autumn forecast. [87053]

Chris Grayling: The Youth Contracts provides funding for 160,000 job subsidies which will be available to employers for providing work to young people who are being supported through the Work programme. Business groups such as the CBI have called for a new incentive to encourage companies to take on young people.

Work programme providers will work with employers and young people to deliver these opportunities. We are currently working with Work Programme providers and employers on the design and implementation of the job subsidy.

Pensioners: Council Tax

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners in each local authority area are in receipt of council tax benefit; and what proportion of all recipients of the benefit in each area are pensioners. [87327]

Steve Webb: The information has been placed in the Library.

Pensioners: Winter Fuel Allowance

Ben Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has any plans to put in place a mechanism to allow pensioners to repay winter fuel allowance. [87391]

Steve Webb: People have always been able to return their winter fuel payment if they wish to.

If people wish to return their payment they can do so by sending it to the address on the letter that came with their payment, or to the office that pays their benefit, with a covering letter indicating whether or not they wish to receive the payment in the future.

We ask people who want to return their payment to do so manually so that it can be dealt with securely under existing departmental financial processes and recorded against their benefit account.

Pensions Advisory Service: Manpower

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the (a) Pensions Advisory Service, (b) Pensions Regulator, (c) Pensions Protection Fund and (d) Pensions Ombudsman in (i) 2010-11 and (ii) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [87576]

Steve Webb: The numbers of staff are as follows:

	Number of staff
Arm's length body (ALB)	31 March 2011	30 November 2011
The Pensions Advisory Service	42	37
The Pensions Regulator	304	333.7
Pension Protection Fund	291	243.5
Pensions Ombudsman	33.95	29.5

Notes:
1. Data for 31 March 2011 are taken from the Annual Report and Accounts of each ALB for 2010-11. In the case of The Pensions Advisory Service and The Pensions Regulator these are average staffing figures for the year.
2. The increase in the number of staff for The Pensions Regulator is associated with additional resources provided for the auto enrolment employer compliance regime.

Poverty: Children

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children are classed as living in poverty in each local authority in England. [87408]

Maria Miller: Estimates of the number and proportion of children living in poverty are published in the Households Below Average Income (HBAI) series. HBAI uses household income adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, to provide a proxy for standard of living.

The sample size of this survey is not sufficient to provide estimates for small areas such as those requested. However, figures at a regional level are available. Three survey years have been combined because single year estimates are not considered to be sufficiently reliable.

Statistics covering 2007-08 to 2009-10 are the most recent available.

The following table shows the proportion and number of children living in relative poverty Before Housing Costs (BHC) in England, for 2007-08 and 2009-10 in each region.

Numbers and proportions of children in households with equivalised incomes below 60% of contemporary median income by region Before Housing Costs (BHC) 2007-08 to 2009-10

	Proportion of children (%)	Number of children (million)
England	21	2.3
North-east	26	0.1
North-west	25	0.4

Numbers and proportions of children in households with equivalised incomes below 60% of contemporary median income by region Before Housing Costs (BHC) 2007-08 to 2009-10

	Proportion of children (%)	Number of children (million)
Yorkshire and the Humber	26	0.3
East midlands	23	0.2
West midlands	29	0.3
East	16	0.2
London	20	0.3
South-east	14	0.2
South-west	16	0.2

Notes:
1. These statistics are based on Households Below Average Income (HBAI) data sourced from the Family Resources Survey (FRS) available at: http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/index.php?page=hbai_arc This uses disposable household income, adjusted using modified OECD equivalisation factors for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
2. Net disposable incomes have been used to answer the question. This includes earnings from employment and self-employment, state support, income from occupational and private pensions, investment income and other sources. Income tax, payments, national insurance contributions, council tax/domestic rates and some other payments are deducted from incomes.
3. Figures have been presented on a Before Housing Cost rather than an After Housing Cost basis. For Before Housing Costs, housing costs are not deducted from income, while for After Housing Costs they are.
4. All estimates are based on survey data and are therefore subject to a degree of uncertainty. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
5. The reference period for these HBAI figures is three financial years.
6. Numbers of children have been rounded to the nearest hundred thousand children.
7. Proportions of children in low-income households have been rounded to the nearest percentage point.
8. This measure is defined as: Relative poverty: children living in households with equivalised incomes below 60% of contemporary median household income Before Housing Costs (BHC).
9. The Child Poverty Act 2010 sets three further income-based UK-wide targets to be met by 2020. The targets are based on the proportion of children living in households with combined low income and material deprivation, absolute low income and persistent poverty.

Social Security Benefits

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many benefit sanctions were issued by (a) constituency and (b) region in each month since June 2010. [79158]

Chris Grayling: Information on the number of benefit sanctions by (a) constituency and (b) region in each month since June 2010 for jobseeker's allowance, employment and support allowance, and income support has been placed in the Library.

Social Security Benefits: Disability

David Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will consider providing support to those who lose the severe disability element of income support once their youngest child passes the age of 18 years. [85888]

Maria Miller: The severe disability premium, which is paid to disabled people in receipt of income support, is intended for severely disabled people who live alone, and who are therefore most likely to need to purchase care.

Once a child is no longer classed as a dependent and continues to live at home, the parent is no longer defined as living alone and entitlement to the severe disability premium will cease.

With the introduction of universal credit the Government intend to reform the current system of multiple, overlapping disability premiums and tax credits and instead create a much simpler system. Universal credit will have two elements of additional support for disabled people who are assessed as having limited capability for work or limited capability for work and work-related activity. This additional support will not be affected by the presence of non-dependent children in the household.

Social Security Benefits: Foreign Nationals

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Witham (Priti Patel) of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 594W, on social security benefits: foreign nationals, on what date the recording of the nationality of benefit claimants was discontinued; what the reasons were for this decision; and on what date he plans to resume such recording. [87604]

Chris Grayling: The nationality of benefits claimants has never been systematically recorded by the Department for Work and Pension's benefit payment systems, as nationality in itself is not a condition of entitlement.

I have commissioned work to release information regarding the nationality of benefits claimants at the point of registration for a national insurance number. I hope to make these preliminary statistics available shortly. In addition, I have asked my officials to look into ways of capturing nationality information at source.

Social Services: Finance

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2011, Official Report, column 515W, on social services: finance, on which dates Ministers in his Department have met ministerial colleagues to discuss the impact of the resource review on social care; and who was present at each such meeting. [87449]

Maria Miller: I regularly discuss a range of issues relating to the social care system with ministerial colleagues, however to date I have had no dedicated meetings on the impact of the Local Government Resource Review on social care.

Vaccination: Compensation

Mr Burley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the provisions of the Vaccine Damage Payment Act 1979; and whether he plans to bring forward proposals to amend the Act to include all new vaccines; [81394]

(2) how many claims under the Vaccine Damage Payment Act 1979 were made in (a) 2008, (b) 2009 and (c) 2010; and how many were successful. [81395]

Maria Miller: The Vaccine Damage Payments scheme was reviewed in 2000 and resulted in a number of changes to the Vaccine Damage Payments Act 1979 including lowering the disability threshold from 80% to 60% and increasing the time limit for making a claim. There are no plans to introduce any further changes to the Act.

The information requested on the number of vaccine damage payments claims and awards made is not available in the format requested but such information as is available is contained in the following table.

Vaccine damage claims and awards

	Claims	Awards
2009-10	62	3
2010-11	91	1

Notes:
1. Financial year is from April to March.
2. Payments made in any one year do not necessarily relate to the specific claims made in that year. This is largely due to the scheme's generous time limits for seeking a review of a vaccine damage payments decision and the fact that there is no time limit for making an appeal to an independent tribunal.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to improve the speed of administration of the winter fuel allowance for those aged over 80 so that people who turn 80 after 27 September in a given year receive the higher level that winter; if he will consider paying a proportion of the over 80 rate of winter fuel allowance to people who turn 80 after 27 September in a particular year once their claim has been processed; and if he will make a statement. [86927]

Steve Webb: The qualifying week for winter fuel payments is set in legislation as the third full week in September. Payment is made according to people's circumstances in that week. We use this date in order to establish entitlement and make payments before Christmas. The process to establish the entitlement of over 12 million pensioners takes six weeks and the first payments, to the poorest pensioners, are sent in early November. Payments continue to be sent through to December.

The winter fuel payment is a simple scheme to administer. Introducing pro-rata payments would make the scheme more complex. The process of establishing the amount of entitlement in individual cases would delay payments, and add significant expense.

Work Programme

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has put in place a contingency strategy for dealing with a Work programme provider which experiences financial difficulties. [87044]

Chris Grayling: All providers were required to demonstrate at the bidding stage that they had the financial capacity to deliver the Work programme. In addition, there are mechanisms in place to forewarn the Department about the potential failure or withdrawal of providers, allowing the Department to put alternative arrangements in place before service delivery is affected.

The Work programme contracts have been set-up with two to three providers in each contract package area, so there will be at least one alternative provider in each area which can continue to support participants should a provider fail, in advance of a competition being run to replace the failing provider.

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in each category of jobseeker he expects to be referred to the Work programme in each month of 2012. [87045]

Chris Grayling: An updated set of volumes based on the recent OBR forecasts will be issued to providers before Christmas.

Following are the previous set of indicative volumes sent to providers for claimant starts by payment group. The estimates for 2011-12 are for the 10 month period from when the Work programme went live in June 2011, to March 2012.

Volume estimates have been formulated for each year only.

	2011-12	2012-13
JSA 18-24	81,000	69,000
JSA 25+	294,000	241,000
JSA Early Access	40,000	42,000
JSA Ex-IB	23,000	36,000
ESA Volunteer	65,000	69,000
ESA Flow	56,000	66,000
ESA Ex-IB	53,000	74,000
IB/IS (England only)	16,000	19,000
Total	628,000	616,000

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will enable Work programme prime providers to publish the number of jobseekers they have placed into employment. [87046]

Chris Grayling: The Department is working to guidelines set by the UK Statistics Authority to ensure we are able to publish statistics that meet the required high quality standards and we will be seeking advice from the UK Statistics Authority on whether we can permit Work programme prime providers to publish performance information ahead of the release of these official statistics on Work programme job outcomes in autumn 2012.

Stephen Timms: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what comparative assessment he has made of the performance of the Work programme and that of the Flexible New Deal at the same stage of development. [87047]

Chris Grayling: The Department is working to guidelines set by the UK Statistics Authority to ensure we are able to publish statistics that meet high quality standards; no valid assessment of Work programme performance will be possible before official statistics on referrals are published from spring 2012 and on job outcomes from autumn 2012.

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with Work programme providers since the publication of the most recent unemployment forecasts by the Office for Budget Responsibility. [87049]

Chris Grayling: The DWP officials managing Work programme contracts will be responsible for communications with providers concerning the Office for Budget Responsibility forecasts.

Ed Balls: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of the most recent forecast by the Office for Budget Responsibility of levels of unemployment on the capacity of Work programme providers to deliver their existing contracts. [87050]

Chris Grayling: An assessment will be made following discussions about the new unemployment forecasts between DWP officials and Work programme providers.

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the contribution by the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent (Nick Smith) of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 418W, on core cities, whether he plans to allow all local authorities to participate in the Work programme. [87176]

Chris Grayling: For the Work programmeto be successful we need to tap into the experience, knowledge and specialist skills of local partners in order to deliver the personalised and localised services required in today's labour market. We expect Work programme providers to work with local authorities and local enterprise partnerships alongside other local organisations to understand and meet the needs of individuals from all customer groups.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Henry Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (a) how much her Department received through the collection of fees from those holding personal licences under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 and (b) what the operating costs were of the Animals in Science Regulation Unit in each of the last three years. [86188]

Lynne Featherstone: Section 8 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 requires that:

"The holder of a certificate issued under section 6 or 7 shall pay such periodical fees to the Secretary of State as may be prescribed by or determined in accordance with an order made by him."

The fees are required to cover the cost of operating the 1986 Act. Designated breeders and suppliers pay a single fee: designated scientific procedure establishments pay a standard charge supplemented by an additional charge based on the number of live personal licences valid at that place during the fiscal year.

Fees are charged annually one year in arrears and comply with HM Treasury fees and charges principles. The operating costs are reviewed against the accrued fee income for that particular year which is based on the actual fees received in the previous financial year. Any shortfall is taken into account the following year.

The cost of operating the 1986 Act and accrued income is in the following table.

Fiscal year (April to March)	Operating costs	Estimated fee income
2008-09	3,625	3,600
2009-10	3,830	3,800
2010-11	3,895	3,900

Glyn Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legal advice she has received on the suitability of implementing some or all the requirements of Directive 2010/63/EU relating to animal experimentation by means of secondary legislation made under section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972; and if she will make a statement. [86633]

Lynne Featherstone: I am advised that section 2(2) of the European Communities Act 1972 is a suitable means by which the requirements of Directive 2010/63/EU on the protection of animals used for scientific purposes may be transposed into United Kingdom legislation.

Glyn Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reason her Department did not include animal welfare in the list of direct key non-monetised costs by main affected groups when conducting its impact assessment of transposition options for Directive 2010/63/EU; and if she will make a statement. [86634]

Lynne Featherstone: Animal welfare issues were fully considered in the impact assessment of the options for transposition of European Directive 2010/63/EU. In the summary of policy option 2 they are covered under "other key non-monetised costs by main affected groups" which refers to standards of care and accommodation and in the summary of policy option 3 they are covered under "other key non-monetised benefits by main affected groups". More detailed discussion of animal welfare is set out in the sections dealing with the evidence base.

Association of Chief Police Officers: Government Procurement Card

Charlie Elphicke: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) date of purchase, (b) amount, (c) supplier and (d) level 3 or enhanced transaction entry was of each transaction undertaken by the Association of Chief Police Officers using the Government Procurement Card in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10. [73500]

Nick Herbert: The information requested is not held by the Home Office and is a matter for the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

Asylum

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of asylum seekers entering the UK travelled through a safe third country to reach the UK in each of the last five years. [86692]

Damian Green: In the last five years the following number of cases have been accepted for consideration for removal to a safe third country based on evidence received at the time they were encountered in the UK.

	Accepted for consideration for removal to a safe third country	Total asylum claims	Proportion (percentage)
2006	1,948	23,608	8
2007	1,792	23,431	8
2008	2,433	25,932	9
2009	2,693	24,487	11
2010	1,633	17,916	9

These figures are based on management information, and therefore are not subject to the stringent checks required for National Statistics.

Asylum: Democratic Republic of Congo

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information she used to decide that it is safe to return failed asylum seekers to the Democratic Republic of Congo; and when such information was last updated. [86730]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency carefully considers all asylum and human rights claims made by nationals of the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) in accordance with the UK's international obligations. All decisions take into account publicly available country information, including that found in the agency's Country of Origin Information (COI) reports. The DRC COI report was last published in June 2009; an update is scheduled to be released in early 2012. The DRC COI report (and future updates) can be accessed via the agency's website:

http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/policyandlaw/guidance/coi/

To supplement COI reports officials also have access to an information request service for case-specific queries, including those relating to the DRC. This service ensures that decision makers are able to access up to date country information should they require this.

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum seekers have been returned to Democratic Republic of Congo in the last 12 months. [86777]

Damian Green: The latest published figures show that 33 asylum seekers, including dependants, were removed or departed voluntarily to the Democratic Republic of Congo between October 2010 and September 2011; this figure is provisional.

It is not possible within these figures to say what stage in the asylum process these people have reached at the time of their removal, including whether their claim has failed at that point, because those departing voluntarily can do so at any stage without necessarily notifying the UK Border Agency.

The Home Office publishes quarterly and annual statistics on the number of persons removed or departed voluntarily from the UK within 'Immigration Statistics'. The data on removals and voluntary departures are available in the latest release: Immigration Statistics: July to September 2011, tables rv.01 to rv.08, from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Science, Research and Statistics web pages at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/science-research/research-statistics/migration/migration-statistics1/

Departmental Assets

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assets with a value of £250,000 or more her Department has bought since May 2010; for what purpose; and if she will make a statement. [77339]

Damian Green: There have been no assets of over £250,000 purchased by the core Home Office between May 2010 and September 2011.

Assets purchased by Home Office agencies between May 2010 and September 2011 of a value of over £250,000 are as follows:

Industrial Disputes

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many staff in her Department were re-deployed to cover the work of staff involved in industrial action on 29 and 30 November 2011; and what the cost was of (a) overtime payments including travel time, (b) time off in lieu of overtime, (c) travel, accommodation and subsistence costs and (d) bonus and other payments for that purpose; [86283]

(2) how many Government employees from outside her Department were re-deployed to cover the work of staff in her Department at ports and airports involved in industrial action on 29 and 30 November 2011; and what the cost was of (a) training, (b) overtime payments including travel time, (c) time off in lieu of overtime, (d) travel, accommodation and subsistence costs and (e) bonus and other payments for that purpose. [86284]

Damian Green: A total of 1,100 staff from the UK Border Agency (UKBA), Home Office and volunteers from other Government Departments, were deployed to ports and airports to maintain border controls and entry checks during the period of industrial action on 29 and 30 November. The number of staff involved, with a range of Home departments and deployments to ports and airports across the UK, has led to some delay in accurately reconciling an accurate breakdown of management information. Work to complete this task has been commissioned and is already under way.

In addition, UKBA are reviewing additional travel and subsistence costs incurred by staff that deployed to primary control points over the period of industrial action. The majority of staff have yet to submit reimbursement claims, meaning that it is too early to provide an accurate breakdown of costs. This will be done once claims are processed and properly reconciled.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether any staff of British diplomatic posts overseas were flown back to the UK to cover the work of staff in her Department involved in industrial action on 29 and 30 November 2011; and what the cost was of (a) travel and (b) accommodation for any such staff. [86285]

Damian Green: Not all eligible staff have currently submitted reimbursement claims, meaning that an accurate breakdown of numbers and cost is not yet available.

Departmental Secondment

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what secondments there have been to her Department from (a) industry and (b) the third sector since May 2010; what the (i) purpose and (ii) duration is of each secondment; and whether each secondment was to a policy development role. [86132]

Damian Green: The Home Department has appointed 69 staff on secondment since 31 May 2010 but it is not possible to separate out this figure to report on the (a) industry and (b) third sector that these secondments came from without contacting individual line managers to check locally-held records which would incur a disproportionate cost. For the same reason, it is also not possible to report on the (i) purpose and (ii) duration of each secondment, or whether each secondment was to a policy development role.

Entry Clearances

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for leave to remain were received from those resident in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) the London borough of Bexley in the last 12 months. [86753]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency received 80 applications for leave to remain from those resident in Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency in the last 12 months. A further 256 applications were received for residents in the London borough of Bexley.

Notes:

1. Figures are from 1 October 2010 to 30 September 2011.
2. All figures quoted are management information which has been subject to internal quality checks.

Entry Clearances: Iran

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements her Department has made to assist those whose personal papers and applications for visas were destroyed during the incident at the British embassy in Tehran; and if she will make a statement. [87193]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency (UKBA) hopes to put in place shortly an arrangement with a third state to oversee UK interests in Iran. UKBA will work with that country to assess how best to return to their owners' documents submitted during the visa application process. Every effort has been made to secure these documents. Applicants will be informed as soon as possible about these arrangements but it is currently not possible to say exactly when this will happen. UKBA is aware that some applicants are urgently seeking the return of their documents and deeply regret that the attack on the embassy has resulted in such inconvenience or distress.

EU Justice and Home Affairs

Mr Raab: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 14 July 2011, Official Report, column 457W, on EU Justice and Home Affairs, what progress has been made in compiling the list of police and criminal justice instruments adopted under the pre-Lisbon treaty third pillar arrangements which would be liable to transfer to the jurisdiction of the European Court of Justice in 2014 should the UK opt to accept the transfer at the end of the transitional period granted under Article 10 of Protocol 36 to the consolidated version of the Treaty on European Union. [86853]

James Brokenshire [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The provisions of Article 10(1) and the notification under Article 10(4) of the Protocol on Transitional Provisions apply to Acts of the Union in the field of police cooperation and judicial cooperation in criminal matters which have been adopted before the entry into force of the Lisbon treaty on 1 December 2009 where those Acts have not subsequently been repealed, annulled or amended.

Officials are currently finalising the list of measures which the Government anticipate will fall within the scope of this notification and this will be made available to Parliament as soon as possible.

Members: Correspondence

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer Question 71147, on public disorder and police funding, tabled by the hon. Member for Hayes and Harlington on 6 September 2011. [83230]

Nick Herbert: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 7 December 2011, Official Report, column 318W.

Mr Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will arrange for the hon. Member for Walsall North to receive a reply to her letter of 7 November 2011 to HM Revenue and Customs, subsequently transferred to the UK Border Agency, CTS reference B29002/11. [87043]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency replied to the hon. Member on 13 December.

The letter was received by the UK Border Agency on 15 November and therefore responded to within the agreed service standards.

Gang and Youth Violence: Crime Prevention

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the report, "Ending Gang and Youth Violence" whether the £10 million of funding to be distributed by April 2012 had previously been allocated for other purposes; and if she will make a statement. [86388]

James Brokenshire: The £10 million on funding is a prioritisation of previously announced Home Office investment in early intervention as the "Ending Gang and Youth Violence" report states.

Police: Pay

Mr Hanson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to (a) receive the recommendation of the Police Arbitration Tribunal on police pay and conditions and (b) announce her response to that recommendation. [86279]

Nick Herbert: The timing of the recommendation on Part 1 of the Independent Review of Police Officer and Staff Remuneration and Conditions is a matter for the Police Arbitration Tribunal.

The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), will consider the PAT's recommendations very carefully in line with her statutory responsibilities and announce her decision in due course.

Security Guards: Licensing

Jim Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether her Department has issued any covert licences for security guards at Thames Water; [86598]

(2) how many covert licences were issued in the last two years. [86599]

Lynne Featherstone [holding answer 15 December 2011]: Security industry licences are issued by the Security Industry Authority (SIA). Security operatives working under contract require a SIA licence and must adhere to certain licence conditions, one of which is to have the licence on display at all times while working. A specific covert activity can be applied if an operative can demonstrate that the nature of their conduct on that occasion requires them to not be identifiable. This covert activity allows, for example, store detectives or close protection operatives to perform licensable activities without the need to be identifiable. However, all security operatives must carry their licence on them and produce it on request. The SIA do not require individuals to report if they use this specific licence condition, but the breach of any licence condition is an offence liable to prosecution. An SIA licence is issued to the individual and the SIA does not hold records of their employer.

Sexual Offences: Registration

Lisa Nandy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when her Department plans to introduce a requirement for registered sex offenders to notify the police of all foreign travel; [85993]

(2) when her Department plans to publish its response to its consultation on four key proposals to strengthen the notification requirements for registered sex offenders, including introducing a requirement for registered sex offenders to notify all foreign travel. [85995]

Lynne Featherstone: On 14 June 2011, the Home Office launched a targeted consultation on reforming the notification requirements for registered sex offenders. The consultation ran for eight weeks and closed on 8 August 2011. The consultation sought views on four key proposals; (i) notification of all foreign travel, (ii) weekly notification where a registered sex offender is registered as 'no fixed abode', (iii) notify when living with a minor, and (iv) notify passport, bank account and credit card details and provide proof of identification at each notification.

The Home Office is currently considering its response to the consultation which will be published in due course.

Sexual Offences: Victim Support Schemes

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding her Department allocated for work to benefit girls or young women who have been victims or are at risk of gang-related sexual exploitation and abuse in (a) 2010 and (b) 2011 to date; and how much funding she plans to allocate for such purposes in (i) 2012, (ii) 2013 and (iii) 2014. [86373]

Lynne Featherstone: The Ending Gang and Youth Violence report, published on 1 November 2011, announced £400,000 per year for 2012, 2013 and 2014 to improve services to support children under 18 suffering from rape and sexual abuse. This will include services targeted at girls and young women who are suffering from sexual exploitation from gangs.

The £4 million Communities Against Guns, Gangs and Knives fund announced in February 2011 includes funding projects supporting girls and young women involved in gang related violence during 2011-12 and 2012-13, and some of those services will tackle sexual violence.

Ring-fenced funding for services aimed at girls at risk of sexual exploitation from gangs was not available in 2010-11.

Metal Theft

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the statement on page 57 of the Autumn Statement (Cm 8231) that the Government will invest £5 million to set up a nationwide taskforce to target metal thieves and scrap metal dealers who illegally trade in stolen metal, whom this taskforce will comprise; who will lead the taskforce; what the anticipated timescale is of its operation; on what basis its budget has been set; and if she will make a statement. [84939]

James Brokenshire [holding answer 5 December 2011]: The details of the national metal theft taskforce are currently being developed, in liaison with the British Transport police which is leading this work, and will be announced shortly.

UK Border Agency: Industrial Disputes

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Government employees from outside the UK Border Agency who were re-deployed in (a) ports and (b) airports to cover the work of staff involved in industrial action on 29 and 30 November 2011 received (i) less than one day's training, (ii) one day's training, (iii) two days training or (iv) more than two days training in preparation for carrying out that work. [86286]

Damian Green: Staff deployed received training appropriate to their level of experience, skill set and the nature of the operational function they fulfilled during the period of the industrial action. Courses ranged from half-a-day (mainly aimed at senior UKBA staff so they could operate the e-gates at ports with this facility) a one day refresher course for those who had previous operational experience; and up to four days that allowed staff to conduct entry checks on non EU/EEA arrivals. The training was supported and reinforced by operational mentoring prior to deployment to ports or airports.

UK Border Agency: Manpower

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent staff worked for the UK Border Agency in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and how many she expects to work for the Agency in (i) 2012-13, (ii) 2013-14 and (iii) 2014-15; and if she will make a statement. [76452]

Damian Green [holding answer 24 November 2011]: The average work force figure for 2010-11 can be found in the UK Border Agency annual report and accounts 2010-11 The report can be found online at:

http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/documents/aboutus/annual-reports-accounts/

Home Office work force plans are designed to be flexible to best support evolving business priorities throughout the spending review period and to be affordable within the Home Office's spending review settlement.

Detailed plans for the years (i) 2012-13, (ii) 2013-14 are not available at this time. The (iii) 2014-15 work force will be in the order of 18,000. This amounts to a reduction of around 5,200 over the spending review period.

Union of Good

Robert Halfon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the representation of people listed by her Department as supporters of the Union of Good on bodies funded by her Department; and if she will make a statement. [86881]

James Brokenshire [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Prevent strategy states that neither Prevent funding nor support will be given to organisations that hold extremist views or support terrorist-related activity of any kind, in this country or overseas. This applies irrespective of the source of the funding: central Government, local government or policing. With regard to the Union of Good, I am not aware of any such list.

Vetting

Steve Rotheram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she is taking to ensure that individuals charged with, but not convicted of, criminal offences have recourse to remove any allegations from their enhanced Criminal Records Bureau checks. [82034]

Lynne Featherstone: The Protection of Freedoms Bill will, when enacted, make amendments to part V of the Police Act 1997. Specifically, a process will be introduced for people to ask for an independent review of any information disclosed by a chief officer on an enhanced Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) certificate that they consider not to be relevant or ought not to be included on the certificate.

Vetting: Compulsorily Detained Mental Patients

Mr Charles Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Criminal Record Bureau's (CRB) policy is on disclosing details of an applicant's sectioning under the Mental Health Act in a CRB certificate when no offence has been committed; whether any assessment has been made of the effects of such disclosure on an applicant; and if she will make a statement. [86017]

Lynne Featherstone [holding answer 12 December 2011]: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) does not have a policy on the disclosure of information concerning a person's mental health. This is because part V of the Police Act 1997, under which the CRB operates, provides that the chief officer of a relevant force may release any information which they consider relevant to the purpose of the disclosure and which they consider ought to be included on the certificate. The CRB are not involved in this process.

Vetting: Standards

Mr Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) target time and (b) average time taken was to complete a Criminal Records Bureau check from when the completed form is received; and how many such checks have taken more than six months to complete in the last year. [80929]

Lynne Featherstone [holding answer 15 November 2011]: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) aims to process 90% of all enhanced checks within 28 days of receipt of a fully completed application form and 95% of standard checks within 10 days.

The following table shows the average time taken to complete both standard and enhanced CRB checks in the last 12 months and those that have taken longer than six months to complete.

There are a number of factors that can affect the timely completion of CRB checks, including but not restricted to the length of time it can take for an employer to deal with the initial application; the accurate completion of the application form; the clarity of the information provided; the existence of conviction or non-conviction information and the operational effectiveness of the disclosure units of the police forces involved in the CRB checking process.

Most enhanced certificates are delayed at the police local intelligence checking stage. I am aware that such delays have meant that the CRB has in the past had some problems meeting its agreed targets. However, I am pleased to confirm that there has been a significant improvement in terms of overall turnaround between the police and the CRB, following the implementation of a range of improvements.

In October, the CRB issued over 95% of enhanced CRB certificates within 28 days.

Violent and Sex Offender Register

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when her Department intends to publish its response to the consultation on proposals to strengthen the notification requirements for registered sex offenders; [85916]

(2) what progress her Department has made on the introduction of a requirement for registered sex offenders to notify the police of all foreign travel. [85917]

Lynne Featherstone: On 14 June 2011 the Home Office launched a targeted consultation on reforming the notification requirements for registered sex offenders;

the consultation ran for a period of eight weeks and drew to a close on 8 August 2011. The consultation sought views on four key proposals: (i) notification of all foreign travel, (ii) notify weekly where registered as 'no fixed abode', (iii) notify when living with a minor and (iv) notify of passport, bank account and credit card details and provide proof of identification at each notification.

The Home Office is currently considering its response to the consultation which will be published in due course.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she intends to answer question 57878 from the hon. Member for Perth and North Perthshire on 25 May 2011 on the UK Border Agency. [83835]

Damian Green: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 29 November 2011, Official Report, column 798W.

Derek Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to answer Question 80423 on the UK Border Force, tabled on 8 November 2011 for named day answer on 14 November 2011. [84491]

Damian Green [holding answer 5 December 2011]: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 13 December 2011, Official Report, columns 627-8W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Telecommunications Masts

Justin Tomlinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to encourage mobile telephone networks to share telecommunication masts. [86813]

Mr Vaizey: The mobile telephone operators already have established network sharing arrangements, as evidenced by Cornerstone, a network sharing agreement between Vodafone and O2 and the Mobile Broadband Network Limited company established by Everything Everywhere and Three UK.

Arts Council England: Finance

Mr Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport how much Arts Council England spent in each local authority area (a) in total and (b) per head of local population in each of the last three years. [87104]

Mr Vaizey: Arts Council England have produced a table with the total funding levels for the last three years, and the funding per head for the last three years in each local authority area of England. A copy will be deposited in the Library of both Houses.

Arts Council England: Torbay

Mr Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport which organisations in Torbay constituency received Arts Council England funding in (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09, (c) 2009-10, (d) 2010-11 and (e) 2011-12. [87102]

Mr Vaizey: Arts Council England gave grants for the arts (GA) and managed funds (MF) to the following organisations in the Torbay constituency in:

(a) 2007-08:

Acumen Publications (GA)—Acumen Poetry

Torbay Play Forum (GA)—Creative Play in the Bay

Torbay council (GA)—Developing the Torbay Creative brand Website

Torbay council (MF)—Local Authority Partnership Agreement

(b) 2008-09:

None

(c) 2009-10:

Torbay Poetry Festival (GA)—Bringing the Best Poetry to the Community

Shiona Morton (GA)—Extension to Attachment at the Bristol Old Vic

Acumen Publications (GA)—Keeping the Profile of Poetry High

Oldway Primary School (GA)—Pamoja 2

Torbay council (MF)—LA Regional Improvement project

Torbay council (MF)—Development of Planning Area for Culture, Torbay

Torbay council (MF)—Work to develop improved cultural services delivery in the South West.

(d) 2010-11:

Torbay Play Forum (GA)—Midwinter Mischief

Acumen Publications (GA)—Acumen Poetry

(e) 2011-12:

None

Broadband

Andrew Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to accelerate progress of the 4G broadband roll-out. [86395]

Mr Vaizey: The Office of Communications (Ofcom) and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport have been working on the earliest availability of both bands expected to be used for 4G broadband services. The 800 MHz band will be available following the completion of digital switchover in 2012 and the subsequent clearance of DTT from channels 61 and 62 which is expected to be completed by the end of 2013. The 2.6 GHz band will be available following the completion of radar remediation work which is also expected to be completed in areas covering the majority of the population by the end of 2013. The preparation and timing of the auction is an operational one for the independent regulator, Ofcom, who expect to conduct an auction of the bands starting in second half of 2012.

Guto Bebb: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what progress has been made on his Department's rural broadband roll-out programme; and if he will make a statement. [86705]

Mr Vaizey: Eight local broadband projects are currently in procurement and will enter delivery next year. The Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport is challenging all local authorities and the devolved Administrations to have their local broadband plans approved by the end of April at the latest and to be ready for procurement within three months of this approval.

The Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for South West Surrey (Mr Hunt), is confident that they will be able to meet this timetable and that deployment will be complete by 2015.

Official Hospitality

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what receptions and events have been hosted by his Department since May 2010, including those sponsored by third parties. [84219]

John Penrose: The receptions and events shown in the table have been hosted by Ministers since May 2010.

Minister	Month and year	Reception/event
Jeremy Hunt	May 2010-	Culture speech
Jeremy Hunt	May 2010	Media speech
Jeremy Hunt	June 2010	Tourism speech
Hugh Robertson	September 2010	Reception for chairs and CEOs of sporting bodies
Ed Vaizey	November 2010	Future of UK film industry event
Hugh Robertson	November 2010	Sports reception
Jeremy Hunt	December 2010	Reception for journalists
Hugh Robertson	March 2011	Valedictory dinner for David Higgins
Ed Vaizey	March 2011	BT parliamentary reception
Hugh Robertson	August 2011	Journalists reception
Jeremy Hunt	August 2011	Local TV road shows: Birmingham, Manchester, Newcastle, Newport
Jeremy Hunt	September 2011	Local TV road shows: Glasgow, Belfast, London

Information about ministerial meetings with outside interest groups can be found on the Department's Transparency website at the following link:

http://www.transparency.culture.gov.uk/

Other events, such as Round Table meetings hosted by the Departments' officials and Ministers are not compiled centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost for the period requested.

Diamond Jubilee 2012: Medals

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport if he will take steps to make the diamond jubilee medal available to veterans who wish to receive one. [86252]

Hugh Robertson: Detailed eligibility criteria for the Diamond Jubilee medal are a matter for sponsoring Departments and the devolved Administrations. As with the golden jubilee, the diamond jubilee medal will be issued only to those who meet the eligibility criteria and are in service on and including the 6 February 2012.

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport if he will consider extending the eligibility for the Queen's Jubilee Medal to (a) St John Ambulance and (b) other such voluntary organisations. [87405]

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport if he will consider extending the eligibility for the Queen's diamond jubilee medal to (a) St John Ambulance Cymru and (b) other such voluntary organisations. [87717]

Hugh Robertson: The eligibility criteria for the diamond jubilee medal are broadly the same as that for the golden jubilee medal, which means that it will be issued to serving front-line members of the armed forces, emergency services and Her Majesty's Prison Service who have completed five years' service on, and including, Accession day, 6 February 2012.

The Government are actively considering additional ways to visibly recognise and reward the work of outstanding voluntary organisations such as the St John Ambulance in Her Majesty's diamond jubilee year.

Internet: Access

Mr Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps he plans to take to improve access to the internet for the 10 per cent. of the population who are not included in the Government's target for the roll-out of superfast broadband by 2015; and if he will make a statement. [86447]

Mr Vaizey: The Government published their broadband strategy "Britain's Superfast Broadband Future" in December 2010, which included their target of delivering a standard 2 Mbps broadband target for virtually all premises by 2015. A copy of the strategy can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/images/publications/10-1320-britains-su.perfast-broadband-future.pdf

Mr Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the findings of the Communications Management Association's Internet Opportunity Survey; and if he will make a statement. [86448]

Mr Vaizey: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport helped to fund this survey, and the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport, my right hon. Friend the Member for South West Surrey (Mr Hunt), has noted the findings with great interest. It is important that we have a firm evidence base with which to inform and develop our policy making, and the Communications Management Association's Internet Opportunity Survey has made—and will continue to make—a valuable contribution to that.

Local Broadcasting: Essex

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport for what reasons he did not name a town in Essex in his list of towns and cities to be permitted to have their own local television station. [87219]

Mr Vaizey: The list of locations that could receive a local TV service was determined by Ofcom using a range of criteria including suitable spectrum coverage. Unfortunately, local TV in Essex is not technically possible due to a lack of availability of suitable spectrum.

Music: Young People

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to support involvement in music by young people. [86798]

Mr Vaizey [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), and I launched the first National Plan for Music Education on 25 November which sets out Government's priorities and support for music education. In partnership with the music industry we are also supporting a new music competition, the Next BRIT Thing and 14 new rehearsal spaces across England providing young people with the space to develop their musical talents.

Olympic Games 2012: Legacy

Mr Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the legacy objectives of the London 2012 Olympics. [86762]

Hugh Robertson: We have set out our four legacy objectives in the Government's Legacy Plan published in December 2010:

Harnessing the United Kingdom's passion for sport to increase school-based and grass-roots participation in competitive sport—and to encourage the whole population to be more physically active;

Exploiting to the full the opportunities for economic growth offered by hosting the games, particularly with reference to inward investment and tourism;

Promoting community engagement and participation in voluntary work across all groups in society through the games; and

Ensuring that the Olympic Park can be developed after the games as one of the principal drivers of regeneration in east London, with particular focus on the digital and creative industries.

In meeting these objectives:

We are confident that the London 2012 games will leave behind a significant sporting legacy. Olympic venues and investment in training facilities will support local communities after the games. We are strengthening grass-roots sport through the Places People Play initiative: more than a thousand local sports clubs and facilities will be improved, the nation's playing fields protected, and 40,000 new community sports leaders recruited. We are inspiring young people, including through the School games programme to get more schoolchildren excited by competitive sport—more than 11,000 schools are already signed up.

London 2012 expects to have directly procured £6 billion worth of contracts, generating tens of thousands of supply chain contract opportunities. To date, the ODA has directly awarded contracts worth £6 billion to over 1,500 suppliers, 98% of which have been awarded to companies in the UK. The London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is now undertaking procurement for £700 million worth of goods and services from the open market. We are committed to ensuring that the tourism industry maximise the economic benefits provided by the games. Including new money that has recently been announced from the GREAT campaign, plus private sector support, VisitBritain will invest around £127 million in a new international marketing programme. Over the next four years, it is expected to deliver 4.6 million extra visitors from overseas and £2.27 billion in extra visitor spend.

We are promoting community engagement though the Inspire and community-based programmes. To date, over 2,000 community-based projects have been awarded, the Inspire Mark, which is awarded to high-quality non-commercial projects inspired by the games. Also the Nations and Regions Group, established by the Government and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG), works directly with each UK nation and region to help them realise and maximise the benefits from the economic, sporting and cultural opportunities offered by the games. Over 240,000 people applied for the 70,000 available places on the London 2012 Games Maker programme. LOCOG is now offering roles to successful applicants.

The Olympic Park Legacy Company (OPLC) is leading the transformation and development of the park after the games. The OPLC submitted their Legacy Communities Scheme planning application in October 2011 to guide the development needed to create up to a further 6,800 new homes (with a focus on family housing), schools and health centres, employment space for up to 4,400 jobs, and a strong sporting legacy from the park venues. The new £1.43 billion Westfield retail development at Stratford City is the largest urban shopping centre in Europe and employs 10,000 people, many of them local residents. Volterra, a consultancy commissioned by Westfield, estimates that eventually this will rise to 20,000 people. Westfield is just the start of the Olympic legacy and a symbol of the big changes coming to east London. The Olympic Park will be developed as a national and international hub for fast-growing creative and digital industries and attracting new investment to the country.

Gordon Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what assessment has been made of the potential effects of the London 2012 Olympics on Sittingbourne and Sheppey constituency. [86817]

Hugh Robertson: The Government and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) established the Nations and Regions Group to ensure UK-wide engagement and to maximise the legacy from London 2012. This group works directly with representatives from each of the nations and English regions to realise the sporting, economic, and cultural benefits of the 2012 games.

The South East stands to gain from the wide range of opportunities created by the 2012 games, through businesses winning games-related work, increased tourism and cultural celebrations. Some examples of how Kent, and specifically my hon. Friend's own constituency, will benefit from the games are as follows.

Over 22,000 schools and colleges across the UK have registered for LOCOG's London 2012 education programme, Get Set. 631 schools and colleges are registered in Kent including schools in Sittingbourne and Sheppey. We are also introducing the School Games, a new school sport competition which will provide more opportunities for pupils to compete in sport through a vibrant programme of regular intra- and inter-school competitions. All schools are being encouraged to sign up.

Also, "Places People Play", the mass participation Olympic legacy programme, will bring sporting legacy to life in communities across the country. This will be achieved by transforming the places where people play sport, inspiring people to make sport happen at a local level and creating sporting opportunities that give everyone the chance to become part of the mass participation legacy.

The London 2012 games will leave behind a significant sporting legacy, as well as programmes to increase participation; the whole country will benefit from London winning the right to stage the World Athletics Championships in 2017.

Over 2,000 cultural or sporting projects across the UK have been awarded the Inspire marks. In the South East 181 projects have been awarded Inspire marks. One example is Making it Last—a project led by Kent county council and the Sittingbourne Community College. It teaches young people about the importance of sustainability in a creative way. It also draws on the Olympic values and the games' Sustainability Plan. Further information can be found at:

http://www.kent20in12.org.uk/index.php/case-studies/page/63/

There has been significant support for the London 2012 Games Maker programme, with many people volunteering for the first time and the potential to carry that ambition forward in their own community beyond 2012. 240,000 people applied for the 70,000 places and LOCOG is now offering roles to successful applicants. The response to the opportunity to nominate a torchbearer to carry the flame on the Olympic torch relay has also been hugely positive. More details, including the route through the South East, can be found at the following link:

http://www.london2012.com/olympic-torch-relay

The Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) has awarded contracts to over 233 direct suppliers in the South East. One of these suppliers is CIPD Publishing, based in Sittingbourne and Sheppey. Information on businesses that have directly supplied the ODA is available in the business section of the London 2012 website at the following link:

http://www.london2012.com/get-involved/business-network/oda-suppliers/index.php

This information does not include contracts further down the supply chain, in tiers two, three and so on, which are awarded by the tier one contractors and not by the ODA. Also, 431 contracts have been awarded to companies in the region through CompeteFor (the website where London 2012 contract opportunities are advertised).

We are also committed to ensuring that the tourism industry maximises the economic benefits provided by the games. Including new money that has recently been announced from the GREAT campaign, plus private sector support, VisitBritain will invest around £127 million in a new international marketing programme. Over the next four years it is expected to deliver 4.6 million extra visitors from overseas and £2.27 billion in extra visitor spend.

Mr Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport for what reasons the budget for the London 2012 Olympics ceremonies has been increased. [87232]

Hugh Robertson: The ceremonies for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games are a once-in-a-generation opportunity to showcase the very best of our country to up to 4 billion people around the world, and could be worth up to £5 billion in advertising value. To get the ceremonies absolutely right, and boost the games' business and tourism legacy, we are putting additional investment into the ceremonies.

Olympic Games 2012: Bournemouth

Mr Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what representations he has received on plans for the Olympic flame to pass through Bournemouth; and if he will make a statement. [87320]

Hugh Robertson: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is responsible for the Olympic Torch Relay.

Bournemouth will hold an Olympic Torch evening celebration on 13 July. The Olympic Torch Relay route has been devised after extensive consultation with representatives in each nation and region over the last two years, and will take the flame to within 10 miles of 95% of the population and within 20 miles of 99%.

EDUCATION

Buzz Off Campaign

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent assessment he has made of the use of mosquito devices; and if he will review the Children's Commissioner's Buzz Off campaign. [87446]

Tim Loughton: We are strongly opposed to mosquito devices being used to unfairly target children and young people. In my foreword to the 'Positive for Youth' policy statement (published on 19 December 2011), I encourage young people to "challenge the discriminatory and inappropriate use of 'mosquito' devices". The statement also includes a case study which describes how, following representations from the member of the UK Youth Parliament for Sheffield, Sheffield city council voted unanimously to end the use of mosquito devices on all council buildings. Other local authorities that have taken similar action include Lancashire county council, Knowsley, Kent county council and Kirklees council—all as a result of successful campaigns by young people. We would support all councils taking a similar approach.

We also welcome the Children's Commissioner's 'Buzz Off' campaign which has helped to bring the issue to the attention of young people and decision-makers.

Children: Disability

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when his Department last conducted research on the number of (a) deaf blind and (b) multi-sensory impaired children. [85551]

Sarah Teather: The school census provides annual data on the number of pupils with multi-sensory impairment receiving support at school and as part of a statement of educational needs. This is published as part of the annual analysis of children with special educational needs. The most recent analysis was published on 19 October 2011 and is available on the DFE website:

http://www.education.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STR/d001032/index.shtml

A national audit of support services and provision for children with low incidence needs, including multi-sensory impairment was published in 2006 and is available on the DFE website:

http://www.education.gov.uk/childrenandyoungpeople/sen/sen/data/a0013116/national-audit-of-low-incidence-special-educational-needs-support-services-and-provision

In addition, the Department funds the National Sensory Impairment Partnership to support local areas to improve outcomes for children with sensory impairments. Their work includes information sharing and benchmarking of local needs and services. More information is available at:

www.natsip.org.uk

Child: Protection

Steve McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether he has any plans to request Ofsted to investigate arrangements for safeguarding deaf children. [82529]

Sarah Teather [holding answer 5 December 2011]: Ministers have no plans to make such a request. The Government are committed to delivering a new, more streamlined and proportionate, inspection framework for safeguarding children, which will take account of the recommendations from Professor Eileen Munro's review of child protection, by May 2012.

Ofsted's new inspection framework is currently being developed and will focus on the effectiveness of all services to safeguard children, including deaf children. It will be for inspectors to identify any issues in relation to safeguarding arrangements for deaf children and, where appropriate, highlight these in inspection reports.

Children's Centres

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what estimate he has made of the (a) minimum and (b) optimum number of Sure Start children's centres needed to constitute a network of children's centres across the country. [86004]

Sarah Teather: The Department has not made a formal estimate of either the minimum or the optimum number of Sure Start children's centres, as this is the role of individual local authorities.

Local authorities have a statutory duty to ensure that there are a sufficient number of children's centres to meet local needs. The configuration of children's centres is for local authorities to decide in consultation with their local communities. This Government want to retain a network of Sure Start children's centres, accessible to all families but focused on those in greatest need.

The Government will shortly be consulting on revised statutory guidance on children's centres and will be seeking views on whether that guidance clarifies the statutory duties appropriately.

Children's Centres: Finance

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 441W, on children's centres: finance, (a) when and (b) where his Department published expenditure by local authorities on children's centres. [86752]

Sarah Teather: Financial reports on local authority planned budgets for their education and children's services functions, including children's centres, for 2011-12 were published by the Department for Education on 15 September 2011.

They are available on the Department's website at the following address:

http://www.education.gov.uk/researchandstatistics/statistics/statistics-by-topic/schoolandlafinance/a00196758/financialreportsonlaplannedbudgetsforeducationandsocailcare

Children's Centres: Leicester

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what funding his Department plans to allocate to children's centres in Leicester South constituency in each of the next four years. [86472]

Sarah Teather: Since April 2011, funding for children's centres has been included within the Early Intervention Grant (EIG). The allocation for 2011-12 and the indicative allocation for 2012-13 for Leicester city council are shown in the following table. Funding beyond March 2013 is subject to future announcements.

The EIG is an un-ring-fenced and un-hypothecated funding stream that gives local authorities flexibility to target resources strategically and to intervene early to improve outcomes for children, young people and families. It is up to local authorities to judge how best to use this funding in consultation with local communities, taking account of local need and evidence of what is most effective. Local authorities have statutory duties under the Childcare Act 2006 to provide sufficient children's centres to meet local need so far as is reasonably practicable, and to ensure there is consultation before opening, closing or making significant changes to services through children's centres.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what criteria (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies use when deciding whether and when to hold an internal audit; and if he will make a statement. [85631]

Tim Loughton: Potential internal audit tasks are identified and prioritised on an iterative basis using a system of high level risk assessments across all key business areas. These assessments result in weighted scores for key risks areas including financial, reputational, delivery capacity and capability. Those business areas with the highest scores are prioritised for audit attention. Other sources of assurance are also taken into account to avoid potential duplication and nugatory work.

Identification of new and key business areas are identified through discussions with management and review of documentation such as business plans, budget plans, and ministerial submissions.

Internal audit services within the non-departmental public bodies will also be conducted on a risk-based approach, but they are directed and managed by the individual accounting officers and hence we do not have access to more specific information.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85840]

Tim Loughton: The Department for Education's and its public bodies' caterers are contracted to comply with Government Buying Standards for food and catering services. Calorie labelling forms part of an evolving strategy to offer a choice of diet to our staff. From December 2011 the Department's caterer will be trialling a range of food that offers low to high glycaemic index value and as part of this process calorific information will be displayed on menu boards.

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps the food and catering services in (a) his Department and (b) public bodies for which he is responsible are taking to ensure the country of origin of foods are labelled on its menus and display boards. [85841]

Tim Loughton: The Department for Education's and its public bodies' caterers are contracted to adhere to the Government Buying Standards for food and catering services. In line with the standards the Department's caterer has started to use menu boards to identify whether food is UK produced or imported. We will continue to work with our caterers to improve the degree and quality of the information provided.

Official Hospitality

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much his Department spent on hospitality for events hosted by each Minister in his Department in each of the last 12 months. [73674]

Tim Loughton: The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), and Ministers hosted a number of events over the last 12 months at which hospitality was provided. The total amount spent was £2,438.

The total spend on ministerial official hospitality by the Department for Education and its predecessor in each of the last three financial years is:

2008-09: £4,763

2009-10: £8,998

2010-11: £3,625.

All expenditure is incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what risk registers are held by the public bodies for which his Department is responsible; and if he will make a statement. [85699]

Tim Loughton: Non-departmental public bodies are required to manage risk in accordance with the HMT Management of Risk: Principles and Concepts (the Orange Book) and any departmental risk management policy and guidance. They are not required to share the risk registers with the Department for Education. However as part of the Department's sponsorship role non-departmental public bodies do discuss their risks with the Department.

Assurance of risk handling is provided by each non-departmental public body through the Statement of Internal Control which forms part of the published annual report and accounts.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85930]

	Number	Percentage
Responded to within 10 days	1,745	48
Responded to between 11 to 20 days	699	19
Responded to between 21 to 30 days	426	12
More than 30 days to respond	802	21
Total	3,672	100

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009/10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Education Capital Review

Jonathan Reynolds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education when he plans to publish a full response to the James Review of capital funding. [85980]

Mr Gibb: A full response to the James Review of capital funding will be published early in 2012.

Pre-school Education: Hampshire

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what estimate he has made of the number of children in East Hampshire constituency eligible for free nursery places announced in (a) 2010 for the most disadvantaged and (b) the Autumn Statement for less-advantaged two-year-olds. [86601]

Sarah Teather: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the right hon. Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), announced in the Autumn Statement that the early education entitlement for two-year-olds will be expanded to around 260,000 children. The Government intend to take a phased approach to the implementation of the new entitlement. The 20% most disadvantaged two-year-olds will be eligible from September 2013. From 2014, the entitlement will be extended to around 40% of two-year-olds.

The Government have published indicative figures for how many children will be eligible in each local authority area in the first phase of the entitlement in 2013. These are available as part of the current Early Education and Childcare consultation, at the following link:

www.education.gov.uk/consultations

Our figures are to the nearest hundred, and we estimate that around 2,100 two-year-olds in Hampshire, and less than 100 in East Hampshire district, will be eligible for the entitlement in 2013.

We will publish further proposals in due course on eligibility criteria to reach 40% of two-year-olds from 2014.

Pre-school Education: Lancashire

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many disadvantaged two-year-olds will be eligible for free nursery care in (a) Pendle and (b) East Lancashire under his proposals. [86061]

Sarah Teather: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, the right hon. Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), announced in the Autumn Statement that the early education entitlement for two-year-olds will be expanded to around 260,000 children. The Government intend to take a phased approach to the implementation of the new entitlement. The 20% most disadvantaged two-year-olds will be eligible from September 2013. From 2014, the entitlement will be extended to around 40% of two-year-olds.

The Government have published indicative figures for how many children will be eligible in each local authority area in the first phase of the entitlement in 2013. These are available as part of the current Early Education and Childcare consultation, at the following link:

www.education.gov.uk/consultations

We estimate that around 200 two-year-olds in Pendle borough, and 2,700 in Lancashire, will be eligible for the entitlement in 2013.

We will publish further proposals in due course on eligibility criteria to reach 40% of two-year-olds from 2014.

Schools: Freedom of Information

Alun Cairns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether his Department has made an estimate of the cost to schools of responding to requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [85510]

Tim Loughton [holding answer 8 December 2011]: The Department has made no estimate of the costs of FOI to schools. The cost of FOI to public authorities generally forms part of the consideration of the post-legislative scrutiny of the Act announced by the Ministry of Justice on 7 January this year.

Special Educational Needs: Children

Mrs Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) if he will publish the representations received by his Department on the information contained in its publication, Children with Special Educational Needs 2011: an analysis; [81541]

(2) what representations he has received to request that (a) local authority indicators and (b) regional level data not be compiled for his Department's publication Children with Special Educational Needs 2011: an analysis. [81546]

Sarah Teather: The Department received two items of feedback on the publication 'Children with Special Educational Needs (SEN) 2010: an analysis'. This feedback shaped the content of the equivalent 2011 release. It included requests to retain the summary of key findings for each chapter, to limit the information displayed in cluttered charts and to give less emphasis on pupils in special schools with no SEN or at School Action for which numbers were very small.

The feedback also included requests for data on progression by school type and historic data on numbers of pupils with each primary type of SEN by age. The data were supplied to the correspondents separately. The Department has no plans to publish this correspondence in the public domain.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Minerals

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking together with the Afghan Government to prevent exploitation of Afghanistan's mineral wealth. [87169]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Afghanistan's mineral resource wealth is central to its long-term prosperity. The Department for International Development (DFID) is actively engaged in helping the Government undertake major reforms in order to maximise the benefits of these natural resources to the local economy and the Afghan people. DFID provides support to the Afghan Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) Secretariat, to help ensure greater accountability and openness in the industry. DFID also provides technical expertise to the Ministry of Mines, helping to generate international investment that includes a fair deal for the Government of Afghanistan and brings about long term economic growth and jobs for local communities.

Commonwealth Development Corporation

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to improve the (a) transparency levels and (b) future ranking in the Transparency Index of the Commonwealth Development Corporation. [86462]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: CDC's new high-level business plan published in June 2011 contained a commitment to increased levels of disclosure and transparency. As a result, CDC now publishes information on the businesses where its capital is at work, the fund managers it works with and the funds investing its capital. It also publishes data on staff remuneration and operating costs. CDC has also recently become a signatory to the International Aid Transparency Initiative, the first bilateral development finance institution to do so.

I would expect these improvements to be reflected in CDC's future ranking in the Transparency Index.

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he expects the Commonwealth Development Corporation to begin providing information on the in-country businesses invested in by its fund managers. [86463]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: CDC publishes a complete list of in-country businesses invested in by its fund managers on its website:

www.cdcgroup.com

including the sector and country of each business. This information is updated annually. CDC currently has no plans to publish additional information about in-country businesses.

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to ensure that the Commonwealth Development Corporation (a) meets international standards for aid transparency set out in the International Aid Transparency Initiative and (b) publishes information at (i) organisation level, (ii) country level and (iii) activity level. [86464]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: CDC became a signatory to the International Aid Transparency Initiative (IATI) on 30 November and will begin to publish data in an IATI compliant format in the second quarter of 2012,

CDC publishes organisational information on its website:

www.cdcgroup.com

along with country and sector information about the fund managers it works with, the funds CDC invests in and the businesses receiving CDC investment.

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to improve the transparency of the Commonwealth Development Corporation. [87414]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bethnal Green and Bow (Rushanara Ali) on 7 November 2011, Official Report, column 147W.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86992]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development's (DFID) two staff restaurants have operated under contract to Mitie Technical Facilities Management since December 2010. The catering section of this contract is run on a non-subsidised basis and therefore DFID is not responsible for procuring any food for its two United Kingdom offices.

Consultants

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on private sector consultants since May 2010, broken down by (a) company, (b) project and (c) country budget. [87063]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) introduced the central Government tracking process for consultancy in May 2010. Consultancy is subject to a stringent business case process and only approved where it is deemed to be an operational necessity. DFID spend on consultancy from May 2010 to the end of November 2011 is £2 million. The following table provides consultancy expenditure (with a value of £20,000 or above) aggregated by supplier and spend. Further detail on project titles and country budgets is not readily available and would incur disproportionate cost to provide.

Supplier	Spend (£000s)
PricewaterhouseCoopers	254
Hawkpoint Partners Limited	282
Mr. Phillip Powell-Davis	75.5
Coffey International Limited	87.1
The Crown Agents for Overseas Governments and Administrations Ltd	66.3
Minerva Advisory Group	66.1
Turner & Townsend PLC	64.2

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people were working in his Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87350]

Mr Duncan: The number of people working in the Department for International Development on 11 May 2010 and 8 December 2011 are shown in the following table.

	11 May 2010	8 December 2011
Home Civil Servant Staff	1,634	1,652
Staff Appointed In Country Staff	771	816

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Rushanara Ali: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of his Department's budget is allocated to work relating to climate change adaptation and mitigation. [86606]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The UK Government's four-yearly spending review set a budget of £2.9 billion for climate finance for the period 2011-12 to 2014-15, known as the International Climate Fund (ICF). The Department for international Development's (DFID) share of the ICF is £1.8 billion, amounting to 4.66% of the overall DFID budget for the current spending review period.

The ICF will fund both multilateral and bilateral UK climate spending and will aim for a balanced allocation between adaptation (50%), low carbon development (30%) and forestry (20%). This split will be kept under review.

Development Aid

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the development of an official development assistance monitoring strategy. [86726]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: I have frequent discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on development issues and Britain is committed to helping the poorest in the world.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is responsible for reporting all UK official development assistance (ODA) and receives regular monitoring reports from other Government Departments on their ODA expenditure.

DFID is on track to achieve the structural reform plan commitment to develop and implement an ODA monitoring strategy with the Treasury to ensure all Departments meet agreed contributions to UK ODA targets by March 2015. DFID and Treasury officials meet regularly to discuss progress.

DFID's report on Statistics for International Development (SID) gives full information on all UK ODA each year and can be found on

www.dfid.gov.uk

Dominican Republic: Drugs

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to support the Dominican Republic in its counter-narcotics campaign. [86816]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development does not have a bilateral aid programme in the Dominican Republic and therefore we are not supporting the counter-narcotics campaign there. Our current support on counter-narcotics in the Caribbean is focused on Jamaica and the eastern Caribbean.

EU External Trade: Cocoa

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how the development of a new European standard for sustainable and traceable cocoa will take into account the interests of smallholder cocoa producers in developing countries and ensure they are consulted and involved in the standard setting process; and if he will make a statement. [86721]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: I agree that the interests of smallholder cocoa producers should be considered in any new standard for sustainable and traceable cocoa. However, the proposed new European standard for sustainable and traceable cocoa would be developed by the standards body for the industry itself. This body is independent.

International Conferences: Sustainable Development

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which Department will have lead responsibility for the Rio plus 20 United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development in June 2012. [87065]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) is the lead Department for the Rio plus 20 United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development. DEFRA is working closely with other Government Departments, including the Department for International Development in preparing for the conference.

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which (a) Ministers and (b) officials of his Department will attend the Rio plus 20 United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development in June 2012. [87066]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Meriden (Mrs Spelman), is leading the UK's preparations for Rio plus 20 and has confirmed that she will attend. The Department for International Development (DFID) is working closely with DEFRA and other Government Departments in preparation for Rio plus 20. A decision has not yet been taken on attendance by DFID Ministers and officials. This decision will be taken in the new year.

Japan Tobacco International

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in his Department have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87613]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Details of all Ministers and special advisers' hospitality are available on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/About-us/Public-data/

and are published every quarter in the normal way.

Kashmir: Overseas Aid

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects his Department is sponsoring in Kashmir; and how much it has spent in Kashmir since May 2010. [87078]

Mr Duncan: UK aid to India and Pakistan supports national programmes that work in, and benefit, both Indian and Pakistan administered Kashmir. Our support to the Government of India's universal primary education programme (Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan) and National AIDS Control Programme includes Indian administered Kashmir. Our support to the Government of Pakistan's National Maternal, Newborn and Child Health Programme also includes Pakistan administered Kashmir. The proportion of this aid spent in Indian and Pakistan administered Kashmir since May 2010 cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. UK bilateral aid to India in 2010-11 totalled £278.9 million while UK bilateral aid to Pakistan in 2010-11 totalled £202.9 million.

UK aid has helped to rebuild bridges and schools in 2010-11 in Pakistan administered Kashmir as part of the Department for International Development's (DFID's) earthquake reconstruction and rehabilitation programme. Many of these projects are now reaching completion, with spend in 2010-11 totalling almost £8 million—9% of the £84 million committed.

Under our International Partnership Agreement Programme, DFID also provided £82,928 between April 2010 and November 2011 to support Save the Children's work in Indian administered Kashmir.

Ministerial Visits

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what visits each Minister in his Department has made to each geographical region since May 2010. [87062]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Details of all Ministers' overseas visits are available on the Department for International Development website

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/About-DFID/Our-organisation1/Ministers/and are published every quarter in the normal way.

Overseas Aid

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's planned spending on Official Development Assistance (ODA) was for (a) 2011-12, (b) 2012-13 and (c) 2013-14 prior to the Autumn Statement; and what its planned spending on ODA for each of those years now is. [86889]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: In the recent autumn statement, the Government have recommitted itself to delivering 0.7% of gross national income (GNI) as ODA and meeting the ODA/GNI ratios as set out in the spending review.

Because the Government needs less money to meet 0.7%, they reduced the amounts allocated to ODA and to DFID in particular. Our programme budget has been reduced by around £1.1 billion over the next three years. No changes are being made to administration or front line delivery budgets.

The following table details the Department's planned spending on ODA per calendar year as set out in the 2010 spending review and the revised amounts since the autumn statement.

Calendar year ODA forecasts (in £ million)

	Original 2010 SR settlement	Updated 2010 SR settlement
2011	7,810	7,707
2012	8,145	7,938
2013	10,834	10,581
2014	11,491	10,957

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much Official Development Assistance funding his Department allocated to each country in which the UK has a bilateral programme for (a) 2011-12, (b) 2012-13 and (c) 2013-14 prior to the Autumn Statement; and how much such funding for each country in each of those years is now allocated. [86890]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Department for International Development's (DFID) programme allocations for each country for 2011-12 and 2012-13 are available in the annual report, (Annex B, Page 143, Table B.6):

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Site-search/?g=annual+report

Further details on forward spending plans in individual programmes are available in Operational Plans also available on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Following the autumn statement, our programme budget will reduce by £1.1 billion over the next three years. Our planning assumption is that we should still be able to deliver the set of results agreed in the Bilateral Aid Review, Multilateral Aid Review, Humanitarian Emergency Response Review and related processes. We have no immediate plans to adjust internal budgets, although we shall look further at this as part of the normal planning process in early 2012.

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much Official Development Assistance funding his Department allocated to each of the multilateral programmes it funds for (a) 2011-12, (b) 2012-13 and (c) 2013-14 prior to the Autumn Statement; and how much such funding for each country in each of those years is now allocated. [86891]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) provides core funding to a large number of multilateral organisations. All this funding is related to performance. Allocations for 2013-14 will depend on an update to the Multilateral Aid Review which will take place in 2013. Allocations for other years are also indicative only, as they may be varied according to need as well as performance. These indicative allocations have not changed following the Autumn Statement.

We have produced a table to show the breakdown of the indicative allocations of core funding through each multilateral organisation for 2011-12 and 2012-13. We will place a copy of the table in the House of Commons Library.

This support is core, so the multilateral organisations decide on how it is allocated by country. As such, we are unable to provide the breakdown by country.

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) which of his Department's budgets will be affected by the announcement in the Autumn Statement of a reduction in funding as a result of the decrease in gross national income; [87239]

(2) what proportion of the reduction in his Department's budget announced in the Autumn Statement as a result of the decrease in gross national income will be taken from (a) bilateral and (b) multilateral programmes; and which projects will be cancelled. [87240]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: At this stage, our planning assumption is that we should still be able to deliver the set of results agreed in the Bilateral Aid Review, Multilateral Aid Review, Humanitarian Emergency Response Review and related processes. We have no immediate plans to adjust internal budgets, although we shall look further at this as part of the normal planning process in the first quarter of 2012.

Overseas Aid: Agricultural

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much and what proportion of his Department's expenditure has been allocated to agricultural projects in each (a) region and (b) country in 2011-12; and how much has been allocated to each individual project. [87064]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development's (DFID) total and percentage expenditure allocated to agricultural projects in 2011-12 is not yet available as the breakdown of multilateral expenditure by sector is not reported until the following financial year.

In 2011-12 the total bilateral expenditure allocated to agriculture is £136,904,067. A table detailing DFID's 2011-12 bilateral expenditure allocated to agriculture, by project and region/country, has been submitted to the House Library.

Thailand: Overseas Aid

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent reports he has received on the humanitarian situation in Mae Sot, Thailand. [86872]

Mr Duncan: The Department for International Development (DFID) closely monitors the humanitarian situation along Thailand's border with Burma, including in the town of Mae Sot. We are aware of the continuing needs of people displaced by long-term ethnic conflict in Burma's border areas. In response, DFID is contributing towards the provision of food, shelter, other necessities and improved access to legal assistance to nearly 150,000 Burmese refugees in camps in Thailand. DFID also supports clinics in and near Mae Sot which provide medical services to Burmese people; and gives aid for basic health care, food security, improved sanitation and grants to help with the cost of schooling, for internally displaced people inside eastern Burma. The total cost of this programme over three years from 2009-12 will be more than £8 million.

When the Secretary of State for International Development, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr Mitchell), visited Burma in November, he pressed President Thein Sein and senior Burmese Ministers to move urgently towards a resolution of the ethnic conflicts and for improved humanitarian access in border areas.

DEFENCE

Aircraft Carriers

18. Alex Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the UK's carrier strike capability. [86910]

Nick Harvey: Nothing has changed since the Strategic defence and security review in that there is a strategic requirement for a future carrier strike capability. Our assessment that expeditionary airpower can be delivered through other means in the short-term was illustrated by the campaign in Libya, this also confirmed our assumption that working more closely with allies and partners is both possible and delivers more military capability.

The strategic environment in the period after 2020 is far less certain. This is why the Government believe that a modern carrier capability, able to undertake a variety of roles such as power projection, peace keeping, conflict prevention and the provision of aid and assistance in times of crisis, will be required.

21. Glyn Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the likely (a) cost of and (b) enhanced capability arising from the aircraft carrier programme. [86913]

Peter Luff: Our latest cost estimate for the Queen Elizabeth class aircraft carrier programme is £5.2 billion. This figure is based on the current configuration of the carriers and does not include the additional costs of installing catapults and arrestor gear to enable it to operate the more capable carrier variant of the Joint Strike Fighter decision which will be taken next year. The costs of conversion are under investigation, but are currently estimated to be in the order of £1 billion.

As part of a package of measures taken in the strategic defence and security review we have reduced overall spending on the Carrier Strike Programme by £4.4 billion over the next 10 years.

Defence Engagement Strategy

19. Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress his Department has made on its defence engagement strategy; and when he plans to present the strategy to Parliament. [86911]

Mr Philip Hammond: Work on the defence engagement strategy is very well advanced and I am expecting, in conjunction with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), to give formal approval to the strategy in the coming weeks, at which time it shall be announced to the House.

European Defence Agency

20. Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the budget of the European Defence Agency. [86912]

Mr Gerald Howarth: I represented the UK at the Defence Ministers' meeting in Brussels on 30 November, at which the European Defence Agency budget for 2012 was discussed. Our position in refusing to agree a budget increase resulted in the UK successfully securing a freeze on the European Defence Agency's budget for the second year running.

United States: Military Co-operation

22. Mr Raab: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the potential effects on future military co-operation with the US of planned reductions in defence expenditure in that country. [86915]

Mr Gerald Howarth: The scale and scope of US reductions in defence expenditure is yet to be determined, but the US is, and will remain, our pre-eminent bilateral defence and security partner, and will keep us closely informed of any changes that might affect our future military co-operation.

Royal Navy Training Systems

23. Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the Royal Navy's new training systems on the efficiency of the fleet and availability of the UK's vessels. [86916]

Nick Harvey: The Royal Navy's new Maritime Composite Training System was unveiled on 20 October 2011. It will not affect the availability of the Royal Navy's vessels but will ensure that surface ships' warfare teams are better prepared to meet future challenges through the most efficient and effective training environment.

Basing Review

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the Scottish Government's submission to his Department's Basing review; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the submission. [86645]

Nick Harvey: We are grateful to the Scottish Government for the helpful and constructive way they conducted discussions around the Basing review, and for their continued close co-operation with us. The Scottish Government have been an extremely important partner for the Ministry of Defence throughout the Basing review.

The Scottish Government's submission on the Basing review was especially useful for the Department in fleshing out the consequences to the Scottish economy, and on local communities.

The submission was published by the Scottish Government on its website on 20 June 2011, and is available at the following link:

http://www.scotland.gov.uk/News/Releases/2011/06/20124743

The document will be placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Females

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many women joined the (a) Royal Air Force, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Army and at what rank in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [86500]

Mr Robathan: The following tables provide information on the number of women who joined the armed forces in each year and by rank:

Armed Forces: Housing

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to the public purse was of official service residence for members of the (a) Royal Air Force, (b) Army and (c) Royal Navy in the last year for which figures are available. [86957]

Mr Robathan: Under the official service residence arrangements, entitlement was linked to the post which an officer had been assigned, rather than to the individual who occupied it. For the financial year 2010-11, we have estimated that the total cost attributed to 26 official service residences is some £4.7 million. This includes rent, utilities, planned and unplanned maintenance, improvements, furniture and equipment, household staff, and official entertainment. It is important to note that many official service residences are grade listed buildings and protected by law. As a result they are often expensive to maintain whether they are occupied or not.

Final costings for the financial year 2010-11 are currently being compiled.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers had a status entitling them to official service residence in the (a) Army, (b) Royal Air Force and (c) Royal Navy as at 1 December 2011. [86958]

Mr Robathan: Under the official service residence (OSR) arrangements, entitlement was linked to the post which an officer had been assigned, rather than to the individual who occupied it. At the point at which the designation was abolished, there were 26 service appointments that had a requirement for the incumbent to occupy an OSR. Some of these posts will be open to officers from each of the services, such as the Chief of the Defence Staff, and there is therefore no division between the Royal Navy, Army and Royal Air Force.

Armed Forces: Suicide

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2011, Official Report, column 231W, on armed forces: suicide, how many suicides were recorded (a) among male veterans and (b) men in the UK aged under the age of 24 years in the latest period for which figures are available. [86776]

Mr Robathan: Further to the answer I gave to the hon. Member on 8 November 2011, Official Report, column 231W, the Ministry of Defence does not hold overall figures for suicides among veterans.

The latest figures for suicide and open verdict deaths for male army personnel aged 24 and under are for the period 2006-10, and are as follows:

Age	Number
Under 20	4
20-24	6

We continue to treat the issue of self-harm very seriously and, for those in the army, the risk of suicide has been decreasing over the past 15 or so years. Current figures show that male Army personnel aged under 20 were at a 9% decreased risk of suicide compared to the general UK population, and male army personnel aged 20-24 at a 70% decreased risk.

Armed Forces: Wills

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many wills of service personnel were lost by his Department or the armed services in each of the last five years; and how many of these were of service personnel who died on operations. [86772]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 15 December 2011]: Since March 2011, the recording and processing of will information has been enhanced on the Joint Personnel Administration System giving greater assurance to the accuracy of will information held. The services will form has also been reviewed to ensure that that it remains fit for purpose.

While the Ministry of Defence (MOD) does not maintain a record of wills purported to be lost, it is aware of four cases since January 2007 where an updated will has been temporarily misplaced. There is no proven case of the MOD having lost a will.

Armed Forces: Young People

Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of Army recruits aged (a) under 18 years and (b) 18 years and over completed Phase 2 training and entered the trained strength in the latest period for which figures are available. [86635]

Mr Robathan: The required information is not held in the format requested. While information is available on the number completing Phase 2 training each year, this is not held against date of birth and the requested information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the Army have conducted some work on the numbers leaving and completing training and have identified that in financial year 2010-11, 63.4% of under 18s completed Phase 2 training and 71.7% of those who enlisted over the age of 18 completed Phase 2 training.

Aviation: Licensing

Mr Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what arrangements are in place to enable Royal Air Force pilots at the end of their commission to be exempted from any requirements in obtaining a private commercial pilot's licence. [87057]

Nick Harvey: Military pilots leaving the UK armed forces can receive credits towards private civilian pilot licences through the Qualified Service Pilot (QSP) scheme. The QSP scheme is administered by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) and the level of accreditation awarded is dependent upon the experience of the individual pilot.

This scheme will cease in April 2012 when the European Aviation Safety Agency (EASA) becomes legally responsible for aviation legislation. Proposals for a new scheme are being developed in conjunction with CAA for approval by EASA.

Defence: Finance

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment his Department has made of the balance between commitments and revenues in the defence budget (a) now and (b) at the time of the Strategic Defence and Security Review. [83713]

Mr Philip Hammond: At the time of the Strategic Defence and Security Review (SDSR), the then Secretary of State for Defence, my right hon. Friend the Member for North Somerset (Dr Fox), announced a shortfall between our programme and our budget of £38 billion based on the Department's previous policy assumptions. These were changed during the SDSR and, as a result, this figure does not bear comparison with the current situation.

The then Secretary of State for Defence announced to Parliament on 18 July 2011, Official Report, columns 643-5, that the actions taken since the SDSR had brought the Department's programme and budget broadly into balance. This has not changed.

Departmental Audit

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies use when deciding whether and when to hold an internal audit; and if he will make a statement. [85635]

Mr Robathan: All Departments are required to provide internal audit services. The Ministry of Defence is required to provide an annual statement on governance and this requirement relies on the assurance levels, together with associated detail, provided by internal audit reports. The annual internal audit programme is compiled in the light of existing and changing processes, risks and any concerns expressed by managers. It is agreed by the Defence Audit Committee. Audits are carried out both routinely throughout the year and on an urgent, as-required, basis. For public bodies, similar arrangements apply except that they generally have separate audit committees.

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what codes of practice his Department follows when carrying out internal audits; and whether such audits are externally validated. [87139]

Mr Robathan: Ministry of Defence internal auditors follow the code of ethics (integrity, objectivity, competence and confidentiality) and professional standards as required by the rules set out by the relevant professional body, The Chartered Institute of Internal Auditors. The internal audit department is evaluated by commercial external audit companies and/or by the National Audit Office, at least every five years.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [87002]

Peter Luff: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 13 December 2011, Official Report, columns 750-51W, to the right hon. Member for East Renfrewshire (Mr Murphy).

Departmental Communications

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) job titles and (b) job descriptions are of each of the (i) press officers and (ii) other public relations officers working in his Department. [86829]

Mr Robathan: Communicators are employed across defence and the armed forces. They have an important task in explaining to the public, the media, our own people and other audiences—at local, regional, national and international levels—the role of defence, our activities, capabilities and operations.

The latest centrally held records of communications posts are as at 31 March 2011. From this record we have extracted those declared as 'press officers' and separately those identified through post titles as 'public relations'. This information has been placed in the Library of the House.

Post titles within defence have evolved over a number of years and are not standardised across the Ministry of Defence. Job descriptions are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The information placed in the Library of the House includes both military and civilian posts worldwide; they represent a reduction compared with the previous year; further savings have been made across the communications area during the course of the current financial year and more reductions are planned for future years.

Departmental Manpower

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are employed (a) directly and (b) indirectly by his Department and its contractors in (i) Castlemartin, (ii) Manorbier and (iii) the Territorial Army centre, Carmarthen. [87212]

Mr Robathan: The following numbers of Ministry of Defence (MOD) and contractor personnel are employed at each of the sites:

Site	MOD employees (civilian and military personnel)	Contractor employees
Castlemartin	6	58
Manorbier	2	5
Carmarthen Territorial Army Centre (Picton Barracks)	13	1

There are also currently 13 catering sub-contractor staff serving both Castlemartin and Penally ranges. The numbers of staff at each site will vary according to catering demand.

Official Visits

Ian Murray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what visits he has made in an official capacity in each year since May 2010; and what the cost to the public purse was of each such visit. [75416]

Mr Philip Hammond [holding answer 18 October 2011]: All Defence Ministers seek to travel in the most cost-effective way possible.

I refer the hon. Member to the quarterly publication of the cost of overseas travel for all Defence Ministers at the following address:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/FinancialReports/Expenses/MinistersHospitalityReceived.htm

Information regarding the costs of UK travel by myself and my predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for North Somerset (Dr Fox), is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. UK visits involve costs incurred by the Secretary of State's Private Office, his hosts, and others.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, columns 1293-94W, on departmental public expenditure, under what categories of cost within his Department's efficiency programme he expects savings to be made for each of the next four financial years. [86844]

Mr Philip Hammond [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Ministry of Defence is aiming to make efficiency savings under the following categories during the next four financial years:

Changes to Civilian Terms and Conditions of Service

Manpower Reductions (Service and Civilian)

Estates Rationalisation

Organisational Restructuring

Restructuring of Training Organisations

Reducing Ministry of Defence Police and Guards Agency running costs

Asset Sales

Centralisation and Rationalisation of provision of manning, legal and chaplaincy services

Contractorisation

Departmental Publications

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) pursuant to the answer of 25 November 2011, Official Report, column 602W, on departmental publications, whether the Strategy for Defence, October 2011 was produced by employees of his Department or by an outside contractor; how many working hours were required to produce the document; and if he will make a statement; [86503]

(2) whether anyone other than those individuals named was sent a copy of The Strategy for Defence, October 2011; and if he will make a statement. [86504]

Mr Philip Hammond: Ministry of Defence (MOD) employees spent a total of 46 hours on the design, graphics production, and layout of the Strategy for Defence. The printing was conducted by an MOD contractor.

Only those individuals that I mentioned in my answer of 25 November 2011, Official Report, column 602W, were sent a copy of the Strategy for Defence by the office of my predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for North Somerset (Dr Fox), and the Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Lord Astor of Hever). Additional copies were subsequently provided by the Ministry of Defence's Parliamentary Branch to other members of the Defence Select Committee.

Depleted Uranium

Mr Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make it his policy to cease using depleted uranium in ammunition. [87161]

Nick Harvey: The Government's continuing policy is that depleted uranium can be used within weapons; it is not prohibited under current or likely future international agreements. UK armed forces use all munitions in accordance with international humanitarian law.

European Fighter Aircraft

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 5 September 2011, Official Report, column 84W, on European fighter aircraft, what assumptions his Department used in the calculations of the 25-year net present value for (a) RAF Lossiemouth and (b) RAF Leuchars. [86643]

Nick Harvey: The calculations of the 25-year net present value of the relative costs of operating Typhoon from either RAF Lossiemouth or RAF Leuchars were based on assumptions covering a wide range of aspects. These included personnel, infrastructure, running costs, parenting costs for lodger units, relocation, the draw-down of the Tornado fleet and the build up of the Typhoon fleet, and the relevant operational factors for operations at both RAF Lossiemouth and RAF Leuchars.

Ex-servicemen: Employment

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will publish the 2010 survey by the Career Transition Partnership on the employment destinations of service leavers. [86771]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Ministry of Defence does not produce a report on the employment destinations of service leavers. However, our commercial partner surveys each service leaver who has accessed the services of the Career Transition Partnership at the six month point after discharge. The results obtained allow for graphical representation. A copy of this document has been placed in the Library of the House.

Falkland Islands

Mr Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he has assessed the UK's defence capability in the Falkland Islands since the recent comments by the Argentine Government on the Islands. [87233]

Nick Harvey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 December 2011, Official Report, column 797W, to the hon. Member for New Forest East (Dr Lewis).

Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust

Mr Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 18 October 2011, Official Report, column 875W, on Guy's and St Thomas' NHS Foundation Trust, (1) if he proposes that the Medical Assessment Programme will continue to treat Gulf War veterans who present themselves with physical health problems; [87040]

(2) if the Medical Assessment Programme will continue to retain the full range of services it previously offered; [87041]

(3) if the (a) terms and (b) scope of the Medical Assessment Programme have changed; and if he will place in the Library the Programme's terms of reference. [87042]

Mr Robathan: As set out in the answer of 18 October 2011, Official Report, column 875W, the Ministry of Defence (MOD)'s medical assessment programme is staffed by a consultant psychiatrist. This has been the case since 2006 for the reason that the number of physical health patient referrals from GPs had declined to a very low level and such queries were normally referred back to the NHS. The MOD continues to provide advice should a GP or 1990-91 Gulf veteran require information on Gulf health issues.

In his report on veterans' mental health care, the hon. Member for South West Wiltshire (Dr Murrison), recommended that the medical assessment programme should continue as the feedback from veterans is that it continues to provide a valuable service while NHS mental health services for veterans are being further developed across the UK. Full details about the service offered by the Medical Assessment Programme are available on the MOD's website, at the following link:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/WhatWeDo/HealthandSafety/GulfVeteransIllnesses/TheMedicalAssessmentProgramme.htm

A copy of this information has been placed in the Library of the House.

Harrier Aircraft

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of 7 December 2011, Official Report, column 384W, on Harrier aircraft, if he will publish the memorandum of understanding (MOU) referred to; what similar MOUs the UK has agreed with other countries concerning UK defence assets; what the content is of those MOUs; which two non-MOU countries expressed an interest in the Harrier aircraft; who undertook the relevant analysis to establish the value of the sale of those aircraft; and who retains the intellectual property rights for those aircraft. [87409]

Peter Luff: The memorandum of understanding (MOU), between Italy, Spain, the United Kingdom and the United States concerning co-operation in post-production support of Harrier aircraft was signed in 2004. It is not our policy to publish such agreements.

I will write to the right hon. Member concerning the information on MOUs that are similar to the Harrier MOU.

I am withholding information on the states that expressed an interest as the disclosure of this information would or would be likely to prejudice relations between the United Kingdom and those states.

Officials from the Ministry of Defence's Disposal Services Authority and Harrier project team jointly undertook analysis and provided advice to establish the value of the sale of the Harrier aircraft.

Intellectual property rights for these aircraft are retained by a number of companies: primarily BAE Systems and Rolls-Royce.

Military Aircraft

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what flight test instrumentation has been purchased for the F-35C aircraft; and what the cost was to the public purse. [87592]

Peter Luff: No flight test instrumentation has been purchased for the F35C aircraft.

MODPGA: Scotland

Dr Whiteford: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution of Ministry of Defence police to the security of the defence estate in Scotland. [87011]

Mr Robathan: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) attaches very high importance to the role played by the MOD police, and other security providers, in safeguarding its people, information and assets across the Defence estate, including its sites in Scotland.

The MOD's single highest security priority continues to be the protection of the UK's nuclear deterrent, where a significant contribution is provided by MOD police officers based at Her Majesty's Naval Base Clyde and the Royal Naval Armaments Depot Coulport.

Nuclear Submarines

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to refurbish the Rolls-Royce nuclear submarine reactor core plant at Raynesway, Derby; and what the cost to the public purse is of any such refurbishment. [86749]

Peter Luff: We are working with Rolls-Royce on plans to refurbish the facilities at Raynesway in Derby over the period 2012 to 2022.

The Ministry of Defence is in commercial negotiations regarding this work; I am therefore withholding cost information as its disclosure would prejudice commercial interests.

Nuclear Weapons

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2011, Official Report, column 833W, on nuclear weapons, how much his Department is planning to spend on collaboration with the US Administration on studies on the development of the W88 nuclear warhead. [86757]

Peter Luff: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 March 2011, Official Report, column 833W. The UK is collaborating with the US on a broad range of nuclear issues of mutual interest including US plans for the refurbishment or replacement of non-nuclear components within their W88 nuclear warhead. For the UK, collaboration with the US on the non nuclear components of their W88 programme ensures the sustainability of our own technical knowledge and skills which will assist the assessment of options to inform any future UK warhead decision.

Some £3.5 million is expected to be spent on this collaboration over the next three years.

Radiation Exposure

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) current and (b) former Ministry of Defence sites have been found to be radioactively contaminated; and what the suspected cause of radiation is in each case. [86838]

Mr Robathan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, details of sites identified by our Land Quality Assessment (LQA) are listed as follows. In each of these cases the principal source of contamination was found to be radium-226, a low-level contaminant.

Ministry of Defence (MOD) sites:

Stirling Lines
RAF Shawbury
RAF Henlow
RAF Kinloss
RM Condor
RAF Little Rissington
RS Anthorn
Machrihanish
Stirling Forthside

RAF Newton—(part of the site has been disposed of, the remainder is due to be sold)

Sites disposed of by the MOD:

Former DARA Almondbank and Fleetlands

HMS Daedalus

Where a site has been disposed of by the MOD, the purchaser would have received an LQA report outlining the extent of any known contamination, and this will have been reflected in the sale price.

Radioactive Waste

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 October 2011, Official Report, column 261W, on radioactive waste, for what reason the information identified in the answer as not held centrally and available only at disproportionate cost has subsequently been provided in response to a request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [86842]

Mr Robathan: The answer I gave on 26 October 2011, Official Report, column 261W, related to locations of the burial of radium fragments which is not held centrally.

In response to a freedom of information request, the Ministry of Defence provided details of sites where soil contaminated with radium had been identified as part of the update to the 2010 UK Radioactive Waste Inventory, which is already in the public domain.

Red Arrows: Training

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many hours on average Red Arrows pilots flew (a) in flight training and (b) as flight trainers in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86826]

Nick Harvey: The Red Arrows 12-month season runs from 1 October to 30 September. The following table gives information for the average training hours flown by the Red Arrow pilots for the 2011 season.

	Average flying training hours per Red Arrow pilot[1]
2010
October	5
November	14
December	1
2011
January	18
February	15
March	22
April	21
May	22
June	2
July	0
August	4
September	4
Total per pilot	128

[1] Figures are rounded up to the nearest hour.

Pilots serving with the Red Arrows are not required to conduct flight training duties. Therefore no flying hours are recorded as flight trainers.

Service Personnel and Veterans Agency

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applications to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency relating to divorce, including pension sharing orders and transfers for calculating cash equivalent transfer values, are subject to a suspension of processing; when he expects those suspensions to be lifted; and if he will make a statement. [86878]

Mr Robathan: As at 14 December 2011, the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency had some 400 cash equivalent transfer valuation applications, and no pension sharing orders, that have been subject to suspension of processing. This is an issue common across all public sector schemes following pension changes announced in the 2011 Budget which led to the suspension of all such processing pending new guidance from the Government Actuaries Department on new actuarial factors.

It is estimated that the suspension will be lifted early in the new year.

Officials are prepared to consider making interim payments on a case by case basis until this issue is resolved.

Submarines: Females

Mrs Grant: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will take steps to encourage women in the Royal Navy to apply to serve on Vanguard and Astute-class submarines. [86892]

Mr Philip Hammond: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friends the Members for Gosport (Caroline Dinenage) and for West Worcestershire (Harriett Baldwin).

World War II: Military Decorations

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Minister for Defence Personnel, Welfare and Veterans last met Commander Eddie Grenfell; and what plans he has to meet him in the future. [86763]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 15 December 2011]: I have not formally met Commander Grenfell, however, I did have a chance meeting with him during the launch of the Armed Forces Community Covenant in Winchester on 16 June 2011. I have no current plans to meet with him, but he, and his fellow campaigners, are very likely to be consulted during the forthcoming independent review of the rules governing the award of military medals.

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the comments by Commander Eddie Grenfell on the contribution by the Minister for Defence Personnel, Welfare and Veterans on 6 December 2011, Official Report, columns 51-58WH, on Arctic convoys. [86765]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 15 December 2011]: I am aware of the campaign for further recognition for those who served as part of the Arctic Convoys, and recognise that there are many veterans who feel very strongly about this matter.

The Government have agreed that there should be a fresh review of the rules governing the award of military medals. This will be conducted by an independent reviewer with full consultation with interested parties. It will make use of all of the work already undertaken as a part of the Ministry of Defence's earlier review but will have a broader scope and an independent lead. The scope of the review and who is to lead it are expected to be announced shortly.

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his policy is on the contribution by the Minister for Defence Personnel, Welfare and Veterans on 6 December 2011, Official Report, columns 51-58WH, on Arctic convoys, and his statement that those who served did not face risks; and if he will make a statement; [86766]

(2) what assessment he has made of the risks taken by those who served on Arctic convoys. [86767]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 15 December 2011]: I urge the hon. Member to read the full extract of my statement of 6 December 2011, Official Report, columns 51-58WH, where I said

"we pay tribute to the people in the Public Gallery who are showing the medals that they won through risk and rigour".

The Atlantic Star, which was intended to show recognition of service on the Arctic Convoys, reflects that principle. I have at no point claimed that those who served on the Arctic Convoys did not face risks.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Al-Qaeda: Prisoner Escapes

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the escape of al-Qaeda prisoners from Aden. [86874]

Alistair Burt: We are aware of reports of a prisoner escape in Aden and are seeking further details.

Daljit Singh Bittu

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Indian authorities on the case of Daljit Singh Bittu. [87202]

Mr Jeremy Browne: We have not made any representations to the Indian authorities on the case of Daljit Singh Bittu. The hon. Member for Leicester South will understand that the British Government have no locus to intervene in India's judicial process.

Darinderpal Singh Bhullar

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Indian authorities on the case of Professor Darinderpal Singh Bhullar. [87203]

Mr Jeremy Browne: The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, the right hon. Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), has not raised Mr Bhullar's case with the Indian authorities. However I have written to the Indian high commissioner, most recently on 7 November, reiterating the UK Government's strong opposition to the death penalty and urging the Indian authorities not to break their seven-year de facto moratorium on the death penalty. I also raised our concerns with then Indian Foreign Secretary Rao on 28 June, and with Indian Minister of State for External Affairs Preneet Kaur on 5 July. We continue to urge the Government of India to establish a formal moratorium as a first step towards the abolition of the death penalty in India.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people were working in his Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87339]

Mr Bellingham: We record the number of UK-based staff on a monthly basis. On 1 May 2010 we had approximately 5,000 UK-based staff. At 1 December 2011 we had approximately 4,550. The reduction results from making efficiencies in the corporate support functions in the UK, the transfer of some overseas support tasks from UK-based to locally-engaged staff and the civil service recruitment freeze.

Diplomatic Service: Languages

Stephen Barclay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many heads of mission are serving in overseas postings; and how many have completed the extensive level language qualification which is linked to additional remuneration. [87054]

Mr Bellingham: There are 142 bilateral heads of mission serving in overseas postings: 105 ambassadors and 37 high commissioners. Of the 142, 96 have been identified as having a language requirement and 72 have qualified in the necessary Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) language exams. Of the 72 bilateral heads of mission with exam records, 22 have passed the FCO Extensive exam, Common European Framework of Reference for Languages level C2, the most advanced level of fluency. All FCO officers serving overseas in speaker slots (Confidence, Operational or Extensive) are entitled to claim additional remuneration for the duration of their overseas posting, provided they have passed the appropriate examination.

Stephen Barclay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what formal qualifications in languages are linked to additional remuneration for his Department's staff. [87142]

Mr Bellingham: All Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) language exams are aligned to the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages. The following qualifications are linked to remuneration:

FCO Extensive exam, CEFR level C2, the most advanced level of fluency.

FCO Operational exam, CEFR level C1, roughly equivalent to degree level.

FCO Confidence exam, CEFR level A2, enabling them to deal confidently with routine everyday issues in the foreign language.

FCO Confidence and Operational examinations are validated by the Chartered Institute of Linguists.

All FCO officers serving overseas in speaker slots (Confidence, Operational or Extensive) are entitled to claim additional remuneration for the duration of their overseas posting, provided they have passed the appropriate examination.

Stephen Barclay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many HM ambassadors are serving in overseas postings; and of these how many have completed the extensive level language qualification which is linked to additional remuneration. [87187]

Mr Bellingham: There are 142 bilateral heads of mission serving in overseas postings: 105 ambassadors and 37 high commissioners. Of the 142, 96 have been identified as having a language requirement and 72 have qualified in the necessary Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) language exams. Of the 72 bilateral heads of mission with exam records, 22 have passed the FCO extensive exam, CEFR level C2, the most advanced level of fluency. All FCO officers serving overseas in speaker slots (confidence, operational or extensive) are entitled to claim additional remuneration for the duration of their overseas posting, provided they have passed the appropriate examination.

Kashmir: Conflict Prevention

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much the South Asia Conflict Prevention Programme has spent in Kashmir in each year since 2007. [87079]

Alistair Burt: A total of £1,030,383 has been spent on Kashmir from the South Asia Conflict Pool since 2007. This is broken down as follows:

2007-08	58,170
2008-09	293,528
2009-10	192,064
2010-11:	486,621

The fluctuations in each year are due to differences in the number of project applications that are approved and completed in each financial year. The conflict pool is the mechanism by which the Government allocate resources for discretionary conflict prevention, stabilisation and peacekeeping activities and is managed jointly by the Department for International Development, Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Ministry of Defence.

Conflict Pool activity does not contradict the long standing position of the UK on Kashmir; that it is for India and Pakistan to find a lasting resolution, taking into account the wishes of the Kashmiri people. It is not for the UK to prescribe a solution to the situation in Kashmir or to mediate in finding one.

Kidnapping

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials in his Department have been kidnapped whilst on official business overseas in each of the last 10 years. [87561]

Mr Bellingham: There have been no Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials kidnapped while on official business overseas in the last 10 years. However, two Foreign FCO officials posted to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia were kidnapped in 2007 while on unofficial (private) travel. They were released after being held for 12 days.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on negotiation with overseas kidnappers. [87571]

Alistair Burt: We are prepared to talk to anyone who is in a position to help ensure the swift and safe release of a hostage. We do so in a way that is consistent with our long-standing policy of not making or facilitating substantive concessions to hostage-takers. We maintain this policy because we believe that to make substantive concessions such as paying ransoms would reward the act of hostage-taking and encourage future kidnaps of British nationals.

Lord's Resistance Army

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the Lord's Resistance Army's activities in (a) the Central African Republic, (b) the Democratic Republic of Congo, (c) South Sudan and (d) Uganda. [86876]

Mr Bellingham: We receive regular reports on the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) from our diplomatic missions covering these countries, and through bodies such as the UN.

The most credible recent information suggests that 250 to 300 LRA fighters remain, scattered in small units across the region. While its numbers have been much reduced over the past decade because of military action (led by Uganda) and progress with demobilisation and repatriation under UN auspices in some areas, the LRA remains a destabilising force and a threat to civilian populations.

Nigeria: Foreign Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the UK's relationship with Nigeria; and if he will make a statement. [87568]

Mr Bellingham: The UK enjoys good relations with Nigeria, including through historic, cultural and economic ties. Our mission in Nigeria is one of the largest in sub-Saharan Africa, with a high commission in Abuja and a deputy high commission in Lagos. The Prime Minister visited Nigeria in July 2011, accompanied by the Minister of State for Trade and investment, my noble Friend, Lord Green of Hurstpierpoint, and the Secretary of State for International Development, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr Mitchell), to develop and promote our relationship. The key elements of this are boosting bilateral trade, investment and growth; encouraging good governance and democratic practice; aiding development; and supporting Nigerian security architecture to combat both national and international threats. The bilateral communiqué from the Prime Minister's visit sets out the critical parts of the British Government's policy towards Nigeria. It can be found online at:

www.number10.gov.uk/news/communique-on-nigeria-trade-mission/

Nigeria: Kidnapping

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens have been kidnapped in Nigeria in each of the last five years. [87565]

Mr Bellingham: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office cannot provide an exact figure as not every case is brought to our attention, but our records show the number of kidnap and abductions involving British nationals in Nigeria in the past five years as follows:

	Number
2006	14
2007	8
2008	5
2009	4
2010	2
2011	3

Saudi Arabia: Human Rights

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will assess the most recent report by Amnesty International on human rights violations in Saudi Arabia; and if he will make a statement. [86950]

Alistair Burt: The Amnesty International report on Saudi Arabia summarises the current human rights situation in Saudi Arabia. It covers the draft anti-terror law, detentions and trials and freedom of expression. Our embassy in Riyadh has been engaged in a dialogue with the Saudi Arabian Government on these issues for some time. There is widespread acceptance in the Saudi Government and Saudi human rights organisations that the draft anti-terror law is unsuitable in its present form: the current draft is extremely unlikely to pass into law. Our embassy has raised the issue of arbitrary detentions with the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Justice and has been given permission to attend a forthcoming terror trial.

We have asked the Saudi authorities for more information with regard to the case referred to in the report which concerns 16 men convicted under anti-terror legislation to sentences ranging from five to 30 years, before we determine our next course of action. Freedom of expression concerns largely relate to the periods of unrest in the Eastern Province this year. Following the most recent outbreak of unrest in November, we note the Saudi Arabian Government issued a statement that security forces have been instructed to exercise restraint. We welcome the willingness of Saudi Arabian human rights organisations to engage with Amnesty on human rights concerns, which will raise awareness of the progress made by Saudi Arabia to date and give greater clarity on the requirements for further reform.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Saudi Arabia on human rights. [87448]

Alistair Burt: I discussed human rights in Saudi Arabia during my visit there on 26-27 April 2011, when I met Dr Bandar Al-Aiban, chairman of the Saudi Arabian Human Rights Commission, an organisation that works closely with the Saudi Arabian Government on human rights issues. I had a frank and honest discussion with Dr Al-Aiban, making no secret of the UK's concerns on the human rights situation in Saudi Arabia. The treatment of women, the application of the death penalty and the status of foreign workers were all raised. On 5 July, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), met the Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister, Prince Saud, to discuss a range of issues, including women's rights. I travelled to Saudi Arabia on 23 November and discussed a wide range of human rights issues. In addition, our ambassador and the embassy team in Riyadh have raised human rights concerns with the Saudi Arabian Government, bilaterally and through the European Union.

Sikhs

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to meet representatives of the Sikh community to discuss the case of Professor Darinderpal Singh Bhullar. [87201]

Mr Jeremy Browne: I have no plans at present to meet representatives of the Sikh community to discuss Mr Bhullar's case. However, we continue to follow Mr Bhullar's case closely and have made clear to the Indian authorities our concerns about the possible resumption of executions in India, which would end their seven-year de facto moratorium on the death penalty.

Somalia: Kidnapping

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department is taking steps to reduce instances of kidnapping of British citizens in (a) Somalia and (b) other developing countries. [87556]

Alistair Burt: The safety of British nationals abroad is of paramount concern for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. We provide information through our travel advice to help British nationals make informed decisions about their safety when travelling abroad. Where we assess that there is a specific threat of kidnap in a country, we will advise accordingly. We currently advise against all travel to Somalia. We maintain a policy of not paying ransoms to terrorists, as to pay ransoms would reward the act of hostage-taking and encourage future kidnaps of British nationals.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of British citizens being kidnapped in Somalia in each of the last 10 years. [87557]

Alistair Burt: We do not have an exact figure as not every case is brought to our attention, but our records show the number of kidnaps and abductions involving British nationals in Somalia as follows:

2001	0
2002	0
2003	0
2004	0
2005	0
2006	0
2007	0
2008	2
2009	2
2010	1
2011	1

Somalia: Piracy

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost to the international community of piracy off the coast of Somalia in terms of (a) financial losses borne by shipping companies and (b) expenditure on military and naval operations. [86160]

Mr Bellingham: The turnover of the British shipping industry is worth £10.7 billion of our national GDP. Nearly $1 trillion of trade to and from Europe travelled through the Gulf of Aden in 2008 and this is the second busiest international trade route in the world. One World Future has estimated that piracy could be costing the global economy up to $12 billion a year in direct costs and indirect costs such as increased insurance premiums.

There has been no estimate of the international community's total expenditure on counter-piracy operations. Expenditure on military and naval operations is borne by the contributing state. For UK contributions, the cost for counter-piracy operations is a component of the annual operating costs of the Royal Navy, on which the Foreign and Commonwealth Office holds no data. The average annual running costs of the EU's Operation Atalanta are €8 million per year, of which the UK contributes on average £700,000 per year.

The British Government are playing a leading role in the counter-piracy operations at sea, and leading international work with regional countries to build penal, judicial and law enforcement capacities in support, with more than 1,000 pirates now in custody. The first line of defence remains self-defence measures by ships to minimise the risk of a successful hijack. But the long-term solution lies on land, with rule of law. increased stability and economic development.

South Sudan: Equality

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to promote equality in South Sudan. [87558]

Mr Bellingham: As a new nation state, South Sudan has the opportunity to put gender equality at the heart of its developing institutions. In addition to the Department for International Development's work, the British embassy is supporting women's active participation in peace-building and stabilisation initiatives, in particular, the mainstreaming of gender in South Sudan's police and security sector reform. There are some positive indicators of success, for example the fact that women police officers represent 50% of the police force in some of South Sudan's states.

However, women are still under-represented in many areas of government and we are encouraging the Government of South Sudan to make it a priority to increase their involvement.

South Sudan: Foreign Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the UK's relations with South Sudan; and if he will make a statement. [87559]

Mr Bellingham: The Government are committed to supporting South Sudan to become a viable and peaceful state, underpinned by good governance, respect for human rights and an environment in which humanitarian assistance can reach all that need it. We are working closely with the Government in South Sudan and with our international partners in pursuit of those goals.

We are concerned that progress is endangered by continuing internal conflicts as well as tensions with Sudan. We urge the Governments of South Sudan and Sudan to resolve their outstanding issues peacefully and are supporting the mediation efforts. We are also providing funding and support to conflict resolution within South Sudan.

The British Government are providing over £90 million a year for the next four years to help the people of South Sudan. This funding will support international efforts to promote peace and stability in South Sudan. Specifically, our assistance will help build more accountable, inclusive and transparent government; deliver basic services such as education, clean water and healthcare; support economic growth; provide humanitarian relief; and improve security and access to justice.

Sri Lanka: Foreign Relations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the UK's relations with Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [87570]

Alistair Burt: The UK has a long and historic relationship with Sri Lanka and we continue to work with all interested parties on the shared objective of achieving lasting peace. The UK believes that the best way to achieve lasting and equitable peace and reconciliation in Sri Lanka is through an inclusive political solution that addresses the underlying causes of the conflict and takes into account the legitimate grievances and aspirations of all Sri Lanka's communities.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent staff in his Department have worked on the proposed reform of air passenger duty. [87317]

Miss Chloe Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Central Ayrshire (Mr Donohoe) on 13 December 2011, Official Report, column 533W.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has any plans to make further changes to the structure of air passenger duty up to 2015. [87318]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Government set out their plans for the structure of air passenger duty in their response to consultation published on 6 December.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will publish the analysis of the costs and benefits of air passenger duty to the UK economy that his Department undertook to inform his response to the consultation on the reform of air passenger duty. [87319]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Government received over 500 responses to the air passenger duty (APD) consultation, including analytical reports. Although the Government do not generally publish responses to consultations or the detailed policy advice to Ministers, the consultation document published in March 2011 recognised the important contribution of the aviation sector to the UK economy, while stressing the need to maintain revenues from the aviation sector. Decisions on the future structure of APD were taken in that context.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons retention of a four band air passenger duty structure was not an option in his consultation document on reform of air passenger duty. [87406]

Miss Chloe Smith: The consultation document on air passenger duty published at Budget 2011 included the base-case option of retaining the existing four band air passenger duty structure.

Business: Government Assistance

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in which month businesses will start to receive investments through the funds in which the Government will invest in partnership with other investors. [87140]

Mr Hoban: The Government announced at the Autumn Statement that they will make available an initial £1 billion to invest through non-bank lending channels, through a Business Finance Partnership. This will focus initially on co-investment in loan funds that lend directly to mid-sized businesses in the UK.

The Government published a document asking for expressions of interest in managing this co-investment on 6 December, and intend to issue a further, detailed specification in early 2012, and to request proposals to manage these funds. The Government intend to commit their first funding through the Business Finance Partnership in spring 2012.

The month in which the first loans will be made to businesses by these funds will depend upon the length of time taken for fund managers to confirm private sector co-investment, and to identify suitable lending opportunities.

Carbon Sequestration

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the economic effect over the period to 2030 of a delay in the carbon capture storage programme until (a) 2016, (b) 2017, (c) 2018, (d) 2019 and (e) 2020 in (i) each region of England, (ii) Scotland, (iii) Wales and (iv) Northern Ireland. [86966]

Charles Hendry: I have been asked to reply.

On 1 December DECC published The Carbon Plan which sets out the Government's plans for achieving the emission reductions committed to in the first four carbon budgets, consistent with meeting the 2050 target.

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/tackling/carbon_plan/carbon_plan.aspx

The scenarios modelled in this plan show that by 2030 new nuclear could contribute 10 to 15 GW, with up to 20 GW achievable if build rates are higher; fossil fuel generation with CCS could contribute as much as 10 GW; and renewable electricity could deliver anywhere between 35 and 5 GW—depending on assumptions about costs and build rates. However, it is too early to predict which will be the most cost-effective decarbonisation route for the power sector.

The CCS programme is currently being designed and will be launched as soon as possible. It will only be possible to determine the regional impact of the CCS programme once the selection process for new projects has been completed and the location of projects is known.

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the potential effect of a delay to the carbon capture storage programme on employment in (a) each region of England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland. [86967]

Charles Hendry: I have been asked to reply.

The CCS programme is currently being designed and will be launched as soon as possible. It will only be possible to determine the regional impact of the CCS programme on employment once the selection process for new projects has been completed and the location of projects is known.

Care Quality Commission: Pay

Stephen Barclay: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many special severance payments have been notified to HM Treasury by the Care Quality Commission in each of the last three years. [87141]

Danny Alexander: HM Treasury received two special severance payment cases from the Care Quality Commission in 2011, three in 2010 and one in 2009.

Cash Dispensing

Mr Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which meetings (a) he, (b) other Ministers in his Department and (c) senior officials in his Department have had with (i) the British Banking Association, (ii) Lloyds Bank, (iii) Barclays and (iv) Royal Bank of Scotland to discuss changes to use of cash point machines; and if he will make a statement. [87134]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers and officials meet with, and receive representations from, a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the usual policy making process. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Departmental Civil Proceedings

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which organisations that have received funding from his Department have brought legal proceedings against his Department in the last five years; which such organisations were not successful in their actions; and whether his Department (a) applied and (b) was paid for costs in respect of such cases. [83896]

Miss Chloe Smith: There were no legal proceedings brought against the Treasury by organisations that have received funding from it.

Departmental Internet

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will ensure that his Department's website is updated to include meetings he and Ministers in his Department have had since March 2011. [86175]

Miss Chloe Smith [holding answer 12 December 2011]: Details of ministerial meetings with external organisations held since March 2011 are available on the HM Treasury website at the following address:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/minister_hospitality.htm

Departmental Judicial Review

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what applications for judicial review have been made against his Department (a) in the last Parliament and (b) since May 2010; whether each such application (i) succeeded, (ii) failed and (iii) remains pending; what legal costs were incurred by his Department for each such application; in each failed application whether he applied for costs against the applicant and whether they were (A) awarded and (B) paid; whether his Department (1) paid for and (2) offered to pay for the legal costs incurred by each such applicant; and what the total cost to the public purse was of payment of the legal costs for each such applicant. [80719]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Treasury does not keep a central record of the information that has been requested and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the figure for the total amount spent on legal services for the financial year 2010-11was £3,945,452.98. All recorded cases, including judicial reviews, are a matter of public record and are published widely, including online, for example on the website of the British and Irish Legal Information Institute (BAILII).

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people were working in his Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87340]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Treasury undertakes an analysis of its work force on a monthly basis at the end of each month. The number of people who were working in HMT on 30 April 2010 and 30 November 2011 was 1,364.09 full-time equivalents (FTE) and 1,132.25 FTE respectively.

Departmental Publications

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) leaflets, (b) posters and (c) reports his Department has published since May 2010; how much each cost; and which company (i) published and (ii) designed each. [82993]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Treasury has not produced any leaflets or posters since May 2010.

Since May 2010, the Treasury has published around 199 documents which are all available on its website. The Stationery Office are used to publish House of Commons and Command Papers. All documents published by both TSO and the Treasury are designed and typeset by the in-house team at the Treasury.

It is not always possible to separate out the exact costs of a specific publication from overall publications costs. In line with wider Government practice, any individual publishing projects exceeding £25,000 are listed separately on the Treasury website.

Domestic Visits: Schools

Hilary Benn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether it is his Department's policy that when an official from his Department visits a school the local education authority is informed in advance. [87061]

Miss Chloe Smith: Her Majesty's Treasury does not have a standard policy about who should be informed when its officials visit a school. Visits are handled on a case by case basis.

Economic Situation

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects on the economy of (a) the Royal Wedding of April 2011, (b) the industrial action of November 2011, (c) the winter weather of December 2010 and (d) Her Majesty's Jubilee celebrations holiday in 2012. [87457]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Office for National Statistics is responsible for compiling statistics on the economy such as gross domestic product (GDP). In background briefing the ONS have provided their assessment of the effects on GDP of some of these events.

Equitable Life Assurance Society: Compensation

John Healey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many policyholders have received payments from the Equitable Life Payment Scheme since June; how many payments have been made each month since June; and of what amounts. [87186]

Mr Hoban: The scheme will be publishing a report in the new year on the volumes and values of payments made.

Mr Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Equitable Life policyholders had (a) received payments under the compensation scheme and (b) been contacted regarding compensation on the most recent date for which figures are available; what information his Department holds on the timetable for payments to be made under the compensation scheme; what steps have been taken to prioritise elderly policyholders; and if he will make a statement. [87281]

Mr Hoban: The scheme will be publishing a report in the new year on the progress of the scheme and the volumes and values of payments made.

Equitable Life Assurance Society: Executives

John Healey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer who the most senior official is in charge of the Equitable Life Payment Scheme. [87190]

Mr Hoban: The scheme is delivered by NS&I on HM Treasury's behalf. The most senior official at the Treasury in charge of the scheme is the Director Business and International Tax.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Robert Halfon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what calculations his Department makes to ascertain the effect of levels of fuel duty on low income households. [86871]

Miss Chloe Smith: At Autumn Statement 2011, the Government published their latest distributional analysis of the expected impact of announced government measures on household incomes, split by direct taxes, indirect taxes and tax credits and benefits. This analysis includes the impact of the delay to the January 2012 fuel duty increase to August and the cancellation of the August 2012 increase. This document can be found on the Treasury's website at:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/as2011_documents.htm

Charts 1.A and 1.B in this document show that the top income decile sees the largest reduction in income, both in cash terms and as a percentage of net income, and that cash losses are nearly 10 times that of the bottom decile.

Financial Ombudsman Service: Manpower

Mr Thomas: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent staff the Financial Ombudsman Service employed in 2010-11; how many it plans to employ in (a) 2011-12 and (b) 2012-13; and if he will make a statement. [86867]

Mr Hoban: The matters raised are for the Financial Ombudsman Service (FOS), whose day-to-day operations are independent from Government control and influence. I have asked the FOS to write to the hon. Member with the information requested. A copy of the response will be placed in the Library of the House.

Financial Services: EU Action

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (a) how many and (b) which of the current EU proposals on financial services he considers to pose a potential risk to the UK financial services sector. [87329]

Mr Hoban: The UK is continuing to lead international efforts to reform the financial sector, and effective EU legislation is essential in meeting our commitments. We have previously made clear our concerns with certain provisions of some EU proposals in this area—such as the maximum harmonised approach in the Capital requirements directive (CRD4) and third country access provisions across a range of dossiers including the European market Infrastructure regulation (EMIR) and the markets in financial instruments directive (MiFID).

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of (a) how many and (b) which current EU proposals on financial services he has written to the European Commission due to a potentially adverse effect on the UK financial services sector; and if he will place in the Library a copy of each item of correspondence. [87330]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers have regular discussions with the Commission on a wide variety of topics. As was the case with previous Administrations, we do not provide a running commentary on the details of these negotiations as it could prejudice development of effective Government policy. We have clearly set out the Government's concerns on certain aspects of Commission proposals on financial sector regulation to the president, other Commissioners and senior Commission officials in both correspondence and bilateral meetings in 2011.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer in respect of which current EU proposals on financial services regulation he has received representations identifying them as potentially damaging to the UK financial industry from (a) the British Bankers Association, (b) the Mayor of London, (c) organisations within the City of London, (d) the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills and (e) representatives of RBS, Lloyds TSB, Barclays or HSBC banks. [87331]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the usual policymaking process. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Households: Personal Savings

Hazel Blears: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) whether he plans to take steps to increase the household savings ratio; [87285]

(2) what estimate he has made of the long-term household savings ratio (a) in the North West and (b) nationally; [87286]

(3) whether his Department has undertaken a comparative assessment of the UK household savings ratio and that in other G20 countries; [87287]

(4) what estimate he has made of the number of people in the North West who have no personal savings. [87288]

Mr Hoban: The Government aim to achieve strong, sustainable, and balanced growth, underpinned by a credible deficit reduction plan. Growth and stability will provide a context in which it is easier for households to make long-term savings and investment decisions.

In the long term the Government want a strong saving culture to be a foundation for investment and sustainable growth. The Government have introduced a number of savings policies to meet their objectives. These include, but are not limited to:

improving financial access by introducing the Money Advice Service and commissioning industry to develop a suite of simple financial products;

indexing the amount that can be paid into ISAs each year;

introducing junior ISAs; and introducing regulation to require employers to automatically enrol employees into a workplace pension and make a minimum contribution.

The OECD provides details of the saving ratio for a number of countries. The UK saving ratio for the 2nd quarter of 2011 was 7.4%. It is difficult to compare between countries due to methodological differences.

The saving ratio is not produced at a regional level. The Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR) projects the savings ratio for the UK as a whole to average around 6% over the next four years.

The Government use survey evidence to provide statistics about personal savings, to inform the development of policy. The Family Resources Survey has data for savings and investments of households, including regional analysis. The most recent release can be found here:

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/frs/

Infrastructure

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date his Department first informed Ministers in the Welsh Government of his plans to publish the National Infrastructure Plan 2011. [86698]

Danny Alexander: Treasury Ministers meet with Welsh Government Ministers on a regular basis to discuss a range of issues including infrastructure.

Money Advice Service: Pay

Ann McKechin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) discussions and (b) written communications he has had with (i) the Financial Services Authority, (ii) the Office of Fair Trading and (iii) the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills on the remuneration package to the board of directors and chief executive of the Money Advice Service. [87058]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers have discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

The Government are committed to public sector pay restraint, and believe that senior managers should show leadership in this area. The Chief Secretary to the Treasury approves any civil service appointments in areas under ministerial control for those earning over £142,500.

The Financial Services Authority is, however, responsible for appointing the chief executive and board directors of the Money Advice Service and setting the terms of the appointments.

Public Expenditure

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what Barnett consequential funding has been made available to each of the devolved Administrations as a result of expenditure to increase passenger capacity on trains in England in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11; and how much he expects to make available in (i) 2011-12, (ii) 2012-13, (iii) 2013-14 and (iv) 2014-15. [86695]

Danny Alexander: The devolved Administrations received Barnett consequentials of the Department for Transport settlements in both the 2007 and 2010 spending reviews. Barnett consequentials are calculated at a departmental level in spending reviews so it is not possible to identify expenditure on rail.

In the Autumn Statement, the following Barnett consequentials were given to the devolved Administrations in respect of rail infrastructure programmes:

	2012-13	2013-14	£ million 2014-15
Scotland	1.2	1.2	4.8
Northern Ireland	0.4	0.4	1.6

Ms Ritchie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the Barnett consequentials will be for each devolved Administration as a result of the (a) National Infrastructure Plan 2011, (B) Youth Contract and (c) Regional Growth Fund. [86719]

Danny Alexander [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Barnett consequentials resulting from the (a) National Infrastructure Plan 2011, (b) Youth Contract and (c) Regional Growth Fund are set out in the following table:

		2012-13	2013-14	£ million 2014-15
National Infrastructure Plan	Scotland	7.4	43.2	69.8
	Wales	3.6	24.2	37.5
	Northern Ireland	2.5	14.5	23.4
Youth Contract	Scotland	8.1	6.9	6.9
	Wales	4.7	4.0	4.0
	Northern Ireland	10.3	8.7	7.5
Regional Growth Fund	Scotland	6.0	33.6	60.4
	Wales	3.5	19.4	34.8
	Northern Ireland	2.0	11.3	20.3

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which of the measures included in table 2.3 of his Autumn Statement will receive new funding announced in the Autumn Statement; and in which years. [87056]

Danny Alexander: All measures listed in table 2.3 of the Autumn Statement will receive new funding, in the years set out in the table.

Announcements on mobile network coverage, high performance computing, the National Graphene Institute and Growing Places had been made at party conferences. Housing measures were announced in the housing strategy. All other measures were new autumn statement announcements.

Regional Growth Fund

Owen Smith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how the additional funding for the Regional Growth Fund announced in the Autumn Statement is to be allocated. [86859]

Danny Alexander [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Autumn Statement 2011 increased the Regional Growth Fund by £1 billion, plus Barnett consequentials for the devolved Administrations. The fund will continue to allocate funding to projects which create jobs, secure private sector investment and support areas currently dependent on the public sector. There will be an additional focus on bids from the eight core cities.

Tax Credit

Rachel Reeves: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to his Autumn Statement, how many (a) individuals and (b) households will be affected by (i) the freezing of working tax credit and (ii) the removal of planned over-indexation of child tax credits. [87048]

Mr Gauke: There are estimated to be 4.5 million households affected in 2012-13 by these changes; around 2.3 million couples, and 2.2 million single adults.

Of the 4.5 million households, there are estimated to be 1.5 million households affected by the CTC change only, 2.8 million affected by both WTC and CTC changes, and 0.2 million affected by the WTC change only.

Taxation: Aviation

Maria Eagle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the level of aviation taxes in (a) the UK, (b) the EU and (c) G20 countries; [87481]

(2) if he will publish his analysis of the international competitiveness of UK air passenger duty that informed his response to the consultation on reform of air passenger duty. [87482]

Miss Chloe Smith: The Government monitor aviation taxes across a wide range of countries. The Government received over 500 responses to the consultation, including general analytical reports commissioned by stakeholders. Information on the aviation taxes of other EU member states and other G20 countries is published and freely available. Unlike many other countries, the UK does not apply VAT on flights and aviation fuel for commercial flights is not taxed.

VAT: Press

Helen Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what definition of (a) newspapers, (b) magazines and (c) books is used by HM Revenue and

Customs to determine whether items should be subject to the zero rate of VAT; [87180]

(2) what the estimated revenue from VAT would be if it were charged at (a) 5% and (b) 20% for newspapers and magazines. [87181]

Mr Gauke: There is no definition in VAT law of what are newspapers, magazines and books. HMRC therefore use the terms in their ordinary, everyday sense. The description of each term can be found in chapter 3 of HMRC Public Notice 701/10—"Zero-rating of books etc".

No estimate has been made of the revenue from value added tax if it were charged at 5% or 20% for newspapers and magazines.

An estimate of the cost of the zero-rating of books, newspapers and magazines is published in Table 1.5 "Main Tax Expenditures and Reliefs" on the HMRC website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-5.xls

However, this estimate does not account for any behavioural effects (the resulting fall in demand) that would result from changes to the rate of value added tax.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Electronic Tagging

Mr Hollobone: To ask the Attorney-General if the Crown Prosecution Service will ask magistrates to ensure that overnight curfew orders for repeat juvenile offenders are accompanied by electronic tagging orders. [87450]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service seeks electronic monitoring to reinforce a curfew condition where it is necessary to prevent the youth from committing further offences while on bail or on remand to local authority accommodation; and, the statutory criteria for its use are satisfied. The court cannot order electronic monitoring unless the youth offending team have informed the court that electronic monitoring is suitable for the youth.

Human Trafficking

Mr Bone: To ask the Attorney-General what guidance he provides to the Crown Prosecution Service on people who might be involved in illegal activities but are also the victims of human trafficking. [87623]

The Solicitor-General: The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) issued revised policy guidance to prosecutors on 1 June 2011 on the prosecution of defendants (children and adults) charged with offences who might be trafficked victims. The policy advises prosecutors that they should be alert to the possibility that the suspect may be a victim of trafficking in certain types of cases and advises on the steps they should take when dealing with them.

The policy has changed from a test that a suspect is a credible trafficked victim to one where there is a credible suspicion that a suspect might have been trafficked. Where young people are involved and where there is a credible suspicion that a child or youth might have been trafficked and exploited through criminal activity, that may provide a defence of duress. Evidence of exploitation overrides the need to prove the means.

This guidance has been published more widely (to the Law Society and through presentations/seminars with barristers) to ensure a wider understanding of this issue.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will estimate (a) the carbon dioxide emissions likely to be generated by the number of additional UK residents projected by 2033 and (b) renewable energy capacity needed to abate and maintain current total emissions. [86820]

Gregory Barker: The latest official Government projections by DECC for greenhouse gas emissions including carbon dioxide were published in October 2011:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/about/ec_social_res/analytic_projs/en_emis_projs/en_emis_projs.aspx

These provide projections for the period up to 2030. Projections beyond 2030 are not available. The projections assume that the UK population increases by 6.8 million between 2010 and 2030. This is the ONS principal 2008-based population projection, low migration variant. The 2008-based population projections were the latest available at the time of publication. Projections under the latest ONS 2010-based population projections are not available.

Over the period 2010 to 2030 emissions are projected to fall by 168 $MtCO_2e$ from 586 $MtCO_2e$ to 418 $MtCO_2e$. Carbon dioxide emissions are projected to fall by 146 $MtCO_2$ from 496 $MtCO_2$ to 350 $MtCO_2$ over the same period. The projected fall is attributable to a range of factors including policy impacts on energy efficiency and increased use of renewable energy.

Government have not looked at the amount of renewable electricity required to maintain current total emissions given the changes in population. However, under the central scenario assumptions in the emissions projections, renewable energy demand is projected to increase by 23 Mega tonnes of oil equivalent (Mtoe) from 8.2 Mtoe to 30.9 Mtoe between 2010 and 2030. Renewables electricity generation capacity is projected to increase by 33 GW from 9 GW to 42 GW over the same period. This increase, together with other policy initiatives, is projected to be sufficient to maintain emissions. As explained in the report, the generation and capacity mix is dependent on a number of assumptions. Other assumptions would lead to projected electricity demand being met by different capacity and generation mixes. Modelling developed for the Carbon Plan published in December 2012 shows that by 2030 total renewable capacity could be between 35 and 50 GW under an assumed population growth of 6.8 million. The Carbon Plan can be found at:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/tackling/carbon_plan/carbon_plan.aspx

Special Advisers: Electronic Equipment

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his special advisers have been provided with (a) a mobile phone, (b) a laptop computer, (c) an iPad or other electronic tablet device, (d) use of a Government car and (e) an expense account. [86625]

Gregory Barker: Special advisers have been provided with a BlackBerry and a departmental laptop. They have not been provided with an iPad or other electronic tablet device, the use of a Government car, or with an expense account.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the annual staffing costs are of (a) the private office of the Minister of State for Climate Change, (b) the private office of the Minister of State for Energy and (c) his private office. [86610]

Gregory Barker: Staffing and salary information has been published and details can be found at:

http://reference.data.gov.uk/gov-structure/organogram/?dept=decc&post=1

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 567W, on departmental manpower, what the (a) job title and (b) salary range is of each additional member of staff employed by his Department in the period 31 May 2010 to 30 November 2011. [87177]

Gregory Barker: From 30 May 2010 to 30 November 2011 the numbers, grades and salary ranges of all civil servants, joining DECC, are shown in the following tables.

Grade	Number
Administrative officer	32.74
Executive officer	48.89
Higher executive officer	85
Fast Stream	64
Senior executive officer	54.96
Grade 7	117.07
Grade 6	48.97
SCS payband 1	17
SCS payband 2	8

The numbers above, which are shown as full-time equivalents (FTE), show all civil servants who have joined DECC either as fixed term appointments (including apprenticeships), permanent appointments, transfers from other Government Departments or loans from other Government Departments. This does not take account of staff who have left DECC in the same period.

The staff salary ranges are as follows:

London base salary ranges

Grade	Minimum	£ Maximum
AA	18,567	19,712
AO	21,250	22,646
EO	24,992	29,060
HEO	29,261	34,424
SEO	34,713	41,851
Grade 7	46,975	56,597
Grade 6	56,707	68,322

SCS base salary payscales

Grade	Minimum	£ Maximum
SCS Payband 1	58,200	117,800
SCS Payband 2	82,900	162,500

The job titles of staff are not held in central electronic files. To gather this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Pay

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 568W, on departmental pay, what the (a) job title and (b) salary range is of each member of staff employed by his Department who receives a salary of more than £65,000 per year. [87178]

Gregory Barker: Upon further examination, the number of civil servants employed by the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) as at 30 September 2011 and who receive a salary of more than £65,000 is as shown in the following table below and not as previously stated on 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 568W.

Number	Grade
Grade 6	16
SCS Payband 1 (Deputy Director)	45
SCS Payband 2 (Director)	21
SCS Payband 3 (Director General)	2
Permanent Secretary	1

The staff salary ranges are as follows:

London base salary ranges

Grade	Minimum	£ Maximum
Grade 6	56,707	68,322

National base salary ranges

SCS Payband 2	82,900	162,500
SCS Payband 3	101,500	208,100
Permanent Secretary	141,800	277,300

The job titles of staff are not held in central electronic files. To gather this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Responsibilities

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what diary engagements he undertook on the afternoon of 31 October 2011. [86861]

Gregory Barker [holding answer 15 December 2011]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 22 November 2011, Official Report, column 317W.

Energy Supply

Mr Arbuthnot: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what information his Department holds on the future ownership of (a) nuclear and (b) renewable energy power stations and facilities currently proposed or under construction; and if he will make a statement. [83549]

Charles Hendry: To date, three energy consortia have announced plans to build up to 16 gigawatts (GW) of new nuclear in the UK:

EDF intends to build four new EPR reactors (amounting to 6.4 GW) at Hinkley Point and Sizewell and have gained permission from the local authority to begin preliminary works at Hinkley Point;

Horizon Nuclear Power (a joint venture between RWE and E.ON) intends to build at least 6 GW of new nuclear capacity at Wylfa and Oldbury; and NuGeneration, a consortium of GDF SUEZ and Iberdrola has set out plans to build up to 3.6 GW of new nuclear capacity at Sellafield.

DECC collects information from local planning authorities and renewable energy developers on all renewable energy projects over 0.01 MW at each stage of the planning system, from proposed projects to operational sites. Monthly updates are available at:

https://restats.decc.gov.uk/cms/planning-database

This includes the name of the applicant or contractor, location, installed capacity and planning status.

The Energy Research Partnership, which is chaired by the Department's chief scientific adviser, David Mackay, is also undertaking work on a Nuclear Fission Technology Roadmap, setting out potential technology, skills and research path to 2050. We expect this work to report in February and to feed into a the ongoing Nuclear Technology Innovation Needs Assessment (TINA) being undertaken by DECC. We expect our TINA work to conclude in spring. Other TINAs are also under way for a range of low carbon energy technologies, including key renewable generation technologies.

In "Enabling the Transition to a Green Economy" (the green economy roadmap), published in August, the Government announced a new 'skills for a green economy' group of Sector Skills Councils and others to help businesses understand and address green skills needs.[1]

[1] The project report setting out the evidence underpinning the proposals (from BIS, DECC and DEFRA working together) is available at:

http://www.bis.gov.uk/assets/biscore/further-education-skills/docs/s/11-1315-skills-for-a-green-economy.pdf

Energy: Meters

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what account his Department's consultation on smart meters and methods of connecting them will take of the difficulties encountered in the provision of broadband to rural areas. [87158]

Charles Hendry: The purpose of the procurement processes for the data and communication services is to evaluate the technical capability and value for money of proposed solutions. For communication services this will include assessing the proposed coverage, efficacy and viability of different technologies across Great Britain, including any particular challenges posed by rural areas.

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps his Department is taking to assess (a) wireless, (b) cellular and (c) other options for the installation and subsequent operation of smart meters. [87159]

Charles Hendry: Our requirements for communication services to and from smart meters are technology neutral and we will assess the relative merits of the solutions that bidders propose through the procurement processes. We expect proposals based on a range of communications technologies and will evaluate the trade-offs between coverage, cost and scalability in order to determine the most advantageous overall solution.

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what plans he has to consult the Welsh Government on technology for the operation of smart meters. [87168]

Charles Hendry: The Government published a consultation in August 2011 on their proposals to establish the technical specifications for smart metering equipment that suppliers will install in consumer premises. They informed the Welsh Government and other key stakeholders about the publication to ensure that they had an opportunity to respond. The Government are currently considering the responses to this consultation and will publish the updated technical specifications in early March. They will then notify the European Commission of the specifications and associated licence conditions, in accordance with the requirements of the Technical Standards and Regulations Directive. There are no plans for further consultation on the technical specifications.

Energy: Prisons

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 570W, on energy: prisons, what estimate he has made of the number of jobs supported by Government energy efficiency schemes in (a) 2012, (b) 2013, (c) 2014 and (d) 2015; and which schemes will support those jobs. [87179]

Gregory Barker: As stated in my answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 570W, we estimate that Government programmes to promote energy efficiency in homes, businesses and the public sector will support 65,000 insulation sector jobs in 2015. This estimate relates specifically to the forthcoming Green Deal and Energy Company Obligation schemes. We have not made annualised estimates of energy efficiency sector jobs from 2012 to 2015.

Energy: Private Rented Housing

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what process his Department plans to follow to determine whether a landlord has carried out the maximum package of measures funded under the Green Deal or Energy Company Obligation for improving energy efficiency in housing under the provisions of the Energy Act 2011. [86976]

Gregory Barker: We expect the Energy Performance Certificate (EPC) will be a key inspection mechanism as it will outline which measures have been installed in the property using the Green Deal and if there are remaining measures which could benefit from Green Deal finance. Local authorities, as the enforcing body for the private rented sector regulations, will have access to this information through the EPC database.

The regulations, including details of the enforcement mechanism, will be subject to a public consultation.

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what measures he plans to put in place to protect tenants from eviction in cases where they request energy efficiency improvements. [86977]

Gregory Barker: The issue of retaliatory eviction in the context of the Green Deal was raised during the passage of the Energy Act. In response I established a working group to consider stakeholder concerns, and report to DECC and Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) Ministers with recommendations. The report is due to be submitted to myself and the Minister for Housing and Local Government before Christmas.

Environment Protection: Economic Growth

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his Department has made an estimate of the level of growth in the low carbon economy in each of the last 10 years. [85877]

Mr Prisk: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills has made no estimate of the level of growth in the low carbon economy in each of the last 10 years. However, independent studies commissioned by BIS and published by Innovas and K-Matrix estimate turnover in the Low Carbon Environmental Goods and Services sector for the financial years 2007/08, 2008/09 and 2009/10. The historic growth of turnover in the Low Carbon sub-sector over these years is as follows:

2007/08 to 2008/09—4.5%

2008/09 to 2009/10—4.3%

Environment Protection: Employment

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his Department's most recent estimate is of the number of people employed in the low carbon economy. [85878]

Mr Prisk: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills has made no recent estimate of the number of people employed in the low carbon economy. However, an independent report by K-Matrix, commissioned by BIS, estimates that employment in the Low Carbon Environmental Goods and Services sector was approximately 914,000 in 2009/10. Employment in the Low Carbon sub-sector was estimated to be approximately 449,000 in 2009/10.

Forests: Developing Countries

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what agreements were made at the UN Climate Change Conference in Durban on reducing emissions from (a) aviation and (b) deforestation and forest degradation. [87291]

Gregory Barker: The conference in Durban agreed to continue consideration of issues related to addressing emissions from international aviation and maritime transport. While we would have preferred a decision of substance, this decision does mean that we can continue to press for international aviation emissions to be addressed through the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The decisions taken in Durban on reducing emissions from deforestation and degradation (REDD+) move us in the right direction, but we would have liked to see faster progress. Specifically, the decisions resolved some important technical issues on reference levels against which we will measure progress on REDD+, and how countries will provide information on biodiversity and social safeguards. Both of these are essential building blocks towards a functioning REDD+ mechanism. Donor and forest countries also committed to stepping up efforts to address deforestation in the Congo Basin.

Fuel Poverty: Cancer

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if his Department will provide assistance to cancer patients in fuel poverty to enable them to identify the most appropriate tariff for their energy supplies. [87709]

Gregory Barker: Helping all consumers, including those suffering from cancer, to find the most appropriate tariff is a key component of the Check Switch and Insulate to Save campaign that my Government launched alongside the energy suppliers, Citizens Advice, Consumer Focus, Age UK and Which? Further information on the campaign can be found via

http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/N11/Newsroom/DG_199725

As announced at the consumer energy summit in October, we have reached a voluntary agreement under which energy suppliers will now provide their domestic customers with a "signpost" on bills to cheaper deals.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether the Energy Company Obligation will provide support for cancer patients who are in fuel poverty. [87710]

Gregory Barker: Eligibility for support through the Energy Company Obligation (ECO) is currently being consulted on.

Under our proposals, the ECO would provide support, such as heating and insulation measures, to low income and vulnerable households as part of Government's programme to tackle fuel poverty. This could include cancer patients provided they were in receipt of the qualifying means-tested benefits. Alongside the Green Deal, the ECO would also provide support to households in need of expensive measures, such as solid wall insulation. Government have not proposed any restrictions in eligibility for this element of ECO support.

G20

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what arrangements have been made for the meeting of the G20 energy ministers which the UK is hosting in 2012. [87086]

Charles Hendry: The UK will host the Clean Energy Ministerial (CEM) on 25 and 26 April 2012. Although the CEM brings together many of the G20 energy Ministers, it is a separate forum and not part of the G20.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change is working closely with the CEM Secretariat in the United States Department of Energy on the preparations for this two-day event that aims to secure practical progress on low carbon energy deployment by promoting international collaboration, and by bringing the public and private sectors together to share best practice.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the (a) location and (b) agenda is of the meeting of the G20 energy ministers in April 2012 which the UK is hosting; what other arrangements have been made for the meeting; and if he will make a statement. [87087]

Charles Hendry: The UK will host the Clean Energy Ministerial (CEM) on 25-26 April 2012. Although the CEM brings together many of the G20 Energy Ministers, it is a separate forum and not part of the G20. The CEM will be held at Lancaster House in London.

The Department of Energy and Climate Change is working closely with the CEM Secretariat in the United States Department of Energy to prepare the agenda for the CEM to secure practical progress on low carbon energy deployment through discussion, for example on public and private finance for clean energy, on energy efficiency, and by building on the 11 international collaborations announced last year.

The agenda is due to be finalised at the preparatory meeting in Delhi on 2 and 3 February.

Green Deal Scheme

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether energy efficiency aggregators delivering the Green Deal will be eligible to receive support through the proposed capacity mechanism incentive for demand reduction measures as part of the Electricity Market Reform programme. [87292]

Gregory Barker: In the Electricity Market Reform White Paper "Planning our electric future: a White Paper for secure, affordable and low-carbon electricity"[1], DECC committed to assessing whether further steps are needed to improve the support and incentives for efficient use of electricity.

This assessment will look at what impact current policies have on electricity demand and whether there is a need for further measures to incentivise demand reduction—either within the Electricity Market Reform programme or elsewhere. This work will include a consideration of how any new measures would interact with existing policies such as the Green Deal.

In addition, in the Electricity Market Reform Technical Update, 'Planning our electric future: technical update'[2], DECC committed to ensuring that flexible, verifiable demand side response can participate in a capacity mechanism on a fair and equivalent basis to generation.

[2] http://www.decc.gov.uk/assets/decc/11/meeting-energy-demand/energy-markets/3884-planning-electric-future-technical-update.pdf

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many companies have submitted a written expression of interest in becoming a Green Deal provider to his Department since the scheme was announced. [87407]

Gregory Barker: The Government have not requested expressions of interest from potential Green Deal providers. However Ministers and officials have frequent conversations and meetings with companies who are interested in entering the market to ensure they are fully informed of the requirements for being a provider and also to ensure that any concerns that they have are fed into policy development as appropriate.

Ministerial Meetings

Caroline Flint: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) for what reasons his Department has not published a quarterly list of ministerial meetings with external organisations for (a) April to June and (b) July to September 2011; [86528]

(2) when his Department expects to publish its quarterly list of ministerial meetings with external organisations for (a) April to June and (b) July to September 2011. [86529]

Gregory Barker: The ministerial meetings with external organisations for April to June 2011 have been published and details can be found at:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/accesstoinform/registers/registers.aspx

The list for July to September is being compiled and will be published in due course.

Natural Gas: Prices

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent comparative assessment he has made of the cost of domestic gas in the US and the UK; and if he will make a statement. [87510]

Charles Hendry: In 2010, the average cost of domestic gas (including taxes) in the UK was 4.15 pence per kWh, compared to 2.39 pence per kWh in the USA. Excluding taxes, the average cost of gas in 2010 was 3.95 pence per kWh in the UK and 2.28 pence per kWh in the USA.

One of the main reasons for the retail price differential is the higher wholesale price of gas in the UK compared to the US. The US has experienced substantial growth in gas production in recent years, primarily driven by exploitation of unconventional gas and therefore has little need for significant imports. Furthermore, a lack of export capacity means that the US is not currently well placed to sell gas to other markets. Conversely, geographical proximity and physical linkages (via pipelines) mean the UK is connected to European gas markets and the UK wholesale price is influenced by European wholesale prices.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

House of Commons Chamber

Mr Bone: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many times he has attended the Chamber of the House since May 2010. [87622]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I spend as much time as necessary to carry out in full my official duties in Parliament.

WOMEN AND EQUALITIES

Departmental Public Expenditure

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister for Women and Equalities whether she receives any external funding for (a) her Ministerial office and (b) her advisers; and what the (i) source and (ii) amount is of any such funding. [77591]

Lynne Featherstone: As of 1 April 2011, the Government Equalities Office has been part of the Home Office and is no longer a separate Government Department. The information requested will be provided by the Minister for Immigration in response to your question to the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

TRANSPORT

Biofuels

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many acres of agricultural land were used to supply biofuel for transport in the UK in each of the last 10 years; and how many tonnes of biofuel were produced on that land in each of those years. [87131]

Norman Baker: Estimates of land usage for biofuels are available from the introduction of the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) in 2008.

This information is available in the RTFO administrator's reports to Parliament for 2008-09 and 2009-10 can be found online at http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/other/9780108508868/9780108508868.pdf

and

Article 22 of the Renewable Energy Directive requires all member states to report biennially on changes in land use associated with increased use of biomass from renewable sources. The first of these reports is due to be submitted to the Commission on 31 December 2011 and will be published in due course.

Bus Services: Finance

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate her Department has made of the annual number of additional car journeys to take place attributable to (a) the end of concessionary coach travel funding and (b) reductions in funding from the Bus Service Operators Grant. [86850]

Norman Baker [holding answer 15 December 2011]: A regulatory impact assessment on the ending of the concessionary coach scheme is available on the DFT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/publications/bus-service-operators-grant/

The Department for Transport has not estimated the number of additional car journeys which will take place following the reduction of Bus Service Operators Grant by 20% from April 2012.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport over what time frame she plans to allocate funding for the Better Bus Area Fund. [87493]

Norman Baker: The deadline for local authorities to submit bids for the Better Bus Area Fund is 24 February 2012. Award letters to successful authorities will be issued before the end of March 2012.

Ministerial Domestic Visits

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions she visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [80844]

Norman Baker: The previous Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr Hammond), made one visit to Wales in an official capacity. He made no visits to Scotland or Northern Ireland over the specified time scale.

The current Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening), has not made any visits to Scotland, Wales or Northern Ireland.

I have made one visit to Scotland in the last 12 months, while the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport, the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning), has made two visits to Scotland, three visits to Wales and one visit to Northern Ireland in the last 12 months.

Official Photographs

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to answer question 82566, on official photographs, tabled on 21 November 2011 for reply on 23 November 2011. [87574]

Norman Baker: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 15 December 2011, Official Report, column 844W.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Manpower

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff are employed in each regional office of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. [87411]

Mike Penning: The following table provides the number of staff that are employed in each regional office.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: North-east England

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely effects of proposals to close Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency regional enforcement offices on levels of unemployment in (a) the north-east and (b) Teesside. [87413]

Mike Penning: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) employs 48 staff in its Newcastle-upon-Tyne office, 22 in the Stockton office and 16 in Beverley. If these offices close as a result of the consultation on transforming the DVLA's services, all 86 jobs in this area could be at risk. Consultation with potentially affected staff has already begun and will include ways of avoiding or reducing redundancies as well as how to mitigate the consequences of any redundancies.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Scotland

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what services are delivered by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency regional offices in Scotland. [87025]

Mike Penning: The services delivered by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's local offices, including those in Scotland, comprise vehicle registration and licensing, tax disc distribution to motor dealers, trade licensing, vehicle inspections, personalised registrations, enforcement activity and driver services.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport at how many locations in Scotland the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency shares office accommodation with other Government agencies. [87026]

Mike Penning: Three of the five local offices located in Scotland share office accommodation with other Government agencies. These are:

Aberdeen with the DWP;

Dundee with the HMRC (Scotland); and Inverness with the Scottish Executive.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether any of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency offices in Scotland proposed for closure was funded through the private finance initiative. [87027]

Mike Penning: Property and facilities management at all five local offices located in Scotland is provided through a private finance initiative contract.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the staff (a) turnover and (b) absentee rate was at each Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency office in Scotland in each of the last five years. [87028]

Mike Penning: The following table provides the turnover and absentee rate for each of the five local offices in Scotland for the last five years:

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the running costs were of each Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) office in Scotland in each of the last five years; and what the fixed accommodation cash running costs of DVLA office buildings in Scotland were over each of the last five years. [87029]

Mike Penning: The information requested is not readily available and would incur disproportionate costs to gather. The following tables show the running costs for the five local offices situated in Scotland for the last two years.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average length of service is of staff currently employed by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency at each of its locations in Scotland. [87030]

Mike Penning: The information requested is listed as follows.

Aberdeen—The average service length of staff is 13 years and 7 months.

Dundee—The average service length of staff is 20 years and 7 months.

Edinburgh—The average service length of staff is 13 years and 7 months.

Glasgow—The average service length of staff is 10 years and 8 months.

Inverness—The average service length of staff is 9 years and 1 month.

Glasgow Crec—The average service length of staff is 11 years and 7 months.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with which estate partners the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency holds contracts relating to accommodation and facilities management for its regional offices in Scotland. [87031]

Mike Penning: All five local offices in Scotland are included in the private finance initiative contract DVLA has with Telereal Trillium.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) has to transfer its delivery of services from Scotland to other parts of the UK; at what locations offices are being retained by the DVLA in Scotland; and what functions these offices will fulfil. [87032]

Mike Penning: The public consultation exercise on the way DVLA delivers its services, could result in all the services offered by local offices being centralised at Swansea and delivered electronically via phone, internet or through one or more intermediaries. This could mean that there would be no Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency local office remaining in Scotland beyond 2013.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on refitting, repairs and general maintenance of each Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency regional office in Scotland proposed for vacation or closure in each of the last five years. [87033]

Mike Penning: The information requested on repair and general maintenance costs is not readily available and would incur disproportionate costs to gather. The following table shows the cost of refitting the local offices in Scotland during the last five years. All this work took place during 2008-09.

2008-09	Refit (£)
Aberdeen	0
Dundee	481,431
Edinburgh	495,069
Glasgow	62,178

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of her Department's liability for redundancy payments consequent upon the planned closure of each Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency office in Scotland. [87034]

Mike Penning: We have recently launched a consultation on a programme of work which will transform the way that the DVLA delivers its services to customers. This will be achieved by centralising services and providing much more choice and flexibility around how and when motorists deal with the DVLA. The proposals could deliver significant efficiencies with an estimated £28 million year on year savings.

However, no decisions about local office closure have yet been made.

The Department's potential liability for redundancy payments would be estimated to be in the region of £2.3 million for the local offices located in Scotland.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency offices in Scotland identified for vacation following the announcement of the rationalisation programme are (a) owned or (b) leased; what estimate her Department has made of the costs of relinquishing leases; and what estimate it has made of the cost of vacating those offices. [87035]

Mike Penning: No decisions about property vacation have yet been made.

All five local office properties in Scotland are leased. It is not expected that any costs would be incurred if the leases for these five local offices were relinquished.

The estimated dilapidation costs for vacating the offices would be:

Aberdeen	31,000
Dundee	49,000
Edinburgh	111,000
Glasgow	225,000
Inverness	21,000

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the possible effects of the proposed closure of Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency offices in Scotland on the time taken to issue licences. [87036]

Mike Penning: There would be no degradation to the service offered. Customers would still be able to license online or by telephone. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency is also proposing to increase the range and number of intermediaries that could offer these kinds of services.

Under the proposal customers in Scotland would be issued licences within the same timescale as the rest of Great Britain.

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Scotland on the proposed closure of Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency offices in Scotland. [87037]

Mike Penning: The Secretary of State for Transport meets regularly with her ministerial colleagues but there has been no specific discussion on the proposed closure of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's offices. As part of the public consultation I wrote to the Secretary of State for Scotland on 13 December.

Driving Tests

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether there will be any increase in the cost to candidates to sit the car and motorcycle theory tests as a result of the decision by the Driving Standards Agency to change the questions in the test. [87384]

Mike Penning: The Driving Standards Agency has no plans to increase theory test fees as a result of changing the questions in the test.

Driving Under Influence: Costs

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate her Department has made of the average cost to the public purse of a single drink-drive (a) offence and conviction, (b) offence and conviction involving a serious injury and (c) offence and conviction involving a death. [87325]

Mike Penning: My Department is currently finalising with the Ministry of Justice and Home Office the costs to the judicial system and the police used in its assessments of legal changes related to drink-drive offences and convictions.

The average values of preventing road casualties in 2009 were £1,585,510 for a fatality, £178,160 for a serious injury and £13,740 for a slight (ie lesser) injury. These values include costs related to the emergency services and the health service, as well as wider economic and social costs.

Driving Under Influence: Rehabilitation

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average cost to the public purse was of participation by an individual on a drink-drive rehabilitation course in the latest period for which figures are available; and what estimate she has made of the likely savings to the public purse which could be made if proposals that there will be more than one provider of drink-drive rehabilitation courses in each region were implemented. [86734]

Mike Penning: The cost to the Driving Standards Agency of administering and quality assuring the Drink Driver Rehabilitation Scheme (DDRS) in 2009-10 was £140,000. 29,400 offenders completed a DDRS course resulting in an average cost per offender of £4.76.

The current Driving Standards Agency consultation on revised arrangements for DDRS includes the adoption of the 'user pays' principle. This will transfer the cost of accrediting and quality assuring DDRS from the public purse to the offender. Whether there are multiple or single course providers in any area will have no effect on the sum transferred.

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the reoffending rates were for offenders who undertook a drink-drive rehabilitation course in a region with (a) a single provider and (b) multiple providers of such courses in the latest period for which figures are available. [86735]

Mike Penning: No data have been gathered that would allow us to identify whether there is a difference in the reoffending rates between those areas with a single rehabilitation course provider and those with multiple course providers.

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the number of deaths that have been prevented by the introduction of the drink-drive rehabilitation scheme. [86779]

Mike Penning: It is not possible to specifically attribute any part of the reduction in death rates on the road to the introduction of the drink-drive rehabilitation scheme.

We are satisfied that drink-drive rehabilitation schemes are effective. Transport Research Laboratory research in 2004 reported that offenders who had not attended a course were 2.6 times more likely to have been convicted of a subsequent drink-drive offence when compared with those who had attended a course.

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely effects on reoffending rates of her proposed changes to the drink-drive rehabilitation scheme. [87323]

Mike Penning: The Driving Standards Agency consultation "New approval arrangements for Drink Drive Rehabilitation courses" was issued on 9 November 2011. One of the aims of the proposals it contains is that they will create better quality courses that will encourage more offenders to take advantage of the training in order to reduce the likelihood of them reoffending.

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely factors an offender would take into account in choosing between providers in an area with more than one provider of drink-drive rehabilitation courses. [87324]

Mike Penning: Where an offender has a choice between the offerings of two or more drink-drive rehabilitation course providers, it is assumed that the key factors that will determine which course is chosen will be convenience (in terms of the location of the course and its timing) and the overall cost of attending the course (the course fee, travel costs and any loss of income or leisure time incurred by the offender).

All approved courses are required to offer provision to a specified standard and will be monitored against that standard.

Drug Screening Technology: Police Stations

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to her Department's Structural Reform Monthly Implementation Plan, what progress has been made on work with the Home Office to authorise the use of drug screening technology in police stations. [86584]

Mike Penning [holding answer 13 December 2011]: As indicated in the November monthly implementation report about the DFT Structural Reform Plan, authorisation of drug screening technology depends on the type approval of individual devices by the Secretary of State for the Home Department. This is given only following operational and laboratory tests of the devices against the type approval specification. Operational tests have been completed.

In the light of the closure next year of the Forensic Science Service (FSS), new arrangements are required for the laboratory tests and the Home Office is putting these into place as quickly as technically possible.

East Midlands Airport: Security

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with management of East Midlands Airport on the swabbing of religious headgear of (a) passengers and (b) airport workers. [87200]

Mrs Villiers: The decision on whether to participate in the trial of alternative screening processes for religious headgear is one for individual airports. DFT officials informed East Midlands airport of the trial and had several discussions with them ahead of the implementation of the process there earlier this year.

East Midlands airport is now participating in the trial in passenger search lanes. The airport has kept DFT officials updated.

Electric Vehicles

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress her Department has made on increasing the number of electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles. [86851]

Norman Baker [holding answer 15 December 2011]: We have put in place a range of policies to kick start the early market for low emission vehicles in the UK, with support for consumer incentives, recharging infrastructure, and research, development and demonstration projects.

As of 30 September 2011, 786 claims have been made through the Plug-In Car Grant scheme (PiCG), with the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders (SMMT) data showing that 910 cars eligible for the PiCG were registered over the same period.

Relative to the number of electric cars registered in previous years, the number of cars bought since January this year represents a significant step change. We expect uptake to increase further as more vehicles come to market over the next year.

London Airports

Jim Fitzpatrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what her policy is on new runways at (a) Stansted and (b) Gatwick airport. [86553]

Mrs Villiers: The coalition Government have stated that they would not give permission for additional runways at Gatwick and Stansted.

We want to see a successful aviation sector which facilitates economic growth and addresses its environmental impacts. We will issue a Sustainable Framework for UK Aviation for public consultation in spring 2012.

Official Cars

Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) make, (b) model and (c) place of manufacture is of each car (i) loaned or (ii) purchased by the Government Car and Despatch Agency since May 2010. [84335]

Mike Penning: The first table shows those cars that the Government Car and Despatch Agency has purchased, leased or been loaned since May 2010 that remain in the fleet. The second table shows those that where loaned since May 2010 that have since been returned.

Railway Stations: Rotherham

Mr MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the level of (a) delays and (b) additional costs in the refurbishment of Rotherham Central railway station; and if she will make a statement. [85358]

Norman Baker: South Yorkshire Passenger Transport Executive (SYPTE) is responsible for the delivery of the refurbishment of Rotherham Central railway station. This includes the management of delay and cost overruns. The Department has funded Access for All enhancements which will be delivered by SYPTE, as part of this scheme.

Rescue Services: Wales

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the change has been in levels of staffing costs for the Coastguard Service in Wales since May 2010. [86302]

Mike Penning: The staffing costs for coastguards employed at Maritime Rescue Co-ordination Centres in Wales for May 2010 compared with October 2011 are set out as follows:

	Salary costs (£)
May 2010	174,718.03
October 2011	168,081.24

Road Traffic Control

Mr Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent reports her Department has published under section 2 of the Road Traffic Reduction (National Targets) Act 1998; and if she will make a statement. [86402]

Norman Baker: The Department for Transport has not published any recent reports under section 2 of the Road Traffic Reduction (National Targets) Act 1998.

While the Secretary of State for Transport is not obliged to publish further reports, the Department does of course believe that reducing the environmental, social and economic adverse impacts of road traffic is important. Indeed, reducing these impacts, across the entire transport spectrum, is core to the Department's business.

The Government's first report under the Act can be found at http://www2.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/tpm/congestionresearch/tacklingcongestionandpolluti4028.html

Shipping: Southampton

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions she has had with representatives of the Port of Southampton on (a) Maersk Triple E Class and (b) other larger container ships. [87171]

Mike Penning: No such discussions have yet taken place. I am, however, aware, and have seen evidence of when I visited the port, of Southampton's desire to enhance its capacity to accommodate such vessels.

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of deep-sea container operations in Southampton. [87172]

Mike Penning: The Department for Transport fully appreciates the importance of Southampton as the second-largest deep-sea container port in the United Kingdom, it having handled some 1.6 million teu (twenty-foot equivalent units) in 2010. Its expansion plans are specifically noted in the National Policy Statement for Ports.

Teesside Airport

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she plans to take to safeguard the future of Teesside airport following the decision by Peel Airports to put it up for sale. [87412]

Mrs Villiers: The Government recognise the vital contribution regional airports make to local economies, and fully appreciate that the announcement of Durham

Tees Valley airport's sale will cause concern for the people and business community in the north-east region. Any decision to sell the airport is a commercial matter for its joint owners.

Vehicle and Operator Services Agency: Finance

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 22 November 2011, Official Report, columns 262-64W, on Vehicle and Operator Services Agency, what contribution her Department plans to make to the budget of the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each year of the current spending review period; and how much her Department contributed in each of the last five years. [86852]

Mike Penning [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The contribution made by the Department for Transport to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each year of the last five years and planned for the current spending review period is set out in the following table.

	Contribution (£ million)

CABINET OFFICE

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what steps his Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies; and if he will make a statement. [85668]

Mr Maude: Across the public sector, commissioners need to be innovative, entrepreneurial and capable of meeting complex needs while being active managers of diverse markets consisting of providers such as mutuals, voluntary and community organisations and SMEs.

By tackling protracted and overly bureaucratic processes and building in more strategic dialogue with suppliers (from all sectors) as well as users of public services early on, unnecessary and costly waste can be reduced in our public services, value for taxpayers' money can be delivered, and innovative bids can be attracted from a range of organisations that deliver outcomes and meets with user need.

We also need to drive up commissioner skills in terms of outcomes-based commissioning, innovative new models of delivery and payment by result. We are currently scoping a Commissioning Academy to up skill professionals, enabling them to deliver the vision outlined in the Open Public Services White Paper of a diverse provider market.

This will maximise social value, something which the Government support through the Public Services (Social Value) Bill currently going through Parliament.

Risk Assessment

Mr Thomas: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what risk registers are kept by the Corporate Services Group of his Department; and if he will make a statement. [86883]

Mr Maude: Management Units within the Corporate Services Group of the Cabinet Office are required to maintain risk registers. In addition, there is a strategic risk register which is reviewed by the board.

Our "Top 5" Major Projects can be found on our quarterly Data summary.

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what estimate has been made of the number of unregistered voters in each (a) region and (b) parliamentary constituency. [87438]

Mr Hurd: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Stephen Penneck, dated December 2011:

As Director General for the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what the number of unregistered voters is by (a) region and (b) parliamentary constituency (87438).

ONS does not have the data required to answer your question. Data are collected on the number of people who are registered to vote in the UK, but no data are collected on the number of people who are eligible to vote but who choose not to register.

The ONS population estimates are of the resident population and will include some people who are not eligible to vote. Therefore the number of unregistered electors cannot be calculated based on the difference between the population estimate and the number of registered electors.

Japan Tobacco International: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr Hain: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in his Department have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87607]

Mr Maude: Hospitality received by Ministers and special advisers is published on a quarterly basis on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/ministerial-gifts-hospitality-travel-and-meetings-external-organisations

Plutonium: Major Projects Authority

Paul Flynn: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office which staff of the Major Projects Authority have expertise in the management of plutonium; and from which Government Departments are such staff seconded. [86748]

Mr Maude: There are no staff in the Major Projects Authority who have expertise in the management of plutonium. The MPA does, however, manage a database of accredited assurance reviewers who sit on review teams to provide independent assurance on the Government's major projects. These reviewers are experts in their field and are a mixture of external consultants and in-house civil servants from across Government. Of the active civil servant pool there are c. 45 individuals with nuclear sector experience from a range of Government Departments.

Social Enterprises

Hazel Blears: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) what his Department's definition of social enterprise is as regards the departmental responsibilities of the Minister for Civil Society; [87625]

(2) whether he has any plans to introduce a statutory definition of a social enterprise. [87624]

Mr Hurd: The Government use the broad definition of social enterprise that was agreed by the sector, which is that:

"Social enterprises are businesses with primarily social objectives whose surpluses are principally reinvested for that purpose in the business or community, rather than being driven by the need to maximise profit for shareholders and owners."

Social enterprises can take a wide range of legal forms, including the Community Interest Company (CIC) form, which was custom made for social enterprises and is regulated by the CIC Regulator. As the definition of social enterprise is inclusive, and there exist legal forms specifically for social enterprises, there are no plans to introduce a statutory definition of social enterprise.

Third Sector: North-west England

Hazel Blears: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many charity or voluntary sector groups in the North West received funding from the Government in (a) 2008, (b) 2009, (c) 2010 and (d) 2011. [87748]

Mr Hurd: The Cabinet Office does not hold information on Government funding to charity or voluntary sector groups by region.

Information on central Government spend to the voluntary and charitable sector (including both grants and contracts) is available through Departmental Business Plans, published at:

http://transparency.number10.gov.uk/transparency/srp/

Latest figures for 2009-10 have been published by 11 central Government Departments to date, totalling £1.27 billion.

Voluntary Work: Older People

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what plans he has to facilitate volunteering for older people; and if he will make a statement. [87235]

Mr Hurd: Promoting social action among all age groups, including volunteering, is a key part of the Government's vision for the big society. The Giving White Paper, published in May 2011, outlined a number of measures that will support the creation of a culture of giving both time and money. These include the following measures which relate to volunteering and all of which are open to older people:

Over £40 million of funding over the next two years to support volunteering, giving and volunteering infrastructure by way of the Social Action Fund, Challenge Prizes and Local Infrastructure Fund. These funds have no upper age restrictions.

£1 million to support Youthnet which runs the volunteering website www.do-it.org.uk

Volunteering opportunities here do not have an upper age limit.

£400,000 support from Government and NESTA to trial 'Spice' in England which gives volunteers 'thank yous' like vouchers or discounts with local businesses when they do good things for the community. There is no upper age restriction on this trial.

Through the Social Action Fund, which launched in October 2010, we are seeking to fund programmes that encourage professionals who have retired, or are on the point of retirement, to use their experience and skills for community/public benefit.

Finally as part of the national work programme for the European Year of Volunteering 2011 the Office for Civil Society provided Age UK with a grant to promote the role of volunteering in enabling active aging. Age UK have sought to explore the barriers to and benefits of older people volunteering. As a result they will publish guidance for the voluntary and community sector on how to enable older to people to take part in volunteering and benefit from it. This has been designed to lead into the European Year of Active Aging and Solidarity Between Generations in 2012.

Youth Services: Closures

Mr Thomas: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many letters he received on the closure of charity-run youth centres in England in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [86868]

Mr Hurd: I receive numerous correspondences that cover a wide range of topics. The information sought is not available in the format requested and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Procurement

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years. [84230]

Robert Neill: The Department has outsourced the following services over the last five years:

Service	Duration
Total Facilities Management contract in Eland House	29 April 2004 to 28 April 2013
Managed IT Services	9 February 2006 to 8 December 2013
Payroll	6 August 2007 to 31 March 2013

Various project management outsourcing was conducted in each of the last five years mostly in the areas of minor construction and major fire related projects.

Fire Services

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what lessons have been learned from Exercise Watermark in respect of the fire and rescue service. [87214]

Robert Neill: A lessons learned report in respect of all organisations involved in Exercise Watermark, including the fire and rescue service, was published on 31 October 2011. It can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/publications/2011/10/31/pb13673-exercise-watermark/

The Government intend to issue a formal response to the report by the end of March which will include consideration of recommendations in relation to the fire and rescue service. At the local level Local Resilience Forums will be considering how to take forward the report's recommendations and the fire and rescue service will be involved in these discussions.

Fire Services: Finance

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether it is his policy to change the formula for allocating spending reductions to fire and rescue authorities in years three and four of the spending settlement to ensure that reductions are allocated on an equitable basis. [87215]

Robert Neill: I refer the right hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made earlier today by the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government setting out the Government's response to the recent Local Government Resource Review consultation. I can assure you that I will seek to ensure that any new system is equitable.

I also refer the right hon. Member to my letter of 6 December 2010 to the hon. Member for Derby North (Chris Williamson), a copy of which is available in the Library of the House, which outlines how fire and rescue authorities can make sensible savings without impacting on the quality and breadth of services offered to their communities.

Homelessness: North-east England

Grahame M. Morris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps his Department has taken to measure the levels of (a) homelessness and (b) people living in temporary accommodation in the North East; and if he will make a statement. [85564]

Grant Shapps: Statutory homelessness statistics which includes households living in temporary accommodation, are published quarterly and can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationshomelessness/

We have acted decisively to introduce a more accurate assessment of rough sleeping. The flaws in the last Administration's rough sleeping counts, were widely recognised to systematically under-estimate the number of people sleeping on the streets.

The latest rough sleeping statistics for autumn 2010 are also available on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/statistics/xls/1845849.xls

and indicates that the North East region had the lowest number of 49.

Local authorities in this part of England have been allocated homelessness grant funding of £2,732,840 for 2011-12. This is an increase from their homelessness grant allocation of £2,140,600 in 2010-11.

I recently announced a new £42.5 million Homelessness Change Programme which will provide in excess of 1,500 new and improved bed spaces to improve hostels for rough sleepers and ensure that those coming off the streets get the support they need. Local authorities in this part of England have been allocated £2,239,991 to deliver this important work.

Housing

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to balance an increase in supply of new housing with stabilisation of demand to enable the market to clear. [87518]

Grant Shapps: The Government recognise the importance of getting the housing market moving again. We have recently published 'Laying the Foundations: A Housing Strategy for England', which sets out our housing policies to tackle the particular problems currently being faced:

Lenders are not lending enough—with high deposit requirements excluding young people and families from home ownership. Hence, we are promoting schemes such as Firstbuy, extending the right to buy and supporting a new and innovative new build indemnity scheme.

Builders are not building—without consumers ready to buy, and without enough land for development or access to finance. Hence, we are promoting policies such as the £400 million Getting Britain Building investment fund, establishing a new £500 million Growing Places Fund which will support infrastructure for housing and economic growth and freeing up public sector land with capacity to deliver up to 100,000 new homes.

These demand and supply measures aim to get the housing market—and in particular new house building—moving again. This is vital for our economic growth—but more importantly, it is essential to the hopes and plans of young people, families and older households across the country.

Land Use: Statistics

Roberta Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he has plans to change the frequency of publication of Land Use Change Statistics. [87673]

Robert Neill: The Government have no plans to change the frequency of publication of Land Use Change Statistics, which will continue as an annual statistical release.

Roberta Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what his policy is on including statistics on development of best and most versatile land in the Land Use Change Statistics. [87674]

Robert Neill: The Department is considering the inclusion of statistics on development of best and most versatile land in future releases of the Land Use Change Statistics. Statistics on the development of such land have previously appeared in the State of the Countryside report published by the Commission for Rural Communities in 2010.

Local Government Services

Rehman Chishti: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to allow local authorities to trade in non-statutory services. [87402]

Robert Neill: Since 1970, local authorities have been able to trade with many other public bodies for the provision of various goods and services. The Local Government Act 2003 gave local authorities the power to trade commercially in function-related activities through a company, which has enabled trading by local authorities with private sector bodies. That Act also gave local authorities powers to charge for provision of discretionary services, that is those services that an authority has the power but not a duty to provide, on a cost recovery basis.

With regard to charging and trading, the exercise of the new general power of competence in the Localism Act 2011 replicates the 2003 Act.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answers of 30 March 2010, Official Report, column 1137W, and 9 February 2010, Official Report, column 882W, on mortgages: Government assistance, how many households received financial support under the last Administration's Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme; and how much was paid from the public purse in support to property owners under the scheme during the period of its operation. [83553]

Grant Shapps: The two year Homeowners Mortgage Support scheme, introduced by the last Government, closed to new registrations in April 2011 with 62 households registered. To date, no payments have been made and no expenditure undertaken in relation to the Government guarantee.

Public Expenditure: Liverpool

Steve Rotheram: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the effect of reductions in his Department's budget on (a) housing projects and (b) local government services in Liverpool in 2014-15. [86956]

Grant Shapps: The last Administration left the biggest budget deficit in our peacetime history—with the state forecast to borrow £146 billion a year in 2010-11, or £400 million being borrowed every single day. This was unsustainable. The coalition Government have taken steps to tackle this deficit, restoring market confidence. These measures will help eliminate the structural current deficit over the coming years. This will help keep interest rates down for home owners, restore economic stability and reduce the amount of taxpayers' money that would otherwise be spent on debt interest.

Within the agreed public spending envelope, we have taken steps to support house building, given the important contribution it makes to both economic growth and social mobility. This has included using departmental unallocated funding to support housing (e.g. the Growing Places Fund).

We have also designed our housing policies to tackle the particular problems currently being faced in the housing market:

Lenders are not lending enough—with high deposit requirements excluding young people and families from home ownership. Hence, we are promoting schemes such as Firstbuy, extending the right to buy and supporting a new and innovative new build indemnity scheme.

Builders are not building—without consumers ready to buy, and without enough land for development or access to finance. Hence, we are promoting policies such as the Getting Britain Building investment fund and the Build Now, Pay Later programme for public sector land.

Liverpool, in common with other parts of the country, has benefited from the Government's decisions to:

secure £6.5 billion investment for Supporting People—which equates to an average annual reduction over the four years of the spending review of less than 1% in cash terms; increase spending on disabled facilities grant over the spending review period, from £169 million in 2010-11 to £180 million in 2011-12, rising to £185 million in 2014-15;

invest £400 million in homelessness prevention over the next four years. Liverpool was allocated homelessness grant funding of £600,000 for 2011-12. This is an increase from their homelessness grant allocation of £341,050 in 2010-11; invest £4.5 billion in new affordable housing, which is expected to deliver up to 170,000 affordable homes over the spending review period. Our new affordable rent model allows providers to lever more in private investment so we will be able to deliver more homes for every pound of subsidy from the taxpayer;

invest £2.1 billion on Decent Homes to improve the condition of existing social housing; get formula grant to where it is needed most, with the relative needs weighting increased so that more money follows socio-economic indicators. This is more progressive than last year's distribution. This targets resources at those councils who are the most dependent on central Government grant and the neediest by paying much more attention to the level of need in calculating the grant each area receives. For social services authorities and for shire district councils, we have grouped councils together in four bands, reflecting their relative reliance on central Government grant. We have used banded floors so that the most dependent authorities get the smallest reduction. Additionally, the transitional grant provides funding to limit losses. This funding is all going to the most deprived areas and is managing significant change such as the scheduled end of Working Neighbourhoods Fund. Liverpool has received £15 million in transition grant in 2011-12.

Public Lavatories

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what funding his Department has provided to local authorities for Changing Places toilets; [86699]

(2) which local authorities have taken part in the Changing Places campaign; and how many Changing Places toilets have been provided; [86700]

(3) what plans he has to amend planning regulations and guidance on the provision of sanitary facilities for people with complex and multiple disabilities; [86701]

(4) what discussions he has had with national and local disability organisations on the Changing Places campaign on disabled toilets. [86702]

Andrew Stunell: Formula grant is an unhypothecated block grant so local authorities are free to spend the grant on any service provided that they meet their statutory duties. For this reason, and due to the method of calculating formula grant, particularly floor damping, it is not possible to identify how much grant has been provided for any particular service. It is for local authorities to set their budgets according to the needs of their local community.

We have no plans to amend planning regulations and guidance. However we set out in December 2010 our intention to consider whether there was a case for Government intervention to deliver better provision of Changing Places toilets including possible targeted regulation through the Building Regulations. We will be publishing early in the new year a consultation setting out our intended next steps.

As part of this ongoing work officials met with representatives of the Changing Places Campaign and MENCAP on 3 February and 28 November 2011. A further meeting with both MENCAP and members of the Changing Places Consortium has been arranged for the 27 January 2012.

Information on the Changing Places campaign, including which local authorities have indicated their support, and the current number of facilities in the UK can be found on the Changing Places website www.changing-places.org.

Supporting People Programme

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which voluntary and third sector organisations have made written representations to him on the Supporting People scheme; and if he will make a statement. [79358]

Grant Shapps: Ministers have received a number of pieces of correspondence on this issue, encompassing a range of opinion from organisations across the sector including representative bodies, charities, housing associations and service providers.

Union of Good

Robert Halfon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what his policy is on the representation of people listed by his Department as supporters of the Union of Good on bodies funded by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [86882]

Andrew Stunell [holding answer 15 December 2011]: My Department scrutinises all groups it funds to ensure that they and their representatives do not hold extremist views or support terrorist-related activity of any kind, in this country or overseas.

With regard to the Union of Good, my Department holds no such list of supporters.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when he plans to respond to question 83268, on New Deal for Communities scheme, tabled on 22 November 2011 for answer on 25 November 2011. [86821]

Robert Neill: Parliamentary question 83268 was answered on 14 December 2011, Official Report, column 766W.

Youth Services: Closures

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many letters he received on the closure of youth centres in England in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [86869]

Andrew Stunell: This information is not available. All departmental correspondence is logged and dealt with through the departmental central system. However, the system is not sufficiently sophisticated to extract the data requested.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Aluminium: Industry

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what his Department's policy is on support for the aluminium industry; and if he will make a statement. [86943]

Mr Prisk: The Government are taking action to support manufacturing, including the aluminium industry, through their encouragement of higher levels of innovation, exports, business investment and technical skills as well as cutting excessive red tape.

As part of the autumn statement the Government also announced measures worth around £250 million to help our Energy Intensive Industries, including the aluminium industry, to reduce their energy bills. In addition, there will be a £1 billion increase in the Regional Growth Fund to help regional rebalancing, and on 6 December 2011 we launched a £125 million challenge fund to boost UK advanced manufacturing supply chains.

Bankruptcy: Insolvency

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether he plans to increase the number of (a) bankruptcy restriction orders and undertakings and (b) disqualification orders and undertakings obtained by the Insolvency Service. [86694]

Mr Davey: The number of Bankruptcy Restriction Orders, Disqualification Orders and undertakings obtained by the Insolvency Service is dependant upon the number of insolvencies prevailing at any particular time and the level of misconduct identified in those insolvencies. Planning assumptions are given in the Insolvency Service's corporate plan and outputs are given in the service's annual report and accounts. Planning assumptions for 2012-13 will be available in the corporate plan for that period when available.

Business: Competition

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what supply-side steps his Department is taking to ensure that British businesses remain economically competitive. [87516]

Mr Prisk: The Advanced Manufacturing Supply Chain Initiative aims to help existing UK supply chains grow and achieve world class standards while encouraging major new suppliers to come and manufacture here. The new fund will support innovative projects in established UK advanced manufacturing sectors such as aerospace, automotive and chemicals. It will also target newer growth areas where the UK is well placed to take a global lead, such as energy renewables and other low carbon sectors. The competitive fund will invite applications early in the new year. Further information on criteria, funding and other arrangements concerning the initiative will also be available early in the new year.

Business: Corruption

Mr Offord: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the effects of the provision of the Bribery Act 2010 on small and medium-sized enterprises. [86169]

Mr Prisk: The Bribery Act came into force on 1 July 2011. It is too soon to make an assessment of the effects it has had on small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs).

SMEs considering trading overseas can get free advice and guidance on how to combat bribery and corruption from the Business Anti-Corruption Portal:

www.business-anti-corruption.com

a website co-sponsored by my Department. UK Trade and Investment also provides advice for business on a number of topics including bribery and corruption on their Overseas Business Risk website:

www.ukti.gov.uk/overseasbusinessrisk

Business: Government Assistance

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many small and medium-sized enterprises have received assistance from Government schemes in (a) Leicester South constituency, (b) Leicester, (c) Leicestershire, (d) the east midlands and (e) England in the last 18 months. [86474]

Mr Prisk: The Government's Solutions for Business portfolio sets out the range of publicly funded support designed to help businesses to identify and overcome key challenges as they grow. Available figures on the number of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) assisted are set out in the following tables:

Product	Leicester South	Leicester	Leicestershire	East midlands	England	Comment
Manufacturing Advisory Service	88	196	561	2,139	14,000	Figures are April 2010 to 30 September 2011.

In addition, the Government have funded a range of information and support which was delivered via the regional development agencies (RDAs) through the Business Link regional advisory service. East Midlands Development Agency (EMDA) the RDA covering the east midlands, have supplied the following figures for SMEs assisted by Business Link in the east midlands and the wider Business Link regional service across England in the last 18 months:

Leicestershire: 26,648

East midlands: 125,296

England: 844, 293.

Company Accounts

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills if he will make it his policy that the level of fines imposed on small businesses for late filing of accounts with Companies House should reflect the annual turnover of that business. [87401]

Mr Davey: The level of fines imposed on companies for the late filing of accounts with Companies House is set in legislation, not policy, and depend on how late the accounts are when they reach Companies House. Neither the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, nor the Registrar of Companies can change the level of fines to reflect the annual turnover of the business incurring the fine.

The level of fines was carefully reviewed by Parliament during the passage of the Companies Act 2006, and it decided to have two penalty scales; one for public companies and one for private companies. Apart from this, Parliament decided to make no distinction between companies based on their size or trading status.

Advisory Services

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what contribution his Department has made to the cross-Government review of advice funding announced in July 2011. [84325]

Mr Davey: BIS continues to support the advice sector through maintained funding of the national umbrella bodies for the Citizens Advice service in England, Wales and Scotland. We will be working with colleagues across Government on the review of advice funding led by Cabinet Office.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many staff in his Department are working on the Green Investment Bank. [87089]

Mr Prisk: A Green Investment Bank team, which comprises 10 people, has been set up to manage the establishment of the bank and is supported by other areas of the Department such as legal and economic advice.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many staff in his Department have duties which involve liaising with the Department of Energy and Climate Change. [87090]

Mr Prisk: The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, and the Department of Energy and Climate Change work closely together across a wide range of policy and operational areas and so a considerable number of officials are involved in liaising with the Department of Energy and Climate Change.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many staff in his Department are working in the UK Green Investments team. [87096]

Mr Prisk: We have made the first senior appointments to the UK Green Investments team, comprising eight people, and expect to make further appointments shortly.

Procurement

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many contracts his Department has advertised on the Contracts Finder website in each month since May 2010; what the value was of such contracts; what proportion was awarded to (a) third sector organisations and (b) small businesses; and if he will make a statement. [75117]

Mr Davey: Following clarifications on system capabilities I can confirm that this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Company Directors: Disqualification

Toby Perkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many D1 reports on the required conduct of directors under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 have been received by the Insolvency Service; and how many directors were disqualified under this Act in each year from 2005-06 to 2010-11. [86949]

Mr Davey: The information is as follows.

Disqualification orders and undertakings (section 2, 6 and 8 of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 cases):

2005-06: 1,173
2006-07: 1,200
2007-08: 1,145
2008-09: 1,281
2009-10: 1,102
2010-11: 1,437.

D1 reports received:

2005-06: 3,675
2006-07: 4,107
2007-08: 3,991
2008-09: 4,752
2009-10: 7,030
2010-11: 5,373.

Export Credits Guarantee Department: Finance

Simon Kirby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what consideration his Department has given to providing funding to the Export Credits Guarantee Department (ECGD) to ensure that new trade finance products offered by ECGD are marketed and accessible to small and medium sized enterprises. [86534]

Mr Davey: ECGD's operating costs are authorised through parliamentary vote, including the cost of its marketing services.

I also refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne Central (Chi Onwurah) on 9 November 2011, Official Report, column 377W.

Exports

Mr Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he is taking to encourage small and medium-sized enterprises to increase exports to emerging markets; and if he will make a statement. [87322]

Mr Prisk: UK Trade & Investment (UKTI) has identified 20 priority high growth and emerging markets which we are encouraging small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to export to. These are: Brazil, China, Colombia, Egypt, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Malaysia, Mexico, Qatar, Russia, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, South Africa, South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, Turkey, UAE, and Vietnam.

UKTI is encouraging SMEs to increase exports to these markets by:

raising greater awareness amongst UK business of these markets through events like 'Doing Business in Asia', 'Journey through Latin America', and 'Partner Middle East' around the UK; and through the launch last week of a new campaign (announced by the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, the right hon. Member for Twickenham (Vince Cable), and the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague)), to encourage more British companies to export to Asia's high growth and emerging markets.

communicating to SMEs the specific business opportunities in high growth and emerging markets through a programme of research, and via UKTI's network of teams in the UK and in these markets.

launching a UK-ASEAN Business Council in November to help UK SMEs succeed in these markets, and to sit alongside the China-Britain Business Council and UK-India Business Councils.

campaigning for better access for UK companies in these markets, including engaging in Government-to-Government trade dialogues, and also backing plans for ambitious EU free trade agreements with a number of these markets.

ensuring there are targeted services and advice available for businesses considering these markets.

To underpin this work, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently announced that UK Trade & Investment will double to 50,000 the number of companies it helps to export each year. A very substantial proportion of these will be trading with the top 20 high growth and emerging markets identified by UKTI. UKTI will plan to focus sufficient resources on these markets in order to deliver on this ambition.

Green Investment Bank

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills from what budgetary source the running costs of the Green Investment Bank will be paid. [87088]

Mr Prisk: We will establish an institution which is effective and affordable. We are still in the process of finalising the cost estimates. Reasonable running costs of the Green Investment Bank over the spending review period will be funded from BIS budgets.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether the Green Investment Bank will be a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [87095]

Mr Prisk: This issue has not yet been finalised.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 12 December 2011, Official Report, columns 61-63WS, on the Green Investment Bank, what form of support will be provided by the Green Investment Bank for the Green Deal. [87175]

Mr Prisk: The Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills explained in his written statement of 12 December 2011, Official Report, columns 61-63WS, that support for the Green Deal will be one of the priority sectors in the spending review period to 2015-16.

This applies to both the Green Investment Bank and UK Green Investment (UKGI). We expect to commence discussions shortly with potential providers of Green Deal finance. All investment decisions will be made against a double bottom line of green impact and financial return.

Green Investment Bank: Pay

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) what estimate has been made of the likely annual salary of the Green Investment Bank's chief executive officer; and what remuneration the board members of the Green Investment Bank are expected to receive; [87092]

(2) what the recruitment process will be for the Green Investment Bank's (a) chief executive officer and (b) other staff; [87093]

(3) whether the Green Investment Bank's staff will be paid annual performance-related bonuses. [87094]

Mr Prisk: The Green Investment Bank will be established as a Companies Act company following best practice corporate governance and operate at arm's length from Government. Odgers Berndtson has been retained to advise on recruitment strategy and remuneration levels relating to the Green Investment Bank. We will begin the formal recruitment process for the board and senior management team next month, with a view to appointing the Chair in spring 2012.

Green Investment Bank: Recruitment

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what the recruitment process for UK Green Investments (a) staff and (b) fund managers will be. [87097]

Mr Prisk: BIS is committed to recruiting a high quality UK Green Investments team while ensuring that appointments provide value for money. The team is currently a mix of secondees and fixed term appointments.

On 12 December UK Green Investments launched a call for expressions of interest from experienced fund managers in the waste infrastructure sector.

Higher Education

Liz Kendall: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many adults of each gender aged 24 and over took level 3 or higher qualifications in each further education establishment in the latest year for which figures are available. [86219]

Mr Hayes [holding answer 12 December 2011]: Table 1 shows the number of adult (aged 24+) learners participating on further education courses, Level 3 and above, in England by gender and provider type in 2009/10, the latest year for which final data are available.

Table 1: Adult (aged 24+) participation on level 3 and above further education courses by gender and provider type, 2009/10

Participation	Male	Female	All
General Further Education College	106,880	175,810	282,700

Higher Education: Admissions

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (a) what discussions he had and (b) what research was carried out before he decided to allow the unrestricted recruitment by universities of students achieving AAB and above; and if he will publish information relating to any such discussions and research carried out. [85521]

Mr Willetts [holding answer 8 December 2011]: The Higher Education (HE) White Paper Students at the Heart of the System published in June, included a proposal to allow institutions to compete freely for students with AAB+ or equivalent grades at 'A' level. This proposal aims to free up the current restrictive approach to allocating student places to Higher Education Institutions and allow more students to go to the institution of their choice. Alongside the HE White Paper an impact assessment of the proposals was published on the BIS website which includes modelling of that policy. This impact assessment is available at:

http://discuss.bis.gov.uk/hereform/all-documents/

The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) consulted over the summer on the operation of teaching funding and student number controls in 2012/13 which included the freeing up of restrictions on the recruitment of new entrants with AAB+ or equivalent grades at 'A' level. The outcomes from the consultation including responses are available on the HEFCE website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/learning/funding/201213/

HEFCE is committed to monitoring closely the impacts of the new policy and will offer formal advice as soon as is practicable.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Margot James: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether he has any plans to allocate further funding to the Retrofit for the Future scheme. [86068]

Mr Prisk: The Retrofit for the Future programme is managed and delivered by the Technology Strategy Board, a BIS sponsored NDPB. The Technology Strategy Board is currently in the latter stages of a £17 million Retrofit for the Future competition which will see the retrofit of 115 homes to a target 80% carbon reduction and includes monitoring of the actual performance of the homes and reporting both the performance data and the practical construction findings through a number of channels including the Green Deal PAS2030 group.

In addition, the Technology Strategy Board has a programme of work on non-domestic retrofit which includes the support of projects, through its Building Performance Evaluation competition, to monitor the in-use performance of new and retrofit buildings, providing a feedback loop to close the performance gap between designed and in-use performance.

In terms of further activities, the Technology Strategy Board is currently in the final stages of offering £1 million worth of contracts to seven UK companies, who will be collaborating with European partners, to scale-up and product-ise the Retrofit process; delivering quicker and at lower cost.

Further work will also involve the Technology Strategy Board working in collaboration with the UK Green Building Council to look at the demand side of Retrofit, including understanding the marketplace packages and offers that will trigger consumers to retrofit their homes and create business opportunities for the construction sector. In 2013/14, the Technology Strategy Board proposes to allocate a further £8 million of funding to support Retrofit projects, the exact scope of which will depend on the outcome of current activities and the needs of business and Government at the time.

Insolvency Service: Disclosure of Information

Toby Perkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many requests the Insolvency Service has received under the Data Protection Act 1998 to view D1 reports submitted by insolvency practitioners under the provisions of the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986, in each year since 1998. [86947]

Mr Davey: Statistics of recorded requests for D Reports under both the Data Protection Act 1998 and the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have been maintained by the Insolvency Service since 1 April 2005. No distinction is made between requests for a D1 or a D2 report so the following figures may include requests for each type of report.

The figures are:

2005-06: 26
2006-07: 33
2007-08: 4
2008-09: 0
2009-10:42
2010-11: 105
2011 to date: 89.

Investment Trusts: Environment Protection

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether UK Green Investments fund managers will be eligible for performance-related bonuses. [87098]

Mr Prisk: Proposed fee structures and levels will be taken into account when assessing potential fund managers.

Investment: Environment Protection

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether the proposed £775 million funding for UK Green Investments in the next financial year will come from the £3 billion proposed to capitalise the Green Investment Bank. [87099]

Mr Prisk: Investments made by UK Green Investments will be funded from the £775 million allocation for 2012/13 made available in the Budget, which is part of the £3 billion allocated to the bank. Assets built up by UK Green Investments will transfer to the Green Investment Bank when it becomes operational.

Local Enterprise Partnerships: Local Nature Partnerships

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what his policy is on the involvement of local enterprise partnerships in the work of local nature partnerships. [87153]

Mr Prisk: Local enterprise partnerships will choose to work with partners on issues which align with economic and geographical priorities.

Manufacturing Industries: Finance

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the announcement of 6 December 2011 on the advanced manufacturing supply chain initiative, whether there is a closing date for applications to the fund. [87123]

Mr Prisk: It is expected that the initiative will be open for applications early in the new year. A closing date for applications will be set out when the full criteria for the initiative are published soon on the Technology Strategy Board website:

www.innovateuk.org

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the announcement of 6 December 2011 on the advanced manufacturing supply chain initiative, which manufacturing sectors will be eligible for funding under the initiative. [87124]

Mr Prisk: The scheme is open to bids from all advanced manufacturing sectors including both established sectors such as aerospace, automotive and chemicals, and newer growth areas such as energy renewables with a focus on sectors where barriers to entry are high and there is minimal risk of any public support displacing activity that would happen in any case. Further details of eligibility will be set out soon when the full criteria for the initiative are published on the Technology Strategy Board website:

www.innovateuk.org

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the announcement of 6 December 2011 on the advanced manufacturing supply chain initiative, when he expects monies to be distributed from the fund. [87125]

Mr Prisk: Distribution of funding under the initiative will depend in part on the spend profile of successful bids but it is expected that monies will start to be available before the end of the financial year.

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the announcement of 6 December 2011 on the advanced manufacturing supply chain initiative, how many firms he expects to receive funding under the scheme. [87126]

Mr Prisk: Up to £125 million is available under the initiative and a minimum bidding threshold of £2 million has been set in order to encourage projects of sufficient scale and depth to make a genuine competitive difference across supply chains. There is no restriction on the number of firms able to apply and small and medium enterprises and other supplier companies will be invited to work together where possible on project packages that together meet or exceed the bidding threshold.

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the announcement of 6 December 2011 on the advanced manufacturing supply chain initiative, what criteria he plans to use to assess applications made under the scheme. [87127]

Mr Prisk: Applications will be assessed by the Government's Technology Strategy Board which has a strong track record in supporting credible advanced manufacturing projects. Assessments will be based on the potential to leverage significant private investment; buy-in from the prime manufacturers at the top of the supply chains and potential to strengthen and provide better join-up across whole supply chains. Further details will be provided on the Technology Strategy Board's website shortly.

Overseas Trade: Advisory Services

Simon Kirby: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the proposal by the British Chambers of Commerce to restructure the Overseas Market Introduction Service to a variable rate system depending on business size. [86533]

Mr Prisk: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne Central (Chi Onwurah) on 14 November 2011, Official Report, columns 629-30W.

Phoenix Companies

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he is taking to prevent companies, the directors of which have previously been convicted of fraud, from being resurrected as phoenix companies under the same management. [87762]

Mr Davey: A conviction for fraud against a director (even assuming that the fraud conviction relates to the person acting as a director of the relevant company) does not mean that the company of which s/he is a director is automatically closed after such a conviction.

Limited companies are separate legal entities from those who run and own them. There is nothing in law to prevent a director of a company who may have been convicted of fraud from acting as a director of a company or from forming a new company to carry on a business similar to, or even identical to, that of any other company providing he has not been disqualified from acting in the management of a limited company and is not personally bankrupt.

A criminal court may disqualify a director under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 at the time of a conviction for fraud. If a director has a conviction for fraud, and a company of which he is director subsequently enters formal insolvency, any misconduct may result in a disqualification which will prevent the director, without permission of the court, from acting as a director of any subsequent companies.

Post Offices

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many post offices in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland he expects to be converted into Post Office Locals. [87013]

Mr Davey: The Government's policy statement, "Securing the Post Office Network in the Digital Age" made clear that by the end of this Parliament over half the existing network of post offices will have been modernised, offering customers longer opening hours, shorter queues, and an enhanced retail environment. The Government expect around 2,000 branches to be converted to the new Post Office Local model by 2015 as part of this network transformation.

The exact location of new Post Office Local branches is dependent on the suitability of the Local model to the location concerned, the views of existing sub-postmasters on how the model can assist their business going forward, and the requirement by Post Office Ltd to both maintain a network of at least 11,500 branches and to continue to comply with the strict access criteria whereby, for example, over 99% of the national population must be within three miles of a post office outlet.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) how many Post Office Locals in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland he expects will operate on a part-time basis; [87014]

(2) where Post Office Locals are located in premises which are open 24 hours a day over what period he expects post office services to be available. [87015]

Mr Davey: The Government's policy statement, "Securing the Post Office Network in the Digital Age", made clear that the Post Office Local model will provide improved post office opening times related to the hours that the retail shop is open. To date, there are over 130 Post Office Local pilot branches in operation.

Findings from the pilot locations show that, on average, post office services provided through a Post Office Local branch have been available for around 35 more hours per week over and above traditional opening hours of Post Offices. This flexibility has been valued by customers, with over 20% of them conducting transactions outside traditional post office opening hours.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills at which locations Post Office Local services have been trialled; and what feedback his Department has received. [87017]

Mr Davey: The Post Office Local model is currently being trialled in 134 locations across the country, with a further 38 planned by the end of the current financial year. This extensive piloting is enabling Post Office Ltd to comprehensively examine the model to make sure that it is fit for purpose in delivering a high quality customer experience, a reasonable return for the operator, and the long-term sustainability of the Post Office network.

In October 2010, Post Office Ltd commissioned independent research into the pilots, which showed over 90% of customers are extremely or very satisfied with their overall experience of the Local model, with around 80% of customers greatly appreciating the longer opening hours. In May 2011, Consumer Focus published independent research that found that 83% of customers found the overall experience at a Post Office Local—when compared with any alternative post office—at least as good, with a majority (61%) saying that the overall experience at a Post Office Local was better than an alternative post office.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether (a) large parcel services, (b) applications for driving licences, (c) applications for passports, (d) issue of car tax discs, (e) cash withdrawals using cash books and (f) payments of benefits and pensions will be available at post office locals. [87018]

Mr Davey: The availability of specific products is an operational matter for the Post Office and I have therefore asked Paula Vennells, the managing director of Post Office Ltd, to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what his proposed timetable is for the introduction of post office locals. [87019]

Mr Davey: The Government expect there to be around 2,000 post office locals by the end of this Parliament.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many sub-postmasters in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland have applied to convert their post office to a post office local. [87020]

Mr Davey: The choice to seek to convert to the post office local model is for the individual sub-postmaster, and is voluntary. The exact location of new post office local branches is dependent on the suitability of the local model to the location concerned, the views of existing sub-postmaster on how the model can assist their business going forward, and the requirement by Post Office Ltd to both maintain a network of at least 11,500 branches and to continue to comply with the strict access criteria whereby, for example, over 99% of the national population must be within three miles of a post office outlet. I have therefore asked Paula Vennells, the managing director of Post Office Ltd, to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) what arrangements will be put in place to provide post office services during the transition to post office local; [87021]

(2) what public information campaign his Department plans to conduct on service changes associated with the introduction of post office local. [87022]

Mr Davey: Decisions on how branches will be converted to the post office local model are an operational matter for the Post Office. I have therefore asked Paula Vennells, the managing director of Post Office Ltd, to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

However, the hon. Member should know that there is a code of practice in place, agreed between Post Office Ltd and Consumer Focus, which clearly sets out the steps that Post Office Ltd must follow to keep customers fully aware and to mitigate and minimise any disruption, where a sub-post office relocates to new premises.

Post Offices: Training

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether staff at Post Office locals will receive the same training as Post Office staff. [87024]

Mr Davey: Decisions relating to staff training for those operating Post Office local branches is an operational matter for the Post Office. I have therefore asked Paula Vennells, the managing director of Post Office Ltd. to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Offices: Vetting

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what security vetting will be undertaken of post office local staff. [87023]

Mr Davey: Arrangements relating to the security vetting of staff are an operational matter for the Post Office. I have therefore asked Paula Vennells, the managing director of Post Office Ltd, to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Regional Growth Fund: Higher Education

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many higher education institutions participated in Regional Growth Fund bids in both rounds 1 and 2 which were (a) successful and (b) unsuccessful. [85773]

Mr Hayes: Information on whether a project involved higher education institutions was not specifically requested from applicants. Based on the information received through the bids, 50 higher education institutions participated in Regional Growth Fund bids in both rounds. Of these, 18 were successful and 32 were unsuccessful.

Shipping: Southampton

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect on businesses of the ability of the Port of Southampton to accommodate (a) Maersk Triple E Class and (b) other larger container ships. [87173]

Mr Prisk: The Department has made no assessment of the effect on businesses.

Trade Unions: Training

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what funding from (a) his Department, (b) the Skills Funding Agency and (c) the European Social Fund has been made available to fund courses included in the TUC education union professional development programme in 2011-12. [86491]

Mr Hayes: The Skills Funding Agency is responsible for funding post-19 further education (FE) and skills provision delivered through FE colleges and training organisations.

Each academic year, FE colleges and training organisations receive a post-19 funding allocation at the programme level (for example budgets for adult skills, adult safeguarded learning and/or offender learning and skills). As funding is not allocated at the learning aim level the amount of money spent on TUC learning aims is not recorded centrally by the Skills Funding Agency.

The following table provides information on 2009/10 academic year funding rates for learning aims offered through the TUC Education union professional development programme, and funded by the Skills Funding Agency.

Notes:

1. Funding rates are rounded to the nearest whole value.
2. These data represent the funding rates of specific aim titles which relate to the title of the TUC Education Union Professional Development Programme courses. If courses listed in the Professional Development Programme are not included here, they are either not funded by the Skills Funding Agency or a learning aim that corresponds to the course title cannot be easily identified.
3. The funding rates represent the notional level of funding for a particular qualification. They do not necessarily represent the actual amount of funding paid to providers. This is because allocations are made at provider level based on aggregated data, so can not be disaggregated to qualification level.
4. Guided Learning Hours (glh) are defined as the total time a member of staff is present to give specific guidance towards the learning aim being studied on a programme.

UK Green Investment Committee

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills who the members of the UK Green Investments Committee are. [87100]

Mr Prisk: I have established an Investment Committee, including members of the Industrial Development Advisory Board, to advise me on investment proposals made by UK Green Investments. The Investment Committee, which will be chaired by Fred Maroudas, currently BAA Treasurer, will have members from both the private sector and government with expertise in project finance.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Waiting Lists

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate his Department has made of average accident and emergency waiting times at (a) South London Healthcare NHS Trust, (b) Lewisham Healthcare NHS Trust and (c) Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust. [86751]

Mr Simon Burns: The information requested is not collected in the format requested. The following table sets out the median time, in minutes, spent by patients in accident and emergency (A&E) departments at the three trusts. All figures shown are the latest available and are for the month of July 2011.

Trust	Median	Minutes 95th percentile
South London Healthcare NHS Trust	145	310
Lewisham Healthcare NHS Trust	126	236
Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust	136	238

These data are published every month by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care on behalf of the Department of Health. The data extraction and analysis is done by Urgent and Emergency Care Team analysts in the Department of Health. This information is available from the NHS Information Centre's website at:
www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/hospital-care/accident-and-emergency-hospital-episode-statistics-hes/provisional-accident-and-emergency-quality-indicators-for-england-experimental-statistics-by-provider-for-july-2011.

A&E Clinical Quality Indicators (CQIs) were announced and implemented from April 2011. These are a broad set of measures on A&E performance including patient experience and clinical outcomes as well as waiting times. The CQIs were developed with input from senior clinicians and other stakeholders and were designed to move away from the previous narrow focus on time spent in A&E.

The median average is the middle value of a list of values sorted from lowest to highest and shows how long on average patients spend in A&E from arrival to discharge, admission or transfer. The 95th percentile is the waiting time for the 95th patient out of every 100, where patients are ordered from lowest waiting time (patient 1) to highest waiting time (patient 100). Therefore, 95% of patients have a waiting time equal to or below the 95th percentile.

Anti-depressants

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether anti-depressants are included in the review of policy on addiction to prescribed medication; and for what reasons. [87386]

Anne Milton: The Government's Drugs Strategy seeks to tackle dependence on all drugs, including prescription and over-the-counter drugs. We are leading work to prevent and tackle addiction to prescribed and over-the-counter medicine, including anti-depressants.

Winter Deaths

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has held with (a) the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and (b) the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on the contribution of energy-efficient housing to the Government's strategy to reduce excess winter deaths. [86962]

Anne Milton: The benefits of improved housing energy efficiency have been discussed by officials during development of the Cold Weather Plan and Warm Homes, Healthy People Fund.

The Warm Homes, Healthy People Fund will support local authorities, working with their local community, the voluntary sector and statutory organisations in the coming winter to reduce the levels of death and morbidity which are due to vulnerable people living in cold housing.

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications for Warm Homes, Healthy People funding his Department has received from local authorities; and how many grants will be awarded. [86964]

Anne Milton: The Department has received 167 proposals for funding from top tier local authorities and departmental officials are currently sifting and examining the applications. We will be looking at the proposals and will decide which ones are suitable to be authorised.

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to provide Warm Homes Healthy People funding in (a) 2012, (b) 2013, (c) 2014 and (d) 2015; and what assessment he has made of whether in future years there should be an earlier closing date for applications. [86965]

Anne Milton: The Department continually examines all policies and will look at the effectiveness and success of the Cold Weather Plan, including Warm Homes, Healthy People fund, as part of that process. We will examine how effective the programme is in targeting help at the most vulnerable people in order to reduce death and morbidity this winter and in future years. Departmental officials will aim to ensure that adequate time is available for applications to be received and processed.

Dementia: Health Services

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the likely effect of his proposed reforms of the NHS on dementia care for the elderly. [87211]

Paul Burstow: Improving the quality of care for people with dementia and their carers is a priority for this Government. Last year we launched a new outcomes focused implementation plan for the National Dementia Strategy. This makes clear our commitment to accelerate the pace of improvement through a greater focus on local delivery and local accountability and empowering citizens to hold local organisations to account.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86998]

Mr Simon Burns: The Department has spent £501,676 on food and beverages in the year October 2010 to September 2011.

Official Hospitality

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on hospitality since May 2010. [87156]

Mr Simon Burns: The Department has spent £785,510 on hospitality since May 2010. This figure includes that spent by arm's length bodies and other sponsored visitors using the Department's buildings.

Epilepsy: Health Services

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of whether the West Midlands Specialised Commissioning Group is following expert clinical opinion in its commissioning policy on vagus nerve stimulation for patients with refractive epilepsy. [87115]

Paul Burstow: Regional specialised commissioning groups are accountable to their primary care trusts on all matters of governance.

Health Services: Internet

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to promote access to online health care services for (a) patients and (b) informal carers and family members. [87420]

Mr Simon Burns: Further to our public consultation on an Information Revolution for health and adult social care, the Department is working to publish the subsequent Information Strategy by April 2012. Access to online health care services for patients and other service users, as well as carers, is being considered as part of the development of the Information Strategy.

Health Services: Private Sector

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations that provide private healthcare services (a) he and (b) each other Minister in his Department has met since May 2010; and on what date each such meeting took place. [87076]

Mr Simon Burns: Details of all ministerial meetings with external parties are published quarterly in arrears on the Department's website. Data from 1 January 2010 up to the end of June 2011 can be found at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/MinistersandDepartmentLeaders/Departmentdirectors/DH_110759

Health Services: Cold Weather

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the potential effect that the provisions of the Health and Social Care Bill will have on his Department's Cold Weather Plan. [86963]

Anne Milton: The Cold Weather Plan (CWP) sets out a series of actions to be taken by the national health service, social care and other public agencies; as well as by individuals and local communities, to minimise the effects of severe cold weather on health. The reforms in the Health and Social Care Bill should ensure that delivery of the CWP is more effective in the future.

At a national level, the Secretary of State for Health, will have responsibility for the protection of health. In practice, Public Health England (PHE) will exercise these functions. PHE will bring together a fragmented system, strengthen the national response on health protection and support delivery across the three domains of public health through information, evidence, surveillance and professional leadership. PHE will have a key role in producing future CWPs and advising local organisations on implementation.

At a local level, the Bill gives local authorities responsibility for setting up health and wellbeing boards which will strengthen the strategic co-ordination of services between local authorities and the NHS. Excess seasonal mortality planning at national level will be supported by PHE to complement delivery of services locally.

Herbal Medicine

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether (a) he and (b) his officials have met representatives of (i) Schwabe Pharma UK Ltd and (ii) the Safer Herbal Medicines Campaign in the last six months. [87621]

Mr Simon Burns: Ministers and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) have not held a meeting with the Safer Herbal Medicines Campaign or Schwabe Pharma UK in the last six months. MHRA has periodic meetings with representative bodies, including trade associations, from the herbal sector and such organisations will sometimes be represented by individuals from specific companies.

HIV Infection

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government plan to take to tackle HIV stigma; and if he will make a statement. [87122]

Anne Milton: Tackling the stigma that can be associated with HIV is very important. Men who have sex with men and people from Black African communities are most at risk from HIV and the Department funds organisations that produce innovative programmes of work to help tackle stigma directed towards these groups.

The African Health Policy Network, through the Department's national HIV prevention programme has developed resources for Christian and Muslim faith leaders and African community based organisations. These faith toolkits are used to increase levels of awareness around HIV and to change perceptions of HIV and Africans in the United Kingdom.

In addition, the Department's new Sexual Health Policy Framework planned for next year will consider how work can be undertaken at all levels to reduce and challenge HIV stigma.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Dr Poulter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average rate of incidence of (a) MRSA and (b) other hospital acquired infections was in each strategic health authority in each year since 1997. [86754]

Mr Simon Burns: The information requested is not available.

The annual numbers of methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) bloodstream infections and Clostridium difficile infections (CDI) attributed to primary care organisations within each strategic health authority are provided for the periods for which they are available.

Dr Poulter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incidences of (a) MRSA and (b) other hospital acquired infections there have been in (i) Ipswich hospital, (ii) West Suffolk hospital, (iii) Suffolk Primary Care Trust and (iv) the East of England Strategic Health Authority since 1997. [86755]

Mr Simon Burns: The information requested is not collected.

Data available from 2008 for methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) bloodstream infections and from 2007 for Clostridium difficile (CDI) infections are given in the following tables.

Mass Media

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 417W, on mass media, how much his Department has spent on media monitoring in each of the last five years. [86959]

Mr Simon Burns: The amount the Department's media centre spent on media monitoring in each of the last five years is provided in the following tables.

Department of Health

Financial year	Spend on press cuttings[1] (£)
2006-07	186,726.95
2007-08	130,126.92
2008-09	119,180.72

The figures for press cuttings and media monitoring from 2009-10 onwards also include spend for Connecting for Health, which joined the Department's media centre from NHS Connecting for Health, following the merger of the media relations functions of the two organisations in April 2009.

Mental Health: Patients

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 have been released in each of the last five years. [86687]

Paul Burstow: The only central data collection on detention under the Mental Health Act 1983 (the Act) collects the number of uses of detention under the various sections of the Act each year. Therefore, the number of patients whose status has changed from detained to voluntary in each of the last five years has been provided in the following table:

Changes in legal status of patients detained under Mental Health Act 1983 and to an informal (voluntary) status in national health service facilities and independent hospitals, 2006-07 to 2010-11

NHS Foundation Trusts: Finance

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to ensure that Monitor properly exercises its role as a regulatory body in respect of NHS foundation trusts assessed as being at high financial risk; and if he will make a statement. [86969]

Mr Simon Burns: Monitor is the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts and is directly accountable to Parliament. It was established in 2004 and its current powers of intervention, including the means by which finance is regulated and risk is assessed, are determined by section 52 of the NHS Act 2006. Giving NHS foundation trusts autonomy in how they operate to deliver responsive and locally shaped services is underpinned by this independent and proportionate regulatory model.

NHS Litigation Authority

Mr Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with the Cabinet Office on the mutualisation of the NHS Litigation Authority; and if he will make a statement; [87055]

(2) what plans he has for the mutualisation of the NHS Litigation Authority; whether those plans include proposals to ask doctors to take out individual insurance for legal expenses; and if he will make a statement. [87069]

Mr Simon Burns: There have been no discussions between the Department and Cabinet Office Ministers on this issue.

Officials from the Cabinet Office and the Department held very limited and provisional discussions on the issue of possible mutualisation of the NHS Litigation Authority. Similar preliminary discussions were held between the Cabinet Office officials and the NHS Litigation Authority's senior management.

There are no plans to mutualise the NHS Litigation Authority, and no plans for further discussions on the issue between the Department and the Cabinet Office.

NHS: Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether any (a) Chief Executives, (b) Chairs or (c) Board members of an NHS Trust in London are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary; and if he will make a statement. [87137]

Mr Simon Burns: The arrangements for paying executive and non-executive directors in national health service trusts are matters for the trusts themselves and their independent remuneration committees. Trusts are required to disclose the remuneration of their board members in their annual accounts.

NHS: Private Patients

Mr Bacon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of referrals to the NHS from private health providers being made via the patient's GP without any unconnected conditions having been identified during treatment. [86808]

Mr Simon Burns: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Mr Bacon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of NHS appointments that resulted from a referral to the NHS from private health providers being made via a GP, in the most recent period for which figures are available. [86809]

Mr Simon Burns: Data relating to the number of national health service appointments that resulted from a referral to the NHS from private health providers being made via a general practitioner are not collected centrally.

Mr Bacon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what his Department's policy is on the referral of patients to the NHS from private health providers via a GP without any unconnected conditions having been identified during treatment; and if he will make a statement; [86810]

(2) what representations he has received on the practice of acute trust managers requiring referrals to the NHS from private health providers to be made via a GP when no unconnected conditions have been identified during treatment. [86811]

Mr Simon Burns: Referrals to national health services where treatment will be funded by the NHS—other than for emergencies—should involve the patient's general practitioner. A trawl of the Department's correspondence database has not identified any representations on this matter.

Nurses: Standards

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to increase the standard of hospital nursing care. [86830]

Anne Milton: At the heart of the health care reforms is a focus on improving the quality and outcomes of health care for patients. One of the NHS Commissioning Board's roles will be to provide national leadership in driving up the quality of care. The board, along with clinical commissioning groups, will have a legal duty to secure continuous improvement in the quality of services and outcomes. The chief nursing officer will have a specific remit to improve the safety and people's experience of nursing care.

There is a great deal of best practice guidance and resources in place that support the delivery of high quality, safe and effective care. The Energising for Excellence Framework being taken forward by the strategic health authority chief nurses, is a total quality approach to improving care. The 'Operating Framework for the NHS in England 2012/13' includes requirements to improve the care of older people and dignity and respect; a national Commissioning for Quality and Innovation (CQUIN) goal relating to the use of the safety thermometer will help focus commissioners and providers on reducing the harm from pressure ulcers, falls, catheter-related infections and blood clots.

Nutrition

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will assess the research conducted by the Schools Health Education Unit on the number of women aged between 14 and 15 years who would like to lose weight; and if he will consider the implications of its findings for public health policy. [87447]

Anne Milton: The Department takes relevant research into account in developing public health policy and will consider the research by the Schools Health Education Unit.

Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust

Mr Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions (a) he, (b) his Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with Monitor on the Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust's financial deficit for 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86970]

Mr Simon Burns: The Secretary of State for Health, discussed Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust in a telephone conversation with the chairman of Monitor on 29 November 2011. The Department's Ministers have not had discussions with Monitor. Richard Douglas, Director General Policy, Strategy and Finance has regular contact with the chairman of Monitor and other Monitor officials and Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust has been part of those discussions. Meetings and telephone calls specifically to discuss the trust have been held on 6 October, 18 October, 25 October, 28 November and 8 December 2011. The later two were meetings attended by Richard Douglas and David Flory, deputy NHS chief executive. Sir David Nicholson, NHS chief executive discussed the trust with the chairman of Monitor on 6 December 2011.

The independent regulator, Monitor, is working with the Peterborough and Stamford NHS Foundation Trust to ensure that the trust has a financial recovery plan and moves to a position where it will meet its terms of authorisation.

Rehabilitation Centres

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to develop and promote vocational rehabilitation services. [85761]

Maria Miller: I have been asked to reply.

We have cross-Government programmes of activity to help working-age people with a health condition or disability remain in or return to work.

Access to Work assists people with a disability or health condition to stay in work or start paid employment. Access to Work provides support towards the cost of equipment an individual needs at work; including a communicator at job interviews, adapting premises to meet an individual's needs, or paying a support worker. It can also pay towards the cost of getting to work if an individual cannot use public transport.

The Health, Work and Wellbeing programme is a co-ordinated approach to health and employment issues, and includes action to support:

Employers—support to deal effectively with health issues and sickness absence among employees, including Health, Work and Wellbeing Co-ordinators, occupational health advice services for small and medium-sized businesses and the Department of Health's Public Health Responsibility Deal Health at Work Network which aims to reinforce the positive link between health and work;

Individuals—support to remain in or return to work when health issues arise, such as the case-managed multidisciplinary Fit for Work Service pilots. The Royal Colleges of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists, of Psychiatry, and of Surgeons have developed, in partnership with my Department, guidance for individuals and healthcare professionals about returning to work following a surgical procedure or a period of mental ill health; and Healthcare Professionals—support for provision of good quality back-to-work advice to patients, such as the "fit note" which allows the GP to provide a greater focus on what people can do rather than what they cannot. In addition, the Royal College of General Practitioners has rolled out a programme of GP health and work training, following a successful pilot delivered in partnership with my Department.

Skin Cancer

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will consider including skin checks in the NHS Health Check for adults over the age of 40; and if he will make a statement. [87415]

Mr Simon Burns: The NHS Health Check programme is a national public health programme for people in England aged 40 to 74. The purpose of the programme is to identify an individual's risk of heart disease, stroke, kidney disease and diabetes, and for that risk to be managed through appropriate follow up. We continue to keep the components of the NHS Health Check under review but have no plans to include skin checks at this time.

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to raise awareness of the long-term consequences and severity of skin damage caused by regular exposure to the sun; [87416]

(2) what information his Department holds on the primary causes of (a) non-melanoma and (b) malignant melanoma skin cancer; and if he will make a statement; [87417]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to improve early diagnosis of conditions that are potential markers for skin cancer; and if he will make a statement; [87418]

(4) what information his Department holds on the cost to the NHS of treatment and management of (a) non-melanoma and (b) malignant melanoma skin cancer; and if he will make a statement. [87419]

Paul Burstow: The primary cause of both non-melanoma and malignant melanoma skin cancer is exposure to ultra-violet radiation from the sun or from artificial sources, such as sunbeds.

In 2011-12, to provide information and advice to the public and health professionals, we have funded SunSmart, the national skin cancer prevention campaign. SunSmart activities have included producing and distributing educational materials, organising a schools campaign, providing support to local providers working on skin cancer prevention and a major targeted marketing campaign in conjunction with a popular music festival.

The SunSmart website also provides additional information about how to reduce your risk of skin cancer as well as how to spot the symptoms of the disease at:

The Department has also published implementation guidance for local authorities on the Sunbeds (Regulation) Act 2010 and information for sunbed businesses. The purpose of the Act is to prevent those under 18 years from being allowed to use sunbeds in commercial premises.

To support the national health service in the diagnosis and treatment of patients with skin cancer, in 2006 the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published 'Improving Outcomes for People with Skin Tumours Including Melanoma'. We have made it clear that this NICE guidance will continue to be a feature of all commissioned cancer services.

The following table shows the estimated NHS expenditure on the treatment and management of skin cancer in England for financial years 2006-07 to 2010-11. This figure includes expenditure on both non-melanoma and malignant melanoma but it is not possible to break this figure down to identify expenditure on a particular type of skin cancer. It is also not currently possible to estimate expenditure on chemotherapy and radiotherapy by cancer type. Expenditure on these treatments is therefore included within the 'Cancers and Tumour—Other' category.

In addition, expenditure on some services areas or activities is excluded if it is not possible to make a reasonable estimation of expenditure by specific disease area. For this reason expenditure on general practitioner (GP) services, diagnostics and some out-patient services are excluded from estimates of expenditure on cancers and tumours.

Expenditure figures are from estimated England level programme budgeting data, which are calculated using primary care trust and strategic health authority programme budgeting returns and Department resource accounts data. Figures also include an estimation of special health authority expenditure.

Gross expenditure (£ billion)

Programme budgeting category	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Cancers and tumours—Skin	0.10	0.11	0.10	0.11	0.12
Cancers and tumours—Other	1.93	2.32	2.39	2.75	3.06

As part of our programme of work to deliver earlier diagnosis of cancer, to improve survival rates, a range of actions has been undertaken to support GPs in referring appropriate patients to secondary care. We are also in the process of considering further possible action to improve the public's awareness of the symptoms of the less common cancers.

Smoking: Motor Vehicles

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what targets he has set for the Tobacco Control Plan; whether a behaviour change plan has been produced to reduce smoking in cars around children; and what steps he plans to take to evaluate the effect of such a plan on parents' behaviour; [86974]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to work with the national media to raise awareness of the risks in exposing children to second-hand smoke. [87224]

Anne Milton: The Tobacco Control Plan, published in March, sets out three national ambitions: to reduce adult (aged 18 or over) smoking prevalence in England to 18.5% or less by the end of 2015 (from 21.2%); to reduce rates of regular smoking among 15-year-olds in England to 12% or less (from 15%) by the end of 2015; and to reduce rates of smoking throughout pregnancy to 11% or less (from 14%) by the end of 2015 (measured at time of giving birth).

The plan also includes a number of commitments to help drive down smoking rates and reduce the harms from tobacco over the next five years. These include the launch of a national marketing campaign, planned for spring 2012, to remind smokers of the risks of exposing children and adults to second-hand smoke so that they take action to make their homes and cars smokefree. We will evaluate the impact of the campaign on smokers' behaviour.

Social Enterprises

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 October 2011, Official Report, column 839W, on the public sector, when each of the 45 staff-led social enterprises was established; and if he will make a statement. [87572]

Mr Simon Burns: Since its introduction in 2008, 40 social enterprises have been established under the right to request policy by national health service staff working in primary and community care.

These social enterprises comprise approximately 10% of community staff and 11% of the community services budget. The following table lists the organisations and their go-live dates (as of 30 November 2011).

Streptococcus

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance is issued to health care professionals on preventing group B streptococcal infection in newborn babies; and when this guidance was last updated; [87182]

(2) what information his Department holds on the number of cases of group B streptococcal infection in babies aged (a) zero to six days and (b) seven to 90 days in each constituent part of the UK since 2003. [87213]

Anne Milton: Current guidance for obstetricians, midwives and neonatologists is provided by the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG), which published its Green-top guideline No. 36 on the prevention of early-onset neonatal group B streptococcus disease in November 2003.

Information on the number of cases of group B streptococcal infection in babies is not collected centrally by the Department. The following table sets out information published by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) on the number of laboratory-confirmed group B streptococcal bacteraemia reports submitted by laboratories in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. The HPA does not collect data for Scotland.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received on group B streptococcus screening since May 2010. [87183]

Anne Milton: The Department receives representations periodically. A search of the Department's ministerial correspondence database has identified 39 items of correspondence received since May 2010 about group B streptococcus (GBS) screening. This figure represents correspondence received by the Department's central correspondence team only. Two of the letters received were petitions of which one was specifically about GBS screening and was signed by 1,560 people. The other was about maternity care and was signed by 1,022 people.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned on the benefits of group B streptococcus testing in pregnancy in the last five years. [87184]

Mr Simon Burns: The National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) Health Technology Assessment (HTA) Programme has funded the following studies during the last five years:

pre-natal screening and treatment strategies to prevent group B. streptococcal and other bacterial infections in early infancy: cost-effectiveness and expected value of information analyses; and rapid testing for group B streptococcus during labour: a test accuracy study with evaluation of acceptability and cost-effectiveness.

Reports of these studies can be found on the HTA website at:

www.hta.ac.uk/project/1473.asp

and

www.hta.ac.uk/project/1388.asp

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department has collected on the effect of introducing group B streptococcus screening on levels of infection in babies in (a) the US, (b) Canada, (c) Australia, (d) France, (e) Italy, (f) Spain and (g) other countries. [87185]

Anne Milton: The UK National Screening Committee (UK NSC) advises Ministers and the national health service in all four countries about all aspects of screening policy and supports implementation. Using research evidence, pilot programmes and economic evaluation, it assesses the evidence for programmes against a set of internationally recognised criteria.

As the UK NSC advise the Department on screening policy for group B streptococcus (GBS) in pregnancy the Department does not collect or hold data on GBS screening centrally.

JUSTICE

Departmental Expenditure: Christmas

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on (a) Christmas events and (b) decorations at each of his Department's buildings in 2011. [87444]

Mr Blunt: The Department and its agencies, Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service and the Office of the Public Guardian have not incurred any expenditure on Christmas events and decorations at any of their buildings in 2011. The small number of Christmas decorations which have been placed in reception areas have been recycled from previous years.

In respect of the Department's other executive agency, the National Offender Management Service, no central records are maintained. To provide information on the amount spent on Christmas events and decorations in individual prisons would involve incurring disproportionate cost.

The Department and its agencies do not fund Christmas parties for staff, although staff may personally contribute towards the cost of such events.

Civil Disorder

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of offenders convicted of crimes in relation to the public disorder in August 2011 had received an out-of-court disposal in relation to previous offences. [84415]

Mr Blunt: Of those offenders convicted as of midday 12 October 2011 in relation to the public disorder of 6-9 August 2011 an estimated 57% (393) had at least one previous caution.

More detail on the criminal history of individuals appearing before the court in relation to the public disorder can be found at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/statistics-and-data/criminal-justice/public-disorder-august-11.htm

As with any large-scale recording system the police national computer is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

Commissioner for Victims and Witnesses

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he expects to announce the appointment of a new Victims' Commissioner. [87542]

Mr Blunt: We are considering the future of the role.

Departmental Communications

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) press officers, (b) internal communications officers, (c) external communications officers, (d) communications strategy officers and (e) other positions with a communications remit were employed by (i) his Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) each non-departmental public body sponsored by his Department on the most recent date for which figures are available. [84178]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: Staffing levels reflect the size and complexity of the Department and its public bodies and the need to communicate effectively on a wide range of issues and services

The information required is set out in the following table and represents communication posts as at 1 November 2011. Roles which encompass more than one communications discipline have been placed in the most suitable category. The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) Press Office also handles media relations for the National Offender Management Service (NOMS).

Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service was created on 1 April 2011.

Unfortunately, the figures given in answer to PQ 38963 on 9 February 2011, Official Report, columns 242-44W, on the same subject did not include communication headcount for Law Commission and the Parole Board. Therefore we are issuing a correction to the table representing communication posts on 1 February 2011 in the MOJ as follows:

Departmental Visits

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) which young offenders institutes (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have visited in the last 18 months; and on what dates such visits took place; [87440]

(2) which secure children's centres (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have visited in the last 18 months; and on what dates such visits took place; [87441]

(3) what meetings Ministers in his Department have had with organisations working with offenders who misuse alcohol and/or drugs in the last 18 months; [87443]

(4) what meetings (a) he and (b) his Department has had with the Child Brain Injury Trust in the last 18 months; what the dates were of those meetings; and which Ministers were present; [87359]

(5) with which organisations working with young offenders (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department have had meetings in the last 18 months; [87368]

(6) which prisons (a) he and (b) other Ministers in his Department have visited in the last 18 months; and on which dates. [87369]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: Data on visits are set out in the following tables.

My officials have provided a comprehensive list of organisations that Ministers have met, that work with young offenders or offenders who misuse alcohol and drugs, including probation trusts. Every effort has been made to ensure all relevant organisations have been included. The Ministry of Justice publishes quarterly information which includes meetings Ministers have held with external organisations. This information can be found on the Ministry of Justice website on the following link:

Official Hospitality

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what receptions and events have been hosted by his Department since May 2010, including those sponsored by a third party. [84177]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: The Department does not keep a central record of all the events and receptions that are hosted by Ministers and officials. This includes those events that are hosted by third parties on behalf of the Department and all events to support public consultations. To collate this information would incur disproportionate costs.

The Department has previously released information about ministerial hospitality, which included events and receptions, for the period covering May 2010 to June 2011. I would direct the hon. Member to 23 June 2011, Official Report, columns 458-59W:

Legal Opinion: Consumers

Sir Alan Meale: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Government have assessed the potential effect of new forms of regulation of legal services on consumer protection. [86832]

Mr Blunt: The licensing regime for alternative business structures (ABS) contained in the Legal Services Act 2007 became operational on 6 October 2011. The Act sets out numerous regulatory safeguards and consumer protections, including requiring all potential licensing authorities to demonstrate to the oversight regulator, the Legal Services Board, that they have robust procedures in place to regulate and monitor the bodies that they will license. Before a body is licensed, it has to meet the criteria set out in the rules and regulations of licensing authorities. In addition, every person working in an ABS firm must comply with licensing rules and licensing authorities may take disciplinary action for con-compliance.

All consumer complaints about legal services arising from a traditional law firm or an ABS will be handled by the Legal Ombudsman in the first instance. An impact assessment was prepared specifically for the commencement of ABS. The Legal Services Board will monitor the impact, which is expected to realise over the next three to five years, and conduct a post-implementation review.

Prisoners: Foreign Nationals

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign national prisoners were detained in prison (a) on remand and (b) having been found guilty in England and Wales on 1 January of each year between 1997 and 2011. [87336]

Mr Blunt: Data are held centrally on the prison population on the last day of each month, so figures are not available for 1 January each year. Additionally, annual trends are typically compared using the 30 June figures for each year. The following table shows the number of foreign national prisoners by custody type as at 30 June of each year from 1997 to 2011. These figures are published annually in the Offender Management Statistics bulletin.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Foreign national prisoners, remand and sentenced population, England and Wales

30 June each year	Untried	Convicted unsentenced	Immediate custodial sentence
1997	738	168	3,250
1998	814	271	3,546
1999	760	272	3,864
2000	880	259	3,919
2001	905	389	4,576

Prisons: Security

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what contingency arrangements his Department has put in place to minimise the risk of disturbances in the secure estate during the Christmas and new year period. [87332]

Mr Blunt: During the week beginning 5 December 2011 governing governors of public prisons and directors of private prisons were requested to ensure that local contingency plans were reviewed ahead of major public holidays and that any significant changes be incorporated in those plans. These include the mobilisation of resources in response to incidents at other establishments. National command arrangements are in place to deal with any significant incidents over this period.

Public Protection Arrangements

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) for what serious further offences offenders subject to multi-agency public protection arrangements have been charged in each of the last five years; and what proportion of such charges resulted in (a) an out-of-court disposal, (b) a conviction in court, (c) an acquittal in court, (d) a custodial sentence and (e) a non-custodial sentence; [86310]

(2) what offences were committed by persons subject to multi-agency public protection arrangements in the last year for which figures are available; and in what proportion of cases the offender (a) was returned to custody and (b) remained in the community; [86319]

(3) how many offenders subject to multi-agency public protection arrangements have subsequently reoffended and been given an out-of-court disposal for such offences in each of the last five years. [86320]

Mr Blunt: Table 8 of the Ministry of Justice Statistics bulletin "Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements Annual Report 2010-11", which was published on 27 October 2011, provides information about offenders who were charged with a serious further offence while under probation supervision and while subject to the multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA). MAPPA were established under section 325 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003. This information includes those managed at Level 1 (ordinary agency management), and at Levels 2 and 3 (active multi-agency management). "Serious further offence" means murder or any of the offences specified in Schedule 15 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 (except wounding with intent). The available information is shown as follows.

Offenders subject to MAPPA who were charged with a serious further offence

	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3	Total
2005-06	—	50	12	—
2006-07	—	69	13	—
2007-08	—	72	7	—
2008-09[1]	—	40	8	—
2009-10	162	31	3	196
2010-11	108	23	3	134

[1] On 1 December 2008, Probation Circular 22/2008 introduced changes in the process for notification and the subsequent review of serious further offences. As a result, the figures for 2008-09 include cases before and after the changes and therefore are not directly comparable with the previous and subsequent year.

Information is not centrally available about (a) the number of offences, other than serious further offences, committed by offenders subject to MAPPA; (b) the particular offences (within the list of serious further offences as a whole) with which offenders were charged; or (c) the proportion of charges for these or other offences resulting in the different outcomes specified by my hon. Friend the Member for Witham (Priti Patel). The information could be obtained only by a manual search of the records held by all the local probation trusts and police forces of all the offenders made subject to MAPPA in the last five years. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Remand in Custody

Mrs Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children he expects there to be in custody between 2011-12 and 2013-14. [86662]

Mr Blunt: The Ministry of Justice produces annual projections of the prison population in England and Wales, most recently in October 2011. These project the prison population under three different scenarios based on the impact of three different sentencing trends on custodial convictions (higher, medium and lower).

The following table shows average monthly projected juvenile prison population for the financial years 2011-12, 2012-13 and 2013-14.

Average projections juvenile prison population (financial year figures)

	Sentencing scenarios
	Medium	Lower	Higher
2011-12	1,700	1,700	1,800
2012-13	1,700	1,600	1,700
2013-14	1,600	1,500	1,700

Notes:
1. All figures are rounded to the nearest 100.
2. This population only includes those aged 15-17 in young offending institutions. Young people detained in secure children's homes or secure training centres are not included.

More details on the projections may be found in the latest published bulletin "Prison Population Projections 2011-2017" Ministry of Justice Statistics Bulletin, 27 October 2011. This is available at the following webpage:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/downloads/publications/statistics-and-data/mojstats/prison-pop-projections-2011-17.pdf

These projections take no account of any impacts which might result from the Legal Aid, Sentencing and Punishment of Offenders Bill which is currently passing through Parliament:

www.justice.gov.uk/publications/bills-and-acts/bills/legal-aid-and-sentencing-bill.htm

As such these projections provide a set of "baseline" scenarios against which the impacts of future changes can be assessed. Other impacts included in the projections, such as those of the August 2011 public disorder events, changing legislation, changing procedures and new sentencing guidelines are applied equally to all three scenarios.

Reoffenders: Alternatives to Prosecution

Priti Patel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders subject to out-of-court disposals reoffended within (a) one month, (b) two months, (c) three months, (d) six months, (e) nine months and (f) one year or more of receiving that out-of-court disposal. [84414]

Mr Blunt: Table 1 shows the proven reoffending rates for adults and juveniles who reoffended within one year of receiving an out-of-court disposal, (caution for adults and reprimand or final warning for juveniles) between January and December 2009.

Table 1: Adult and Juvenile proven re-offending rates for offenders who received an out-of-court disposal in 2009

	Number of offenders	Reoffending rate (percentage)
Adult	211,892	17.6
Juveniles	78,132	23.3

Proven reoffending is defined as any offence committed in a one year follow-up period and receiving a court conviction, caution, reprimand or warning in the one year follow-up. Following this one year period, a further six months is allowed for cases to progress through the courts.

Reoffending rates for this group of offenders are not available for follow-up periods of less than one year. However the MOJ publishes the number of proven reoffences by month of offence which can be broken down by disposal. Table 2 shows the numbers of reoffences committed within one month, two months, three months, six months, nine months and one year for adults and juveniles who were subject to an out-of-court disposal between January and December 2009.

Table 2: Total number of reoffences within each number of months

Months to reoffence	Adults	Juveniles
1	14,994	6,007
2	23,403	9,572
3	31,356	13,085
6	52,442	22,648
9	71,120	32,112
12	85,750	39,697

Note:
An offender can commit more than one reoffence so can therefore be counted more than once in the above breakdown. Adult offenders who received an out-of-court disposal in 2009 and reoffended, committed on average 2.3 reoffences each over 12 months.

Reoffenders: Crimes of Violence

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the highest number of previous convictions for assault was for an individual convicted of an offence of assault without being sent to prison in each of the last three years; and how many offences that individual had committed in total at the point of sentence for that offence. [85474]

Mr Blunt: The following table shows the highest number of previous convictions for common assault, for individuals convicted of this offence in the year 2008-10 who received a sentence other than immediate custody. It also shows their total number of previous cautions and convictions. Although these individuals did not go to prison for their index offence, two had previously been to prison for the same offence. The figure for 2008 is for a female whose first caution or conviction was in 2004 and who have never been sentenced to immediate custody. The figure for 2009 is for a male whose first caution or conviction was in 1997. The figure for 2010 is for a male whose first caution or conviction was in 1971. The sentencing guidelines for common assault provide for starting points of non-custodial sentences for all categories of case.

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer, which, as with any large-scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

Highest number of previous convictions for common assault, when convicted of this offence in England and Wales in the year 2008-10, and not going to prison

	Number of previous offences
	2008	2009	2010
Previous conviction for common assault	33	37	32
Previous cautions and convictions at time of conviction	68	122	315
Previous immediate custodial sentences at time of conviction	0	25	133

Theft: Retail Trade

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what representations he has received on sentencing for shop theft; and if he will make a statement. [87234]

Mr Blunt: We have received no representations on sentencing for shop theft.

Young Offender Institutions: Injuries

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people the Youth Justice Board recorded as injured in each young offenders institute in each of the last eight years; how many injuries were recorded in total; how many were recorded as serious injuries; and if he will make a statement. [86929]

Mr Blunt: The tables show the number of injuries recorded following incidents of restrictive physical interventions (RPIs), self-harm or assaults in under-18 young offender institutions (YOIs). Data are not collected centrally on accidental injuries. This information has been provided by the Youth Justice Board (YJB).

Although the YJB is only responsible for placing 10 to 17-year-olds, to avoid disrupting their regimes, some 18-year-olds remain in under-18 YOIs if they only have a short period of their sentence left to serve.

These data come from monthly returns from secure establishments to the YJB. Due to the way these data are collected it is not possible to tell if the same young people are involved in multiple incidents throughout the year. The YJB only began collecting the data centrally in 2007-08. Data for 2010-11 will be published in January 2012 with the release of the YJB Annual Statistics.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large-scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing and can be subject to change over time.

Young Offenders

Mrs Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much each local authority in the north-east has contributed to the costs of its youth offending services from its Revenue Support Grant in each year since 2000-01. [86658]

Mr Blunt: The following table presents the amount of funding that each youth offending team (YOT) in the north-east reported having received from their local authority in total, whether from the Revenue Support Grant or other funding, including staffing costs, payments in kind and other delegated funds, from 2002-03 to 2009-10. No figures were recorded before 2002-03. Figures for 2010-11 are not yet available and are scheduled for publication in January 2012 as part of the Youth Justice statistics.

Youth Custody

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children aged under 18 years in each age group were held in the secure estate on 30 November (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011. [87439]

Mr Blunt: The following table shows the number of children aged under 18 years by each age held in the secure estate for children and young people at the end of October for (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011.

As the prison population fluctuates from month to month it is appropriate to compare the same months in year-on-year comparisons. As data for November 2011 are not yet available, October data for each year of interest are presented.

These data are from the Youth Justice Board (YJB) and refer to secure training centres (STCs), secure children's homes (SCHs), and under 18 young offender institutions (YOIs).

Please note that data for October 2010 and October 2011 are provisional. The final October 2010 figures will be presented in the 2010-11 Youth Justice Statistics publication on 26 January 2012. The final October 2011 figures will be presented in the 2011-12 Youth Justice Statistics publication.

1. YJB data referring to secure training centres (STCs), secure children's homes (SCHs), and under 18 young offender institutions (YOIs).
2. As the prison population fluctuates from month to month it is appropriate to compare the same months in year-on-year comparisons. As data for November 2011 are not yet available, October data for each year of interest are presented.
3. Youth custodial data are published on a monthly basis; they are a monthly snapshot of the custodial population (taken on the last Friday of the month or first Friday of the following month depending on which is nearer to the actual month end). For October 2010, the total custody figure was taken from daily data supplied by establishments, with breakdowns scaled to the total. This is a standard calculation performed when there is a large discrepancy between the daily data supplied by the establishments and the central database (indicating that the central database has not yet been fully updated) in order to meet commitments to publish the data on a monthly basis. When data are finalised all figures are taken from the central database.
4. These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large-scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing and can be subject to change over time.

Youth Justice Reinvestment Pathfinder Initiative

Mrs Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many expressions of interest he has received from local authorities for involvement in the Youth Justice Reinvestment Pathfinder initiative; [86659]

(2) for what reasons the Youth Justice Board chose to use the number of custody bed nights rather than custodial sentencing rates as the outcome measure for the Youth Justice Reinvestment Pathfinder initiative; [86660]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the record of bed nights used in custody by (a) legal basis for detention and (b) establishment for each local authority area in England and Wales between 2005-06 and 2009-10. [86661]

Mr Blunt: The Youth Justice Board's (YJB) Youth Reinvestment Pathfinder initiative aims to reduce levels of youth custody in England and Wales. The two-year project, which started in October 2011, gives authorities the freedom and flexibility to use the funding to commission and deliver their own responses to reduce levels of youth custody and youth reoffending in their area.

The YJB received 13 formal expressions of interest for involvement in the initiative. These expressions of interest came from a mixture of individual local authorities and consortia of local authorities.

The YJB counts the number of custody bed nights used by a young person for the initiative. The number of custody bed nights was chosen for the pilot as it was felt that it has a stronger relationship with the costs of custody than looking at the custodial sentencing rates. There are two reasons for this:

The custodial sentencing rate does not take into account actual time spent in custody because of variation in sentence length. The bed night indicator (i.e. the number of nights in custody either remand or sentenced that a young person uses during a period) is a more accurate reflection of the number of people in custody over the period of interest and therefore the cost of custody.

It incorporates both the remand population and custodial sentences. Looking at the number of sentences does not reflect the true costs of custody, as a proportion of the secure estate population are held on remand.

A copy of the record of bed nights used in custody by (a) legal basis for detention and (b) sector for each local authority area in England and Wales between 2005-06 and 2009-10 will be deposited in the Library in due course. This will provide sector level rather than establishment information in order to avoid the risk of a young person being identified.

Youth Justice: North-east England

Mrs Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much Youth Justice Board grant funding has been made available for youth offending (a) teams and (b) services in each local authority area in the north-east in each year since 2000-01, by project. [85489]

Mr Blunt: This information is contained in two tables which have been deposited in the Library. The majority of Youth Justice Board funding in the north-east goes directly to youth offending teams. We have also included Youth Justice Board funding to secure children's homes in the region.

Written Answers to Questions

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the hon. Member for Caithness, Sutherland and Easter Ross, representing the House of Commons Commission, how much the House spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [87006]

John Thurso: The House purchased food to the value of £2.39 million during the financial year 2010-11.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Pensions

John Hemming: To ask the hon. Member for Banbury, representing the Church Commissioners, what the level of the Church of England's pension scheme deficit is; and what the capacity of the Church of England is to pay that deficit. [87676]

Tony Baldry: The Church of England Pensions Board administers three pension schemes on behalf of the Church of England.

The Church of England Funded Pensions Scheme (the scheme for clergy of the Church of England) had a deficit of £262 million at the last valuation, as at 31 December 2009. That deficit is being recovered over a 12-year period ending 31 December 2022.

Smaller deficits exist on the other schemes, which are being recovered over shorter periods.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

Victims' Commissioner

Owen Smith: To ask the Attorney-General what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues and the Director of Public Prosecutions on the timetable for appointing a Victims' Commissioner. [87244]

The Attorney-General: I have not had any discussions on this issue with the Director of Public Prosecutions or ministerial colleagues. Such an appointment would be a matter for the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice, my right hon. and learned Friend the Member for Rushcliffe (Mr Clarke).

Crown Prosecution Service

Mr Buckland: To ask the Attorney-General what assessment he has made of the potential effect on fairness of proceedings of the proposal by the London Area Crown Prosecution Service for prosecutors to make oral rather than written applications for the admission of hearsay and bad character evidence in proceedings in magistrates courts. [86972]

The Attorney-General: The principles which govern how hearsay and bad character applications are considered by the courts are prescribed by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 and the common law, and cannot be changed by any policy of the Crown Prosecution Service. The Criminal Procedure Rules 2011 allow notices and applications to adduce hearsay and bad character to be in writing, but also provide the courts with discretion to permit notices to be given or applications to be made orally and even to dispense with requirements for notice altogether. There is nothing inherently unfair in notices and applications being given or made orally. The rules apply across England and Wales.

It is envisaged that prosecutors will ask for permission to make notices/applications orally where they consider it appropriate in the circumstances of the case. Where the defence oppose this approach they are entitled to make representations on the issue. As part of its duty to actively manage cases, the court will then consider whether to allow notice to be given in the form proposed. The court will determine the issue in a way that best furthers the overriding objective of the Criminal Procedure Rules 2011—that criminal cases be dealt with justly.

SCOTLAND

European Council

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what assessment he has made of the effect on Scotland's interests in the EU following the Prime Minister's use of a veto at the recent European Council. [86982]

Michael Moore: At a time of economic hardship, both coalition parties supported a UK negotiating position that would have provided stability and reassurance to our financial sector while maintaining the integrity of the EU single market and allowing eurozone members to achieve greater fiscal union.

The UK financial sector provides direct employment for more than 90,000 people in Scotland, and indirect employment for many tens of thousands more, representing up to one in 10 Scottish jobs, and the negotiating position was the right one for our country.

PRIME MINISTER

Civil Servants

Mr Gray: To ask the Prime Minister if serving civil servants are obliged to register at the time any approach received to leave the civil service to take up paid work in the private sector; and if so, since when they have been so obliged. [87403]

The Prime Minister: Arrangements are set out in the Business Appointment Rules for civil servants which are contained in Section 4.3 Annex A of the Civil Service Management Code http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/resources/civil-service-management-code

EU Action

Angus Robertson: To ask the Prime Minister from which Departments Ministers and officials who accompanied him to the recent European Council were drawn. [87009]

The Prime Minister: Details of ministerial overseas travel are published quarterly.

Japan Tobacco International

Mr Hain: To ask the Prime Minister whether (a) he and (b) his special advisers have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87618]

The Prime Minister: Hospitality received by Ministers and special advisers is published on a quarterly basis.

Details can be found on the Cabinet Office website:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/ministerial-gifts-hospitality-travel-and-meetings-external-organisations-april-june

and

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/special-advisers-gifts-and-hospitality-april-june-2011

Joint Ministerial Committee

Angus Robertson: To ask the Prime Minister when he next expects the Joint Ministerial Committee to meet. [87010]

The Prime Minister: I and ministerial colleagues are in regular contact with devolved Governments, including through the forthcoming Domestic and European sub-committee meetings.

Members: Surveillance

Mr Watson: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has reviewed the Wilson doctrine; and if he will make a statement. [87768]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Lincoln (Karl McCartney) on 14 November 2011, Official Report, column 501W.

DEFENCE

Adam Werritty

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the pre-posting briefing meeting held in the Ministry of Defence in September 2010 for Mr Matthew Gould as HM Ambassador Designate to Israel with his predecessor and Mr Adam Werritty, referred to at paragraph 6, page 2 of the report by the Cabinet Secretary on allegations against right hon. Dr Liam Fox MP was held in a private official room; which departmental officials were present at that meeting; whether official notes of the meeting were taken; and if he will make a statement. [86058]

Mr Philip Hammond [holding answer 12 December 2011]: As the Cabinet Secretary's report states

"I understand that this was a general discussion on international defence and security matters to enable Mr Gould better to understand MOD's perspective of the security situation in the Middle East."

The meeting was held in the Defence Secretary's office. Mr Gould was present as Her Majesty's Ambassador Designate. It was a general discussion; no officials from the Ministry of Defence were present, therefore no official record or notes were taken.

Air Force: Military Bases

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he will place in the Library a copy of each item of correspondence his Department has received from the Scottish Government on their RAF basing review. [75188]

Nick Harvey: We do not normally publish private correspondence between the Department and the devolved Administrations.

Armed Forces: Pay

Kris Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to protect and improve the overall financial package for armed forces personnel. [86914]

Mr Robathan [holding answer 19 December 2011]: To protect and improve the overall financial package for armed forces personnel, we have ensured that all those eligible for incremental pay continue to receive this, even in times of a pay freeze. This ensures around 70% of service personnel receive a pay rise every year. We have further ensured that all those earning under £21,000 per annum have received a £250 consolidated pay rise, while the pay freeze is in place. Once the pay freeze is lifted, we will enable an uplift of 1% in the armed forces' pay bill in addition to all those eligible continuing to receive their incremental pay. We have doubled the operational allowance to over £5,000 for a tour of six months and increased council tax rebate to 50% for those on operations and, following necessary reductions to allowances announced in Strategic Defence and Security Review, we have ensured that we retain an appropriate and proportionate allowance package.

In addition, our work on the new employment model programme aims to strike a better balance between service and the demands placed on service personnel and their families, adjusting the elements that make up the offer to better reflect how people actually live, to ensure that a career in the armed forces remains attractive and competitive.

Graeme Morrice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason he has not adopted the recommendations of the Armed Forces Pay Review Body. [87469]

Mr Robathan: Successive Governments have accepted in full, without staging, all Armed Forces Pay Review Body recommendations since 1999. In 1998 a recommendation for one group of medical personnel was abated by 0.5%. The Pay Review Body's next report is expected in early 2012.

Procurement

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, columns 428-9W, on departmental procurement, on what basis the sample of 42 projects out of a total of 2,580 was selected; what those 42 projects were; and whether it is the standard practice of his Department to conduct an audit of projects on the basis of a sample size of 1.5 per cent. [86971]

Nick Harvey: To identify whether the controls were operating effectively, the selection was based partly on a random sample and partly on the basis of suspected non-compliance. The 42 tasks were as follows:

Riskhive training courses
Ballast water report and develop operating procedures
Centralised data warehouse
Safety management system
Project safety and airworthiness tasks
Upgrade airworthiness and safety data repository
Medical consumables schedule
Technical support to the attrition requirement
Review of cost estimates
Threat hazard assessment and ship explosive safety case reports
Signal smoke parachutist assessment
Review and update of safety and environmental report
Invitation to tender bid evaluation report
Business agreement negotiations and business case development
Legacy finance tasks
Requirements manager
Security assurance co-ordinator
Transport of vehicles
Requirements analysis and solution exploration
Defence information infrastructure input to the Joint Project Co-ordination Office
Human resource transition strategy
Revision to 'Green Book'—(An intro to environmental management in the MoD acquisition process)
Provision of technical support x 7
Bowman management information systems subject matter expert
Requirements capture and control
Installations and systems safety
Future installations support
Independent safety advice
Specialist technical support—business solutions requirements manager
Initial programme design
Specialist technical support—Crypto x 2
Development of user training materials
Development of training requirements specialist technical advice
Security specialist technical support.

The sample size varies depending on the audit, timescales, resources etc. In this case it was originally intended to review a sample of 25 to identify whether controls were effective, but this was later extended.

Depleted Uranium

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he has implemented his plans to phase out depleted uranium ammunition for the Phalanx Close-In Weapon System in favour of tungsten. [87733]

Nick Harvey: Yes. All Phalanx Close-in Weapon System ammunition containing depleted uranium was made available for disposal in May 2010.

Navy

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions Royal Navy submarines have docked at (a) Southampton and (b) Plymouth in each of the last five years. [86822]

Nick Harvey: Three Royal Navy submarines have docked at Southampton in the last five years. The specific information of individual dockings in Plymouth is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. There are, however, around 180 individual submarine movements per year in the dockyard port of Plymouth.

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of Royal Navy personnel was at sea on average in the latest period for which figures are available. [86823]

Nick Harvey: As of 15 December 2011, there were approximately 12% of the total naval service, including Royal Fleet Auxiliary, personnel deployed at sea.

Public Private Partnerships: Private Finance Initiative

Mr Mike Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on (a) public private partnerships and (b) private finance initiative provision; and if he will make a statement. [86828]

Mr Philip Hammond: Public private partnerships (PPP) cover all types of collaboration across the private-public sector interface involving collaborative working and risk sharing to deliver policies, services, and infrastructure. The Ministry of Defence (MOD) follows HM Treasury policy in this area and adopts these arrangements where they offer best value for money.

Similarly, the policy for private finance initiatives (PFI) is set by HM Treasury and implemented by the MOD Private Finance Unit. The MOD has no preference for PFI over any other form of procurement and continues to consider the use of private finance alongside all other appropriate acquisition options at the outset of all procurements. No MOD projects are currently pursuing a PFI procurement strategy.

The MOD intends to play an active part in contributing to the reform agenda for PFI announced to the House on 15 November 2011, Official Report, columns 34-35WS, by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne).

Service Personnel and Veterans Agency

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12 to date; and if he will make a statement; [86879]

(2) what funding his Department allocated to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86880]

Mr Robathan: As at 31 March 2011, there were 929.3 full-time equivalent staff employed by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA), and 827.2 as at 30 November 2011.

£110.976 million was allocated to the SPVA for financial year (FY) 2010-11, and £111.035 million for FY 2011-12. The increase for financial year 2011-12 relates to operating costs associated with the Armed Forced Redundancy Scheme and the issue of the Diamond Jubilee Medal.

Waste Disposal

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many times the Royal Navy has witnessed foreign naval vessels dumping waste into the UK exclusive economic zone waters in each of the last five years; and what the location was in each such case; [87591]

(2) whether he has received reports that waste has been disposed into the sea off the Scottish coast from the Russian aircraft carrier Admiral Kuznetsov; [87580]

(3) whether the Royal Navy has contacted the National Maritime Intelligence Centre concerning reports of waste being disposed into the sea off the Scottish coast by the Russian aircraft carrier Admiral Kuznetsov. [87581]

Mr Robathan: In accordance with international agreed pollution reporting, HMS York reported she observed items in the sea off the coast of Scotland. The Royal Navy passed this information to the Maritime and Coastguard Agency, who are responsible for enforcement of maritime pollution regulations via the National Maritime Information Centre. Various internal Ministry of Defence departments were also notified. Due to the weather conditions and time of day it was not possible to positively identify the items or pick them up for analysis.

The Royal Navy does not hold, and is not required to hold, records of incidents involving foreign naval vessels dumping waste into the UK exclusive economic zone waters.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Atos Healthcare

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Mental Function Champions are employed by Atos Healthcare for the purposes of the work capability assessment (a) in total and (b) in each region. [87302]

Chris Grayling: There are 60 Mental Function Champions employed by Atos Healthcare nationally for the purpose of work capability assessment. They are spread to cover all work capability assessments as necessary and based in the following regions:

	Number
Midlands and London areas	15
Northern England	21
Scotland	8
Southern England and Wales	16

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Atos Customer Charter will next be reviewed. [87304]

Chris Grayling: The Atos Healthcare Customer Charter will be reviewed in 2012.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to publish the outcome of the trial of the deployment of Atos-approved health care professionals in benefit centres. [87307]

Chris Grayling: There are no plans to publish the outcome as the evaluation was aimed at advising the internal DWP decision-making process to determine next steps for health care professional deployment in benefit centres for ESA and IB reassessment cases. Results of the trial were positive with both DWP decision makers and Atos Healthcare professionals benefiting from the arrangement. However, at the end of the trial, Atos Healthcare professional capacity pressures meant that the initiative could not be continued. From the start of December, DWP and Atos have agreed the implementation of a telephone helpline so that decision makers can speak directly to health care professionals to obtain medical advice in specific cases. This is an interim arrangement until Atos are in a position to reintroduce the deployment of health care professionals in benefit centres.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Atos-approved health care professionals are deployed in benefit centres (a) in total and (b) in each region. [87308]

Chris Grayling: There are currently no Atos Healthcare professionals deployed in benefit centres for ESA and IB re-assessment cases as Atos Healthcare professional capacity pressures meant that the initiative could not progress beyond the trial. From the start of December, DWP and Atos have agreed the implementation of a telephone help line so that decision makers can speak directly to health care professionals to obtain medical advice in specific cases. This is an interim arrangement until Atos are in a position to re-introduce the deployment of health care professionals in benefit centres.

Atos Healthcare: Training

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many days of training are provided to approved healthcare professionals working for Atos Healthcare to undertake the work capability assessment in dealing with mental health conditions that are not within their clinical specialism. [87533]

Chris Grayling: Atos Healthcare only train health care professionals approved by my Department.

These professionals receive, as a minimum, to undertake the work capability assessment:

11 days for doctors of which five days are for mental health training

23 days for nurses of which nine days are for mental health training

26 days for physiotherapists of which 14 days are for mental health training

There is continual professional development offered to support carrying out work capability assessments, including the assessment of mental health conditions.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 Session to date. [85928]

Chris Grayling: In the 2010-12 Session to the end of November 2011, 4,250 questions for ordinary written answer had received a substantive response, of which:

(a) 3,491 (82%) were answered within 10 sitting days;

(b) 547 (13%) were answered between 11 and 20 sitting days;

(c) 118 (3%) were answered between 21 and 30 sitting days; and

(d) 95 (2%) were answered in more than 30 sitting days.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide this information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Employment and Support Allowance

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people in the work-related activity group of contributory employment and support allowance with (a) multiple sclerosis and (b) other long-term degenerative conditions. [86973]

Chris Grayling: The information requested relating to people with multiple sclerosis is given as follows.

The term degenerative disease/condition is a general one; it may apply to any condition that leads to gradual deterioration, therefore this can encompass a wide variety of conditions. This may include conditions as diverse as neurological, cardiovascular, musculoskeletal conditions and even cancer. It is therefore difficult to quantify the conditions to which the question refers.

Employment and support allowance (ESA) claimants in the work-related activity group, with a diagnosis of multiple sclerosis in Great Britain, May 2011

	All	Claimants with a contributory element
Claimants in the work-related activity group	209,140	102,010
Multiple sclerosis	1,640	1,250

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Benefit type: The type of ESA is defined as pay status at the caseload date—this may differ to the status at the start or end of the claim.
3. Phase/stage of ESA claim is derived from payment details held on the source system.
Where the claimant is not in receipt of any benefit payment then the stage of benefit is shown as unknown.
4. There are a number of claimants entitled to both the contributory and income-based elements of ESA.

Source:
DWP, Information, Governance and Security Directorate: Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study (WPLS).

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions an individual who claimed employment and support allowance on or after 31 October 2011 did not receive a telephone call from the Jobcentre Plus decision maker advising what would happen following the outcome of the work capability assessment. [87294]

Chris Grayling: The telephone call by the decision maker to explain the outcome of the work capability assessment (WCA) was introduced as part of the Harrington review changes to better support customers making a claim for employment and support allowance (ESA) on or after 31 October 2011. Due to the length of time it takes to complete the WCA process, telephone calls have not yet commenced for the majority of claimants. Telephone calls have been completed for some straightforward cases, where the claimant has been found to have limited capability for work and no face-to-face assessment was required. For claimants who have attended a face-to-face assessment and been found to have no limited capability for work calls are expected to commence in the new year.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he last reviewed the ESA50 questionnaire; if he will publish the outcome of his most recent review of the ESA50 questionnaire; and when he next plans to review the ESA50 questionnaire. [87296]

Chris Grayling: The ESA50 questionnaire was reviewed during late 2010 and early 2011. This resulted in a new version of the ESA50 questionnaire being launched on 14 March 2011. This version incorporated many of the recommendations made by Professor Harrington and a number of disability groups consulted as part of the review.

As the Government set out in their response to Professor Harrington's second independent review, we are now working with Mind, Mencap and the National Autistic Society to review the ESA50 questionnaire in light of the recommendations they made to Professor Harrington to improve the WCA.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many formal complaints he has received in relation to the ESA50 questionnaire since May 2010. [87297]

Chris Grayling: There is no central record of formal complaints received in relation to form ESA50, the work capability assessment questionnaire. The ESA50 questionnaire is kept under review taking account of individual complaints received.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he last reviewed the main employment and support allowance letters; if he will publish the outcome of his most recent review of the main employment and support allowance letters; and when he next plans to review the main employment and support allowance letters. [87299]

Chris Grayling: Minor changes were made to the main employment and support allowance letters in May 2011 to improve the clarity in distinction between contributory and income-related ESA. Further small improvements may be made in the future if there is the capacity for changes to computer systems and funding permits. Letters are currently being reviewed as part of the proposals to time-limit ESA from 2012. There are no plans to publish a review of ESA letters.

Employment and Support Allowance: Drugs

Nicola Blackwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on the classification by Atos of employment and support allowance recipients who are receiving residential treatment for drug or alcohol misuse as having limited capability for work without requiring them to attend a face-to-face assessment. [86841]

Chris Grayling: In March 2011, we revised employment and support allowance legislation to ensure that it met the policy intent to treat claimants as having limited capability for work on any day they attend residential rehabilitation for the treatment of drug or alcohol addiction. This widened the original provision to cover individuals receiving such treatment as part of a residential programme where no medical staff are present.

We have not provided Atos Healthcare with specific guidance on the classification of residential treatment; as we believe it has a commonly understood meaning. The policy intent is to ensure that we consider a wider scope of programmes that could satisfy this provision. It is for Atos Healthcare practitioners to gather and review the evidence on this issue and then provide advice on whether they consider the provision to be satisfied. It is then for departmental decision makers to consider all the available evidence and make a decision on entitlement.

During summer 2011, DWP officials engaged with the National Treatment Agency to better communicate the intent of this provision. We have received no other representation.

Employment Schemes

Mrs Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of (a) the Work Choice programme and (b) the Government's policies on job retention for those with neurological conditions. [85985]

Maria Miller: Qualitative research on the effectiveness of the Work Choice programme is being undertaken in a phased approach. The first stage of this was published on 24 November 2011. This document/publication is available on our website at:

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/ihs-index.asp

The Department has a programme of activity to help working-age people with a health condition remain in or return to work, by working with other Government Departments, devolved Governments and three key stakeholder groups: employers (specifically focusing on providing SME businesses with a greater capacity to deal effectively with health issues and sickness absence), health care professionals (to engender cultural change within the health care professions to ensure that good quality back-to-work advice is embedded in good clinical practice in primary and secondary care) and the participants themselves (focusing on supporting them to retain work when health issues arise). This support is not condition specific and so not specifically targeted at those with neurological conditions.

The Department continues to carry out research with GPs to evaluate the statement of fitness for work, or fit note. Qualitative research with GPs on the fit note was published in November 2011 and is available at:

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/report_abstracts/rr_abstracts/rra_780.asp

Two further pieces of research, an employee survey and a project involving the collection of fit note data, which will examine causes of sickness absence from work where a fit note was issued, will be published at the end of 2012 and in summer 2013 respectively.

The Department plans to publish an evaluation of the occupational health advice service pilots in February 2012. An interim report was published in the summer and is available at:

http://research.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/summ2011-2012/DWP_occ_health_summ.pdf

The Department plans to publish data from year one of the fit for work service pilots, including research with clients, management information, and interviews with key stakeholders, in early 2012. The final evaluation report, which will include interviews with service users and comparison data for an impact study, will be published in late 2012.

Every Decision Counts

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Every Decision Counts events his Department has held (a) in total and (b) in each region. [87305]

Chris Grayling: A total of 11 Every Decision Counts events have been held since September 2010. The events are telephone audio conferences and are open to decision makers within DWP the Benefits Directorate across all regions of the UK.

General Medical Council

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department has made a submission to the General Medical Council consultation on good medical practice on the duty of a health care professional and the return of a patient to employment. [87535]

Chris Grayling: The Department did make a recent submission to the General Medical Council's consultation on good medical practice. This has been placed in the Library.

Housing Benefit: Offenders

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he plans to include ex-offenders in the category of vulnerable people for the purposes of direct payment of housing benefit to landlords. [87734]

Steve Webb: Currently in housing benefit, for the vast majority of tenants in the social rented sector, rent is paid direct to the landlord. In the private rented sector, the local housing allowance is paid direct to the tenant unless they have built up arrears of eight weeks or more. Additional safeguards are in place for people to allow for payment to the landlord where the local authority feels that a tenant is likely to have difficulty paying their rent. This could include people who have recently left prison.

In preparation for universal credit, we are running six housing demonstration projects from June 2012 to June 2013 to test out elements of a direct payment to tenant process. This includes testing how we can provide support and exemptions for those who are less able to manage financially. An evaluation of the projects will be conducted by independent contractors; CRESR at Sheffield Hallam University, the Oxford Institute of Social Policy (OISP) at the University of Oxford, and Ipsos MORI.

Housing Benefit: Pensioners

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the (a) equity and (b) financial pressures on other vulnerable groups arising from the measures in respect of pensioners proposed for housing benefit reform. [87660]

Steve Webb: As part of the proposed benefit reforms outlined in the Welfare Reform Bill, housing benefit will be abolished. The proposal is that support for eligible rent for pensioners will form part of pension credit with the introduction of a new housing credit. The policy on this housing credit is still being developed and the impacts will form part of the overall assessment being developed to support the Welfare Reform Bill. This will include the impacts on all groups from the wider benefit reforms being proposed. I have included a list of published impact assessments on housing benefit reform as follows:

Housing Benefit: Tenants

Ian Mearns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to seek the views of tenants on whether the housing benefit element of universal credit should be paid directly to the tenant rather than the registered social landlord. [86756]

Steve Webb: My officials regularly attend housing forums and conferences at which tenants and their organisations are present. More specifically we shall be engaging with tenants as part of the demonstration projects, due to commence in June 2012. A major aspect of the projects will be an independent evaluation which will look at the claimant experience.

More information on the demonstration projects can be found at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/policy/welfare%2Dreform/housing%2Dsupport/social%2Dsector/

Incapacity Benefits

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he last reviewed the incapacity benefit reassessment letters; if he will publish the outcome of his most recent review of the incapacity benefit reassessment letters; and when he next plans to review the incapacity benefit reassessment letters. [87298]

Chris Grayling: In May 2011 changes were made to reassessment letters as part of a release of various IT improvements to reflect feedback that had been received about the quality of reassessment letters from claimants and customer representative groups. There are no plans for a general review of all reassessment letters or for publication of such a review. We continue to keep letters under review in the light of feedback received and other changes such as amendments to legislation.

Jobcentre Plus: Hearing Impairment

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to promote deaf awareness amongst Jobcentre Plus staff. [87584]

Chris Grayling: All Jobcentre Plus staff undertake diversity and equality learning to raise awareness and help them understand issues faced by disabled customers and claimants, including those who are deaf or hearing impaired and other customers with "hidden" disabilities. Jobcentre Plus advisers and disability employment advisers also receive additional training on disability to enable them to provide the right support to individual customers and claimants. This is supplemented by guidance which includes advice on making reasonable adjustments for disabled people, including deaf people, to ensure they have full access to services. This approach ensures staff are fully equipped to deal effectively with the needs of a diverse customer base.

Training packages also stress the importance of signposting customers and claimants to organisations where they can obtain specialist help and support, when required. The learning includes improving accessibility to Jobcentre Plus services by supporting customers and claimants with specific communication barriers, including the use of loop-aids, text phones, "typetalk" and interpreters. There is also practical advice given on talking to customers and claimants with a hearing impairment. Jobcentre Plus and DWP learning and support materials are updated regularly to ensure they reflect advancements in practices and techniques, enabling staff to provide a high quality, personalised and flexible service to meet the needs of all our customers and claimants.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria will be used to determine eligibility for his proposed wage incentives scheme after (a) three and (b) six months in receipt of jobseeker's allowance. [87736]

Chris Grayling: 160,000 wage incentives worth £2,275 each will be available to employers who recruit an 18 to 24-year-old who is participating in the Work programme.

The point at which an 18 to 24-year-old is referred to the Work programme depends on the type of benefit they are claiming and their individual circumstances.

Some of the most disadvantaged young people claiming jobseekers allowance (JSA) will be required to participate in the Work programme after three months of their claim to JSA. Others, for example care leavers and those with substance abuse problems, have the option of accessing the Work Programme after three months of their JSA claim. 18 to 24-year-olds without additional disadvantages will be referred to the Work programme after nine months.

18 to 24-year-olds claiming employment and support allowance (ESA) who are expected to be fit for work within 3 or 6 months are required to participate in the Work programme from the date of their work capability assessment. All other 18 to 24-year-olds claiming ESA can volunteer for the Work programme from the date of their work capability assessment.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Bridgend

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claim jobseeker's allowance (JSA) in Bridgend constituency; how many people he estimates would receive JSA if the work capability assessment (WCA) were applied to all existing recipients of employment and support allowance (ESA) and incapacity benefit (IB) in Bridgend constituency; how many people he estimates would be in the work-related group of ESA if the WCA were applied to all existing recipients of ESA and IB in Bridgend constituency; how many job vacancies originating in Bridgend constituency were advertised by Jobcentre Plus in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [86928]

Chris Grayling: In November 2011, 1,809 people were claiming jobseeker's allowance (JSA) in the Bridgend constituency.

In May 2011, the latest date for which figures are available, there were 1,230 claimants of employment and support allowance (ESA) in Bridgend constituency, of which, 440 were in the work-related activity group. There were also 3,400 working-age claimants of old-style incapacity benefits (incapacity benefit, income support on the grounds of incapacity, and severe disablement allowance).

The Department regularly publishes national and regional information on the outcomes of the work capability assessment (WCA) for ESA claimants. Equivalent information is not available at parliamentary constituency level. However, for Bridgend unitary authority, for all initial WCAs completed between October 2008 and May 2011, 2,200 (60%) were assessed to be fit for work. Of those who have subsequently closed their claim, around 800 went on to make a claim for JSA shortly after being assessed as fit for work. There may also be some individuals who did not initially move on to JSA but made a claim at a later date. However, of those who have claimed JSA since closing an ESA claim, some will have since moved off benefits altogether.

Many existing IB claimants in Bridgend will be undergoing reassessment over a three-year period from April 2011 and it is not possible to determine at this early stage how many people will be assessed as in the work-related activity group or how many will claim JSA as a result of being assessed as fit for work.

Jobcentre Plus has received the following vacancies over the past year:

Office for Nuclear Regulation: Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 582W, on departmental pay, for what reason and on what date the decision was taken to pay two senior staff in the Office for Nuclear Regulation by means of payments to limited companies in lieu of a salary; and if he will make a statement. [87766]

Chris Grayling: These arrangements were entered into for the first interim in November 2008 and the second in February 2010. The decisions to do so were taken in the preceding weeks in each case to fill quickly temporary senior staff positions needed in the nuclear regulatory area of HSE. The cost of the posts is recovered from the nuclear industry, The individuals concerned were not available for employment except through payment to limited companies.

Part-time Employment: Pensions

Brandon Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of part-time workers are members of a pension scheme. [86375]

Steve Webb: In 2010, 34% of part-time employees in Great Britain were members of an occupational pension scheme.

This comprises 39% part-time females (2.1 million) and 19% part-time males (0.3 million).

Pension Credit: Bridgend

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the annual level of savings to the public purse which will accrue from reforming pension credit to require both partners to be eligible for pension credit in order to qualify for the couples rate; how many couples in Bridgend constituency comprise one person of working age and one person eligible for pension credit; and if he will make a statement. [86930]

Steve Webb: The Government have decided that for households where one member of a couple is over the qualifying age for pension credit and the other member is of working age, only universal credit will be available.

The Government believe that all people of working age who can work should be expected to do so and that it is not right to continue the current position where pension credit can go to households which contain a person of working age without that person having to meet any work-related requirements. The universal credit approach provides financial support to such couples, while giving the working age member of the couple access to support in finding work.

We have already acknowledged that it will be important not to undermine the stability and outcomes for existing pension credit customers, so the change will not apply to couples already in receipt who will continue to get pension credit while they retain entitlement.

It is estimated that this policy could save up to £100 million over this spending review. Because of the interaction with other changes to support pensioners, which are still being developed, we are not yet able to provide a firm estimate for a long-run figure for savings.

There are approximately *100 claimants on pension credit in the Bridgend constituency with a partner aged under 60.

Notes:

1. *This figure is based on very few sample cases and is subject to a high degree of sampling variation.

2. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 100.

3. The estimate of the number of claimants assumes that pension credit is available when one partner reaches age 60. However, the qualifying age for pension credit is increasing in line with the increase in women's state pension age. At February 2011, the qualifying age for pension credit was between 60 and four months and 60 and five months. Current data do not allow analysis that takes account of the increase in qualifying age.

Pensioners: Personal Income

Ben Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioner households whose combined income is higher than the average combined working household income. [87390]

Steve Webb: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member on 14 December 2011, Official Report, column 762W. Since some pensioner benefits—notably pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit—are paid to couples, rather than individuals, it is only possible with the data available to provide an answer at household level.

Pensions

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what dates (a) he, (b) other Ministers in his Department and (c) senior officials in his Department have met representatives of (i) the British Bankers Association and (ii) the Association of British Insurers to discuss the charges or commission or fees paid by people with a private pension; and if he will make a statement. [86865]

Steve Webb: The Department publishes on a quarterly basis details of all meetings between DWP Ministers, the Permanent Secretary and external organisations. The following links will give access to information up to and including 30 June 2011.

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/corporate-publications/ministers-meetings-overseas.shtml http://www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/corporate-publications/ps-meetings-external-orgs.shtml

Senior officials have met with representatives of the Association of British Insurers. One meeting, on 2 November, included a discussion of the issues concerned.

Brandon Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to reduce the burden of administration for the pensions industry. [87666]

Steve Webb: The burden of administration for the pensions industry will be reviewed as part of the Department's response to the Red Tape Challenge.

The Red Tape Challenge (RTC) is a cross-government initiative, led by Cabinet Office, which seeks to review all Government legislation, with an emphasis on those statutory instruments which affect business. The aim of the RTC is to revoke or simplify as much legislation as possible to ease burdens on employers and business.

Pensions will be highlighted as a main theme on the RTC website in spring for three weeks. This Spotlight period will encourage members of the public to reflect on pensions regulations and provide a focus for the pensions part of the RTC generally.

The Department views this as a real opportunity to look objectively at pensions policy and go back to first principles to consider whether the legislation as it stands reflects the Department's priorities, is generally fit for purpose and does not place undue burdens on the pensions industry. We are in the early stages of this process.

We will be looking to work closely with stakeholders on the RTC throughout this process—beginning in the new year. There will be extensive scope for all interested parties to offer their views on how pension legislation can be simplified and what can be removed.

In addition, we are also reviewing the legislation which requires pension schemes to disclose information to their members (and others—beneficiaries, for example). Our aim is to consolidate, clarify and, where possible, harmonise the requirements for occupational and personal pension schemes. We are also deleting some requirements and enabling schemes to disclose more information electronically. We intend to consult on draft regulations and introduce the updated legislation during 2012; early discussions with stakeholders indicate that they support the proposals.

Social Security Benefits

Mr Byrne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what changes he expects to projected spending on each benefit for which his Department is responsible as a result of the measures announced in the Autumn Statement. [85438]

Chris Grayling: The information requested is shown in the following tables:

Housing benefit: Exemption from the shared room rate for former rough sleepers and ex-offenders

Social Security Benefits: EU Nationals

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how long a citizen of an east European (A8) member of the EU has to be in the UK before they can claim (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) other benefits. [87782]

Chris Grayling: There is no set period in which an A8[1] national must reside in the UK before they can claim benefits. Since 1 May 2011, A8 nationals have had the same access to the UK labour market and benefit system as nationals of other, longer established EEA member states.

To claim any benefit, individuals must meet the normal entitlement conditions of that benefit, including any residence requirements. For example, A8 nationals who have worked in the UK and paid national insurance contributions may claim contributory benefits such as contribution-based jobseeker's allowance as soon as they satisfy the contributions and other conditions for the benefit.

A8 workers, like any other EEA nationals who have not paid sufficient contributions may claim income-based jobseeker's allowance providing they satisfy the habitual residence test. This requires an individual to demonstrate that they have a right to reside and are habitually resident in the common travel area[2]. Those who are not defined as workers or who are not actively seeking work are generally unable to claim any income-related benefits regardless of the length of time they have lived in the UK.

The UK non-contributory disability benefits (disability living allowance, attendance allowance and carer's allowance) have residence and presence conditions, which require claimants to be ordinarily resident and to be present in the UK for 26 out of the last 52 weeks. Migrants do not have to satisfy the residence and presence conditions so long as they remain in work in the UK. In other cases, where the claimant has not been present for 26 out of 52 weeks, the UK must consider whether the claimant has a sufficient link to the UK before allowing a claim.

Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions under what circumstances the pay and conditions of employees transferred out of public sector employment under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 may be reduced in their new employment; and if he will make a statement. [86877]

Mr Davey: I have been asked to reply as Minister with responsibility for employment law. The pay and conditions (excluding certain occupational pension rights) of employees transferred out of the public sector under the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations 2006 may not be reduced as part of a transfer, unless there is an economic, technical or organisational reason requiring changes to the workforce.

Occupational pension rights earned up to the time of the transfer are protected by social security legislation and pension trust arrangements. The new employer is not required to continue identical occupational pension arrangements for the transferred employees. However, where employees were entitled to participate in an occupational pension scheme prior to the transfer, the new employer must establish a minimum level of pension provision.

Unemployed People: Medical Conditions

Chris Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people unable to work due to endometriosis; [87208]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of people unable to work due to inflammatory bowel disease. [87222]

Chris Grayling: The information requested is given as follows.

Incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance and employment support allowance claimants with a medical condition—May 2011

Medical condition	Incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance	Employment and support allowance
Endometriosis	810	450
Inflammatory Bowel Disease	8,650	2,740

Notes:
1. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Incapacity benefit was replaced for new cases by employment support allowance (ESA) From 27 October 2008.
3. Causes of incapacity are based on the International Classification of Diseases, 10th Revision, published by the World Health Organisation.
4. To qualify for incapacity benefit (IB), claimants have to undertake an assessment of incapacity for work called a personal capability assessment.
Under the employment support allowance regime, new claimants have to undergo the work capability assessment. From April 2011 Incapacity benefit recipients will begin also to undertake this assessment. The medical condition recorded on the claim form does not itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefit or employment and support allowance. So, for example, a decision on entitlement for customer claiming Incapacity Benefit on the basis of alcoholism would be based on their ability to carry out the range of activities assessed by the personal/work capability assessment; or on the effects of any associated mental health problems.
5. Medical condition is based on evidence provided at the start of the claim, this in itself does not confer entitlement to incapacity benefit/severe disablement allowance or employment and support allowance and may not represent a claimant's most recent medical condition. Please also note that where someone has more than one diagnosis or disabling condition, only the predominant one is currently recorded.
6. The category 'Inflammatory Bowel Disease' includes those with the 'Crohns Disease' and 'Ulcerative Colitis' diagnoses.

Vocational Training

Meg Hillier: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to publish his skills strategy. [84121]

Mr Hayes: I have been asked to reply.

The Government published their skills strategy "Skills for Sustainable Growth" alongside "Investing in Skills for Sustainable Growth" in November 2010. The documents together describe the principles, objectives and direction of our reforms of the skills system. Since then we have greatly expanded apprenticeships places, introduced major local freedoms and flexibilities in skills provision placing learners, employers and communities in the driving seat, and introduced the Growth and Innovation Fund (GIF). The GIF will help businesses to act collectively to develop effective solutions to skills barriers that are hampering their growth potential.

Apprenticeships are at the heart of the system we are building, and we are well on course to deliver at least 250,000 more apprenticeships over the next four years compared with the previous Administration's plans. Our ambition is that the UK should have a world class skills base that is socially inclusive, supports growth and provides a consistent source of competitive advantage. "Skills for Sustainable Growth" and "Investing in Skills for Sustainable Growth" can be accessed at www.bis.gov.uk/skillsforgrowth

On 1 December, this Department published "New Challenges, New Chances" describing the Government's strategy for further education and skills for the rest of this Parliament. I wrote to all MPs on 5 December setting out our reform plan and how it will build on the successes already achieved, based on the principles underpinning "Skills for Sustainable Growth". It will also take into account the responses to our "New Challenges, New Chances" consultation which can be accessed at www.bis.gov.uk/consultations

As a model of public sector reform, we are simultaneously reducing legislative burdens and removing centrally dictated restraints to empower learners to shape the skills system, from basic skills provision through to the higher level skills most critical to growth. Copies of all the documents referred to are available in the Libraries of the House.

Work Capability Assessment

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the report on the work capability assessment by Professor Harrington, what additional support measures he has put in place for those undergoing the work capability assessment. [87295]

Chris Grayling: We are committed to continuously improving the work capability assessment (WCA) to ensure that it is as fair and accurate as possible. Good progress has been made in improving the process, as reflected by Professor Harrington in his second independent review of the WCA. In this review he stated that,

"The WCA has, in my view, noticeably changed for the better".

To further improving the WCA process, Professor Harrington has made some additional recommendations in his second independent review. We welcome these recommendations and have accepted the majority of them. We are also carrying out further work to consider how we may take forward the remaining recommendations.

We will continue to review and refine the WCA to ensure that it is more effective; fairer for all claimants and as a result fairer for the taxpayer.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions an individual who has undergone a work capability assessment since 6 June 2011 has not received a personalised summary statement of the work capability assessment in plain English. [87300]

Chris Grayling: The personalised summary statement was included in the Atos assessment report and made available to DWP decision makers from 6 June 2011. However the statements have not been routinely shared with all claimants. A trial was completed between 11 July and 9 September 2011 to issue the personalised summary statement to disallowed ESA claimants. A total of 452 statements were issued as part of this trial. Following this, a separate trial commenced in Oldham benefit centre on 12 September 2011 to routinely share with disallowed claimants the decision maker's reasons for the decision instead of the Atos statement. Based on the Oldham trial, issuing the decision maker's reasons for the decision is being introduced nationally from January 2012 for IB reassessment and ESA claimants found to have no limited capability for work. The Atos assessment report, which includes the personalised summary statement, is available to all claimants on request.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to publish the outcome of the trials of personalised summary statements in (a) Wrexham and (b) Oldham benefit centre; and if he will make a statement. [87301]

Chris Grayling: There are no plans to publish the outcomes from the trials in Wrexham and Oldham benefit centres. Professor Harrington recommended as part of his first review issuing the Atos personalised summary statement to all claimants. The outcome of the trial in Wrexham benefit centre issuing the Atos personalised summary statement to disallowed claimants was discussed with Professor Harrington and a change to his original recommendation agreed: to issue the decision maker's reasons for the decision instead of the Atos statement. This better aligns with his other recommendations to support claimants through the claim process and to put decision makers at the heart of that process. Issuing the decision maker's reasons for the decision has been trialled in Oldham and on the basis of this trial is to be introduced nationally in the new year. Professor Harrington endorses this in his second review, noting it as a considerable improvement on his original recommendation. It will continue to be monitored as part of ongoing evaluation.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to publish the outcome of the audio recording pilot in the Newcastle assessment centre. [87303]

Chris Grayling: We have received the evaluation report of the pilot. We are currently considering the evaluation evidence carefully to understand the costs and implications of audio recording as well as whether it will improve the assessment further for individuals.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he last reviewed the quality checks to improve decision making standards in relation to the work capability assessment; when he plans to publish the outcomes of his most recent review of the quality checks to improve decision making standards in relation to work capability assessment; and when he next plans to review the quality checks to improve decision making standards in relation to the work capability assessment. [87306]

Chris Grayling: Quality checks in relation to the work capability assessment were introduced in August. The check is an internal one and is used to give individual feedback to decision makers. There are no plans to publish this information.

These new checks are being monitored and evaluated on an ongoing basis. There was a national calibration exercise at the end of November to check standards across the country and a further event is planned for April.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the decision by the General Medical Council (GMC) of 4 October 2010 that an Atos Healthcare professional carrying out an assessment of a claimant's suitability for disability living allowance is not subject to paragraph 2(a) of the good medical practice guidance; and what discussions he has had with the GMC on this issue. [87534]

Chris Grayling: The Department has not made any assessment of the decision, nor have there been any discussions with the GMC on this issue.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what auditing process is undertaken by his Department in relation to the number of successful appeals by those found fit for work by Atos Healthcare and his Department's decision makers following a work capability assessment. [87677]

Chris Grayling: All allowed appeals are referred back to DWP decision makers so that any learning points can be identified. Local arrangements are in place to cascade relevant information as appropriate. DWP is also working with HMCTS to identify any trends in decisions which it could usefully address.

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have been found fit for work under the work capability assessment who had submitted an appeal against that decision and subsequently died prior to the appeal being heard. [87678]

Chris Grayling: The Department for Work and Pensions does not record the information requested. However, HM Courts and Tribunals Service (HMCTS) management information indicates that between October 2008 and October 2011, the most recent reported period, 31 appeals against decisions relating to work capability assessments have been withdrawn following the notification of death of the appellant. HMCTS cannot identify which of these appeals were against decisions where the appellant was assessed as fit for work.

Teresa Pearce: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what follow-up procedures are in place to determine the reason for a claimant's failure to attend a work capability assessment. [87689]

Chris Grayling: When a claimant fails to attend a work capability assessment, medical services will write to the claimant asking why they have not attended. The letter asks the claimant to reply to the benefit centre dealing with their claim within seven days.

At the same time, medical services separately notifies the benefit centre that the claimant has failed to attend.

Where the claimant is considered vulnerable because of their particular health condition a decision maker will attempt to make contact by telephone.

If we are unable to contact a vulnerable person, the Department will attempt to visit the claimant to establish their reason for not attending.

Mark Menzies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what representations he has received on implementing the (a) proposals to revise the work capability assessment for people with fluctuating conditions and (b) other recommendations of the year two review of the work capability assessment by Professor Harrington. [87714]

Chris Grayling: Professor Harrington submitted the recommendations of the group looking at fluctuating conditions to the Department in late November 2011. The Department is now considering these recommendations carefully before coming forward with a response.

The Department welcomes the recommendations of Professor Harrington's second independent review and has set out its response to each recommendation in the Government response to the review published on 24 November 2011.

To date we have receive no representations on these specific issues.

Work Capability Assessment: Appeals

Tom Greatrex: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether Atos Healthcare undertakes any assessment of the outcome of appeals on work capability assessment. [87532]

Chris Grayling: Atos Healthcare assess feedback from the Appeals Tribunal Service, where its medical assessment is identified as substandard. The Appeals Tribunal Service handle appeals of the Department for Work and Pensions' decision about a claimant's entitlement to a benefit following a work capability assessment.

Work Experience: Young People

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how businesses will be recruited to take part in his Department's work experience scheme for 18 to 24 year-olds. [87730]

Chris Grayling: Jobcentre Plus is responsible for working with host businesses to source suitable work experience placements. This partnership working has already generated thousands of opportunities across the country.

Jobcentre Plus supports employers to plan placements which are hands-on, provide opportunities for skills development, and expose participants to the routines of the working environment.

Employers of all sizes in any sector can offer work experience so long as they can meet the terms and conditions set out in their agreement with Jobcentre Plus.

New host business can find help and guidance on how they may be able to participate through both the Department for Work and Pensions and Business Link websites.

Work Programme

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people aged over 50 years who will find sustainable employment through the Work programme in (a) the east midlands region and (b) Leicester city in each of the next three years. [87656]

Chris Grayling: The Department has not set Work programme performance expectations specifically for people aged over 50 years.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the proportion of land in the UK that is not farmed under Pillar 2 agri-environment schemes. [86946]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA only holds data for England. The following table shows the proportion of land areas in England not covered by agri-environment schemes.

	Area (thousand ha)	Proportion of land NOT in agri-environment schemes (%)
Environmental Stewardship (a)	5725	—
Predecessor (Countryside Stewardship and Environmentally Sensitive Areas) schemes (a)	515	—
Total land in agri-environment schemes	6240	—
Total utilised agricultural area (UAA) 2011 (b)	8863	30
Total agricultural area 2011 (b)	9314	33
Total land area of England (c)	13043	52

Animal Welfare: Circuses

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether animal circuses have been inspected by DEFRA-appointed inspectors or vets in the last decade; and if she will place in the Library a copy of any inspection reports. [70909]

Mr Paice: A number of inspections of animals in travelling circuses have been conducted by DEFRA-appointed inspectors or vets in the past decade. However, no central record is kept of such inspections, nor of any reports which might have been written as a result of an inspection. The three inspections carried out for DEFRA in 2008 as part of a feasibility study to evaluate the potential of an inspection system for such circuses were conducted on a confidential basis, and as a consequence we will not release these reports.

The proposed new circus animal licensing scheme will put inspections on a formal, statutory, footing. The new scheme will ensure that we have a record of all the licensing inspections carried out in circuses. We will also want to consider what information about, and from, the inspections should be made available publicly to ensure that the scheme is as transparent as possible.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration she has given to the use of alternatives to the culling of badgers for the purposes of controlling bovine TB. [86590]

Mr Paice: Cattle measures will continue to be the foundation of DEFRA's control programme across England. However, we know that to tackle this disease we need to look at each and every transmission route, and that includes transmission from badgers to cattle. Good biosecurity practices are important but on-farm biosecurity controls are likely only to reduce, not eliminate, TB transmission risks from infectious badgers. Ultimately, we want to be able to vaccinate cattle and badgers, but there are practical difficulties with the injectable badger vaccine, which is currently the only available option. We are working hard to develop a cattle vaccine and an oral badger vaccine, but usable and approved vaccines are still years away and we cannot say with any certainty when they will be ready.

In addition, veterinary and scientific advice is that culling in high TB incidence areas, carried out in line with the licence criteria, will reduce the number of infected badgers, and thus the weight of TB infection in badger populations in the treatment area, more quickly than vaccination. It will therefore have a greater and more immediate beneficial impact on the spread of TB to cattle and the incidence of infection in cattle.

The policy statement published on 14 December provides further details. This is available at

Canal and River Trust

Tristram Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contingency measures are being put in place by her Department to protect the new Canal and River Trust from the risk of unpredictable major infrastructure failures. [86398]

Richard Benyon: The Government are committed to ensuring a sustainable and prosperous future for the waterways. Negotiations are currently under way between the Government and the Transition Trustees of the Canal and River Trust (CRT) to secure a long-term funding agreement for the waterways.

Subject to parliamentary approval, the CRT will take over the statutory functions undertaken by British Waterways to maintain the waterways in England and Wales. It will inherit from British Waterways a risk management strategy to deal with any infrastructure failures, including setting aside a contingency fund on an annual basis, and like British Waterways will be able to divert funds from planned spending should any unplanned incidents occur.

Once the funding agreement has been reached, the Government will expect the CRT, as is currently the case with British Waterways, to operate and maintain the canal network in a way which enables it to deal with infrastructure failures without additional support from the Government, as is currently the case with British Waterways. The CRT will have access to new income streams such as donations, charitable grants and legacies, an ability to borrow against its property assets, wider commercial opportunities and fundraising.

Dangerous Dogs

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the reasons are for the time taken in bringing forward proposals to address dangerous dogs. [80992]

Mr Paice: My noble Friend, Lord Taylor of Holbeach, who leads on the subject of dangerous dogs in DEFRA, has been working alongside Lord Henley to see how the proposed antisocial measures currently being developed in the Home Office can be best applied to such behaviour relating to dogs. DEFRA has also been developing proposals on reducing dog attacks and promoting more responsible dog ownership. This is now at an advanced stage and, subject to ministerial clearance, we will be able to make an announcement early in the new year.

Food Labelling

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether food and catering services in (a) her Department and (b) public bodies for which she is responsible plan to implement calorie labelling on menus and display boards. [85846]

Richard Benyon: Government buying standards (GBS) for food and catering, which were introduced for the first time in June this year, are designed to help people make healthier choices as well as promote more sustainable sourcing and operations in catering services. GBS are mandatory for central Government and are being promoted across the public sector. The best practice criteria include calorie and allergen labelling on menus.

DEFRA's catering contract with Eurest covers core DEFRA, the Rural Payments Agency, the Marine Management Organisation, the Food and Environment Research Agency, the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency, Natural England, the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science, and the Veterinary Medicines Directorate. DEFRA's caterer has agreed to include calorie labelling on menu boards and this is rolling out across the DEFRA estate.

The Environment Agency has a separate catering contract to DEFRA. Menus and display boards at the Environment Agency currently have healthy eating, vegetarian and organic labelling. The Environment Agency will be re-tendering food and catering services in early 2012 and will include calorie labelling at this point.

Consultants

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent on consultancy by her Department since May 2010. [80270]

Richard Benyon: The core Department has spent £10,198,919 on consultancy in the period May 2010 to October 2011.

Design Services

Dan Jarvis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much her Department has spent on design in respect of (a) logos, (b) buildings, (c) advertising, (d) stationery and (e) campaigns in the last year for which figures are available. [80207]

Richard Benyon: For the 2010-11 financial year the information is:

(a) £5,857 so that the DEFRA logo and brand could be used more easily on websites, including reducing the amount of ink needed for printing.

(b) £0

(c) and (e) £15,617 on design costs on campaigns, which includes advertising spend when it has formed part of a campaign. This includes public information material, for example, on plant and animal health.

(d) £0

Departmental Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether any senior staff in (a) her Department and (b) its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary; and if she will publish her policy on such payments. [85079]

Richard Benyon: All senior staff (SCS equivalent and above) employed directly by the Department, employed directly in our executive agencies (Animal Health Veterinary Laboratories Agency, Veterinary Medicines Directorate, Rural Payments Agency, Food and Environment Research Agency and Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science) and employed directly in our main executive non-departmental public bodies (Environment Agency, Natural England, Gangmasters Licensing Authority, Consumer Council for Water, Royal Botanic Gardens Kew, Marine Management Organisation and Joint Nature Conservation Committee) are covered by the Treasury's pay remit process, are paid through payroll.

Departmental Recycling

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she is taking steps to increase the proportion of waste recycled by her Department. [85382]

Richard Benyon: DEFRA and its agencies have reduced the quantity of waste they generate by 30% compared with 2004-05 levels, and in 2010-11, a 42% recycling rate was achieved. Our waste is managed according to the Reduce, Reuse, Recycle hierarchy; this arrangement ensures that all waste is disposed of in the most environmentally responsible manner.

We have introduced food waste collections for composting from our London, Alnwick and York sites. Our "bin the bin" programme removed desk-side bins and encouraged staff to recycle their waste. This resulted in recycling rates increasing from an average of 35% to 82% at the sites involved.

DEFRA's procurement team is working with suppliers for new contracts to minimise packaging waste and to consider sustainability more widely in their service provision.

A significant quantity of the Department's waste (approximately 67%) is generated by the laboratory estate and is the result of scientific research into plant and animal disease. For environmental protection reasons, this waste cannot be recycled and currently, the Department has no option other than to send it to landfill or destroy it by incineration (much of which includes energy recovery). Over 75% of non-laboratory waste is already recycled. We are currently investigating opportunities for minimising laboratory waste sent to landfill.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many applications to run services for which her Department is directly responsible she has received from employees in her Department since May 2010; and if she will make a statement. [77607]

Richard Benyon: We have not received any applications from employees to run services for which the Department is directly responsible.

Departmental Travel Expenditure

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much has been spent on travel by officials of her Department since May 2010. [80267]

Richard Benyon: The total amount spent on travel by officials within the Department since May 2010 through to November 2011 is £2,992,374. This does not include Ministers and costs relating to their office.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85924]

Richard Benyon: The volume of substantive answers to written questions, and the proportion they represent, can be found in the following table.

Number of written PQs due between May 2010 and October 2011[1]

	Number/percentage
Number of written PQs	2,908
Of which:
Number answered	2,896
Answered within 10 days	2,680
Percentage	92
Answered within 20 days	133
Percentage	5
Answered within 30 days	52
Percentage	2
Answered in more than30 days	31
Percentage	1

[1] Not including transfers.

Farmers: Compensation

Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers have received reduced compensation as a result of falling behind in the timetable for testing for tuberculosis in their cattle since July 2011. [87685]

Mr Paice: As set out in the Bovine TB Eradication Programme for England published in July, we plan to reduce compensation payments where TB tests are significantly overdue. We are currently consulting on proposals to make this and other changes to the Cattle Compensation (England) Order 2006, the secondary legislation covering the TB (and other diseases) cattle compensation system, from April 2012.

Forestry

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what area of (a) lowland heathland and (b) other priority open habitat has been recreated by (i) Forestry Commission England, (ii) other Government Departments and (iii) non-governmental organisations since the publication of the Forestry Commission document entitled "When to convert woods and forests to open habitats in England: Government Policy." [86703]

Richard Benyon: This information is not yet available. Restoration of open habitat from forests and woodland in all ownerships is one of Forestry Commission England's impact indicators for 2011-15 and it is planning to publish this information annually commencing in May or June 2012.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of the England Biodiversity Strategy's aspiration to create 200,000 hectares of new wildlife habitat by 2020 she estimates will be created under the provisions outlined in the Forestry Commission document, entitled "When to convert woods and forests to open habitats in England: Government Policy." [86704]

Richard Benyon: We are currently developing the delivery plan for "Biodiversity 2020", including working with partners to agree a more detailed plan for on-the-ground delivery action. This will provide more detail on how the biodiversity strategy's outcomes will be taken forward and is expected to be completed in spring 2012.

Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether she has received assurances from her ministerial colleagues that all Government Departments will be fully compliant with her Department's new mandatory buying standards by 1 January 2012. [86961]

Richard Benyon: This Government introduced the Government Buying Standards for food and catering in June this year and they came into effect in September. Now, for the first time, all central Government Departments have committed to procuring healthy, sustainable food and responsible catering operations. All new food and catering contracts, including DEFRA's own, will be fully compliant with these standards. Central Government are committed to looking at pre-existing contracts for cost-effective opportunities to meet the standards. Departments will be reporting their performance in line with their normal performance reporting schedules.

Local Nature Partnerships

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what her policy is on the participation of local authorities in Local Nature Partnerships. [87152]

Richard Benyon: In the Natural Environment White Paper, Government committed to supporting local nature partnerships (LNPs), where local areas wish to establish them, to work at a strategic scale to improve the range of benefits and services we get from a healthy natural environment. We want each LNP to develop and work in the most appropriate way for its local area. Local authorities have clear interests in the work of LNPs and would be appropriate members if they feel that it is in the interests of their communities to be so.

Marine Conservation Zones

Fiona O'Donnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who will be responsible for gathering evidence to support marine conservation zone designation. [82469]

Richard Benyon: The four marine conservation zone (MCZ) regional projects were responsible for collecting the evidence that underpinned their advice on recommended marine conservation zones (rMCZs). The Statutory Nature Conservation Bodies (SNCBs), Natural England and the Joint Nature Conservation Committee will also collect and use other relevant evidence as part of the process for preparing their advice to DEFRA.

At the same time, DEFRA is commissioning an in-depth review of evidence available for the rMCZs to ensure that all relevant evidence has been gathered and used appropriately. This review will report jointly to DEFRA and the SNCBs and is expected to inform the formal SNCB advice. DEFRA will also be commissioning some seabed and habitat monitoring.

Natural Gas: Exploration

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 3 November 2011, Official Report, columns 690-1W, on natural gas: exploration, what hazard data and classifications are relevant to each of the substances used for hydraulic fracturing in the UK; and whether the use of each of the substances in hydraulic fracturing has been correctly notified in accordance with the registration requirements set out in EU Regulation 1907/2006 concerning the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Registration of Chemicals. [82080]

Richard Benyon: The following chemicals have been used for hydraulic fracturing in the United Kingdom:

Chemical	Classification (with R phrases)
FR-40 (mixture)	None
Hydrochloric acid	Acute toxicity; Xn: R20/21/22 (harmful by inhalation, in contact with skin and if swallowed) Corrosive[1]; C: R34 (causes burns)

[1] Diluted hydrochloric acid is irritating to eyes, the respiratory system, and the skin.

At present, the requirement to register under REACH applies to substances which are manufactured in the EU or imported in quantities above 1,000 tonnes per year per manufacturer or importer. Lower tonnage thresholds apply for substances carrying certain hazard classifications.

The chemical substances used in hydraulic fracturing do not carry the relevant hazard classifications and are not used in sufficient volumes to trigger registration obligations. Therefore their use in hydraulic fracturing will not have triggered any registration obligations.

Polyacrylamide, the main ingredient of FR-40, is a polymer and as such is exempt from registration under REACH.

Looking at other similar uses, hydrochloric acid has been registered for use in mining.

Sheep: Disease Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which body records individual sheep movements (a) in North Yorkshire and (b) across England in respect of the monitoring and notification of notifiable disease. [85616]

Mr Paice: There is no requirement for movements of individual sheep to be recorded centrally. Individual movement records are maintained at farm level and, depending on when moved sheep were born, movement documents record either the individual sheep or the batch of sheep moved. Local authorities have responsibility for recording batch movement information of all sheep movements on DEFRA's animal movement licensing system. It is the responsibility of livestock keepers to monitor the health of their stock and it remains a legal requirement for anyone who suspects a notifiable disease may be present to report this to their local Animal Health Office. This is a key component of disease surveillance in England.

Solar Power

Caroline Dinenage: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate she has made of the number of (a) farmers and (b) landowners who have installed solar panels in their fields; and what assessment she has made of the potential effect of such a practice on income to domestic households from the feed-in tariff for solar photovoltaics. [87655]

Gregory Barker: I have been asked to reply.

DECC does not hold data on the number of farmers and landowners who have installed solar panels in their fields. However, at the end of November 2011, there were 301 solar photovoltaic installations on feed-in tariffs for stand-alone systems (schemes that are not attached to a building).

The existence of installations in fields does not directly affect the potential income from FITs for domestic households. However, in setting future tariffs the Government need to take account of the total impact of the scheme on consumers' bills.

The impact assessment accompanying the Government's consultation on feed-in tariffs (FITs) for solar photovoltaics (PV), available at:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/assets/decc/11/consultation/fits-comp-review-p1/3416-fits-IA-solar-pv-draft.pdf

This sets out the impact of our proposals on FITs support, generation and jobs.

Veterinary Laboratories Agency

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many carcases of each species have been examined in each regional veterinary laboratory for endemic disease purposes in each year since 2005. [85618]

Mr Paice: A document showing details of carcases examined for surveillance will be placed in the Library of the House. The information included is from 2005 to the present.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what safeguards will be in place to prevent the spread of animal disease (a) over the distances which the samples will have to travel for testing purposes and (b) from the decoupling of the test from the post mortem examination following the restructuring of the Veterinary Laboratory Agency. [85620]

Mr Paice: The safeguards that are and will be in place to prevent the spread of animal disease are:

(a) Biological samples are currently sent around the Animal Health and Veterinary Laboratories Agency laboratory network as a routine practice. Samples are sent via specialist couriers in compliance with the required packaging standards (The European Agreement concerning the International Carriage of Dangerous Goods by Road (ADR) and Carriage Regulations 2011), which are designed to prevent release of pathogens. The majority of samples are already sent to sites other than the post mortem site for processing.

(b) Decoupled tests—Some tests will remain at the site at which post-mortem examinations are being conducted. Otherwise, tests will be undertaken at the appropriate laboratory site depending on the tests required. These samples will be dispatched as above in (a).

Veterinary Laboratories Agency: North Yorkshire

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to which regional veterinary laboratory agency the samples from Thirsk and the surrounding areas will be taken for examination and testing following the restructuring of the regional veterinary laboratory service covering North Yorkshire. [85621]

Mr Paice: The veterinary laboratory service is a national service, rather than a regional one, with specialist laboratories undertaking tests from all around England and Wales, e.g. polymerase chain reaction (PCR) tests at Penrith and biochemistry tests at Shrewsbury. Until recently, a proportion of parasitology and bacteriology tests were undertaken locally, but now the majority of these tests will also be directed into specialist national laboratory centres.

A small number of tests will remain at the site at which post mortem examinations are being conducted. The remainder of tests required as a result of post mortems taking place on animals from Yorkshire will be undertaken at the appropriate specialist laboratory site depending on the tests required. Laboratories in Bury St Edmunds, Lasswade, Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Penrith, Shrewsbury, Starcross, Sutton Bonington and Weybridge will carry out tests from around England and Wales.

Water Companies

Nicholas Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if she will direct water companies to factor into their long-term investment plans the upper and lower limits of population projections for 2050 made by the Office for National Statistics. [86818]

Richard Benyon: It is a statutory requirement for water companies to prepare and maintain water resources management plans, which include projections of current and future demands for water and how the companies aim to meet this demand over 25 years.

Water resources management plans take into account the most up-to-date information available on housing numbers and population forecasts. The plans present and consider both trend-based and policy-based population and household projections. They also ascertain differences and assess uncertainty in forecasts. The plans include any uncertainty associated with the forecasts in their assessment of target headroom (the buffer between supply and demand designed to cater for specified uncertainties) and an explanation of this allowance.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Libraries: Pay

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport (1) if he will review the salary payable to the chief executive officer of the British Library to reflect her acceptance of a paid non-executive role at Ofcom; [86863]

(2) if he will investigate the acceptance by the chief executive officer of the British Library of a paid non-executive post at Ofcom; whether acceptance of this post contravenes the provision of section 6 of the British Library's staff handbook; and if he will make a statement. [86864]

Mr Vaizey: The appointment of non-executive members to the Ofcom board are made under a public appointment process which is regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments and takes into account fully an applicant's existing commitments before deeming their suitability to take on additional roles. The British Library's staff handbook and salary reviews are matters for the British Library, at arm's length from Government.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport whether companies bidding for contracts to supply goods or services to the organisers of the London 2012 Olympics are required to comply with each of the seven fundamental principles of Olympism; and if he will make a statement. [87453]

Hugh Robertson: Contracting for services and supply of goods to the London 2012 Organising Committee (LOCOG) is a matter for LOCOG who adhere to their published Sustainable Sourcing Code. In its procurement process, LOCOG assesses tenders for value for money, which it defines on the basis of five broad areas—Quality/Delivery/Disposal; Commercial; Sustainability; Diversity and Inclusion; and Legal/Financial.

Bidders for Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) tenders are required to comply with ODA priority themes such as Equality and Inclusion, Sustainability and Health and Safety. These themes are built into our contracts and contractors are required to work towards our aims and aspirations in these areas as well as providing reporting data. Our suppliers are also required to follow similar procurement processes to our own, particularly in embodying transparency and equal treatment of all bidders.

The learning legacy website contains information on all of the ODA's priority themes at:

http://learninglegacy.london2012.com/

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport whether he has made an assessment of the compliance of Dow Chemicals' contract to supply the wrap on the London 2012 Olympics stadium with each of the seven fundamental principles of Olympism; and if he will make a statement. [87454]

Hugh Robertson: No such assessment has been made. Contracting for services and supply of goods to the London 2012 Organising Committee (LOCOG) is a matter for LOCOG who adhere to their published Sustainable Sourcing Code. LOCOG entered into a competitive tendering process for the stadium wrap, and out of the companies that responded, Dow Chemical was able to produce the most sustainable wrap. This process has been independently verified by the Commission for a Sustainable London 2012. The International Olympic Committee appointed Dow Chemical as a global partner in 2010 and expects all their partners to meet their values.

Sports: Coventry

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to improve the provision of community sport in Coventry. [87649]

Hugh Robertson: Through Whole Sport Plans, Sport England is investing £450 million through 46 national governing bodies over the next four years. The governing bodies work closely with their network of community sports clubs to invest funding at a local level. Coventry

South constituency has received a total of £7,532,714 lottery funding and £1,791,444 of Exchequer funding from Sport England since 1995.

In addition, the mass participation Olympic Legacy—Places People Play, will provide funding opportunities for community sports with £10 million for playing fields and £50 million for community sports facilities.

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Olympics, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to protect playing fields in Coventry. [87650]

Hugh Robertson: Sport England is a statutory consultee on all planning applications affecting playing fields. Recent figures published by Sport England show that 94.5% of concluded planning applications affecting playing fields in 2009-10 resulted in improved or safeguarded sports provision. The figures can be found at:

http://www.sportengland.org/about_us/our_news/playing_field_safeguards.aspx

In addition, Sport England is investing £10 million into protecting and improving playing fields, as part of the London 2012 mass participation sporting legacy "Places People Play". Sport England has also provided advice to Coventry city council in the preparation of a city-wide playing pitch strategy which will identify the current and future need for playing pitches in the city.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Affordable Housing

Roberta Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the desirability of changing the provision of equivalent value in the National Planning Policy Framework to instead calculate affordable housing provision as a proportion of both off-site and on-site housing. [87756]

Greg Clark: The draft National Planning Policy Framework asks local planning authorities, where they have identified that affordable housing is required, to set policies for meeting this need on site, unless off-site provision or a financial contribution of broadly equivalent value can be robustly justified. This reflects current policy to encourage on-site provision wherever practical. The consultation on the draft framework has closed and we are now considering all the responses.

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Nia Griffith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities require planning consent for premises to be used for bail accommodation. [87780]

Robert Neill: The Welsh Assembly Government are responsible for planning matters in Wales.

In England, planning permission will be required if a new building is being built. Where a change of use of an existing building occurs planning permission may be required. This will depend on the particular circumstances of each case, including what the existing use is and the scale of any external physical works.

Under the Use Classes Order in England, it is possible that bail accommodation could fall within the C2: Residential Institutions, C2A: Secure Residential Institutions, C3: Dwelling houses or be considered sui generis i.e. in a class of its own. It is for local planning authorities to determine which use class a particular use falls into and whether there has been a material change of use. They do so depending on the individual circumstances of each case.

Community Relations

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps he has taken on community cohesion and integration; and if he will make a statement. [87727]

Andrew Stunell: We are working closely with a number of Departments on issues of community cohesion and integration. The Government plan to publish a document setting out their approach to integration in due course. The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, the right hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr Pickles), will make a statement to Parliament at this time.

Crime

Mr Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps he has taken to tackle hate crime since May 2010; what further steps he plans to take in each of the next two years; what recent representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement; [R] [86684]

(2) what reports he has received of the level of hate crime in (a) Southend West constituency, (b) Essex and (c) nationally since January 2011; and if he will make a statement. [R] [86685]

Lynne Featherstone: I have been asked to reply.

Tackling hate crime is an issue the Government take very seriously, and we are committed to doing more to support and protect victims. We are meeting the coalition commitment to improve the recording of such crimes, and working with the police and other partners to encourage more victims to come forward. We are also working with the Government's Independent Advisory Group to develop a new action plan on tackling all forms of hate crime, which will set out the Government's priorities over the coming years.

Data on the level of reports of hate crime since January 2011 are currently not available. From 1 April this year, police forces started formally collecting data on hate crimes to meet the coalition commitment. These data will be published next year as official statistics, giving us a clear picture of local patterns and trends in hate crime and helping the police to target their resources more effectively.

As an interim measure, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) agreed to publish its own data. The latest figures published cover the calendar year 2010, and are broken down by police force area. The information is available on ACPO's True Vision website at:

http://www.report-it.org.uk/hate_crime_data1

Departmental Civil Proceedings

Mr Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations that have received funding from his Department have brought legal proceedings against his Department in the last five years; which such organisations were not successful in their actions; and whether his Department (a) applied and (b) was paid for costs in respect of such cases. [83882]

Robert Neill: All litigation cases against the Department are managed by the Treasury Solicitors Department under a service level agreement.

My Department does not hold a list of all legal proceedings in the last five years. The Department would have to pay the Treasury Solicitors Department to obtain this information.

Obtaining these data, matching the two sets of information, creating a qualitative analysis of success or failure of the cases, and establishing the costs associated with the proceedings, would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold by a wide margin.

Electronic Equipment

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for South Staffordshire of 15 November 2011, how many (a) mobile telephones and (b) BlackBerry devices were issued to staff in the latest period for which figures are available; what the cost was of such devices; and what the cost was of the 735 such devices issued to staff on 1 May 2010. [82365]

Robert Neill: Currently 340 (a) mobile telephones and 552 (b) BlackBerry devices are on issue to staff within the Department. The actual cost of devices issued in a particular period could be disaggregated from the overall cost (cost of device, line rental and call charges) of mobile devices only at disproportionate cost. However, I am able to confirm that since 1 May 2010 until 11 November the Department has spent a total of £265,105 with our mobile phone and BlackBerry suppliers.

The number of mobile devices on issue within the Department has notionally increased because residual Government office and regional development agency staff have transferred into central DCLG and have also transferred their BlackBerry devices and mobile phones into the Department.

In a lean business environment the Department recognises the advantages in remote working that BlackBerry devices bring.

To drive down overall costs the Department has signed up to a centrally negotiated telephony agreement. The Department will now have greater certainty of telephony costs over the course of the central framework agreement as well greater flexibility with regard to contract length for each individual connection. The Department also has the opportunity to recoup a portion of total line rental spend from the supplier at the end of each financial year. The Department has used the collective bargaining power of the DCLG group to qualify for savings with suppliers.

Housing

Hilary Benn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) housing starts and (b) housing completions for (i) social rent, (ii) intermediate rent, (iii) low-cost home ownership, (iv) total affordable housing, (v) open market and (vi) total housing starts took place in each local authority area between (A) April and September and (B) October and March in each year since 1997. [83269]

Grant Shapps [holding answer 25 November 2011]: Affordable Housing Supply statistics can be found on my Department's website at the following link. These statistics are only collected annually:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/affordablehousingsupply/

House building statistics can be found on the Department's website at the following link. These statistics are collected on a quarterly basis:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/housebuilding

The Homes and Communities Agency's National Housing Statistics (which exclude some affordable housing that is delivered without Homes and Communities Agency grant funding) can be found on the following link. These statistics are available on a six-monthly basis dating back to 2009-10:

http://www.homesandcommunities.co.uk/statistics

The New Homes Bonus allocations also provide a valuable source of information on new housing and empty housing being brought back into use in each local authority area.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes were (a) started and (b) completed in (i) England, (ii) each region and (iii) each local authority area for (A) social rent, (B) intermediate rent and (C) affordable home ownership in (1) each of the last five years and (2) April to September 2011. [83581]

Grant Shapps: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Leeds Central (Hilary Benn) today (PQ 83269).

Housing: Fire Extinguishers

Peter Aldous: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 143W, on housing: fire extinguishers (1) which US data were relied on extensively in the final regulatory impact assessment published on 13 December 2006; [87118]

(2) with reference to the "Building Research Establishment Report 204505: Effectiveness of sprinkles in residential premises—an evaluation of concealed and recessed pattern sprinkler products", which data from other countries were viewed as not directly applicable or appropriate for the UK situation. [87119]

Andrew Stunell: The details of the analysis carried out by the Building Research Establishment are set out fully in their reports. These are, as set out in my previous answers, readily available on the internet. The benefits associated with the installation of sprinklers were calculated by estimating of the number of deaths and injuries that might be avoided and of the associated reduction in property loss.

Statistics from the United States were used to derive the estimated reduction in property loss. While the literature review included data from the United States of America, New Zealand and Canada, the researchers decided that they could not be used to robustly derive the estimated reductions in death and injury. Instead, a correlation between fire size and casualties was used.

Owner Occupation

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of (a) current and (b) future rates of owner occupation among different social groups. [87284]

Andrew Stunell: The English Housing survey has published information on owner-occupation among different social groups in England for 2009-10. Information on a variety of social groups can be found in table 1.2 at the following web address:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/statistics/xls/1937410.xls

We do not forecast rates of owner occupation.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what assessment he has made of rates of owner occupation (a) nationally, (b) in each constituent part of the UK and (c) in each region; [87389]

(2) what assessment he has made of likely future trends in owner occupation (a) nationally and (b) in each constituent part of the UK. [87283]

Andrew Stunell: Owner occupation is given as part of the tenure split in the published live tables on dwelling stock which can be found at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/stockincludingvacants/livetables/

Live table 101 shows UK figures, with England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Island in tables 104, 105, 106 and 107 respectively. Live table 109 shows regional data for England.

The Department for Communities and Local Government does not forecast trends in owner occupation.

Planning Permission

Roberta Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what provision he plans to make in the National Planning Policy Framework to ensure that added weight is given to applications for schemes which will house excluded and vulnerable groups. [87668]

Greg Clark: The draft National Planning Policy Framework asks local planning authorities to plan for a mix of housing based on current and future demographic trends, market trends and the needs of different groups in the community. The consultation on the draft National Planning Policy Framework has closed and we are now considering all the responses.

Public Houses: Co-operatives

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many co-operative pubs the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State in his Department with responsibility for community pubs has visited in his official capacity since May 2010; and if he will make a statement. [86885]

Robert Neill [holding answer 15 December 2011]: Since taking on the role of Minister for Community Pubs, I have visited a number of community pubs in an official capacity. I have accepted invitations to visit two co-operative pubs next year: the George and Dragon at Hudswell, Yorkshire and the Fox and Hounds at Ennerdale, Cumbria.

The Government are supportive of community pubs, including co-operatives, as valuable social hubs. Through the Right to Bid provisions in the Localism Act 2011, we are making it easier for communities to take over and retain these, and other, valuable local assets. The Government also support the work of other organisations, such as the Plunkett Foundation and Pub is the Hub, involved in helping communities to, where appropriate, take over and run their local pubs.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when he plans to answer question 79358, on the supporting people scheme, tabled on 3 November 2011 for answer on 7 November 2011; and if he will make a statement. [87680]

Grant Shapps: Parliamentary question 79358 was answered on 19 December 2011, Official Report, column 1017W.

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when he plans to answer question 83581, on homes, tabled on 23 November 2011 for answer on 25 November 2011. [87682]

Grant Shapps: Question 83581 was answered on 20 December.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when (a) each of the three centres in China and (b) the centre in Vietnam which provide non-human primates to UK designated user establishments (i) are due next to be reviewed and (ii) were last reviewed. [87110]

Lynne Featherstone: Two centres in China are considered acceptable at present. One is currently under review; one was reviewed in September 2011 and is scheduled for review again in August 2013. The centre in Vietnam is also considered acceptable, it was last reviewed in October 2011 and the next planned review is in August 2013.

A further centre in China is no longer considered acceptable. No consignments from this source have ever been approved.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the findings were of the most recent reviews of the two Mauritian centres that have supplied animals to the UK for scientific procedures in the last two years. [87111]

Lynne Featherstone: Both Mauritian centres that have supplied animals to the United Kingdom for scientific procedures in the last two years were classified as acceptable. There were no issues identified that required active monitoring by the inspectorate prior to the next review.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how her Department plans to implement EU legislation on reducing the number of animals used in scientific research and replacing them with non-animal methods wherever possible. [87112]

Lynne Featherstone: The European Directive 2010/63/EU on the protection of animals used for scientific purposes provides an opportunity to update current United Kingdom legislation. It will help us promote the development of alternatives through effective legislation, through continuing support to the National Centre for Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research (NC3Rs) and in Europe through support for the Union Reference Laboratory.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much and what proportion of research funding was allocated to the development of alternatives to the use of non-human primates (NHP); and how much and what proportion of funding was allocated to research using NHPs in the latest period for which figures are available. [87225]

Lynne Featherstone: The Home Office does not hold the information requested.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if she will impose a moratorium on the development and testing of vaccines against malaria, HIV/AIDS and TB on non-human primates; [87226]

(2) if she will impose a moratorium on the use of non-human primates (NHP) for the development of treatments of degenerative diseases such as Parkinson's and Alzheimer's due to differences in the brain structures between humans and NHPs. [87227]

Lynne Featherstone: I have no plans to do so.

Research using non-human primates is a small but currently vital part of work to protect and improve human lives. We cannot end such use without halting important areas of medical and scientific research.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licences under the Animal (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 were granted for research on non-human primates (NHP) that included water deprivation as a permissible motivational tool in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010; to which species of NHP such licences related; and for what reasons such licences were granted. [87228]

Lynne Featherstone: Water restriction as a motivational tool was permitted on licences granted in 2009 and 2010 as in the following table:

	Number of licences	Species	Purpose
2009	3	Macaques	Physiological studies and advancement of biological science.
			Control of disease, ill health and abnormality.
			Advancement of biological or behavioural science.
2010	1	Marmosets/ Macaques	Control of disease, ill health and abnormality .
			Physiological studies and advancement of biological science.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether it is a formal requirement for all institutions carrying out regulated procedures using non-human primates (NHP) to have in place formal confirmation from the supply centre that the NHP was not weaned at less than six months of age; and what the source is of any such requirement. [87230]

Lynne Featherstone: UK breeding and supplying establishments are expected to comply with the provisions of the "Code of Practice for the Housing and Care of Animals in Designated Breeding and Supplying Establishments". This code of practice states that:

(a) for marmosets:

"Young animals for issue must not be separated from the breeding group until a minimum of six months old, preferable eight months, unless there are good veterinary or husbandry reasons for weaning earlier (e.g. hand-reared triplets). Animals to be used as future breeding stock should not be weaned until a minimum of thirteen months of age."

(b) for macaques:

"Young animals must not be weaned at less than six months of age and 1kg in body weight, unless on veterinary advice e.g. mother is unable to rear baby. It is preferable not to wean before 12 months of age."

The use of non-human primates from an overseas source in regulated procedures is authorised only when the centre in question has demonstrated that animals bred and supplied to licensees in the United Kingdom will have been weaned at more than eight months of age except where there is specific justification such as rare cases where infants have been either abandoned or orphaned.

Those seeking to acquire non-human primates from a non-designated establishment are required through a condition on their project licence or certificate to forward to the Home Office information pertaining to the life history of the animals which currently includes details of the youngest weaning age in the batch.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of non-human primates authorised to be used in regulated procedures in the last 12 months were weaned at under six months of age because they were abandoned or orphaned. [87231]

Lynne Featherstone: The Home Office does not hold the information requested.

Asylum

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers whose cases (a) are pending and (b) failed are accommodated in (i) Newport East and (ii) other dispersal areas; and what proportion of such asylum seekers are single men. [83953]

Damian Green [holding answer 30 November 2011]: The current number of work in progress asylum cases in the categories specified is as follows:

	(a) Pending	Proportion of single males[1] (percentage)	(b) Failed	Proportion of single males[1] (percentage)
(i) Newport East[2,3,4]	86	43	24	21
(ii) Other dispersal areas[2,3,4]	11,354	21	9,692	18

[1] Gender unknown cases not counted as male.
[2] All figures quoted are management information which has been subject to internal quality checks.
[3] Data relate to S4/S95 accommodated/dispersed cases only.
[4] Postcodes are based on the applicants last known address.

Asylum: Reading West

Alok Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many legacy cases concern asylum seekers resident in Reading West constituency; and how many of these are not (a) awaiting prosecution, (b) awaiting removal and (c) subject to ongoing litigation. [87312]

Damian Green: A total of 35 legacy asylum seekers are resident in Reading West. Of these 10 do not meet the criteria under (a), (b) or (c) above. The data are sourced from a local management team and should be treated as provisional.

Babar Ahmad

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on the case of Babar Ahmad; and if she will make a statement. [87393]

Damian Green: I have received a number of letters from Members of Parliament on behalf of constituents who have written to them about the case of Babar Ahmad. Mr Ahmad's extradition is stayed while his case is considered by the European Court of Human Rights.

Crime Prevention: Expenditure

Stella Creasy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding was provided to (a) each local authority and (b) each individual non-statutory sector representative as part of the Communities Against Guns, Gangs and Knives Fund in 2010-11. [80514]

James Brokenshire [holding answer 15 November 2011]: The Communities Against Guns, Gangs, and Knives Fund is not awarded to local authorities. It is a fund that provides £4 million over two years, in grants of up to £10,000 a year, to voluntary and community sector organisations.

A list of these organisations, along with information on which local authority areas they will be working in and their allocated funding for 2010-11, can be found on the grant administrator's website:

http://www.grantsadmin.co.uk/documents/CAGGKY11to12ProjectList.pdf

Departmental Advertising Campaigns

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what public information advertising campaigns her Department ran in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2011-12; and what the cost was of each campaign. [87383]

Damian Green: The following table outlines Home Office and its agencies spend on public information advertising campaigns in 2008-09 and 2009-10, broken down by campaign area. All were carried out via the Central Office of Information. Final spend figures for 2011-12 cannot be provided at this point as the financial year is not yet complete.

	Campaign	Cost (£)
2008-09	Knife crime	917,764
	Acquisitive Crime Reduction—Burglary	918,170
	Alcohol Harm Reduction	2,790,203
	Community Safety	2,246,390
	Drugs (including FRANK campaign)	717,397
	Human Trafficking	8,928
	Immigration—Points Based System	2,453,007
	IPS Communications[1]	21,500
2009-10	Violence against women and girls	1,828,532
	Human Trafficking	28,974
	Alcohol Harm Reduction	1,716,361
	Drugs (including FRANK campaign)	442,130
	Youth crime	129,526
	Knife crime	854,554
	Acquisitive Crime Reduction	2,740,798
	Community Safety	3,701,897
	Prostitution	22,006
	Vetting and barring	167,137
2011-12	Drugs (FRANK campaign)	[2]—
	Violence against women and girls	[2]—

[1] IPS Communications costs (and its predecessor the UK Passport Authority) were related to informing the public of passport fee increases and encouraging the public to get the applications in early to help distribute passport demand more evenly throughout the year.
[2] Final figures not yet available.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [87000]

Damian Green: The requested information cannot be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

The Home Office does not directly contract for food supplies but procures catering services through wider facilities management or operating service contracts. Therefore it will not be possible to separate cost of food from catering services without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were working in her Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87342]

Damian Green: Information on the number of employees working in the Home Office is published on a regular basis by the Office for National Statistics, as "paid civil servants".

This management information is produced and collated at the end of each month and, as such, figures are not yet available for 8 December 2011. The latest period for which information is available is as at 30 November 2011.

I can confirm the following:

(a) The Home Department employed 31,513 paid civil servants on 11 May 2010.

(b) The Home Department employed 26,642 paid civil servants on 30 November 2011.

Parliamentary Written Questions

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many parliamentary questions for written answer on a named day by her Department were answered (a) on time, (b) five days late, (c) 10 days late, (d) 20 days late and (e) over 30 days late in each month since May 2010. [79541]

Damian Green: The information requested is provided in the following table.

Month	Named day PQs answered on time	5 to 9 days late	10 to 19 days late	20 to 30 days late	Over 30 days late
June 2010	44	17	5	2	1
July 2010	34	18	5	0	0
September 2010	19	12	6	2	2
October 2010	28	15	4	2	1
November 2010	33	18	13	5	2
December 2010	34	6	7	3	2
January 2011	27	5	3	1	0
February 2011	32	7	4	0	0
March 2011	41	16	7	0	2
April 2011	27	0	1	0	0
May 2011	21	7	2	0	1
June 2011	32	8	8	0	3
July 2011	14	11	6	2	13
September 2011	35	1	10	4	2
October 2011	26	4	1	0	0
November 2011	54	6	4	0	0

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide full information to the Committee at the end of the session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

DNA

Fabian Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many DNA samples of people from each ethnic group were retained by the police in respect of people arrested but not subsequently convicted of any crime in the latest period for which figures are available. [87170]

James Brokenshire: This information is not held centrally.

Federation of Student Islamic Societies

Mr Lammy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what correspondence her Department has had with the Federation of Student Islamic Societies on civil service recruitment events since 1 June 2011. [77954]

James Brokenshire: I am not aware of any correspondence being sent to the Federation of Student Islamic Societies on civil service recruitment events since 1 June 2011.

Firearms: Licensing

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has any plans to allow police forces to charge fees for firearms licences that reflect the cost of administering them. [87204]

Nick Herbert: The Government are currently considering information submitted by the police on the cost of issuing firearms certificates.

Human Trafficking

Michael Connarty: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what meetings she has had with the Scottish Government to discuss a UK-wide approach to tackling (a) human trafficking and (b) child trafficking since May 2010. [86932]

Damian Green: The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has not had meetings with the Scottish Government to discuss a UK-wide approach to tackling human trafficking, including child trafficking.

I chair the Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking, of which the Scottish Government are a standing member.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of illegal immigrants who may have entered the UK via the Eurostar route from Brussels via Lille during the six months ending November 2011; and if she will make a statement. [86555]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency closely monitors all trains from Lille at St Pancras, Ebbsfleet and Ashford and carries out more detailed checks where it is thought that passengers are attempting to evade controls. A significant number of passengers are also removed from the train at Lille in co-operation with Eurostar and the French authorities. As a result of these actions, around 300 passengers have been stopped at Lille and St Pancras between January to November 2011.

These data are based on management information and as such have not been quality assured. They are provisional and subject to change.

Immigration Controls

Diana Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of people who entered the UK at ports operating the pilot scheme of reduced checks at border control points during the pilot scheme. [81095]

Damian Green: There were 20.2 million passenger arrivals to the United Kingdom during the first quarter (January to March) of 2011 of which 2.4 million were non-EEA nationals, 11.2 million were British citizens and 6.5 million were from other EEA countries and Switzerland. These figures are numbers of journeys and include passengers in transit who do not pass through immigration controls.

Further information relating to the second quarter (April to June) of 2011 was published on 24 November 2011 in the Home Office Science publication, "Immigration Statistics July to September 2011" and the third quarter will be published on 23 February 2012. These data will be available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Science website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/science-research-statistics/research-statistics/immigration-asylum-research/

Immigration Controls: Airports

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether passport controls were relaxed at (a) Teesport and (b) Teesside airport during the summer of 2011. [80764]

Damian Green: Risk-based controls under the level 2 pilot were not used at (a) Teesport and (b) Durham Tees Valley (Teesside) airport.

Immigration: Scotland

Ann McKechin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she has held discussions with (a) the Secretary of State for Scotland, (b) Ministers in the Scottish Government and (c) representatives of Scottish police forces on the border access checks pilot introduced in summer 2011; and whether in each case those communications were (i) written and (ii) oral. [80506]

Damian Green [holding answer 14 November 2011]: The Secretary of State for the Home Department, my right hon. Friend the Member for Maidenhead (Mrs May), has not had any discussions or communicated written or orally with (a) the Secretary of State for Scotland, (b) Ministers in the Scottish Government and (c) representatives of Scottish police forces regarding the border access checks pilot introduced in summer 2011.

National Policing Improvement Agency: Finance

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding the National Policing Improvement Agency will receive in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and if she will make a statement. [87107]

Nick Herbert: The NPIA's resource and capital funding in 2010-11 and 2011-12 is:

£ million

	Resource DEL[1]	Capital DEL
2010-11	367.9	57.6
2011-12	355.8	44.2

[1] DEL—Departmental Expenditure Limit

National Policing Improvement Agency: Manpower

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the National Policing Improvement Agency in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and if she will make a statement. [87106]

Nick Herbert: The National Policing Improvement Agency had 1,788 full-time equivalent staff as at 31 March 2011 and 1,583 full-time equivalent staff as at 30 November 2011.

Passports: Gender

Naomi Long: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to review how gender is represented in passports; and if she will make a statement. [87357]

Damian Green: "Advancing Transgender Equality—A Plan for Action" published by Home Office on 8 December 2011 set out our commitment to review how gender identification is represented in passport application forms and passports. We are engaging with international partners on the security and personal safety implications of gender displayed in the passport. This is part of the normal process of working with our partners to ensure that the British passport holder is able to travel freely, securely and without hindrance. Any changes to the UK passport would need to satisfy our rigorous security requirements. We will contact key stakeholders in the UK in the light of the outcome of our discussions with other countries and the International Civil Aviation Organisation.

Police: Information

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information her Department holds on research commissioned by police forces in England and Wales on the effectiveness of police information notices. [87506]

Lynne Featherstone: The Home Office does not hold any information on research commissioned by police forces in England and Wales on the effectiveness of police information notices.

As part of our cross-departmental strategy on ending all types of violence against women and girls (Call to End Violence Against Women and Girls Action plan, published on 8 March 2011), which includes measures to tackle stalking, the Home Office launched a consultation in November 2011 which seeks views on how we can protect victims of stalking more effectively, including the use of police information notices.

Police: Recruitment

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has for future police recruitment. [81072]

Nick Herbert: Police forces in England and Wales are responsible for managing their recruitment and selection processes according to local needs and circumstances, in line with national guidance.

Serious and Organised Crime Agency: Finance

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding the Serious Organised Crime Agency will receive in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12; and if she will make a statement. [87105]

Nick Herbert: The Serious Organised Crime Agency received £462,839 million from the Home Office in 2010-11, and is expected to receive £447,894 million in 2011-12.

SMU 100 Laser Device

Steve McCabe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when she expects trials of the SMU 100 laser device by UK police forces to be held; and when those trials will be complete; [87143]

(2) on what basis she plans to select the police forces that will trial the SMU 100 laser device; and how the results of those trials will be reported to Parliament; [87144]

(3) whether she plans to report the findings of trials on the use of the SMU 100 laser device to the Home Affairs Committee. [87145]

Nick Herbert [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The Home Office has no plans to trial the SMU 100 laser device for use by the police service.

Smuggling: Tobacco

Dr Wollaston: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the expenditure incurred by her Department on salaries for full-time investigation staff allocated to the tackling tobacco smuggling strategy for staff (a) engaged in detection, (b) engaged in investigations, (c) working on intelligence matters and (d) in total in 2009-10. [83504]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency deployed an estimated 1,504 full-time equivalent staff to the tobacco strategy in 2009-10, assigned to detection and intelligence duties. Further and more detailed information is not available as the agency's expenditure records are not broken down by specific functions and activities.

Investigation and the provision of legal advice in relation to tobacco smuggling remained the responsibility of HM Revenue and Customs.

Dr Wollaston: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in the UK Border Agency were assigned to implementing the tackling tobacco smuggling strategy in 2009-10; and how many such staff were engaged in (a) detection, (b) intelligence gathering and analysis, (c) investigations and (d) the provision of legal advice. [83505]

Damian Green: The UK Border Agency deployed an estimated 1,504 full-time equivalent staff to the tobacco strategy in 2009-10, assigned to detection and intelligence duties. Further and more detailed information on expenditure is not available. Investigation and the provision of legal advice in relation to tobacco smuggling remained the responsibility of HM Revenue and Customs.

Stalking: Harassment

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what steps she is taking to encourage victims of stalking and harassment to respond to her Department's consultation on stalking; [87549]

(2) what meetings are planned with victims of stalking and harassment as part of her Department's consultation on stalking; [87550]

(3) whether her Department plans to consult with perpetrators of stalking as part of its consultation on stalking. [87551]

Lynne Featherstone: The Home Office launched a consultation on 14 November 2011 to seek views on how to protect victims of stalking more effectively. This is a public consultation, as well as specifically seeking the views of key partners and directly affected parties, and as such responses from victims and perpetrators of stalking will be welcomed. The consultation closes on 5 February.

The Home Office ran a series of regional road shows on stalking in November and December in Manchester, Durham, London and Avon and Somerset, to explore how partners can work together to better understand and tackle this important issue. Attendees included victims groups, individual victims and their relatives, as well as the police and Crown Prosecution Service. The events included interactive workshops on existing legislation and guidance, and discussions with experts on the effectiveness of current methods to tackle stalking and harassment. The road shows also gathered views to feed into the stalking consultation.

JUSTICE

Brain: Injuries

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what research his Department has undertaken on the effects on offending of acquired brain injury in the last 18 months. [87360]

Mr Blunt: No research has been undertaken by the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) on the effects on offending of acquired brain injury in the last 18 months.

Chief Coroner

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice by what date he expects to appoint the chief coroner. [87471]

Mr Djanogly: The Lord Chief Justice is responsible for appointing the chief coroner under schedule 8 to the Coroners and Justice Act 2009. We are continuing to discuss the matter, including timescales, with the Lord Chief Justice.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with (a) his ministerial colleagues and (b) the senior judiciary on the appointment of a chief coroner. [87686]

Mr Djanogly: The Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice, my right hon. and learned Friend the Member for Rushcliffe (Mr Clarke), and I have discussed the appointment of a chief coroner with the Lord Chief Justice in recent weeks. We have not, however, had any discussions with ministerial colleagues on this issue.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects (a) to announce the appointment of a chief coroner and (b) the chief coroner to take up his or her post; [87688]

(2) when he plans to announce who will be appointed as a chief coroner. [87764]

Mr Djanogly: The Lord Chief Justice is responsible for appointing the chief coroner under schedule 8 to the Coroners and Justice Act 2009. We are continuing to discuss this matter, including timescales, with the Lord Chief Justice.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to meet bereavement organisations to discuss the appointment of a chief coroner; and when such meetings will take place. [87690]

Mr Djanogly: Ministry of Justice officials plan to meet bereavement organisations in the new year to discuss implementation of the coroner reforms in the Coroners and Justice Act 2009. However, under schedule 8 to the Act, the appointment of the chief coroner is a matter for the Lord Chief Justice, following consultation with the Lord Chancellor.

Mr Jim Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he proposes that the chief coroner will be a High Court judge. [87767]

Mr Djanogly: Under Schedule 8 to the Coroners and Justice Act 2009 the chief coroner must be either a High Court judge or a Circuit judge. Appointment of the chief coroner is, however, a matter for the Lord Chief Justice, following consultation with the Lord Chancellor.

Civil Justice Council

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice under what categories of expenditure he expects the Civil Justice Council to make savings in 2011-12 relative to its budget in 2010-11. [87462]

Mr Djanogly: The Civil Justice Council has reduced its staff costs by moving to a joint secretariat with the Family Justice Council. Overall, this has resulted in two fewer posts, relative to 2010-11. The Civil Justice Council has reduced its non-staff running costs by 23% in 2011-12 when compared with 2010-11.

Criminal Injuries Compensation

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many awards the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority has made showing the number of awards in bands of £25,000. [87598]

Mr Djanogly: Figures covering cases resolved in the period 14 June 2010 to 14 December 2011 are shown in the following table:

Awards paid

Band	Number
£0 to £25,000	48,338

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86993]

Mr Djanogly: The amount spent by the Department on food purchased through its food and catering services during 2010-11 is given in the following table. From 2010, the Department has restricted catering for internal and external meetings, including in our arm's-length bodies.

The following restrictions apply to all departmental staff:

No lunches, tea or coffees can be ordered for any internal meeting.

For external meetings, catering procurement requires director-level sign-off and are only allowed in exceptional circumstances.

2010-11
	£000
Ministry of Justice HQ[1]	420
Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service[2]	5,376
National Offender Management Service[3]	60,957
Office for the Public Guardian	2
Total	66,755

[1] MOJ HQ—Catering costs for external meetings (i.e. including visitors/ attendees external to the organisation) and staff training courses.
[2] HMCTS—In addition to catering costs for external meetings and staff training courses, the figures also include the cost of catering for judiciary and jurors.
[3] NOMS– The cost of food is in respect of public sector prisons, and almost entirely relates to the cost of providing food to the prison population in England and Wales. It does not include any associated costs such as contracted catering services, staff and prisoner labour and training costs, the purchase of kitchen and servery facilities, utilities and other overheads. These figures also include a minor element for the cost of external meetings and staff training courses.

Departmental Manpower

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many full-time equivalent staff were employed (a) in the Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council, (b) as an Assessor for Compensation for Miscarriages of Justice, (c) on the Civil Justice Council, (d) on the Civil Procedure Rule Committee, (e) on the Criminal Cases Review Commission, (f) on the Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority, (g) on the Criminal Procedure Rule Committee, (h) on the Crown Court Rule Committee, (i) on the Family Justice Council, (j) on the Family Procedure Rule Committee, (k) in the HM Inspectorate of Prisons, (l) in the HM Inspectorate of Probation, (m) on the Insolvency Rules Committee, (n) on the Judicial Appointments Commission, (o) as Judicial Appointments and Conduct Ombudsman, (p) in the Judicial Office, (q) on the Law Commission, (r) on the Legal Services Board, (s) on the Legal Services Commission, (t) in the National Offender Management Service, (u) in the Probation Service, (v) in the Court Funds Office, (w) in the Office of the Information Commissioner, (x) in the Office for Judicial Complaints, (y) as Legal Ombudsman, (z) in the Office of the Public Guardian, (aa) as an Official Solicitor and Public Trustee, (ab) on the Parole Board, (ac) as a Prisons and Probation Ombudsman, (ad) on the Sentencing Council, (ae) on the Tribunal procedure Committee, (af) as a Commissioner for Victims and Witnesses and (ag) on the Youth Justice Board on (i) 1 May 2010 and (ii) 1 November 2011. [82518]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: The following table provides details of the numbers of full-time equivalent staff employed within the requested organisations:

n/a = information for this date is not available because it is not held centrally. Where possible alternative data are provided as a footnote.
[1] CCRC data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 81.
[2] For 30 April 2010 the Ministry holds only the numbers of CICA staff employed within the Ministry. The data for 31 August 2011 include CICA staff within the Scottish Government. However, on 31 March 2010, the total number of CICA staff (including those within the Scottish Government was 370).
[3] JAC data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 98.
[4] The increase in Judicial Office staff was the result of a restructure exercise, where staff from MOJ HQ assigned to Judicial Office duties were transferred to the Judicial Office.
[5] LSB data are available for 30 June 2010. Total staff was 32.6.
[6] LSC data are available for 30 June 2010. Total staff was 1,437.9.
[7] The change in staff numbers in NOMS also reflects a transfer of 1,200 NOMS HQ staff to MOJ HQ.
[8] Probation Service data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 20,440.
[9] OIC data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 313.
[10] Includes chief ombudsman. Two ombudsman were recruited to vacancies in June 2010.
[11] The OPG office is being relocated to Birmingham and in the transition period covering the move there is an overlap where staff have been recruited in Birmingham before staff in London are released.
[12] Parole Board data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 95.
[13] YJB data are available for 31 March 2010. Total staff was 272.
Note:
Information is available for executive non-departmental public bodies (CCRC, CICA, JAC, LSC, LSB, Parole Board and YJB) as at 30 June 2010 and at 31 March 2011 as part of the transparency agenda and can be accessed at: http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/transparency-data/senior-civil-service-salaries-and-organograms.htm

Parliamentary Written Questions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of questions for ordinary written answer received a substantive response within (a) 10, (b) 20, (c) 30 and (d) more than 30 sitting days in the 2010-12 session to date. [85932]

Mr Djanogly: In the current session from May 2010 to 9 December 2011 the Ministry of Justice answered 4,190 ordinary written questions. Of those, 4,158 (99.24%) were answered within 10 sitting days, 26 (0.62%) within 20 sitting days, five (0.12%) within 30 sitting days and one (0.02%) after more than 30 sitting days.

These figures have been drawn from MOJ's PQ database, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

The Government have committed to providing the Procedure Committee with information relating to written parliamentary question performance on a sessional basis and will provide full information to the Committee at the end of the Session. Statistics relating to Government Departments' performance for the 2009-10 parliamentary Session were previously provided to the Committee and are available on the Parliament website.

Domestic Violence: Crime Prevention

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many restraining orders have been made under section 12 of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 following (a) sentence and (b) acquittal for any offence in each of the last five years; [87433]

(2) in how many cases a restraining order under section 12 of the Domestic Violence Crime and Victims Act 2004 has been made following an application by a victim since September 2009. [87519]

Mr Blunt: On 30 September 2009, section 12 of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 amended section 5 of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997 to allow a restraining order to be granted following conviction for any offence and even where a defendant is acquitted.

The number of restraining orders issued under sections 5 (following conviction) and 5A (following acquittal) of the Protection from Harassment Act from 2006 to 2010 (latest available) can be viewed in the table. Court proceedings data for 2011 are planned for publication in the spring of 2012.

Information held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the Court Proceedings Database does not include all the details of the circumstances associated with each case, beyond the description provided in the statute under which proceedings are brought. It is therefore not possible to separately identify those restraining orders issued as a result of an application by a victim from those issued under other circumstances.

Restraining orders issued at all courts in England and Wales under the Protection from Harassment Act 1997, in each year between 2006 and 2010

Disposal	2006	2007	2008[1]	2009	2010
Restraining order issued under:
Section 5 (issued following conviction)[2]	2,722	2,631	3,081	5,073	10,094
Section 5A (issued following acquittal)[3]	n/a	n/a	n/a	—	647

n/a = Not applicable
[1] Excludes data for Cardiff magistrates court for April, July and August 2008.
[2] On 30 September 2009, section 12 of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 came into force. This provision amended section 5 of the Protection from Harassment Act 1997. This amendment enables the court to impose a restraining order in a much wider range of circumstances than previously. Under these rules, restraining orders can be granted following conviction for any offence.
[3] On 30 September 2009, section 12 of the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004 came into force. This added an additional provision (section 5A), which allows a court to impose a restraining order on acquittal if it considers it necessary to protect a person from harassment by the defendant.
Notes:
1. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences it is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Employment Tribunal Service

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases of (a) an unpaid employment tribunal award and (b) an unpaid ACAS settlement have been passed to High Court enforcement officers under the ACAS and Employment Tribunal Fast Track enforcement mechanism since its introduction; and in how many such cases the unpaid award or settlement was (i) fully, (ii) partially and (iii) not recovered. [86226]

Mr Djanogly: 2,072 unpaid employment tribunal awards and 210 unpaid ACAS settlements have been passed to High Court enforcement officers under the ACAS and Employment Tribunal Fast Track since its commencement on 6 April 2010.

The fast track is operated by the High Court Enforcement Officers Association and as such it is responsible for collation of performance data. The data requested are not segregated from other types of High Court enforcement and will require a specific collection exercise, which will be concluded by 31 January 2012. Thereafter I will write to you with the details.

Inquiries Act 2005

Mr Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the restriction order made by the Chairman of the Leveson Inquiry on 28 November 2011, if he will assess the effectiveness of the operation of section 19 of the Inquiries Act 2005. [85594]

Mr Djanogly: I have noted Lord Justice Leveson's ruling of 28 November 2011, but there are no plans to assess the effectiveness of section 19 of the Inquiries Act 2005. The Ministry of Justice conducted post-legislative scrutiny of the Inquiries Act 2005 in 2010 and the memorandum submitted to the Justice Select Committee in October 2010 concluded that the measures introduced by the Inquiries Act 2005 had achieved the objectives of the legislation and the Justice Select Committee did not request full post-legislative scrutiny of the Act.

Police: Hearing Impairment

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department is taking to promote deaf awareness among police officers and prison staff. [86934]

Mr Djanogly: As a Department, the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) is working to embed equality and diversity as a part of everyday business. As an employer the MOJ is committed to ensuring that our policies are fair and accessible to all, and as a provider of services, that this is done so in a way that meets the aims of the Public Sector Equality Duty (Equality Act, 2010).

Police officers are not the responsibility of the MOJ. The Home Office has advised that the Initial Police Learning Programme addresses the needs of individuals who have communication difficulties. Further training available includes guidance and information for officers dealing with people who are hearing impaired and who have hearing disabilities.

In respect of prison staff, there is not a separate specific policy on deaf awareness; rather this is encompassed in wider considerations on disabilities more generally. These include Prison Service and agency instructions on ensuring equality of treatment for staff and on our duties as a public authority. We have also launched a disability staff support network and there is an Equalities Group intranet site containing a suite of information and guidance around equality and diversity that can be accessed by managers and staff in NOMS HQ and public sector prisons.

Through local monitoring, prison establishments and HQ groups must determine which interventions or adjustments are best suited to meet their particular needs in respect of staff and prisoners with disabilities. An example of this can be found at HMP Whatton, where there are staff who have been fully trained in British Sign Language (BSL) and so are able to assist prisoners who are deaf and able to sign.

Police: Information

Mr Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what research has been commissioned by his Department on the effectiveness of police information notices. [87520]

Mr Blunt: The Ministry of Justice has not commissioned any research on this, as it is a matter for the Home Office.

Postcodes

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department uses postcodes for purposes other than the postage of mail. [84176]

Mr Kenneth Clarke: Aside from postage purposes, the Ministry of Justice uses postcodes operationally to help identify suppliers on its finance systems. A thorough investigation into the uses of postcodes throughout the organisation would incur disproportionate costs, though it is possible that some teams within the organisation would also use them for similar, statistical or demographic purposes.

Prisons: Finance

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much he had budgeted for the adult prison estate at the start of 2011-12; and what the revised estimate was of expenditure in 2011-12 on 1 December 2011. [87366]

Mr Blunt: The resource budget allocations for the adult prison estate for private and public prisons in England and Wales at the start of April 2011 was £1,835.4 million. The revised estimated expenditure in December 2011 is £1,842.7 million.

Notes:

1. Establishments are categorised by their main role and where they have more than one role, they are placed in the category that represents the primary or dominant function of the prison. The overall establishment budgets represents all prisons where the majority use was as adult prison.

2. Allocated budgets may be subject to amendment during the financial year.

Translation Services

Robert Flello: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what the (a) average and (b) maximum delay was in the provision of interpreters and translators in (i) courts and (ii) tribunals in November (A) 2010 and (B) 2011; [87361]

(2) how much his Department spent on the provision of language services in the 12 months before those services were outsourced; [87466]

(3) how many interpreters and translators were used by HM Courts and Tribunals Service in each month since October 2010; [87539]

(4) what representations he has received from professional bodies representing interpreters and translators on the transfer to Accredited Language Services of his Department's interpretation services; [87540]

(5) how many organisations tendered for his Department's interpretation service contract that was awarded to Accredited Language Services. [87541]

Mr Blunt: The information is as follows.

(1) Information on delay in the provision of language services is not collected. Under our new contract for language services we will in future be able to monitor whether assignments are delivered on time.

(2) The latest figure available is for the 2010-11 financial year, when costs were estimated to be in the region of £25.8 million.

(3) Her Majesty's Courts and Tribunals Service does not record the number of interpreters and translators used in each month.

(4) The Ministry sought and received a range of views, both from individual interpreters and their various representative groups. We have also conducted meetings with a range of those groups, and invited stakeholders to submit their views directly to the project through a dedicated email address. My officials sought views on the specific proposals as they had emerged from the competitive dialogue process, which was undertaken between 30 March 2011 and 4 May 2011. We received a wide range of views in response. All of the responses received were carefully considered by the project team, and formed part of the advice submitted to me when making the decision whether to move to the Framework Agreement. The Ministry continues to receive, consider and respond to correspondence from interested parties and groups.

(5) 126 companies submitted an expression of interest. Of those, 67 submitted a completed pre-qualification questionnaire. 12 were invited to dialogue, six were invited to submit Outline Solutions, three were invited to submit detailed solutions and one (Applied Language Solutions) was invited to submit a final tender.

Witnesses

Sadiq Khan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many witnesses were called to give evidence in (a) magistrates courts and (b) Crown courts in each year from 1997 to 2010. [87699]

Mr Djanogly: Information about the total number of witnesses called to give evidence in the magistrates courts and Crown court is not held centrally, as it is not recorded by court staff electronically as part of their routine daily administrative duties.

HEALTH

Air Pollution

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the monetary value of benefits to public health for every pound spent on improving air quality. [81182]

Richard Benyon: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member for Brent North (Barry Gardiner) to the answer I gave him on 21 November 2011, Official Report, column 188W.

Alcoholic Drinks: Ex-servicemen

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the levels of alcohol abuse amongst military veterans. [87108]

Mr Simon Burns: The requested information is not collected centrally. However, according to Dr Nicola Fear, Dr Dan Wood and Professor Simon Wessely in their 2009 report 'Health and Social Outcomes and Health Experiences of UK Military Veterans' (Academic Centre for Defence Mental Health/The King's Centre for Military Health Research November 2009), alcohol problems feature among the most common mental health problems for ex-service personnel, along with depression and anxiety disorders. For serving and ex-service personnel, the prevalence of hazardous drinking is far higher than in the general population.

The Department is doing much to improve mental health outcomes for veterans, following the publication of my hon. Friend the Member for South West Wiltshire (Dr Murrison)'s report 'Fighting Fit' in October 2010. The Department contributed £7.2 million to the implementation of the recommendations coming out of this report. One of the key features of the work completed to date is the launch of integrated veterans' mental health services in each of the 10 existing strategic health authority areas. These have a holistic focus on mental health, and contributing factors, including alcohol and substance abuse. They are up and running in the north and south-west, and roll-out will continue to the end of the current financial year.

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times stomach pumping was used in NHS hospitals for the treatment of excessive alcohol consumption since 1 January 2011; what proportion of patients so treated were under the age of 18; and how these figures compare to the equivalent time period in 2010. [87120]

Anne Milton: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Alcoholic Drinks: Obesity

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) males and (b) females under the age of 18 have been treated for (i) alcohol-induced and (ii) obesity-induced illness in NHS hospitals (A) since 1 January 2011 and (B) in the equivalent period in 2010. [87121]

Anne Milton: Provisional figures show that the estimated number of males under the age of 18 that have been treated for alcohol-induced illness in national health service hospitals since 1 January 2011 was 3,579 and in the equivalent period in 2010 (January 2010 - August 2010) was 3,859.

The estimated number of females under the age of 18 that have been treated for alcohol-induced illness in national health service hospitals since 1 January 2011 is 4,393 and in the equivalent period in 2010 (January 2010 - August 2010) was 4,746.

The estimated number of males under the age of 18 that have been treated for obesity-induced illness in national health service hospitals since 1 January 2001 is 193 and in the equivalent period in 2010 (January 2010 - August 2010) was 208.

The estimated number of females under the age of 18 that have been treated for obesity-induced illness in national health service hospitals since 1 January 2011 is 228 and in the equivalent period in 2010 (January 2010 - August 2010) was 258.

This is shown in the following table. The data in the table should not be described as a count of people, as the same person may have been admitted on more than one occasion.

Count of alcohol-related admissions[1] and admissions[2] with a primary diagnosis[3] of Obesity, for people aged Under 18[4], by gender, for the period January 2010—August 2010 and January 2011—August 2011[5] (Data from April-August 2011 are provisional)[6]—Activity in English NHS Hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector

[1] Alcohol-related admissions.
The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO), which uses 48 indicators for alcohol-related illnesses, determining the proportion of a wide range of diseases and injuries that can be partly attributed to alcohol as well as those that are, by definition, wholly attributable to alcohol. Further information on these proportions can be found at:
http://www.nwph.net/nwpho/publications/AlcoholAttributableFractions.pdf
The application of the NWPHO methodology has recently been updated and is now available directly from Hospital Episode Statistics. As such, information about episodes estimated to be alcohol related may be slightly different from previously published data.
[2] Finished admission episodes.
A finished admission episode (FAE) is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. FAEs are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
[3] Primary diagnosis
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was admitted to hospital.
ICD-10 codes used: E66: Obesity
[4] Age
The attributable fractions are not applicable to children under 16. Therefore figures for this age group relate only to wholly-attributable admissions, where the attributable fraction is one.
[5] Provisional data:
The data are provisional and may be incomplete or contain errors for which no adjustments have yet been made. Counts produced from provisional data are likely to be lower than those generated for the same period in the final dataset. This shortfall will be most pronounced in the final month of the latest period, ie November from the (month nine) April to November extract. It is also probable that clinical data are not complete, which may in particular affect the last two months of any given period. There may also be errors due to coding inconsistencies that have not yet been investigated and corrected.
[6] Assessing growth through time
HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. Changes to the figures over time need to be interpreted in the context of improvements in data quality and coverage (particularly in earlier years), improvements in coverage of independent sector activity (particularly from 2006-07) and changes in NHS practice. For example, apparent reductions in activity may be due to a number of procedures which may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and so no longer include in admitted patient HES data.
Note:
Data quality
HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts in England and from some independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Benzodiazepines

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many products containing benzodiazepines are licensed for use; what their names are; how many companies hold licences for the manufacture or distribution of each product; and how many of those licences were issued in each of the last three years. [87387]

Mr Simon Burns: There are currently 87 products authorised in the United Kingdom containing benzodiazepines. There are 25 different companies authorised to manufacture and distribute them. Details are provided in the following table for each benzodiazepine. No new marketing authorisations for benzodiazepines have been issued in the last three years.

Blood: Imports

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 17 October 2011, Official Report, column 76W, on fresh frozen plasma, whether the figures in the table include (a) the cost of importing fresh frozen plasma from the Austrian Red Cross and (b) the cost of processing that imported fresh frozen plasma. [87776]

Anne Milton: NHS Blood and Transplant has confirmed that the cost of £4,949,045 for plasma processing, provided on 17 October 2011, Official Report, column 76W, does include the cost of importing and processing fresh frozen plasma from the Austrian Red Cross.

Cancer: Drugs

Stuart Andrew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to increase supply of the Caelyx brand of liposomal doxorubicin to allow cancer patients partway through a course of treatment with Caelyx to complete their planned course. [87684]

Mr Simon Burns: Due to production problems in the United States of America, the manufacturer of Caelyx (doxorubicin hydrochloride) is currently unable to supply the United Kingdom market.

We are in close contact with the company and we understand that it is unable to provide a date when Caelyx will return to the market.

In the meantime, there are alternative treatments available in the UK and clinicians are working with affected patients to ensure continuity of care.

Contraceptives

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department will provide to local authorities on how they should undertake a needs assessment of contraceptive services in their locality to ensure choice and open access to such services. [87597]

Anne Milton: Subject to the passage of the Health and Social Care Bill, the intention is to mandate local authorities through regulations to commission open access sexual health services, including open access contraception services. The Department will work with Public Health England and colleagues in local authorities to examine the available support to help them to commission these services.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were working in his Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87346]

Mr Simon Burns: At 11 May 2010, there were 2,594.8 full-time equivalent (FTE) civil servants working in the Department. This figure included those on loan to the Department from other Government Departments and on fixed-term contracts. At 8 December 2011 there were 2,332.5 FTE: civil servants, also including loans-in and fixed-term appointees.

In addition, 805.4 FTE non-permanent workers (secondees-in, contractors, consultants and agency staff) were working in the Department on 11 May 2010 and 470.5 FTE non-permanent workers were in place on 8 December 2011.

Diabetes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diabetes specialists there are on health and well-being boards. [87702]

Paul Burstow: The Health and Social Care Bill mandates the minimum membership of health and wellbeing boards. Local authorities and boards will be free to expand their membership beyond this in a way that reflects local needs and priorities—a decision best left to local discretion.

We expect boards to engage with a variety of partners to ensure the right expertise including clinical experts, such as diabetes specialists, influences both the Joint Strategic Needs Assessment and joint health and wellbeing strategy.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when (a) he and (b) his officials next plan to raise with (i) the European Commissioner, (ii) his ministerial counterparts in other EU member states and (iii) officials in other member states his plans for the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of article 5 of the EU food supplements directive; [87083]

(2) when he last discussed with the European Commission his plans for the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of article 5 of the EU food supplements directive; and what response he received; [87084]

(3) when his plans are for the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements under the provisions of article 5 of the EU food supplements directive; and whether he plans to seek to repatriate to the UK competence for legislation in this area. [87085]

Anne Milton: I last met with European Commissioner for Health, John Dalli on 19 November 2010, to discuss United Kingdom concerns about the setting of maximum limits for food supplements.

I pressed for any future changes to the legislation to be based on scientific evidence of risk and not be unduly restrictive, so that the impact on UK industry is minimised, while maintaining consumer choice. Commissioner Dalli has confirmed that he recognises the UK's concerns and will take this into account in developing proposals.

The Commission has yet to indicate when negotiations on this issue will recommence and further to earlier discussions we have no immediate plans to pursue this formally, although informal discussions may occasionally arise at meetings in Europe. The setting of maximum levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements is an area of EU competency, as such the UK is legally bound to implement legislation agreed by a majority of member states.

Endometriosis

Chris Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to increase early diagnosis of endometriosis. [87207]

Anne Milton: Information for the public on the causes and diagnosis of endometriosis is available on the NHS Choices website.

www.nhs.uk/conditions/endometriosis/Pages/Introduction.aspx

The Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (RCOG) has developed a guideline on the investigation and management of endometriosis for health care professionals and an associated patient information leaflet, both of which are available on the RCOG website at:

www.rcog.org.uk/womens-health/clinical-guidance/investigation-and-management-endometriosis-green-top-24 www.rcog.org.uk/womens-health/clinical-guidance/endometriosis-what-you-need-know

Endometriosis is a specific topic within the undergraduate medical curriculum and in core specialist medical training for obstetricians and gynaecologists.

Genito-urinary Medicine

Alison Seabeck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Hackney North and Stoke Newington of 6 September 2011, Official Report, column 558W, on abortion, when the Government plans to publish its sexual health policy document; and if he will make a statement. [87555]

Anne Milton: The Department plans to publish its sexual health policy document in spring 2012.

Health Professions: Hearing Impairment

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to promote deaf awareness amongst (a) staff in care homes and (b) doctors, nurses and hospital staff. [86936]

Paul Burstow: Health and social care services delivering support to people with disabilities have to ensure that they are fully compliant with the law, especially the Equality Act 2010. The general public sector equality duty in section 149 of the Equality Act 2010 requires public authorities to pay due regard to eliminating discrimination and advancing equality of opportunity including making reasonable adjustments to meet the needs of the disabled people who use their services. An example of how national health service organisations are tackling this is the Equality Delivery System (EDS) which enables NHS organisations, working with local partners, to analyse their performance, and set equality objectives as part of mainstream business plans. The EDS includes examples of reasonable adjustments for people who are deaf.

Health Services: Finance

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account is taken by specialised commissioning groups of (a) in-year costs of treatment and (b) long-term savings in making their funding decisions. [87114]

Mr Simon Burns: This is primarily a matter for the local national health service. Specialised Commissioning Groups (SCGs) are accountable to their primary care trusts (PCTs) on all matters of governance including their financial decisions. SCGs will consider the cost and clinical effectiveness, the potential health gain and the opportunity costs and benefits of any proposal. As joint committees of PCTs, they will need to keep in mind the duty not to exceed spending limits.

Heart Diseases

Glyn Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to include (a) atrial fibrillation and (b) other arrhythmias in the outcomes strategy for cardiovascular disease. [87787]

Mr Simon Burns: Work on the outcomes strategy for cardiovascular disease is at the very early stages. Decisions on the conditions to be included will be made as the strategy is developed in the new year.

Herbalife International

Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when (a) he and (b) officials of his Department last (i) met and (ii) corresponded or otherwise communicated with representatives of (A) Herbalife UK Ltd and (B) any other member of the Herbalife International group; and for what purpose. [87082]

Anne Milton: I have not met or corresponded with members of the Herbalife group of companies.

Departmental officials regularly correspond with industry, including United Kingdom representatives of Herbalife Europe and International, to update them on regulatory issues. The last occasion was on 15 December 2011 about the agreed text for Commission Implementing Regulation establishing implementing rules for the application of article 8 of Regulation (EC) No 1925/2006 on the addition of vitamins and minerals and of certain other substances to foods.

Departmental officials last met with a representative of Herbalife Europe on 12 December 2010 regarding the impact of European Union health claims legislation on the food supplements industry.

Officials of the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) have had no meetings with either representatives of Herbalife UK Ltd or any other member of the Herbalife International Group. The MHRA last wrote to a member of Herbalife on 18 September 2006 when they gave advice on the likely legislative status on a range of six products.

Hospitals: Young People

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people under the age of 18 years have been treated by NHS hospitals in 2011 up to the most recent date for which information is available; and what the equivalent figure is for the same period in 2010. [86985]

Anne Milton: The information requested is shown in the following tables. Information on finished admission episodes April to August 2011 and accident and emergency (A and E) attendances April 2010 to August 2011 is provisional.

[1] A finished admission episode (FAE) is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FAEs are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

[2] Hospital providers can also include treatment centres (TC). Normally, if data are tabulated by health care provider, the figure for an NHS trust gives the activity of all the sites as one aggregated figure. The quality of TC returns is such that data may not be complete. Some NHS trusts have not registered their TC as a separate site, and it is therefore not possible to identify their activity separately. Data from some independent sector providers, where the onus for arrangement of dataflows is on the commissioner, may be missing. Care must be taken when using these data as the counts may be lower than true figures.

Note:
The data are provisional and may be incomplete or contain errors for which no adjustments have yet been made. Counts produced from provisional data are likely to be lower than those generated for the same period in the final dataset. This shortfall will be most pronounced in the final month of the latest period, i.e. November from the (month 9) April to November extract. It is also probable that clinical data are not complete, which may in particular affect the last two months of any given period. There may also be errors due to coding inconsistencies that have not yet been investigated and corrected.

Lung Cancer

Mr Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of (a) the existence of a gap in outcomes in cases of lung cancer between England and other Western European countries and (b) the reasons for any such gap. [87779]

Paul Burstow: We know England's cancer survival rates are currently poorer than many comparable countries. To understand more about the reasons for the differences in survival rates between England and other comparable countries, we have established the International Cancer Benchmarking Partnership (ICBP). The ICBP seeks to understand how and why cancer survival rates vary between countries and jurisdictions.

Membership of the ICBP covers 12 jurisdictions in six countries comprising Australia (New South Wales and Victoria); Canada (Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario); Denmark; Norway; Sweden; and the United Kingdom (England, Northern Ireland and Wales). To ensure the validity and comparability of data between countries, ICBP partners were invited on the basis of broadly comparable wealth, universal access to health care and the existence of longstanding, high-quality, population-based cancer registration.

Lung cancer is one the four cancers we are looking at as part of the study. In December 2010, the ICBP published "Cancer survival in Australia, Canada, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and the UK, 1995-2007 (the International Cancer Benchmarking Partnership): an analysis of population-based cancer registry data". The report showed that survival has continued to improve for each cancer in all six countries, but generally remained higher in Australia, Canada, and Sweden, intermediate in Norway, and lower in Denmark and the UK. A copy of the report has already been placed in the Library.

The following table summarises England's survival rates for 2005-07, alongside those of the best performing country or jurisdiction.

Cancer	England	Sweden	Leading jurisdiction	Percentage Gap to leading jurisdiction
Lung cancer (1 year)	29.7	43.6	[1]43.6	13.9
Lung cancer (5 year)	8.7	16.3	[2]20.1	11.4

[1] Sweden
[2] Manitoba

Note:
Analyses for 2005-07 are period estimates for patients diagnosed during 2005-07, or diagnosed earlier but alive on 1 January 2005.

The patterns of lower survival rates in England are consistent with later stage at diagnosis or differences in treatment. The ICBP plans to publish a report on the lung cancer survival information in the first half of 2012.

Meningitis

Oliver Colvile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has issued guidance to GP consortia on (a) measures to deal with meningitis and (b) provision of psychological support for patients who have lost limbs as a result of the disease. [87150]

Mr Simon Burns: No guidance has been issued. Subject to the passage of the Health and Social Care Bill, the National Health Service Commissioning Board will be responsible for supporting clinical commissioning groups (CCGs), previously known as general practitioner consortia, in their commissioning decisions. This will include publishing commissioning guidance to which CCGs must have regard. This will be based on the quality standards that the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has developed on the board's behalf. The board will also develop a commissioning outcomes framework to help hold CCGs to account for the quality of the health care services they commission.

Meningitis: Plymouth

Oliver Colvile: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of meningitis were diagnosed in Plymouth in the last 12 months; and how many were of people aged (a) under and (b) over 16. [87151]

Anne Milton: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the following table:

Count of finished admission episodes[1] with a primary diagnosis of Meningitis[2] by selected age groups in Plymouth Teaching Primary Care Trust (PCT)[3] 2010-11

Activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector

Age	Count
Under 16	7

Count of finished admission episodes[1] with a primary diagnosis of Meningitis[2] by selected age groups in Plymouth Teaching Primary Care Trust (PCT)[3] 2010-11

Activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector

Age	Count
16 and over	21

[1] Finished admission episodes:
A finished admission episode (FAE) is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. FAEs are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.
[2] Primary diagnosis:
The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was admitted to hospital.
Diagnosis Codes used for Meningitis:
G00.0 Haemophilus meningitis.
G00.1 Pneumococcal meningitis.
G00.2 Streptococcal meningitis.
G00.3 Staphylococcal meningitis.
G00.9 Bacterial meningitis, unspecified.
G03 Meningitis due to other unspecified causes.
A87 Viral Meningitis.
A87.0D Enteroviral meningitis (with G02.0A)
A87.1D Adenoviral meningitis (with G02.0A)
A39.2 Acute meningococcaemia.
A39.3 Chronic meningococcaemia.
A39.4 Meningococcaemia, unspecified.
A search must be performed to locate the following codes; these would not be found in the primary field. The following asterisk codes (* or A) would be found in a SECONDARY position and their presence in the coded record indicates meningitis:
G01.X A Meningitis in bacterial diseases classified elsewhere.
G02.0 A Meningitis in viral diseases classified elsewhere.
G02.1 A Meningitis in mycoses.
G02.8 A Meningitis in other specified infectious and parasitic diseases classified elsewhere.
The following two codes must be paired together to indicate eosinophilic meningitis:
B83.2 D Angiostrongyliasis due to Parastrongylus cantonensis.
G05.2 A Encephalitis, myelitis and encephalomyelitis in other infectious and parasitic diseases classified elsewhere.
The ICD-10 codes required for meningococcal meningitis are:
A39.0 D Meningococcal meningitis.
G01.X A Meningitis in bacterial diseases classified elsewhere.
[3] Strategic Health Authority/PCT of residence:
The SHA or PCT containing the patient's normal home address. This does not necessarily reflect where the patient was treated as they may have travelled to another SHA/PCT for treatment.
Data quality:
HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and PCTs in England and from some independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.
These data should not be described as a count of people as the same person may have been admitted on more than one occasion.

Mental Health Services: Young People

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the total budget allocated to the NHS was spent on children and adolescent mental health services in each of the last 10 years. [87694]

Paul Burstow: Child and adolescent mental health services are complex, ranging from universal provision to highly specialised services and are funded by both the national health service and local authorities. It is the responsibility of local commissioners to make commissioning decisions informed by a Joint Strategic Needs Assessment to improve mental health outcomes for children and young people in their communities.

A total of £89 billion has been made available in primary care trust (PCT) revenue allocations for 2011-12. This represents an increase of £2.6 billion in 2010-11. The available NHS expenditure figures on mental health disorders are shown in the following table. These are from estimated England level programme budgeting data, which are calculated using PCT and strategic health authority programme budgeting returns and the Department's resource accounts data. Figures also include an estimation of the Department's and special health authority expenditure.

	Gross Expenditure (£000s)
Programme Budgeting Category	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Total Expenditure on Mental Health Disorders	9,125,744	10,278,503	10,477,252	11,261,656	11,906,280
Substance Misuse	716,326	832,522	926,728	987,468	1,094,819
Organic Mental Disorders	752,920	768,386	878,036	1,315,233	1,511,315
Psychotic Disorders	1,294,807	1,703,995	1,839,404	2,168,470	1,710,362
Child and Adolescent	716,726	736,353	687,097	772,114	755,807
Other Mental Health	5,644,965	6,237,247	6,145,988	6,018,371	6,833,955
Total Gross Expenditure	84,193,209	93,183,426	96,814,987	103,974,957	107,003,261

Expenditure on some services areas or activities is not included if it is not possible to make a reasonable estimation of expenditure by specific disease area. For this reason expenditure on some health care activity, including general practitioner services will be excluded from the total expenditure on mental health figures above.

If it is not possible to separately identify expenditure on child and adolescent mental health from other mental health services then expenditure will be classified as 'other mental health'.

Continual refinements are made to the programme budgeting data calculation methodology on an annual basis, for this reason, programme budgeting data cannot be used to analyse changes in investment in specific disease areas between years. Significant changes were made to the data collection in 2010-11, when the basis of estimation for disease specific expenditure changed from provider reference costs to the price paid for services by commissioners.

Mental Health: Ex-servicemen

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the levels of (a) homelessness and (b) mental health problems amongst military veterans. [87109]

Mr Simon Burns: The level of homelessness among military veterans is not the responsibility of the Department of Health but that of the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG), who have provided us with the following information:

Information about local authorities' discharge of their duties under homelessness legislation is collected on quarterly P1E returns.

Information is collected on the number of households accepted as being statutory homeless whose main reason for loss of last settled home was having left the armed forces. This will not include households containing people who have previously been in the armed forces but were made homeless for other reasons. This information was first collected in 2005-06 and is given as follows:

Number of households with reason of last settled home being having left the armed forces

	Number
2005-06	270
2006-07	200
2007-08	220
2008-09	160
2009-10	120
2010-11	150

Note:
Figures are rounded to nearest 10 households.
Source:
P1E returns

Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected at local authority level, and a summary is published by the Department in the quarterly Statistical Release on Statutory Homelessness, available both in the Library of the House and via the DCLG website:

www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationshomelessness/

Turning to veterans' mental health, this information is not collected centrally. However, the Department of Health is doing much to improve veterans' mental health and wellbeing, following the publication of my hon. Friend the Member for South West Wiltshire (Dr Murrison)'s report "Fighting Fit" published in October 2010. The Department has committed £7.2 million over the next four years of the spending review period to the implementation of the reports recommendations. Examples include, setting up a 24-hour veterans' helpline; the launch of an online counselling service 'Big White Wall'; and the launch of integrated veterans' mental health services in each of the existing strategic health authority areas, by the end of the current financial year.

NHS

Debbie Abrahams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS organisations other than hospitals (a) he and (b) each other Minister in his Department has visited since May 2010; and on what date each such visit took place. [87077]

Mr Simon Burns: Information on all ministerial visits, including those to national health service organisations, has been placed in the Library.

NHS Walk-in Centres: Wythenshawe

Paul Goggins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to make a decision on the referral from Manchester's Health Scrutiny Committee of the decision to close the NHS walk-in centre in Wythenshawe. [87338]

Mr Simon Burns: Following initial advice from the Independent Reconfiguration Panel on NHS Manchester's proposals for the relocation of Wythenshawe forum, Withington and Ancoats walk in centres, the decision of the Secretary of State for Health, my right hon. Friend the Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr Lansley), was made public on 19 December 2011.

Organs: Donors

Mrs Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 22 November 2011, Official Report, column 351W, on organs: donors, on what evidential basis he expects a 50% increase in deceased donor numbers in 2012-13; and if he will make a statement. [87081]

Anne Milton: The expectation of achieving the 50% increase in donor rates by 2013 is based on latest available figures showing that deceased donor numbers have increased by 31.4% against the 2007-08 baseline. We are on target to achieve a 35% increase by March 2012 and a 50% increase by the following year as it is expected that there will be even greater increments in the last year. The appointment of Chris Rudge to chair a Transitional Steering Group pending the introduction of the new Commissioning Board will also help maintain the momentum of improvement focusing action on increasing consent rates, encouraging deceased donation in all appropriate circumstances and increasing donation from emergency medicine.

Prescription Drugs

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to ensure that counterfeit medications do not enter the NHS supply chain; and what effects such medications have had on the pharmaceutical industry. [87116]

Mr Simon Burns: Counterfeit medicines rarely reach patients through the regulated supply chain and are more commonly available to consumers via unregulated websites. Although no fatalities have been attributed to counterfeit medicine in the United Kingdom, it is acknowledged that all counterfeit medicines are dangerous and pose a risk to patient health.

In response, the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), an executive agency of the Department with responsibility for regulation of medicines for human use and medical devices, has developed and implemented a comprehensive Anti-Counterfeiting Strategy to combat the threat posed by the infiltration of counterfeit medicines and devices into the UK market.

A number of public awareness campaigns have been delivered, both by MHRA and also by MHRA in conjunction with other stakeholders such as the General Pharmaceutical Council and patient groups.

The MHRA monitors the internet for websites operating within the UK supplying medicines illegally, makes test purchases from these sites and, as a result, has successfully prosecuted a number of individuals. All referrals involving suspected counterfeit medicines are investigated thoroughly and necessary action is taken to protect public health. Enforcement activity is closely co-ordinated with other enforcement authorities around the world and MHRA regularly engages in international initiatives to tackle this issue.

The MHRA also chairs an anti-counterfeit stakeholders group, with representatives from, among others, UK police forces, regulators and industry, where intelligence concerning counterfeit medicines is regularly reviewed and assessed.

New requirements for wholesalers and distributors of medicines will be introduced by the Falsified Medicines Directive in January 2013. Further proposals affecting the pharmaceutical industry are being considered as part of the UK Supply Chain review.

Skin Cancer

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to raise the awareness of (a) GPs and (b) the public of the dangers posed by non-melanoma skin cancers that can be caused by regular exposure to the sun; [87765]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to raise awareness of the importance of people having regular skin checks. [87775]

Paul Burstow: In 2011-12, to provide information and advice to the public and health professionals, we have funded SunSmart, the national skin cancer prevention campaign. SunSmart activities have included producing and distributing educational materials, organising a schools campaign, providing support to local providers working on skin cancer prevention and a major targeted marketing campaign in conjunction with a popular music festival.

The SunSmart website also provides additional information about how to reduce your risk of skin cancer as well as how to spot the symptoms of the disease at:

www.sunsmart.org.uk

Information on the causes of non-melanoma and malignant melanoma can also be found on the NHS Choices website at:

www.nhs.uk/Conditions/Cancer-of-the-skin/Pages/Causes.aspx

and at:

www.nhs.uk/Conditions/Malignant-melanoma/Pages/Causes.aspx

Cancer Research UK is currently running 'R UV Ugly', a campaign funded by a Third Sector Investment Programme grant from the Department, to raise awareness of the dangers of sunbeds and the benefits of skin checks. The campaign is being run in partnership with SK:n who provide free ultraviolet scans in their clinics across England.

We have provided a further Third Sector Investment Programme grant to Cancer Research UK and the British Association of Dermatologists to develop a toolkit to provide practical online support and training to help general practitioners (GPs) with pattern recognition for skin lesions. The toolkit will be piloted in early 2012 before a planned national roll-out and is being developed in consultation with an expert advisory group consisting of GPs and dermatologists.

As part of our programme of work to deliver earlier diagnosis of cancer, to improve survival rates, a range of actions has been undertaken to support GPs in referring appropriate patients to secondary care. We are also in the process of considering further possible action to improve the public's awareness of the symptoms of the less common cancers.

The Department has also published implementation guidance for local authorities on the Sunbeds (Regulation) Act 2010 and information for sunbed businesses. The purpose of the Act is to prevent those under 18 years from being allowed to use sunbeds in commercial premises.

TREASURY

Association of British Insurers

Ed Balls: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings he has had with the Association of British Insurers since the March 2011 Budget. [87641]

Mr Hoban: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Banks: Pay

Rehman Chishti: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications of the transposition of the EU Capital Requirements Directive IV into UK law for the implementation of the recommendations of the Vickers Report. [86978]

Mr Hoban: The European Commission published its legislative proposals on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms, the Capital Requirements Regulation and Capital Requirements Directive IV, in July 2011. This will, in part implement the Basel III accords in the EU.

As stated in the Government's response to the recommendations of the Independent Commission on Banking (ICB), the current draft EU legislation constrains the ability of member states to impose tougher minimum regulatory standards on banks, and restricts member states' ability to use some macro-prudential tools. However, negotiations are ongoing and the Government will continue to work with the European Commission and like-minded member states to provide member states with the flexibility necessary to implement more stringent minimum requirements. Such amendments would provide the basis in EU legislation to enable the Government to implement the ICB package.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which information is available. [87007]

Miss Chloe Smith: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Official Hospitality

Ian Austin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on hospitality for events hosted by each Minister in his Department in each of the last 12 months. [73664]

Miss Chloe Smith: Spending by Treasury Ministers during the period October 2010 to September 2011 on official hospitality is shown in the following table.

October 2010-September 2011	6,612

Spending on hospitality in previous financial years was:

	£000
2007-08	125
2008-09	91
2009-10	116
2010-11	40

Expenditure on official hospitality is kept under rigorous scrutiny to ensure value for money and effectiveness and is incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity, Propriety and Value for Money.

Departmental Travel

Graeme Morrice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what information his Department holds on the number of employees who use (a) cycle to work schemes, (b) employer-provided buses and (c) tax-free parking. [87205]

Mr Gauke: This information is not collected as there is no requirement for employers to report use of these benefits in kind to HM Revenue and Customs.

I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer on 23 November 2011, Official Report, column 437W.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr David: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the statement of 27 October on the eurozone crisis, what he means by greater fiscal integration in the eurozone. [78500]

Mr Hoban [holding answer 7 November 2011]: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), and the Prime Minister, have been clear in their view that euro area countries need to accept the remorseless logic of monetary union that leads from a single currency to greater fiscal integration, to ensure that fiscal responsibility is hard-wired into the system.

In their statement of 9 December, the euro area agreed that there should be tighter fiscal discipline as part of restoring market confidence, including tough new budgetary rules, more automatic sanctions, and stricter surveillance. The UK has made clear that, while it supports the euro area's intention for countries to come together to resolve their problems, we will only allow that to happen inside the European Union treaties if there are proper protections for the single market and for other key British interests.

Financial Services Bill

Teresa Pearce: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to publish the draft memorandum of understanding between each of the bodies in the UK regulatory structure proposed in the provisions of the draft Financial Services Bill. [87687]

Mr Hoban: The draft Financial Services Bill, published in June, provides for a number of different statutory memorandums of understanding (MOUs). The Government intend to make drafts of these MOUs available during the passage of the Bill in order to aid Parliament's scrutiny of the draft legislation.

As the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), explained to the Joint Committee on the draft Bill on 15 November 2011, before publishing a draft of the crisis management MOU between the Treasury and the Bank of England, the Government will consider:

first, the recommendations of the Treasury Select Committee in its report into the accountability of the Bank of England (published on 8 November); and second, any relevant recommendations made by the Joint Committee itself in its report published on 19 December.

Financial Services: National Income

Hazel Blears: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the proportion of UK gross domestic product generated by the financial services sector in (a) 2011-12, (b) 2012-13, (c) 2013-14, (d) 2014-15 and (e) 2015-16. [87074]

Miss Chloe Smith: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Office for Budget Responsibility (OBR), and I have asked the OBR to reply.

Infrastructure: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with Ministers in the Northern Ireland Executive about the National Infrastructure Plan. [84847]

Danny Alexander: Treasury Ministers and officials have discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Inland Revenue

Mr Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 29 November 2011, Official Report, column 791W, on the Inland Revenue, if he will take steps to ascertain from the Permanent Secretary for Tax, HM Revenue and Customs, whether he had responsibility as a Commissioner for the Inland Revenue Large Business Office between 1997 and 2000. [87470]

Mr Gauke: The Permanent Secretary for Tax at HMRC did not become a Commissioner for the Inland Revenue until July 2000 and so did not have responsibility for the Large Business Office between 1997 and 2000.

Japan Tobacco International: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr Hain: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in his Department have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87617]

Miss Chloe Smith: Information about hospitality received by Ministers and special advisers is published quarterly by Departments. Information for the period 13 May 2010 to 30 June 2011 can be accessed on departmental websites. Information for 1 July onwards will be published in due course.

Members: Correspondence

Paul Maynard: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Blackpool North and Cleveleys. [87162]

Mr Gauke: HM Treasury had no record of a letter from my hon. Friend of 12 October 2011. My officials now obtained a copy from his office and I shall reply shortly.

PAYE

Stephen Timms: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what representatives from (a) HM Revenue and Customs, (b) the Department for Work and Pensions and (c) other bodies will sit on the monitoring body for the pilot from April 2012 of real-time pay-as-you-earn information; and who will decide whether the pilot should be extended. [86565]

Mr Gauke [holding answer 13 December 2011]: Around 300 volunteer software developers, employers and pension providers are taking part in the real time information (RTI) pilot which will start in April 2012. Depending on the findings from the pilot's early stages, an additional 1,300 volunteers will join in July.

Another 250,000 employers could then be invited to start using the system in November.

Ultimately, it will be for the RTI programme's senior responsible owner (SRO), in close consultation with industry, to decide at each stage whether or not the pilot should be extended. There is a specific governance mechanism in place to support the SRO in making these decisions. This group includes membership from the Department for Work and Pensions' universal credit programme office and key business areas from within HM Revenue and Customs as well as representatives from HMRC's IT partners, Aspire and Vocalink.

The RTI programme as a whole has a number of governance and assurance forums, including a senior level programme board, which advise the SRO. Membership of these groups is drawn from the broad range of stakeholders affected by RTI.

Poverty: Rural Areas

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of levels of rural poverty since May 2010. [85966]

Chris Grayling: I have been asked to reply.

The Government publish annual data on poverty including in English rural areas. The latest data released on rural poverty cover 2009-10 and are available in the "Statistical Digest of Rural England 2011" published on DEFRA's website in September 2011 at:

www.defra.gov.uk/publications/files/pb13641-rural-digest2011.pdf

Poverty in the UK's rural areas outside England is a matter for the devolved Administrations.

Public Sector: Pay

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effect on public sector workers' income of the extension of the public sector pay freeze announced in the autumn statement as a proportion of net income in each income decile. [86778]

Danny Alexander [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The pay freeze will not be extended. At the autumn statement the Chancellor announced that the public sector pay freeze for those earning over £21,000 would end after two years. Public sector pay will then average at 1% for the two years following the pay freeze. Individual Departments will need to consider how best to deliver the 1% average in their workforces.

Revenue and Customs: Email

Mike Freer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when HM Revenue and Customs expects to be able to answer all taxpayers' queries by e-mail. [86984]

Mr Gauke: HMRC has over 100 electronic contact services available to customers that offer a structured and secure means of communicating with HMRC through its website and we are always looking to provide more. HMRC will only introduce electronic contact solutions where we are certain about the authenticity of the person sending the e-mail and where there are strong controls around the data being sent.

HMRC have recently consulted (http://hmrc.gov.uk/consultations/) on making an e-mail address a required element of a business's designatory information. We are currently analysing views and expect to formally publish results and HMRC's response early in the new year.

Revenue and Customs: Overtime

Cathy Jamieson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely cost of overtime payments for staff in HM Revenue and Customs working to reduce the number of outstanding child benefit claims and average processing times. [86019]

Mr Gauke [holding answer 12 December 2011]: HMRC have spent £66,802 in 2011-12 on overtime to reduce average processing times for child benefit.

Unpaid Taxes: Business

Mike Crockart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 71W, on taxation: business, what constitutes a reasonable period over which tax arrears can be paid; and whether such periods have changed over the last 12 months. [87509]

Mr Gauke: Time to pay arrangements are always negotiated over the shortest affordable period, rarely exceeding 12 months, although each case is considered individually on its own particular circumstances.

HMRC remains absolutely committed to demonstrating a sympathetic approach to businesses that have genuine short-term difficulties in paying the tax they owe.

These criteria and this approach have not changed in the last 12 months.

VAT: Electronic Publishing

Tom Blenkinsop: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 539W, on VAT: electronic publishing, if he will consider implementing a measure similar to that in France for the reduction of VAT on unenriched e-books. [87479]

Mr Gauke: Under EU law, VAT on electronic books must be charged at the standard rate. A reduced rate cannot be applied to digital or electronic supplies, or supplies of text via the internet, as they are classed as supplies of services rather than physical goods. There is therefore no scope in the principal VAT directive to apply a reduced rate on e-books.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on new heating fuel to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from (i) homes, (ii) businesses and (iii) public buildings in rural areas; and if he will support the inclusion of bio-liquids in the Renewable Heat Incentive from October 2012. [86225]

Gregory Barker: The Department has undertaken several evaluations of the use of bioliquid technologies for heat generation though the National Non-Food Crops Centre. The details of these have been published on their website at:

http://www.nnfcc.co.uk/publications

We will consider bioliquids for inclusion in the renewable heat incentive scheme in phase 2. However, before bioliquids can be supported under the scheme we need to establish a co-ordinated approach to their use so that the heat market does not unduly impact on other important uses, in particular transport. In addition, we would need to ensure we meet our legal commitments under the renewable energy directive by developing sustainability criteria.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86988]

Gregory Barker: DECC's total expenditure in the year ending 31 March 2011 on catering services, entertainment and hospitality was £158,000. Of this total, expenditure on general catering with DECC's in-house provider during the financial year 2010-11 amounted to £66,000. This amount is likely to relate largely or wholly to catering for meetings, including drinks as well as food.

DECC also paid the provider an additional £40,500 in contract costs over this period. From May 2011, DECC has received its catering through a new provider under a zero-cost arrangement where additional payments are not automatically required.

DECC's catering service is delivered through a contract procured by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA).

Electricity: Prices

Laura Sandys: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the (a) likely and (b) maximum possible effect on the average household electricity bill by 2020 of not implementing the reductions to feed-in tariffs for (i) small-scale solar PV proposed in the comprehensive review and (ii) large-scale solar PV introduced after the fast track review. [86493]

Gregory Barker: Based on analysis undertaken at the time of the Fast Track Review, we have estimated that not implementing the changes to tariffs for large scale (greater than 50 kW) solar photovoltaics in the fast track review would have added approximately £10 (2010 prices, undiscounted) to the average domestic energy bill in 2020. This is based on the estimate of the cost to consumers under the 'Do Nothing' option in the Fast Track Review impact assessment:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/assets/decc/Consultations/fits-review/fast-track-review-announcement-impact-assessment.pdf

As well as proposing new tariffs for small scale solar PV, the comprehensive review has also proposed further reductions to tariffs for large scale PV. In the impact assessment for the most recent consultation:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/assets/decc/11/consultation/fits-comp-review-p1/3416-fits-IA-solar-pv-draft.pdf

we estimated that under the 'no change' scenario and central growth rates, the impact on the average domestic energy bill would be around £26 in 2020 (2010 prices undiscounted).

We have revised this estimate in the light of much higher observed growth in PV since the impact assessment to around £40 (2010 prices, undiscounted) in a central uptake scenario, and around £80 (2010 prices, undiscounted) in a high uptake scenario. It should be noted that these estimates represent the impact on bills of both large and small scale PV installations, as we have not separated their respective impacts.

Estimates of future PV growth are extremely uncertain. DECC is continually reviewing its evidence in the light of latest data, and will update estimates for the final impact assessment.

Energy Company Obligation

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what consideration he has given to data-sharing between the Government and energy suppliers as a means of identifying and targeting households to be assisted by his proposed Energy Company Obligation. [87633]

Gregory Barker: Regulation 5 of the Disclosure of State Pension Credit Information (Warm Home Discount) Regulations 2011, allows data to be shared between Government and energy supply companies participating in the Warm Home Discount Scheme in order to provide low income pensioners with a discount off their electricity bill and to provide relevant assistance to those vulnerable pensioners. This assistance can include targeting the delivery of ECO Affordable Warmth measures.

As part of the Green Deal proposals, the Government are consulting on a referrals mechanism under which interested households that may be eligible for assistance under the Affordable Warmth obligation and contact the remote advice service would be channelled through to the participating energy suppliers.

Energy: Private Rented Housing

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether he plans to provide any additional financial support to private sector tenants whose landlords have carried out the maximum package of measures funded under the Green Deal or Energy Company Obligation, but continue to be classified as being in fuel poverty. [86975]

Gregory Barker: The consultation on the Green Deal and Energy Company Obligation is currently under way.

The Warm Home Discount scheme requires energy suppliers to provide low income vulnerable households with discounts on their electricity bills. Through the scheme pensioners, including those in rented accommodation, who pay their own electricity bill with a participating energy supply company, and meet the eligibility criteria outlined as follows, may be eligible for the discount.

Scheme year	Eligibility	£
2011-12	In receipt of pension credit guarantee credit only (i.e. no savings credit)	120
2012-13	In receipt of pension credit guarantee credit only 80 and over and in receipt of both pension credit guarantee credit and savings credit.	130
2013-14	In receipt of pension credit guarantee credit only 75 and over and in receipt of both pension credit guarantee credit and savings credit	135
2014-15	All in receipt of pension credit guarantee credit (only those in receipt of savings credit only are excluded)	140

Other low income vulnerable households may also be assisted through the scheme. The scheme will be worth £1.1 billion up to 2014-15 and overall we expect 2 million low income vulnerable households a year to be assisted through the Warm Home Discount scheme.

Energy: Tariffs

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to ensure that energy customers can switch from pre-pay tariffs to quarterly tariff payments where they are cheaper. [87395]

Charles Hendry: Ofgem is responsible for regulating gas and electricity supply, including the rules that govern switching payment methods. Prepayment meter customers who are not in debt may switch payment method or supplier at anytime. For those in debt, prepayment meters can be a valuable alternative to disconnection.

New rules introduced by Ofgem in 2009 to prevent unfair price differentials, such as those between different payment methods, have shown that prepayment meter customers now pay, on average, £20 less than standard credit customers for their gas and electricity.

Chris Williamson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the number of people who are prevented from leaving pre-pay energy tariffs because their energy supplier will not allow them to switch payment method. [87396]

Charles Hendry: Ofgem is responsible for monitoring and publishing information about prepayment meter customers. During 2010, 5,652 prepayment meter customers who were not in debt had their request for credit terms refused by their electricity or gas supplier. Ofgem is following this up.

Energy: Wales

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what support he is providing for renewable energy schemes in Welsh waters. [87745]

Charles Hendry: Renewable energy schemes in Welsh waters are eligible for support under the renewables obligation (RO). The RO is currently the Government's main mechanism for incentivising the deployment of large-scale renewable electricity in England and Wales. The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC), on behalf of the UK Government, is currently consulting in England and Wales on subsidy levels for the period 2013 to 2017. The public consultation proposes an increase in the rate of support for wave and tidal stream technologies, from two to five renewable obligation certificates (ROCs) per megawatt hour of renewable electricity generated, and a higher rate of support for offshore wind projects (two ROCs in 2014-15, reducing to 1.8 ROCs in 2016-17) than would be the case without the current banding review. The public consultation closes on 12 January 2012. A copy of the consultation proposals is available on DECC's website at:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/consultations/cons_ro_review/cons_ro_review.aspx

DECC has recently announced up to £30 million for innovation in offshore wind technologies, and up to £20 million for marine energy, subject to final value for money assessments. These will be UK wide calls and Welsh projects will be eligible to apply.

Green Deal Scheme

Martin Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether people who incorporate microgeneration in their Green Deal packages can participate in the (a) Renewable Heat Incentive and (b) Feed-in Tariff schemes. [87289]

Gregory Barker: We have designed the Green Deal as a long term framework to support cost-effective energy efficiency measures, including microgeneration. However, at present these measures are less cost effective than other measures, such as insulation, so we are supporting them through the Feed-in Tariff (FITs) and planned Renewable Heat Incentive (RHI) instead.

Microgeneration measures can be recommended in an assessment and installed at the same time as a Green Deal, but if the FIT or RHI are claimed then these cannot be included in a Green Deal financing plan.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change over what period the funding allocated to incentivise take-up of the Green Deal will be provided. [87423]

Gregory Barker: The funding is allocated as £30 million over financial year 2012-13 and £170 million over financial year 2013-14.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which body will be responsible for delivering the funding to incentivise take-up of the Green Deal. [87424]

Gregory Barker: I am currently considering options for how best to use the new and additional funds announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810. As such, I have not yet taken a decision on who will deliver these funds.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change from which budget he plans to fund incentives to householders to take up the Green Deal. [87425]

Gregory Barker: As announced in the Autumn Statement of 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, £200 million of capital funds have been allocated to DECC to support and incentivise Green Deal take-up. These funds are a time-limited addition to DECC's departmental expenditure limit settlement.

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the £200 million funding that he has recently announced to incentivise take-up of the Green Deal, what type of incentives he plans to offer. [87426]

Gregory Barker: I am considering options for how to use the new and additional funds announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, and will provide further details in due course. These are capital funds, so will be used to directly incentivise the installation of energy efficiency improvements. I therefore want the funds to be used in a way that proves effective at driving take-up while offering value for money to the public purse.

Japan Tobacco International

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in his Department have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87616]

Gregory Barker: Information about hospitality received by Ministers and special advisers is published quarterly by Departments. Information for the period 13 May 2010 to 30 June 2011 can be accessed on departmental websites. Information for 1 July onwards will be published in due course.

Renewable Energy

Nia Griffith: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of progress towards the aim of generating 30 per cent. of domestic electricity from renewable sources by 2020. [87781]

Gregory Barker: The UK has a binding target under the Renewable Energy Directive 2009 to produce 15% of its energy from renewable sources across the electricity, heat and transport sectors by 2020. We envisage that in order to meet this target we will need to deliver 30% of our electricity from renewable sources in 2020.

In 2011 quarter 2, renewable electricity generation (excluding non-biodegradable wastes) contributed 9.3% of total UK electricity generation—an increase of 3.2 percentage points on the share in 2010 Q2, and the highest quarterly share yet[1].

CABINET OFFICE

Cybercrime

Mike Weatherley: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether there are network security measures similar to those used by the armed forces in place to protect (a) businesses and (b) individual internet users from cyber infrastructure attacks. [87432]

Mr Maude: The Government have a wide ranging set of measures in place to protect the UK against cyber attacks. Our new national Cyber Security Strategy published in November:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/cyber-security-strategy sets out our plans for how we will work with industry to improve the UK's cyber security and build confidence by creating a more secure and resilient cyberspace.

The Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure (CPNI) provides advice on electronic and cyber protective security measures to the businesses and organisations that comprise the UK's critical national infrastructure (CNI), including public utilities companies and financial centres. This advice includes measures relating to network security.

The Cyber Security Strategy set out some of the ways CPNI is working to increase its reach beyond this network to companies not ordinarily considered to be part of the CNI.

There are also a number of measures in place to protect individual internet users. Internet service providers (ISPs) offer free security software, security information and advice to customers, and the Government have committed to work closely with ISPs to better embed security awareness and software within their services.

The Government also support Get Safe Online, a joint Government/industry initiative to raise awareness of internet security.

The majority of threats can be avoided by following some simple measures, and via Get Safe Online we will continue to work to raise awareness and to educate and empower people and firms to protect themselves online.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which information is available; [87003]

(2) how much the Downing street estate spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [87005]

Mr Maude: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

The Cabinet Office has incurred expenditure during the last financial year in relation to food and catering services. However, this expenditure is not identified separately on the Department's financial systems and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Government Departments: Databases

Jonathan Evans: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office pursuant to the answer of 2 November 2011, Official Report, columns 679-80W, on Government Departments: databases, and with reference to the Autumn Statement, what assessment he has made of the potential effects on the economy of the Open Data project. [87545]

Mr Maude: The Autumn Statement given by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), on 29 November 2011, Official Report, columns 799-810, included a number of measures developed by the Transparency Team in the Cabinet Office, with the Treasury and other Departments, designed to boost investment in medical research and digital technology in the UK, including many small and medium sized enterprises.

These measures should improve medical knowledge and practice with world-first linked-data services which will enable health care impacts to be tracked across the entire health service. In addition, commitments were also made to release data related to planned and real-time information on the running of trains and buses across Great Britain and data on almost every road in Britain. Measures will also empower patients through individual access to their personal GP records online and encourage the market for education data management and learning platforms.

The Government also established a Data Strategy Board and a Public Data Group that will maximise the value of the data from the Met Office, Ordnance Survey, the Land Registry and Companies House. It will make available for free a range of core reference datasets from these bodies to support the development of high-value data businesses.

In view of the commercial and social priority of open data, the Government are to commit up to £10 million over five years with match funding from industry and academic centres to support an Open Data Institute through the Technology Strategy Board. Further details on these measures can be found at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/open-data-measures-autumn-statement-2011

New Business: East of England

Priti Patel: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many new businesses have been established in (a) Witham constituency, (b) Essex and (c) the east of England in each month since May 2010. [87747]

Mr Hurd: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Stephen Penneck, dated December 2011:

As Director General for the Office for National Statistics, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many new businesses have been established in (a) Witham constituency, (b) Essex and (c) the East of England in each month since May 2010. [87747]

Monthly statistics on business start ups are not available. Annual statistics on the number of enterprise births are available from 2002 onwards in the ONS release on Business Demography at:

www.statistics.gov.uk

The following table contains the latest statistics available, which give the number of enterprise births in (a) Witham constituency, (b) Essex and (c) the East of England in 2010.

Count of enterprise birth in 2010 in the east of England, Essex and Witham

	Number
East of England	22,580
Essex	5,875
Witham	380

Third Sector: North-west England

Hazel Blears: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many charities were established in the North West in (a) 2008, (b) 2009 and (c) 2010. [87749]

Mr Hurd: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Charity Commission. I have asked the Commission's chief executive to reply.

Letter from Sam Younger, dated 19 December 2011:

I have been asked to respond to your Written Parliamentary Question on how many charities were established in the North West in (a) 2008, (b) 2009 and (c) 2010 [87749].

The number of charities whose area of operation was within the North West of England (as defined by the Office for National Statistics) that were newly registered during each calendar year was as follows.

Registered in:	Charities
2008	435
2009	516
2010	486

There may be additional charities, such as those with an income of less than £5,000 per annum, which are not required to register and for which information is not available.

I hope this information is helpful.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Climate Change: International Co-operation

Zac Goldsmith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Advocacy Fund provided to developing countries' negotiators at the UN Climate Change Conference in Durban. [87290]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Advocacy Fund provided technical, legal and logistical support to developing country negotiators at the UN conference in Durban. This included:

Support to the Least Developed Countries Group to co-ordinate, to access technical support on key negotiation issues and to send delegates to cover important issues.

Training to support younger negotiators from developing countries to fully participate and develop their skills in the negotiations.

Provision of legal advice and legal briefing on negotiation issues to developing country negotiators.

Developing Countries: Education

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which country offices used his Department's guidance note on education for children with disabilities as part of their planning for aid to the education sector during his Department's bilateral aid review. [87691]

Mr O'Brien: The coalition Government are committed to the inclusion of disabled people in development. To this end, we are supporting countries to develop realistic plans for programmes that ensure everyone has access to education, including children with disabilities. DFID's guidance note on inclusive education for all children with disabilities in developing countries, published to support our country programmes to develop inclusive education strategies, was provided to all our country offices to support their education sector appraisals in the bilateral aid review.

We do not specifically monitor the use of policy guidance by individual country advisers. All of our country offices are currently producing business cases setting out the details of their education support. These will contain more specific programming information than the operational plans that cover all sectors. All business cases are published on the DFID website at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

when they are approved.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the use by country offices of his Department's guidance note on education for children with disabilities in their planning under the bilateral aid review. [87692]

Mr O'Brien: The coalition Government are committed to the inclusion of disabled people in development.

The Department for International Development's (DFID) guidance note on inclusive education for all children with disabilities in developing countries, was published to support our country programmes to develop inclusive education strategies. The note offers practical suggestions on supporting children with disabilities to access education and learn effectively and is available on the DFID website. DFID does not specifically monitor the use of policy guidance by individual country advisers. However, we are supporting countries to develop realistic plans for programmes that ensure everyone has access to education, including children with disabilities.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what training and support his Department (a) has provided and (b) plans to provide to enable country offices to effectively implement his Department's guidance note on education for children with disabilities. [87693]

Mr O'Brien: The coalition Government are committed to ensuring the inclusion of disabled people in development. The guidance note on inclusive education for children with disabilities in developing countries was developed with practitioners and experts in this field and was published to support our country programmes to develop inclusive education strategies.

Our guidance on disability assists with practical suggestions on how country offices can work with Governments and non-government organisations on how policies and programmes can support access to education for children with disabilities and to learn effectively. This guidance is among a range of policy guidance made specifically available on an internal website set up to support country offices with their business case planning. All education advisers are offered support with continuous professional development and training in a multitude of areas of education and development, which include how to support children with disabilities.

Developing Countries: Water

Mr Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he plans to announce the outcomes of his Department's review of support for water and sanitation programmes; and if he will ensure the review will set out his Department's plans to tackle water and sanitation related diarrhoeal diseases. [87634]

Mr O'Brien: The Department for International Development (DFID) is currently reviewing its work on water and sanitation to see how we can achieve even more results and better value for money. This includes looking at the effectiveness of programmes in improving health outcomes.

The results of this exercise will be available early in 2012.

Mr Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he plans to increase the number of countries where his Department has water and sanitation programmes. [87635]

Mr O'Brien: As previously announced, the Department for International Development (DFID) will fund five new major bilateral programmes on water and sanitation in Africa (Tanzania, Mozambique, Malawi, Zambia and Zimbabwe) in the coming year.

Any additional commitments will be dependant on the results of the ongoing review of DFID's water and sanitation programme.

Mr Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department has plans for water and sanitation programmes in Pakistan. [87636]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not have plans to provide direct support for water and sanitation programmes in Pakistan.

However, UK aid to the Multi-Donor Trust Fund for Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, the Federally Administered Tribal Areas and Balochistan will help community-based organisations improve local services and infrastructure, including water and sanitation, up to 2015.

Mr Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of his Department's bilateral aid funding will be spent on (a) water and sanitation, (b) health and (c) education in 2011-12. [87637]

Mr O'Brien: Details of the Department for International Development (DFID) bilateral aid expenditure by sector is published in Statistics on International Development (SID) which is available online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

The figures for 2011-12 are not yet available, but the results we intend to achieve are set out in the operational plans available on our website. The latest available figures are as follows:

Sector	Total DFID bilateral programme (£ million)	Share of total DFID bilateral programme (%)
Water and sanitation	112.1	2.6
Health	830.1	19.5
Education	560.9	13.2
Total DFID bilateral programme	4,253.7	—

Mr Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will attend the Sanitation and Water for All High Level Meeting on 20 April 2012 for the purpose of addressing the lack of political priority given to sanitation in many developing countries. [87638]

Mr O'Brien: The Department for International Development (DFID) strongly supports the work of the Sanitation and Water for All partnership to increase accountability of both developing countries and donors for delivering results on the ground.

DFID recognises that it will be important to have a strong UK presence at the next high-level meeting in April 2012 and the Secretary of State for International Development, my right hon. Friend the Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr Mitchell), intends to be there.

Drugs: Patents

Dr Whiteford: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with UK-based pharmaceutical companies to encourage their participation in the medicine patent pool. [87012]

Mr O'Brien: The UK Government supported the establishment of the Medicines Patent Pool (MPP) through our contributions to UNITAID. The UK has a constant dialogue with pharmaceutical companies, like Gilead Sciences, a member of the MPP, through the members of the Industry-government Forum on Access to Medicines. Gilead Sciences, who has joined the Patent Pool, is also a member. There is more information on our website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/igfam

We are also aware of and encourage continuing discussions directly between pharmaceutical companies and the Medicines Patent Pool.

Kidnapping

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many officials in his Department have been kidnapped whilst on official business overseas in each of the last 10 years. [87562]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Two Department for International Development (DFID) officials posted to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia were kidnapped in 2007. They were released after being held 12 days. There have been no other kidnappings in the last 10 years.

Nigeria: Overseas Aid

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his policy is on his Department's aid contribution to Nigeria; and if he will make a statement. [87560]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: Despite producing oil, Nigeria is not a rich country. Its total economy is one-twentieth the size of the UK's economy, with many more people. Over 100 million Nigerians live on less than £1 a day. A peaceful, more democratic and prosperous Nigeria, meeting the basic needs of its citizens, is possible within a generation and the Department for International Development (DFID) remains committed to supporting this.

As outlined in the DFID Operational Plan for Nigeria, which was published in May 2011, between 2011 and 2015 DFID will focus on promoting democracy, wealth creation and the delivery of basic services. We will work with the Nigerian Government to spend their own money more effectively. No UK aid will go through Government budgets, so as to protect against corruption and avoid substituting Nigerian public resources.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial assistance his Department has given to Nigeria in each of the last 10 years. [87567]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The Department for International Development (DFID) has provided the following bilateral aid to Nigeria since financial year 2002-03 (the earliest year in which data are available from the Statistics on International Development (SID)):

	£ million
2002-03	29
2003-04	31
2004-05	47
2005-06	78
2006-07	81
2007-08	85
2008-09	110
2009-10	114
2010-11	142

Nigeria: Politics and Government

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what development programmes funded by his Department aim at promoting democracy in Nigeria. [87552]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: In Nigeria, our support to promote democracy is channelled through the "Deepening Democracy in Nigeria programme". The programme spans the period 2010-15. In partnership with the US Government and the United Nations Development Programme, we support Parliament, civil society, the election commission and political parties. There is a particular focus on getting more women to take part in the electoral process.

The Department for International Development (DFID) was instrumental in enabling Nigerians to have their first ever credible elections in April 2011. At a cost of 33p per voter, we helped the election commission register 73 million voters in 2010. Towards the next elections in 2015, we are working to strengthen the election commission's ability to manage elections, improve Parliament's ability to hold the executive to account and support civil society to demand greater accountability from elected leaders.

South Sudan: Equality

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what development programmes funded by his Department aim at promoting equality in South Sudan. [87554]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: The UK recognises the critical importance of work to promote equality as a key foundation for peace and development in South Sudan. We look for opportunities to promote equality across the range of our programmes as well as through specific targeted support. Examples of programmes that will promote equality include a planned five-year Girls Education programme which will help to tackle the barriers that prevent girls from going to school and support 150,000 girls through primary school. In the health sector, in addition to our support for primary health care we plan to help strengthen reproductive health care, so that 21,000 women are able to deliver with the help of a trained birth attendant. We are also starting to design a programme which will help to improve access to justice for 250,000 women.

Turkey: Earthquakes

Mr Ivan Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Turkish Government on the recent earthquake in that country. [86723]

Mr Andrew Mitchell: In response to a specific request from the Turkish Government I agreed to provide 1,144 protective winter tents to house 5,500 people who were without shelter. The Turkish Government have not made any further requests. The UK Government will continue to monitor the situation in the affected region.

TRANSPORT

Biofuels

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what work her Department is undertaking into developing biofuels from non-feedstock sources. [87132]

Norman Baker [holding answer 19 December 2011]: All biofuels are made from feedstocks. Suitable feedstocks for biofuel production include agricultural crops, wastes, residues, ligno-cellulosic and non-food cellulosic materials.

From 15 December 2011, all biofuel feedstocks must meet certain sustainability criteria, as set out in the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations Order 2007 (as amended), in order to count towards the UK's renewable transport fuel obligation.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate her Department has made of the change in the amount of biofuels which will be needed for transport fuel in order to meet the requirement of the renewable energy directive for 10% of transport fuel to come from renewable sources by 2020. [87133]

Norman Baker [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The renewable energy directive (RED) contains a target for the UK to source 10% of energy used in transport from renewable sources by 2020. The contribution of biofuels made from wastes, residues, non-food cellulosic material and ligno-celluiosic material will count twice towards this target.

Given uncertainties over the sustainability of all biofuels and the best deployment across sectors we have not, at this stage, amended the renewable transport fuel obligation biofuel supply targets. The Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening) is obliged under the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations (Amendment) Order 2011 to come forward with proposals for measures to ensure delivery of the transport requirements of the RED for the period 2014 to 2020 at a later date.

Biofuels: Imports

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information her Department holds on the amount of biofuel imported from overseas in each of the last 10 years; which countries such biofuels were imported from; and if she will estimate the effect on carbon emissions levels of the use of imported biofuel in each such year. [87487]

Norman Baker: Details of the country of origin of feedstocks for biofuels and associated greenhouse gas savings are available from the introduction of the renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO) in 2008.

This information is available in the RTFO Administrator's reports to Parliament for 2008-09 and 2009-10 can be found online at:

http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/other/9780108508868/9780108508868.pdf

and

http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/other/9780108509681/9780108509681.pdf

Further detail can be found in the RTFO Administrator's reports on the supply of biofuel to the UK, available online at:

http://webarchive.nationalarchives.gov.uk/20110407094507/http://www.renewablefuelsagency.gov.uk/sites/rfa/files/_documents/RFA_verified_report_RTFO_year_one.pdf and here:

Provisional data for 2010-11 can be found online here:

http://assets.dft.gov.uk/statistics/releases/biofuels_april_2011/rtfoaug2011.pdf and a verified report will be published in the new year.

British Transport Police Authority

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many full-time equivalent staff were employed by the British Transport police authority in (a) 2010-11 and (b) 2011-12 to date; and if she will make a statement. [87741]

Mrs Villiers: The number of full-time equivalent staff employed by the British Transport police authority in 2010-11 was 10 and in 2011-12 to date is 9.5.

Bus Services: Local Government

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what recent progress she has made in encouraging joint working between bus operators and local authorities. [87501]

Norman Baker: On 8 December I announced the £50 million Better Bus Area Fund, with the explicit intention of encouraging local authorities to work in partnership with bus operators to help grow the economy and cut carbon. This fund complements the Local Sustainable Transport Fund, 35 of the 39 successful bids for Tranche 1 of which contained bus-related elements.

I have already witnessed good examples of joint working on bus services, including in Bristol and Oxford, and I continue to urge operators and local authorities to come together to better serve the needs of local bus passengers.

Buses: Exhaust Emissions

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the potential effect on carbon emission levels of the Green Bus Fund in each year of the fund's operation. [87495]

Norman Baker: The Department estimates that the earlier two rounds of the Green Bus Fund, which will see around 540 low carbon buses operating in England by March 2012, will save around 12,500 tonnes of carbon dioxide per year.

The third round of the Green Bus Fund is expected to help fund more than 200 low carbon emission buses which will save around 5,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide per year.

Departmental Communications

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) press officers, (b) internal communications officers, (c) external communications officers, (d) communications strategy officers and (e) other positions with a communications remit were employed by (i) her Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) each non-departmental public body sponsored by her Department on the most recent date for which figures are available. [84202]

Norman Baker: The number of full-time equivalent staff employed on communications activities on 30 September 2011 is provided in the following table. The NDPB figures requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost due to this information not being held centrally.

	(i) DFT central	(ii) DFT agencies
(a) Press office	14	21.6
(b) Internal communications	4.8	17.7
(c) External communications	10.1	27.4
(d) Communications strategy	8.5	17.8
(e) Other communicators	16.5	16.1

This is a 24% reduction in the full-time equivalent number of communicators from 2009-10.

Departmental Equality

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent steps her Department has taken to increase equality among its staff. [82958]

Norman Baker: In 2009 the Department developed a three-year equality action plan. This is reviewed annually. The plan reflects the civil service strategy for promoting equality and valuing diversity, and comprises the four themes of: behaviour and culture change; leadership and accountability; talent management; representation. The action plan can be found at:

http://www2.dft.gov.uk/about/diversity/talent1/diversitystratplan.pdf

The Single Equality Duty arising from the Equality Act 2010 led to a review of equality outcomes, and in particular the equality data which we are required to publish. As a public authority the Department must have equality objectives in place by April 2012, and we are currently consulting stakeholders to that end. These broad objectives will reflect our strategic direction up to 2016.

Currently the Department supports staff networks for race, gender, disability and sexual orientation who are supported by and have regular meetings with senior management. Each of the Directors General is a Champion for a particular strand of diversity and the Permanent Secretary is the overall Diversity Champion. Equality issues are considered by the top management team, which reflects the importance the Department places on this topic.

Departmental Manpower

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were working in her Department on (a) 11 May 2010 and (b) 8 December 2011. [87348]

Norman Baker: On 11 May 2010, there were 19,198 employees working in the central Department and its seven Executive agencies. On 8 December 2011, there were 17,799 working in the central Department and its seven Executive agencies.

Of this total, there were 2,017 employees working in the central Department on 11 May 2010 and there were 1,696 employees working in the central Department on 8 December 2011.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 13 December 2011, Official Report, column 98WS, on the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA), what work her Department has carried out to ensure that services currently offered by regional DVLA offices will remain accessible to communities. [87478]

Mike Penning: The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency has investigated a range of options on alternative delivery channels for all services currently offered by DVLA regional offices. Decisions about which solutions will be taken forward will not be made until the results of the consultation exercise are available and agreed. Members of the public and communities are encouraged to make their views known through the consultation process.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Manpower

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many full-time equivalent staff are employed in each regional office of the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. [87489]

Mike Penning: The following table states how many full-time equivalent employees are employed in each regional office.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Redundancy

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 13 December 2011, Official Report, column 98WS, on the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA), what steps her Department plans to take to assist staff at regional DVLA offices to find alternative employment following implementation of the proposed transformation programme for the Agency. [87477]

Mike Penning: No decisions about closure have yet been made. If, following the consultation, a decision is made to close the local offices then the Department will seek to avoid compulsory redundancies wherever possible. Among the options we will explore include redeploying staff to other offices across the civil service; voluntary redundancy and job swaps with staff working elsewhere in the civil service who wish to leave under voluntary redundancy terms.

Driving Under Influence

Paul Blomfield: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the relative standards of professional conduct of providers of drink-drive rehabilitation courses in (a) single provider and (b) multi-provider areas. [87769]

Mike Penning: The Driving Standards Agency's audits have shown that the current quality of drink-driver rehabilitation courses is variable with some providers failing to follow the guidance on running courses. The audits did not highlight any difference between the professional conduct of course providers when comparing single with multiple provider areas.

Driving Under Influence: Convictions

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department is taking with the Ministry of Justice in respect of the sharing of data on drink-driving convictions between the police, courts and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency. [87494]

Mike Penning: My review of court notifications to the DVLA identified inconsistent and missing alcohol levels for some drink driving convictions. Immediate changes to IT systems and working practices have been put in place to address the problem. The DVLA, the Ministry of Justice and the Home Office continue to work together to obtain missing alcohol level data to ensure that anyone regarded as a high risk offender undergoes the necessary medical assessment.

Electric Vehicles

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in mandating a national recharging network for electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles. [87380]

Norman Baker: Through the Office for Low Emission Vehicles, we are working to establish a national recharging network, primarily by part funding the installation of recharging points delivered by the Plugged-In Places schemes.

Our strategy to deliver the necessary infrastructure is set out in "Making the Connection: the Plug-In Vehicle Infrastructure Strategy", published in June 2011, a copy of which is available in the House Libraries. I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer to the right hon. Member for Warley (Mr Spellar), on 28 November 2011, Official Report, column 649W.

Graham Hook

Mr Denham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) correspondence and (b) meetings (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in her Department had with Graham Hook during his employment with Interel Consulting UK. [87174]

Norman Baker [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening), had one meeting with Graham Hook prior to his appointment as a special adviser. The special adviser to the previous Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr Hammond), also met Graham Hook on a small number of occasions, and corresponded once. No other correspondence or meetings took place during his employment with Interel Consulting UK.

Great Western Railway Line: Electrification

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many meetings Ministers and officials in her Department have had with Ministers and officials in the Welsh Government to discuss electrification of the Great Western Main Line since 1 March 2011; and on what dates. [86697]

Mrs Villiers: Departmental officials have had meetings on this subject with their colleagues from the Welsh Government on four occasions—on 14 September 2011 and 17 October 2011 in London and on the 24 November 2011 in Cardiff. Electrification was an agenda item at the High Level Forum between the DFT and Welsh Government Permanent Secretaries on 16 November 2011.

High Speed 2 Railway Line: Midlands

Andrew Bridgen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether she has received route proposals from High Speed 2 Ltd for the legs from Birmingham to Leeds and Manchester; and if she will lay such proposals in the Library. [87508]

Justine Greening: Subject to my decisions on high speed rail in January 2012, HS2 Ltd will submit its advice on route and station options for Leeds, Manchester and Heathrow in March 2012. The Government will consider this advice before announcing our response later in 2012.

Large Goods Vehicles

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 22 November 2011, Official Report, column 260W, on large goods vehicles, which independent contractor will be monitoring the longer semi-trailers and heavy goods vehicles study. [87480]

Mike Penning: The Department has appointed Risk Solutions as the independent monitor for the high volume semi trailers trial.

Large Goods Vehicles: Fees and Charges

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what recent progress she has made in introducing a system of HGV road user charging. [87499]

Mike Penning: We are developing proposals for a scheme of HGV road user charging and intend to consult in the new year.

Level Crossings

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many user worked railway crossings are in use; and how many have (a) closed and (b) been converted to automatic barriers in the last 20 years. [87662]

Mrs Villiers: This information is not held by the Department for Transport. Management of level crossings is an operational matter for the relevant railway infrastructure manager, which for the majority of Britain's railway system is Network Rail. As part of their safety management system, Network Rail assess risks at level crossings and consider whether closure or upgrading of protection is appropriate.

Level Crossings: Accidents

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) road traffic accidents and (b) fatalities have been reported at user worked railway crossings in the last 10 years. [87661]

Mrs Villiers: This information is not held by the Department for Transport. Safety Statistics for Railways are available on the Rail Safety and Standards Board (RSSB) website at:

www.rssb.co.uk

In addition, the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR), as the independent health and safety regulator of Britain's railways, reports annually on safety performance, including at level crossings. The hon. Member may wish to contact the ORR for further information at the following address:

Office of Rail Regulation
One Kemble Street
London
WC2B 4AN

Members: Correspondence

Graham Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to respond to the letters of (a) 19 July 2011, (b) 13 September 2011 and (c) 2 November 2011 from the hon. Member for Weaver Vale on behalf of WSD Lamb of Tall Security Print Ltd. [85034]

Mrs Villiers: I replied to my hon. Friend on 20 December 2011 in connection with his letters on behalf of WSD Lamb of Tall Security Print Ltd, with my apologies for the delay.

Network Rail

Harriett Baldwin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with Network Rail about further redoubling of the Oxford to Hereford railway line. [86938]

Mrs Villiers: There have been no recent discussions. The rail industry considers that the recently completed 20 miles of track redoubling on the Oxford to Evesham section of the Hereford route provides the performance improvements which are the highest priority. It has not proposed forward further redoubling for consideration in its investment plan for 2014 to 2019.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in increasing the accountability of Network Rail to its customers. [87379]

Mrs Villiers: The Government are committed to increasing the accountability of Network Rail and will publish a strategy for reform in the rail industry early in 2012.

Office of Rail Regulation

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in reforming the Office of Rail Regulation to better represent the interests of passengers. [87503]

Mrs Villiers: The Government and the Office of Rail Regulation will shortly consult on the scope and case for transferring certain powers and functions relating to the protection of passenger interests from the Department for Transport to the regulator.

Railways: Fares

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether she has any plans to use the consumer prices index as a measure for the change in regulated rail fares in future. [86696]

Mrs Villiers: We have no plans to use the consumer prices index as a replacement for the retail prices index in the cap on regulated fares.

Railways: Information Services

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if her Department will take steps to encourage train companies to improve their communication with passengers on (a) overcrowding and (b) delays; and if she will make a statement. [87148]

Norman Baker: The Department supports the extensive programme of work being undertaken by the rail industry to improve passenger information during disruption. The issue is regularly discussed at meetings between Ministers and senior industry figures.

In addition, we welcome the Office of Rail Regulation's announcement of its intention to make adequate passenger communication a licence condition for train operating companies.

Railways: Overcrowding

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps she is taking to reduce overcrowding on (a) commuter trains and (b) railway platforms in cities; and if she will make a statement. [87191]

Mrs Villiers: The Government have a programme to deliver additional rail carriages, addressing concerns about overcrowding. Network Rail is funded to enlarge many platforms and stations as part of this programme. Over the last year we have signed five agreements with train operators to deliver extra peak capacity for the cities of Birmingham, Bristol, Leeds, Liverpool, London, Manchester, Newcastle and Sheffield. This capacity is now being delivered.

Railways: Snow and Ice

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment she has made of the ability of the major train operators to minimise disruption caused by bad weather; and if she will make a statement. [87149]

Norman Baker: I meet regularly with senior industry representatives to review performance issues, and these discussions include the industry's preparedness to minimise disruption caused by severe weather. This includes ensuring that its plans take account of the lessons learnt from the last two winters and other weather-related incidents. The Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening), has also recently visited a rail depot in Tonbridge to see some of the winter preparations that the rail industry is putting in place.

Train operators have put in place extensive contingency and resilience plans to overcome weather disruption problems, including improved passenger communication strategies; development of additional contingency timetables for service operations under different weather scenarios; and a range of modifications to train fleets to improve resilience and address problems previously encountered. In addition, Network Rail has implemented a programme of measures including installation of heating elements to the third rail at key locations and expansion of its fleet of snow clearance and ice treatment trains.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many suppliers received renewable transport fuel certificates in each year since their introduction; and how many litres of biofuel each supplier produced in those years. [87130]

Norman Baker [holding answer 19 December 2011]: In the year that the renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO) was introduced, 2008-09, 53 suppliers received renewable transport fuel certificates and 1,283 million litres of biofuel was supplied for road transport. In 2009-10, those figures were 52 suppliers and 1,568 million litres of fuel. Provisional figures for 2010-11 suggest that 1,440 million litres of biofuel were supplied by 45 companies.

It should be noted that the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations Order 2007 (as amended) includes a requirement to exclude volumes of relevant hydrocarbon oil or renewable transport fuel which has been notified by a particular supplier to the administrator, with the clear purpose of protecting commercial confidentiality. We consider information regarding the volume of fuel supplied by individual suppliers to be commercially sensitive.

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of renewable transport fuel her Department estimates will come from (a) biofuels, (b) electrically powered surface transport and (c) other renewable sources in each year between 2011 and 2020. [87488]

Norman Baker: Renewable transport fuel includes biofuels such as bioethanol, biodiesel and biomethane as well as other renewable fuels such as renewable hydrogen. Electrically powered surface transport is a mode of transport, not a fuel. However, use of renewable electricity in road vehicles can be counted towards renewable energy targets.

The renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO) level is currently 4% for 2011-12 and increases by 0.5% each year until it reaches 5% in 2013-14. This obligation is met through the supply of biofuel.

Given uncertainties over the sustainability of all biofuels and the best deployment across sectors we have not, at this stage, amended the RTFO biofuel supply targets to increase beyond the 5% target that will be required from 2013-14. The Secretary of State for Transport is obliged under the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations (Amendment) Order 2011 to come forward with proposals for measures to ensure delivery of the transport requirements of the renewable energy directive for the period 2014 to 2020 at a later date.

Rescue Services: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the implications for Northern Ireland of the planned changes to the search and rescue helicopter service. [86055]

Mike Penning: Northern Ireland will still be covered by helicopters based on the UK mainland and Scottish Islands, as at present. Incidents will continue to be responded to within the agreed national response requirements.

The UK tasking authority will continue to work with other nations' tasking authorities, including the Republic of Ireland, to provide assistance when it is required. This is in line with existing international agreements.

Roads: Safety

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in bringing forward proposals to promote road safety. [87498]

Mike Penning: By transferring the road safety grant to the revenue support grant, we have given local authorities greater flexibility to implement the local transport and road safety measures they and their local communities consider are needed. Most local authorities have published information about speed cameras, to improve transparency, following a Government announcement in June 2011.

We are switching to more effective ways of making our roads safer, having published a strategic framework for road safety in May 2011. This includes action to enable better enforcement against careless and drunk drivers, improvements to education and more training.

The authorisation of drug screening technology depends on the type approval of individual devices by the Secretary of State for the Home Department. This is given only following operational and laboratory tests of the devices against the type approval specification. Operational tests have been completed. New arrangements are required for the laboratory tests and the Home Office is putting these into place as quickly as technically possible.

Rolling Stock

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what rolling stock her Department plans to cascade from the Thameslink project to other parts of the rail network; on what dates such cascades will occur; and what changes in capacity will arise from each such cascade. [87485]

Mrs Villiers: The redeployment of rolling stock freed up by new trains introduced as part of the Thameslink Programme is dependent on a number of factors, including the exact timings of electrification programmes and future negotiations between train operators and rolling stock leasing companies. Approximately 400 existing vehicles are expected to be available for redeployment in the period from 2015 to 2018.

Severn River Crossing: Tolls

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with Welsh Government Ministers on the Severn crossing tolls. [87822]

Mike Penning: Ministers have had no discussions with their Welsh counterparts on tolls at the Severn crossing.

Shipping: Training

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what changes her Department has proposed to the General Approach on a Proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council amending Directive 2008/106/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council on the minimum level of training of seafarers changes. [87491]

Mike Penning: Following the publication of the proposed directive in September, the UK was an active participant in the Council working group convened to examine the text.

As a result of our negotiations we secured amendments to the text to address our concerns relating to the provisions on data transfer, the timeline for transposition and the role of member states in future decision-making.

Having secured these improvements, the UK was able to agree to the proposal presented for a General Approach at Transport Council on 12 December.

Siemens

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the Thameslink rolling stock contract, what recent assessment she has made of Siemens plc's credit rating; and whether her Department holds information on Siemens plc's credit rating in each month since June 2011. [R] [86034]

Mrs Villiers: The Department has relied on publically available information from Moody's and Standard and Poor's.

Moody's Investors Service has assigned Siemens plc an A1 credit rating since November 2007. Standard and Poor's has assigned them an A+ credit rating since June 2009.

Sikhs

Jonathan Ashworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will have discussions with the Sikh Council UK and Sikh Federation (UK) on policy matters relating to the Sikh community. [87194]

Mrs Villiers: My Department regularly engages with many different organisations on policy matters and consults with bodies representing the faith communities where there are relevant issues.

Transport: EU Action

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proposals her Department has made to the European Commission on the draft Regulation amending Regulation 3821/85 on recording equipment in road transport and regulation 561/2006. [87492]

Mike Penning: The Department has not made proposals to the European Commission on the draft regulation. However the Department has been active in negotiations on the dossier, which began in September 2011. At the Transport Council on 12 December a partial general approach was agreed.

Transport: Finance

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the National Infrastructure Plan 2011, what the (a) total planned public expenditure and (b) estimated month and year of completion are for the (i) Coventry-Nuneaton rail upgrade, (ii) Chester Road (Birmingham), (iii) Cambourne-Poole-Redruth transport package, (iv) Beverly integrated transport plan and (v) Bath transportation package. [87728]

Norman Baker: The information requested is as follows:

Scheme	Planned total public expenditure (£ million)	Estimated completion date
Coventry-Nuneaton rail upgrade	18.6	December 2013
Chester Road (Birmingham)	10.3	December 2014
Camborne-Poole-Redruth transport package	26.0	October 2014
Beverley integrated transport plan	27.3	December 2014
Bath Transportation package	28.2	October 2014

The total public expenditure figures include the planned contributions from the Department for Transport, the local authority promoters and any other public sector bodies.

Funding for these schemes was announced on 14 December 2011. Details of these and the other local authority major transport schemes announced on the same day are available on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/publications/local-major-transport-scheme-decisions

Scheme costs on the published table may include private sector contributions and therefore may not match the above figures.

Transport: Policy

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what progress she has made in reforming the way decisions are made on which transport projects to prioritise. [87378]

Justine Greening: My predecessor as Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr Hammond), laid a written ministerial statement in the House on 27 April 2011 reporting the conclusions of the Department's decision making review. This set out reforms to the way transport projects are assessed, and funding prioritisation decisions are made, so that the benefits of low carbon proposals are fully recognised. The Department now uses the five case model to inform decision-making, which assesses projects' strategic, economic, financial, commercial and management cases.

Travel

Maria Eagle: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to section 30 of the Coalition Agreement, what recent progress she has made in supporting sustainable travel initiatives. [87502]

Norman Baker: On 5 July 2011, I announced that the Department was awarding £155.5 million through the £560 million Local Sustainable Transport Fund to support authorities in delivering local economic growth while cutting carbon emissions from transport. 39 projects, to be delivered by 37 local authorities, have been awarded funding for 2011-15 (all projects are for £5 million or less). Successful projects include a variety of measures such as smart ticketing, the promotion of infrastructure for electric vehicles, bus and rail improvement measures along with infrastructure improvements for cycling and walking, including £11 million for Bikeability training, and the promotion of car clubs.

On 3 August 2011, the Department shortlisted 13 authorities to prepare a detailed business case for a Large Project proposal (of between £5 million and £50 million) to be submitted to the Department by 20 December 2011. By 24 February 2012, the Department will receive 55 further bids for small projects. We will announce decisions on all these proposed projects in early summer 2012.

Recently, the Department has also announced an extra £90 million of funding for buses, including the £50 million Better Bus Areas initiative, an extra £10 million for Community Transport, £20 million for the Green Bus Fund and £10 million to make London buses greener.

A full list of decisions to date is available on the DFT website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/publications/local-sustainable-transport-fund-guidance-on-the-application-process

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

West Lothian Question

4. Mark Lancaster: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he plans to establish a commission to consider the West Lothian question. [87254]

Mr Harper: I updated the House on progress on this issue by written ministerial statement on 8 September 2011, Official Report, column 27WS. Since then we have been in consultation with the House authorities on how the commission can best address the relevant issues on the business and procedures of this House on how the commission can best address this issue. It is my intention for the commission to commence its work in February 2012 to report by the end of the next Session, in spring 2013. I will make a further statement on the detail of the commission in the new year.

House of Lords Reform

7. Mr Streeter: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent progress he has made on reforming the House of Lords; and if he will make a statement. [87257]

14. Dr Poulter: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent progress he has made on reforming the House of Lords; and if he will make a statement. [87264]

Mr Harper: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer the Deputy Prime Minister gave the hon. Member for Southport (John Pugh), at oral questions earlier today.

Electoral Register

9. Bob Blackman: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent assessment he has made of the completeness and accuracy of the electoral register. [87259]

12. Nadine Dorries: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what recent assessment he has made of the completeness and accuracy of the electoral register. [87262]

Mr Harper: The Government have funded the Electoral Commission to carry out research into the completeness and accuracy of the electoral register. The commission's report, which was published last week, was the first of its kind in over a decade. It showed that as of April 2011, the register was around 85% accurate, and as of December 2010, was 85% to 87% complete, with around 6 million electors missing from the register.

These findings show that now more than ever it is important that we take steps to improve registration as part of the move to individual registration, including looking at how we can most effectively reach those groups most likely to be missing from the register and modernise the electoral registration system.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 14 November 2011, Official Report, column 532W, on electoral register, whether meetings in an official capacity could have taken place that were not recorded. [85251]

Mr Harper: Details of all Ministers' meetings with external organisations are published on a quarterly basis. Information for the period 13 May 2010 to 30 June 2011 can be accessed on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/resource-library/ministerial-gifts-hospitality-travel-and-meetings-external-organisations-april-june

Statutory Register of Lobbyists

11. Grahame M. Morris: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister when he plans to bring forward proposals for a statutory register of lobbyists. [87261]

Mr Harper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Sefton Central (Bill Esterson), at oral questions earlier today.

Cost of Elections

13. Steve McCabe: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of (a) elections for police and crime commissioners, (b) referendums for elected mayors and (c) the work of the Boundary Commission. [87263]

Mr Harper: The Government currently estimates that the cost of:

elections for police and crime commissioners in November 2012 will be up to £75 million; the cost of referendums for elected mayors will be £2.5 million; and the costs to the four Boundary Commissions of undertaking a boundary review under the Parliamentary Voting System and Constituencies Act 2011 is £11.9 million.

Lobbying

15. Mr McKenzie: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what discussions he has had on the definition of lobbying. [87265]

Mr Harper: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave to my right hon. Friend the Member for Saffron Walden (Sir Alan Haselhurst), at oral questions earlier today.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Aircraft Carriers

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if the Government have made representations to the Russian Government about reports of waste being disposed into the sea off the Scottish coast by the Russian aircraft carrier Admiral Kuznetsov. [87582]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not made representations to the Russian Government about this issue. However, the HMS York contacted the Russian aircraft carrier, the Admiral Kuznetsov, anchored outside British territorial waters, to ask that no further waste be disposed into the sea. The Admiral Kuznetsov agreed with this request.

Anguilla: Politics and Government

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received in respect of changing of the financial and economic permanent secretaries in Anguilla; and if he will make a statement. [87645]

Mr Bellingham: The Chief Minister of Anguilla and his team raised this issue with me during my meeting with him on 22 November 2011. This was also raised during the Overseas Territories Consultative Council from 23-24 November. The Department has received questions about this from the UK Representative for Anguilla and a number of other persons including members of this House.

Responsibility for ensuring that the Anguilla Public Service is appropriately staffed and run has been delegated by the Governor to the Deputy Governor, who is the most senior member of the Public Service. The British Government have no direct responsibility for making Anguillan Public Service appointments.

The transfer of portfolios among permanent secretaries is good practice and helps to ensure that they remain independent and are able to offer non-partisan advice. In the current case, I understand that the Chief Minister, the Executive Council and the Anguilla Public Service Commission were consulted about the proposed changes. Appointment decisions take into account individuals' skills and experience and the wider need to develop as leaders and strategic thinkers.

The Governor of Anguilla and the Chief Minister are in contact on this issue.

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the reasons are for changing the financial and economic permanent secretaries in Anguilla. [87646]

Mr Bellingham: I refer the hon. Member to the Minister of State, my noble Friend the right hon. Lord Howell of Guildford's answer of 11 August 2011, Official Report, House of Lords, column WA 454, to the noble Lord Jones of Cheltenham. I also wrote to the hon. Lady on 22 August this year in response to her e-mail of 22 July answering her questions on this issue.

Belarus: Human Rights

Chris Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the human rights situation in Belarus. [87209]

Mr Lidington: There have been no further releases of political prisoners since 1 October and the eight who remain reportedly suffer serious mistreatment. The UK is particularly concerned about the health and welfare of Dmitrii Bondarenko, Zmitser Dashkevich, Andrei Sannikov and Mikolai Statkevich. I released a press statement on 24 November expressing my concern about the sentencing to more than four years imprisonment of respected human rights defender Ales Bialiatski. in a tax evasion trial that international observers described as politically motivated.

Separately, on 30 November, a Minsk court sentenced Dzmitry Kanavalaw and Uladzislaw Kavalyow to death for carrying out the bombing of the Minsk Metro in April 2011. Again, international observers have raised doubts over the standard of evidence and conduct of the trial. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office Permanent Under-Secretary of State summoned the Belarusian ambassador on 12 December about this case; the British ambassador also raised it formally in Minsk on 9 December.

Recent legislative changes have strengthened the role of the secret police and further restricted freedom of assembly. Individuals can now face a jail sentence for receiving financial assistance from overseas and the definition of treason, a capital offence, has also been dramatically widened. Senior officials have expressed the UK's deep concern about this to the Belarusian ambassador and I released a press statement on 19 October.

The UK will continue to press for real and lasting democratic reform in Belarus including the release and rehabilitation of all political prisoners. We will also push the EU to do more, particularly on sanctions.

Congo: Politics and Government

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what observers the UK sent to the recent elections in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [87772]

Mr Bellingham: To ensure that the elections were monitored appropriately, we worked with internationally-recognised monitoring experts in the EU and the Carter Center to ensure that a high-quality network of observers was in the country before, during and after the election. There were five British participants in the EU observation mission plus 18 British participants in the European Network for Central Africa (EURAC) mission. Two of the participants in the EURAC mission are members of the Great Lakes All Party Parliamentary Group: the hon. Member for Wrexham (Ian Lucas) and Lord McConnell. We also funded a UK elections expert from Electoral Reform International Services to accompany the Southern African Development Community non-government organisation mission. Finally, the British embassy in Kinshasa fielded a team of 12 accredited observers.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the UK has made to the Government of the Democratic Republic of Congo on the conduct of recent elections in that country. [87778]

Mr Bellingham: In the run up to and throughout the election process, we have engaged closely with the Democratic Republic of Congo authorities on the conduct of the elections.

In my 9 December 2011 statement, I said that I remained concerned by the reports of irregularities both in the run up to and throughout the process.

The British ambassador in Kinshasa has lobbied Prime Minister Muzito, advisers to President Kabila, the Secretary General of the majority People's Party for Reconstruction and Democracy party, and Commission Electorale Nationale Indépendante President Mulunda, to stress the need for a credible investigation into the presidential results process, urgent measures to improve the legislative elections results process (which is now under way, with results due on 13 January) and for lessons to be learned before the provincial elections, due in 2012. We have also stressed that the Supreme Court needs to be visibly neutral through the elections process.

Croatia: Elections

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of alleged election fraud in the recent Croatian election. [87163]

Mr Lidington: We followed the Croatia elections closely. Some four or five appeals were lodged but subsequently dismissed by the Electoral Commission and the Constitutional Court. The Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR) observer mission declared the elections democratic, and made no reference to election fraud in their conclusions. While the mission recommended technical improvements to the electoral process, acknowledged by the head of the Croatian Electoral Commission, the leader of the ODIHR mission saw no evidence in the elections to suggest that Croatia was not ready to join the EU.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will have discussions with Council of Europe election monitors on alleged irregularities in the recent Croatian elections. [87164]

Mr Lidington: The Council of Europe did not send an observer mission to Croatia during the recent elections. However, international observers from the Office for Democratic Institutions and Human Rights (ODIHR) observer mission as well as local non-governmental organisations reported that the elections were democratic. There was no reference to election fraud in the conclusions of the ODIHR mission and no appeals have been launched against the result.

Croatia: EU Enlargement

Chris Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of Croatia's readiness to join the EU. [87206]

Mr Lidington: On the basis of the clear progress already achieved by Croatia, backed up by the safeguards and additional pre-accession monitoring arrangements we secured in the final weeks of negotiations, the UK agreed the closure of accession negotiations on 30 June. Since then Croatia has continued to make progress in implementing the necessary reforms. The 5 December General Affairs Council and the 9 December European Council endorsed the Commission's assessment in its 12 October Progress Report on Croatia and the updated monitoring tables submitted to the Council on 28 October, that Croatia has reached a high level of preparedness for membership, and continues to make substantial progress in all areas. We expect Croatia to continue this momentum and to be in full alignment with the acquis before joining the EU in July 2013.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [86999]

Mr Lidington: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office cannot separate out the cost of food purchased through its UK food and catering services from other elements of the service or from wider official hospitality expenses without incurring disproportionate cost.

It would also incur disproportionate cost to source the data from our network of 260 overseas posts as this information is held locally.

Departmental Manpower

Stephen Barclay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many of his Department's UK-based staff are serving in overseas postings; and how many of them have completed the extensive level language qualification which is linked to additional remuneration. [86983]

Mr Bellingham [holding answer 15 December 2011]: Of our approximately 1,900 UK-based staff currently serving overseas, approximately 110 have a speaker requirement at extensive level, with approximately 580 more having a speaker requirement at other levels. The requirement for most extensive slots overseas is for officers to arrive in post with operational level skills, and then reach extensive after a period of time at post. As of 15 December 2011, approximately 40 staff are currently in receipt of allowances for having qualifications at extensive level. Other staff in extensive speaker slot positions will become eligible for these allowances during their postings when they have successfully taken the extensive exam, or once they have re-qualified if their exam pass date was more than five years ago.

Departmental Press Releases

Dr Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 457W, on departmental press releases, what assessment he has made of whether the provision of detailed extracts from his 16 November 2011 speech to the media for reporting prior to its delivery conferred any benefit to the (a) Government and (b) public interest which would not have been conferred by reporting the speech after its delivery. [86862]

Mr Lidington [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The provision of extracts proved beneficial because it gave the media, and therefore the public, more time to consider the issues raised in the speech.

Embassies

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many diplomatic posts his Department has (a) opened and (b) closed in the last five years; and whether it plans to open any posts in 2012. [84581]

Mr Lidington: In his statement to the House on 11 May 2011, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), set out the Government's commitment not to close any sovereign UK posts overseas in the lifetime of the current Parliament; to retain all 140 existing British embassies and High Commissions, and to open up to six new embassies and seven new Consulates General. This is part of a drive to expand and strengthen Britain's diplomatic network, particularly in the fastest growing parts of the world.

No embassies have therefore been closed since May 2010. We have opened a new embassy in Juba, South Sudan. We have upgraded the UK's representation in Cote d'Ivoire to a full embassy. A fully accredited ambassador will take up position in spring 2012. We have opened a new consulate in Recife, Brazil. In 2012 we plan to open new embassies in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan; San Salvador, El Salvador and, when local circumstances permit, Madagascar and Somalia. The upgrading of the trade office in Calgary to a full British Consulate General in 2012 has also been announced.

This expansion of the diplomatic network is being funded by withdrawing diplomatic staff from some subordinate posts in Europe, while retaining UK Trade and Investment and consular staff in many cases and not closing any sovereign posts. Since May 2010, the British Consulates in Lille, France; Venice and Florence, Italy have closed. Other savings will also be found as we reduce over time our diplomatic footprint in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Between 2006 and May 2010, six embassies and High Commission offices and eight British Consulate Generals and Consulates were closed. Details are set out in the following table.

In 2007, three High Commission offices (Kingstown. St Vincent and the Grenadines) and the Consulate in Nagoya, Japan were closed.

In 2008, two High Commission offices (St John's, Antigua and St George's, Grenada) were closed.

The Consulate General in Lille closed in August 2011.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in which overseas countries no representative of the Government is in residence. [84582]

Mr Lidington: While some embassies and high commissions are responsible for countries where there is no British representation, British Missions are not accredited. Heads of Mission, ambassadors and high commissioners are accredited. A number of Heads of Missions hold the title of Her Majesty's Non-Resident Ambassador/High Commissioner. A full list is provided.

EU Accession

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what regard the Government will have to meeting the Copenhagen criteria when determining their policy on future applications for membership of the EU; and if he will make a statement. [87467]

Mr Lidington: The Copenhagen criteria rightly remain at the heart of the EU enlargement process. Any European country which meets the criteria should be eligible to join. The 5 December General Affairs Council and 9 December European Council conclusions reaffirmed the principle that a country's progress against these criteria should dictate the pace of the enlargement process.

Jonathan Edwards: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his policy is on the accession to the EU of (a) Iceland, (b) the Republic of Serbia, (c) Croatia, (d) Montenegro, (e)

the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, (f) Albania, (g) Bosnia-Herzegovina and (h) Turkey. [87468]

Mr Lidington: The Government are a strong supporter of EU enlargement which helps create stability, security and prosperity across Europe. Any European country that wishes to join the EU and meets the necessary criteria should be able to do so. Croatia, Iceland, Montenegro, Macedonia and Turkey are candidate countries. Croatia is the furthest advanced candidate country and, following signature of its Accession Treaty, is expected to join the EU on 1 July 2013. Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina and Serbia are pre-candidate countries. The UK is committed to the future of all the countries of the Western Balkans, Turkey and Iceland being in the EU, once the necessary conditions have been met. The Government believe that further EU enlargement depends on countries meeting the fair and rigorous accession criteria. Each case will be treated on its own merits.

Iran: Politics and Government

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent meetings his Department has had with the Government of Iran; and what was discussed. [87771]

Alistair Burt: I summoned the Iranian charge d'affaires on 30 November 2011 to express outrage at the invasion of our embassy compounds in Tehran and to notify him that all Iranian diplomats were to be expelled from the UK and the Iranian embassy closed. Since then there has been only one meeting between the Iranian Representative to the International Maritime Organisation in London and officials of the FCO's Protocol Directorate to discuss administrative arrangements for the closed Iranian embassy.

We have not severed diplomatic relations with Iran and will maintain a minimal dialogue over issues of concern such as Iran's nuclear programme and its human rights record.

Japan Tobacco International

Mr Hain: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any (a) Ministers and (b) special advisers in his Department have received hospitality from Japan Tobacco International since May 2010. [87599]

Mr Lidington: Details of hospitality in respect of Ministers and special advisers are published quarterly on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's website at:

www.fco.gov.uk/en/publications-and-documents/transparency-and-data1/hospitality/

Russia: Politics and Government

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Russia on the conduct of recent elections in that country; and if he will make a statement. [87777]

Mr Lidington: As I made clear in my statement of 6 December, we have concerns about alleged violations in the Duma elections and have highlighted the need for a rapid and transparent investigation. We note President Medvedev's undertaking to do so. The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), raised the conduct of the elections with Foreign Minister Lavrov on 7 December. I also raised this issue with the Russian ambassador in a meeting on 14 December.

As the Prime Minister said in Moscow in September, strengthening the rule of law and democracy is essential to Russia's stability and prosperity. That must include open and fair elections and protecting the right to peaceful protest.

Shaker Aamer

Caroline Lucas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 606W, on Shaker Aamer, when Mr Aamer's case was last raised at official level with the US authorities; and when he next plans to raise it at (a) official and (b) Ministerial level. [87536]

Alistair Burt: Since the answer of 12 December 2011, Official Report, column 606W, the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), has again raised Mr Aamer's case with Secretary of State Hillary Clinton during his visit to Washington on 12 December. UK and US officials hold regular discussions on Mr Aamer's case, both in London and from the British embassy in Washington, most recently on 6 December. As stated in the previous answer, the Government remains committed to securing Mr Aamer's release and return to the UK and, again, we will continue to raise his case with the United States Government at both official and ministerial levels when appropriate opportunities arise. Nevertheless, it is important to be clear that his release remains a decision for the United States Government to make.

Syria: Asylum

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on (a) the number of Syrian refugees arriving in Turkey and (b) provisions being made for such refugees; and if he will make a statement. [86873]

Mr Lidington: According to the Turkish Government, the highest number of refugees recorded reached 20,000 in June. The Turkish Government and the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) have now reported that there are 8,400 refugees remaining.

The UNHCR and Turkish Red Crescent provide tents, sleeping mats, hot meals and education (with Arabic curriculum play areas) and medical care.

Syria: Human Rights

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Syria on human rights issues in that country. [87770]

Alistair Burt: We make clear in our contacts with the Syrian regime our deep concerns about ongoing human rights abuses in Syria.

We continue to raise human rights in Syria internationally including through the EU. The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague) welcomed the strong action taken by the UN Human Rights Council at an unprecedented third Special Session on the human rights situation in Syria, which supports the Arab League's efforts to end the bloodshed in Syria and established a special rapporteur to ensure that independent monitoring of the situation continues. The Foreign Secretary said that we will continue to do all we can to bring an immediate end to the violence.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education

Liz Kendall: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many adults aged 24 years and over who took a Level 3 or higher qualification went on to attend university in each of the last three years. [86571]

Mr Willetts [holding answer 13 December 2011]: The Department does not hold information on adults aged 24 years and over who took a Level 3 or higher qualification and then went on to attend university. Information on the level of highest qualification held on entry to higher education is shown in the following table, for English-domiciled entrants aged 24 or over to UK higher education institutions. Figures are provided for the academic years 2007/08 to 2009/10. Information for the 2010/11 academic year will become available from January 2012.

English-domiciled entrants[1] aged 24 or over by level of highest qualification on entry. UK higher education institutions, academic years 2007/08 to 2009/10

	Academic year
Level of highest qualification on entry	2007/08	2008/09	2009/10
Level 4 or above[2]	230,250	260,080	270,355
Level 3[3]	54,430	58,675	63,325
Total level 3 or above	284,680	318,755	333,675
Other[4]	50,390	51,720	44,950
Total with known highest qualification on entry	335,075	370,475	378,625

[1] Covers entrants to full-time and part-time postgraduate and undergraduate courses.
[2] Covers postgraduate, undergraduate and professional qualifications, foundation courses at higher education level and National Vocational Qualifications (NVQs) at Level 4 or above.
[3] Covers A Levels, International Baccalaureate, Ordinary National Diploma/Certificates, higher education access courses, foundation courses at further education level and NVQs at level 3.
[4] Covers Level 2 qualifications and below, accredited prior learning, advanced modern apprenticeships and no formal qualifications.

Billing

Joseph Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the (a) efficacy and (b) applicability to the UK of limiting payment periods between companies to 60 days as required by the French loi de modernisation de l'économie 2008. [86064]

Mr Prisk: This Government have made clear their objective of challenging the long-standing culture of late payment, which persists across all sectors of the economy and across businesses of all sizes, and we have supported a multi-faceted strategy for improving business cash flow alongside the UK's leading business and finance organisations.

We continue to monitor payment across the economy and will not rule out any measures which have the support of the business community in the UK. However, there has been long-standing and widespread opposition from UK business to Government intervention in contractual freedoms, including on payment terms. I understand that the French legislation allows sectors to apply for exemption and that this has been utilised by a large number of sectors.

The recast EU directive on combating late payment in commercial transactions provides a standard for payment terms in that "member states shall ensure that the period for payment fixed in the contract does not exceed 60 calendar days, unless otherwise expressly agreed in the contract and provided it is not grossly unfair to the creditor."

As part of the process for transposing the recast directive, we will be consulting with those affected on this point and other potential changes to current UK legislation. The recast directive is largely based upon existing UK legislation and experience.

Joseph Johnson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent representations he has received from (a) small and medium-sized enterprises and (b) suppliers on (i) the introduction of 60 day maximum payment terms between companies and (ii) mandatory disclosure of average payment terms. [86066]

Mr Prisk: There has been long-standing and widespread opposition from UK business to Government intervention on contractual freedoms of this nature and it remains the case that the best means of ensuring prompt payment is to agree terms in advance of supply. Evidence suggests that over half of UK transactions take place with no pre-agreed terms and that only one in 10 suppliers regularly credit checks customers.

Government are supporting business to manage cash flow by ensuring they pay their own bills on time, by encouraging big business to pay according to agreed terms through the prompt payment code at:

www.promptpaymentcode.org.uk/and by supporting businesses to better manage customer relationships through the Institute of Credit Management's Managing Cash Flow Guides at:

www.creditmanagement.org.uk/bisguides.htm

There have been over 250,000 downloads of the Managing Cash Flow Guides to date.

On 10 November, Government launched a Finance Fitness campaign to increase business awareness of the advice and information available to them from both Government and private sector providers. The campaign will focus upon managing cash to end January 2012, on choosing and accessing finance in February 2012 and on finance for growth in March 2012.

Business

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he is taking to encourage multi-national manufacturers to make long-term investments in the UK. [87421]

Mr Prisk: UK Trade and Investment works closely with BIS to champion UK strength and sophistication in manufacturing to global investors, providing tailored support to business. In 2010/11 the UK attracted 1,434 foreign direct investment projects, of which 210 (15%) were manufacturing projects. The Government's Plan for Growth sets out actions to improve the business environment for UK-based manufacturers, and to encourage new inward investment. Business support measures on tax, planning and regulation build investor confidence, making the UK a more attractive destination for overseas manufacturers.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to his letter to all hon. Members of 6 December 2011 on the Advanced Manufacturing Supply Chain Initiative, (1) whether new entrants to supply chains will be eligible for funding; and what steps his Department plans to take to assess the eligibility of such firms; [87427]

(2) what steps his Department will take to discuss the initiative with potential applicants; how he plans to identify such firms; and if he will make a statement; [87428]

(3) what his policy is on clawback of monies granted where criteria are not met; [87429]

(4) what discussions he has had with the Department for Energy and Climate Change on the (a) initial dialogue with relevant firms and sectors, (b) assessment of bids and (c) monitoring of successful bids; and if he will make a statement; [87430]

(5) whether firms can successfully apply for funding without approval from (a) local economic partnerships and (b) local authorities. [87431]

Mr Prisk: The Advanced Manufacturing Supply Chain Initiative aims to help existing UK supply chains grow and achieve world class standards while encouraging major new suppliers to come and manufacture here. The new fund will support innovative projects in established UK advanced manufacturing sectors such as aerospace, automotive and chemicals. It will also target newer growth areas where the UK is well placed to take a global lead, such as energy renewables and other low carbon sectors. The competitive fund will invite applications early in the new year. Further information on criteria, funding and other arrangements concerning the initiative will also be available early in the new year.

Business: West Midlands

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps he plans to take to assist small and medium-sized businesses to retain skills in the west midlands. [87422]

Mr Hayes: One of the most effective ways of encouraging skill retention in businesses is to ensure that the skills system responds more dynamically to their needs and brings greater value to their businesses from more productive employees.

Apprenticeships represent real jobs and are at the heart of the skills system we are building. Provisional figures for 2010/11 show that total apprenticeship starts in the west midlands increased by around two-thirds on 2009/10. We are not only expanding apprenticeships but improving their quality and making it easier for businesses of all sizes to recruit apprentices. Our research shows that apprenticeships help employers improve productivity and give them a competitive edge.

The Government announced recently that we will be offering up to 40,000 new incentive payments of £1,500 to small employers who take on and retain their first young apprentice. At the same time, we are reducing bureaucracy involved for small firms and working to ensure that the National Apprenticeship Service and training providers deliver a better service to small to medium-sized enterprises (SMEs).

In addition, we fund a leadership and management programme for senior leaders of SMEs to help them develop their own personal leadership and management skills so they are better able to create a high performing, innovative workplace and to improve the skills of their work force. We are also providing co-funding for level 2 learning for employees of small firms, and the new Business Coaching for Growth Programme will help SMEs to overcome the barriers they face in achieving growth potential.

Competition Commission: Manpower

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many full-time equivalent staff the Competition Commission (a) employed in 2010-11 and (b) plans to employ in 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [86870]

Mr Davey: Figures supplied to BIS by the Competition Commission (CC) in December 2011 record that the CC employed a total current work force of 122 individuals equating to 119 FTE.

For 2010-11, at the financial year end, the figures were 123 or 121.6 FTE respectively.

Competition: EU Law

Mr Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the effect of EU Directives and Regulations on the competitiveness of UK business. [87715]

Mr Davey: The Government assess the impact of EU legislation on the UK, both when submitting explanatory memoranda on new proposals to Parliament, and when transposing EU legislation into UK law. This includes the cost to UK business and, in particular, small and medium enterprises (SMEs), and micro-businesses.

The Government have also adopted 'Guiding Principles for EU legislation', which set out that when transposing EU legislation, the Government will endeavour to ensure that UK businesses are not put at a competitive disadvantage compared with their European counterparts.

Copyright: Arts

Angie Bray: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the answer of 8 December 2011, Official Report, column 449W, on copyright: arts, what consideration he has given to raising the threshold at which the levy is triggered to minimise the effect of the Directive on the art market. [87192]

Mr Davey: The threshold at which Artist's Resale Right becomes payable in the UK was set at €1,000 by the previous Administration. Suggestions have been made from time to time that the threshold should be changed but I have seen no compelling evidence that justifies any such change, either in terms of the impact on the art market or on artists.

Food Procurement

Huw Irranca-Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how much his Department spent on food purchased through its food and catering services in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [87004]

Mr Davey: During the period December 2010 to November 2011 the Department spent £645,062 on hospitality (which includes food and drink) with the Department's catering services contractor BaxterStorey. This compares with £1,203,977 and £872,214 in the previous two 12 month periods.

Departmental Redundancy

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the cost of redundancies from the civil service arising from the closure of (a) the London Development Agency and (b) the North West Regional Development Agency; and if he will make a statement. [87783]

Mr Prisk: Neither London Development Agency (LDA) nor North West Development Agency (NWDA) staff are civil servants. The LDA has only two officers falling within the terms of the Civil Service Compensation Scheme (CSCS). The vast majority of NWDA staff are covered by the CSCS. The cost of redundancies at LDA and NWDA will depend on the number of staff resigning, transferring elsewhere in the public sector or leaving for other reasons, prior to closure, but is estimated not to exceed £135,000 and £7,500,000 respectively.

Directors: Disqualification

Toby Perkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many people disqualified under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 breached the terms of their disqualification order in each year since 2002. [86948]

Mr Davey: The details required to answer this question are not held centrally in a readily accessible form and the information requested could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

The number of separate convictions secured by the Department for criminal offences under the Company Directors Disqualification Act 1986 (CDDA) for the financial year 2001/02 onwards are set out in the following table. Convictions under the CCDA may relate to an offence arising by reason of bankruptcy or a disqualification order, and an individual may be charged with more than one of these offences in a single case. Convictions by other prosecution authorities are not included.

	Number
2000/01	65
2001/02	86
2002/03	74
2003/04	43
2004/05	38

Higher Education: Fees and Charges

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the long-term financial sustainability of institutions charging tuition fees below £7,500; and if he will make a statement. [86759]

Mr Willetts: The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) is under a legal duty to consider the financial health of those institutions it funds. Where an institution is identified as at high risk, HEFCE will act to prioritise the interests of students and safeguard public money.

HEFCE's internal assurance service is responsible for monitoring financial dealings with institutions and their overall financial health. It undertakes audit work in institutions and assesses institutional risk. Where appropriate, HEFCE provides intensive expert support and financial assistance.

However, as HE institutions are autonomous, should one mismanage its affairs, the Government cannot offer a guarantee of protection.

Institutions are free within the parameters set by Government to determine their own fees in line with their own business models.

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect of his Department's proposed changes to the further education fee structure on the number of people enrolling in higher education courses in 2013-14. [86760]

Mr Willetts: 2013-14 is the first financial year in which further education (FE) loans will be available, for those studying in the 2013/14 academic year, so it is unlikely that there will be any impact on HE course enrolment for the same (2013/14) academic year.

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) will publish both a full impact assessment of FE loans and an equality impact assessment of FE loans in March 2012.

Both impact assessments will be informed by research and analysis commissioned by BIS. This will include the results of an online learner panel survey carried out by Opinion Panel, as well as TNS-BMRB work with potential FE students to understand how FE loans might affect their decision to study, and further research as required.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the answer of 10 June 2011, Official Report, column 516W, on higher education: finance, how many (a) doctoral, (b) taught Masters and (c) research Masters postgraduate degree course places in each subject area were funded by (i) the Higher Education Funding Council for England and (ii) other organisations in the public sector in (A) 2010-11 and (B) 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [87135]

Mr Willetts [holding answer 19 December 2011]: Information on the number of postgraduate taught (PGT) and postgraduate research (PGR) full-time equivalent students (FTEs) counted in the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) teaching and research funding methodologies for England are shown in Tables 1 and 2 as follows. The postgraduate taught figures are broken down into the following broad subject areas:

(A) The clinical stages of medicine and dentistry courses and veterinary science.

(B) Laboratory-based subjects (science, pre-clinical stages of medicine and dentistry, engineering and technology).

(C) Subjects with a studio, laboratory or fieldwork element.

(D) All other subjects

General notes:
1. The data do not take in to account any funds leveraged by higher education institutions to increase the total number of studentship places available.
2. Figures for 2011/12 are estimates and hence the actual numbers may vary from those given above. If universities choose to support part-time students and fees-only students, and/or match research council funding with that from other sources, then more students will be able to be supported; PhD students may also be supported by larger research grants from some councils.

Notes on Medical Research Council (MRC) data:
1. All of the data presented above exclude studentships at MRC funded centres. In 2008/09 there were a total of 226 students undergoing doctoral training in MRC funded Centres. This figure includes existing and new students. The MRC does not have data available for any other years.
2. Data for 2010/11 and 2011/12 are not yet available.
3. The number of studentship places funded by the MRC is subject to annual review. At present MRC have no plans to significantly increase or decrease funding for PhD or Research Masters Studentships.

Notes on Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC) data:
All masters students are included in "Other masters". Separate figures are not available for Taught and Research masters. PhD studentship numbers or the last three years are estimates from data based on returns provided by awarded institutions.

Notes on Engineering and Physical Science Research Council (EPSRC) data:
EPSRC only supports masters-level training when it aligns with their broader strategy. For this reason, in 2009 they decided to focus most of their support in this area on activities which employ masters-level training as a means of developing highly skilled doctoral-level researchers, rather than those which view the provision of masters graduates as an end in itself. As a result, their current support for masters-level training is delivered via the Centres for Doctoral Training, Doctoral Training Accounts and some courses in Mathematical Sciences (eg Statistics). Not all of these routes provide students with a formal masters qualification so it would be difficult to be definitive about numbers over a specific period.

Notes on Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) data:
ESRC funds a mix of 3 year PhD and 1 year + 3 years masters + PhD awards. The total amount of these awards is included under section (c) PhD for the previous and next three years. ESRC are unable to disaggregate these figures further in the time available without use of disproportionate resources, however they estimate that 60% of the awards are of the 1 + 3 type. Under section (b) Other masters, they have included a strategic initiative where we fund standalone masters to build research capacity in demography.

Notes on Natural Environment Research Council (NERC) data:
NERC does not differentiate between MSc and MRes, so all places listed as other masters.

Higher Education: Hearing Impairment

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps his Department is taking to promote deaf awareness among UK universities and other higher education providers. [87583]

Mr Willetts: The Department is not itself undertaking specific activity to promote deaf awareness in higher education. However, we provide funding to both the Disability Alliance and the Equality Challenge Unit, independent organisations which alongside providing advice and guidance to higher education institutions also help raise awareness about a range of equality issues in the sector.

Higher education institutions have duties under the Equality Act 2010 to support disabled students, including deaf students, when applying to higher education and when studying. The law establishes a framework of responsibility which higher education institutions must comply with and also promotes an anticipatory and proactive approach to supporting disabled students. Institutions are required to make reasonable adjustments for disabled students to ensure that they can fully participate in their education and enjoy the other benefits, facilities and services which are provided for students.

The Government support disabled students in higher education through funding. We provide funding to higher education institutions, through the Higher Education Funding Council for England, to help them recruit and support disabled students; £13 million will be provided in academic year 2011/12.

The Government also provide direct support to disabled students through disabled students' allowances (DSAs). DSAs can help pay the extra costs a student may incur, because of a disability, when undertaking a course of higher education. DSAs are provided in addition to the standard student support package, are not income-assessed and do not have to be repaid.

Higher Education: Overseas Students

Shabana Mahmood: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for the Home Department to ensure that prospective overseas students are not dissuaded from applying to UK universities by changes to the Tier 4 visa regime. [85560]

Mr Willetts: I have regular meetings and correspondence with the Minister for Immigration, my hon. Friend the Member for Ashford (Damian Green), to discuss issues raised with me by the higher education sector relating to the Tier 4 visa regime.

We have discussed the impact of proposals around maximum length of study, the removal of post-study work and during study work rights.

We have also discussed how to ensure that the message is clear that the UK welcomes legitimate students. The purpose of the changes to the visa regime is to eliminate abuse within the system.

Mr Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many students from each EU member state are studying at English universities in the 2011-12 academic year. [86194]

Mr Willetts: Information on the number of enrolments for European Union (EU) member state-domiciled students is shown in the table, for English higher education institutions. Figures are provided for the academic year 2009/10. Information for the 2010/11 academic year will become available from 12 January 2012.

Investment: Environment Protection

Luciana Berger: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills whether UK Green Investment will be providing support for the Green Deal. [87101]

Mr Prisk: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 December 2011, Official Report, column 1024W.

Phoenix Companies

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many companies, declared bankrupt following convictions for fraud, have been resurrected as phoenix companies. [87760]

Mr Davey: The information requested is not recorded and as a consequence is not available.

Post Offices

Mr Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many Post Office Locals in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland he expects will be located in (i) urban and (ii) rural areas. [87016]

Mr Davey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 December 2011, Official Report, columns 1030-31W. The exact location of new Post Office Local branches is dependent on the suitability of the Local model to the location concerned, the views of existing sub-postmasters on how the model can assist their business going forward, and the requirement by Post Office Ltd to both maintain a network of at least 11,500 branches and to continue to comply with the strict access criteria whereby, for example, over 99% of the national population must be within three miles of a post office outlet.

The Post Office Local model, which has been designed with the customer specifically in mind, is expected to be most suitable for those sub-post offices and retail premises that are typically found in urban, suburban and larger rural communities.

Regional Growth Fund: Merseyside

Steve Rotheram: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many businesses in (a) Liverpool, Walton constituency, (b) Merseyside and (c) nationally have been awarded regional growth funding contracts; and how many have received capital to date. [87188]

Mr Prisk [holding answer 19 December 2011]: Four projects from Walton, 11 from Merseyside and 176 nationally were awarded conditional allocations from the Regional Growth Fund. In Merseyside two companies have recently signed final allocations and are under way. Monies for the projects are paid in arrears but will draw down resource in 2012. Claims for £95.5 million have been paid to companies and organisations through the Regional Growth Fund.

Senior Civil Servants: Engineering

Mr Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills how many members of his Department's senior management team have (a) an engineering qualification and (b) experience in the engineering industry. [86186]

Mr Willetts: At senior civil service (SCS) level in BIS we have six people with formal engineering qualifications. In addition we have another six with experience of working in the engineering industry. In total our SCS has 55 years of experience of working in the engineering industry.

Students: Loans

Nic Dakin: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the average debt owed to the Student Loans Company by students graduating in (a) 2011, (b) 2010, (c) 2009, (d) 2008 and (e) 2007. [85524]

Mr Hayes: The average debt accumulated by borrowers who graduated (or otherwise left their course) in years 2007-10 is shown in the following table. Figures come from table 3(iii) of the Official Statistics: "Income Contingent repayments by repayment cohort and tax year 2000/01 to 2009/10 inclusive (provisional)" available on the Student Loans Company (SLC) website at:

http://www.slc.co.uk/media/77960/SLCOSP022011.pdf

Graduation/withdrawal year	Average amount of debt outstanding (£)
2007	10,870
2008	11,770
2009	14,690
2010	17,240

Source:
SLC

The figures above relate to the average outstanding debt at the beginning of the tax year when borrowers became liable to repay. Figures take into account repayments made, loans cancelled because of death or permanent disability and accrued interest in advance of the Statutory Repayment Due Date (SRDD).

The latest forecast of the average debt at SRDD in April 2012 for 2011 graduates/withdrawals is £17,500, to the nearest £500. This figure is subject to change due to interest being added, early repayments being made and borrowers who are currently counted in later repayment cohorts withdrawing from their courses before April 2012.

EDUCATION

Academies Act 2010

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the Academies Act 2010 on the provision of support services for schools. [84627]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 5 December 2011]: The provision of services to schools is a matter for local decision. Local authorities provide a variety of services to their schools and to academies. The pattern of service provision is constantly changing. We have made no specific assessment of the effect of the Academies Act 2010 in this respect.

Academies: School Meals

Conor Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he is taking to ensure that school dinners in schools with academy status conform to a programme of healthy eating. [84375]

Mr Gibb: Academy principals know that good food supports good behaviour and better concentration in school and will wish to provide healthy school dinners. There are no plans to ask academies to conform to a particular programme of healthy eating or the school food standards that apply to maintained schools, although the standards provide a benchmark of good practice. There is no evidence that academies provide a less healthy diet than other schools.

The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), has asked the School Food Trust to look at the approach academies are taking to providing healthy school food for their pupils; this will include a mixture of established and new academies.

Children: Abuse

Mr Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps his Department has taken to record the number of children who experience neglect. [87157]

Tim Loughton: In England, national data are collected on the number of children who are assessed by children's social services as being children in need and the reasons why they are in need, including whether that is for abuse or neglect. Data are also collected on the number of children who are the subject of a child protection plan by category of abuse including a category for neglect.

The Department has been working with a range of stakeholders and sector leaders to take forward the Government's response to Professor Munro's recommendation to have a revised suite of local and national performance information to drive improvements in children's safeguarding. This should give local authorities and central Government greater understanding of neglect and of other aspects of safeguarding children than is currently available through existing collections. The Department has now published the local children's safeguarding performance information that it agreed with the sector local areas should collect. The Department is planning to launch a full public consultation in January on the national children's safeguarding performance information recommended by Professor Eileen Munro.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if he will publish the guidance issued to civil servants in his Department responsible for drafting answers to Parliamentary Questions; and if he will make a statement. [85170]

Tim Loughton: The Department issues Cabinet Office guidance on drafting answers to parliamentary questions to staff in the Department who are responsible for drafting answers, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. In addition, guidance is provided on ministerial preferences.

Departmental Pay

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether any senior staff in (a) his Department and (b) its non-departmental public bodies are paid by means of payments to a limited company in lieu of a salary; and if he will publish his policy on such payments. [85084]

Tim Loughton [holding answer 5 December 2011]: The Department, its executive agency (the Standards and Testing Agency) and its non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) do not make payments to individuals to a limited company in lieu of salary. All senior staff are directly employed, are paid through payroll and have deductions for income tax and national insurance contributions made at source.

All payments for the Department, its agency and NDPBs follow the guidelines set out in the Civil Service Management Code:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/resources/civil-service-management-code

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps his Department is taking to ensure social value is included when services are commissioned by (a) his Department and (b) its public bodies; and if he will make a statement. [85651]

Tim Loughton: UK public procurement policy is to award contracts on the basis of value for money, which means the optimum combination of cost and quality over the lifetime of the project. Public sector procurers are required to assess value for money from the perspective of the contracting authority using criteria linked to the subject matter of the contract, including compliance with the published specification.

Wider socio-economic benefits that do not accrue to the contracting authority cannot be taken into account at tender evaluation stage if they do not relate to the subject matter of a contract from the point of view of the contracting authority.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Nic Dakin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education pursuant to the answer of 8 November 2011, Official Report, column 286W, on education maintenance allowance, if he will take steps to ensure that the independent evaluation considers the effects of the new arrangements for financial support for young people aged 16 to 19 on (a) recruitment, (b) attendance levels, (c) retention and (d) achievement of students post-16. [85526]

Mr Gibb: The three year independent evaluation will be supplemented by regular analyses of management information from providers in receipt of 16 to 19 Bursary funding. The evaluation will collect and analyse the characteristics of applicants and recipients of the bursaries to enable the Department to assess whether the fund is meeting the needs of young people (particularly those disproportionately less likely to participate post-16). It will also consider the perceived impact of the bursaries and examine providers' decision-making processes when awarding bursaries; and inform reviews of allocation criteria during subsequent years of the programme.

Education: Assessments

Justin Tomlinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what consideration he has given to consolidating the examination boards into a single organisation. [86812]

Mr Gibb: The Government are clear that any practices which undermine the integrity of the examinations system are unacceptable.

Following the recent investigations by The Daily Telegraph into the conduct of awarding body examiners, the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), asked Ofqual to conduct an urgent investigation into the specific allegations. The scope of Ofqual's investigation will examine every aspect of awarding bodies' conduct which gives rise to concern.

The Secretary of State has asked Ofqual's chief executive, Glenys Stacey, to report back before Christmas with her conclusions and recommendations for further action. No option, including the future landscape of awarding bodies, is off the table.

Educational Visits: Accidents

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many incidents requiring hospitalisation there were involving children on school trips and expeditions in the UK in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010. [86629]

Mr Gibb: The requested information is not held centrally by the Department. However, the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) collects data on injuries reported and defined under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995 and provides the following information:

Reported non-fatal injuries[1] to pupils/students[2] in primary and secondary education[3], 2009/10 and 2010/11[4]

[1] Injuries are reported and defined under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations (RIDDOR) 1995. Unless engaged in work experience or work placements, school pupils are classed as 'members of the public'. Under RIDDOR there are two categories of severity of injury for members of the public: fatal injuries and non-fatal injuries that cause a person to be taken from the site of the accident to hospital. On the basis of the criteria selected there were no fatal injuries reported in 2009/10 or in 2010/11.

Educational Visits: Risk Assessment

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans he has to simplify the process of undertaking risk assessments for learning outside the classroom. [86630]

Mr Gibb: The Department for Education published revised and reduced health and safety guidance for schools on 2 July 2011. The guidance summarises how the existing health and safety law affects schools, local authorities, governing bodies, and staff—particularly in relation to school trips and risk assessments.

The advice clarifies that school employers should always take a common sense and proportionate approach to risk assessment, remembering that in schools risk assessment and risk management are tools to enable children to undertake activities safely, and not prevent activities from taking place. Sensible risk management cannot remove risk altogether but it should avoid needless or unhelpful paperwork.

The Department will review the guidance in summer 2012.

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he plans to take to simplify his Department's guidance on health and safety for learning outside the classroom. [86631]

Mr Gibb: The Department for Education published revised and reduced health and safety advice for schools on 2 July 2011. The guidance summarises how the existing health and safety law affects schools, local authorities, governing bodies, and staff—particularly in relation to school trips and risk assessment

This advice has been reduced from 150 pages of information to eight pages. The Department will review the guidance again in summer 2012.

English Baccalaureate

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment he has made of the potential impact on the take-up of school subjects of non-inclusion in the English Baccalaureate in each of the next five years. [85009]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 5 December 2011]: The Department has carried out an assessment of the impact of the English Baccalaureate on subject choices, through commissioning research which was published on 31 August 2011.

The survey indicated that 47% of pupils taking GCSEs in 2013 in the schools responding will be taking subjects that could lead to an English Baccalaureate, compared with just 23% of GCSE-stage pupils entered in 2011. The research did not provide evidence which could be used to draw robust conclusions about the take-up of individual subjects not included in the scope of the English Baccalaureate. Schools were asked to indicate whether any subjects or courses had been withdrawn from the curriculum or failed to recruit enough pupils for the next academic year. Just under half (45%) of schools reported that one or more courses or subjects had been withdrawn, or were under review. However, it was not possible to identify the extent to which these changes were as a result of the introduction of the English Baccalaureate, or the effect on take-up of individual subjects.

The research report can be viewed at:

https://www.education.gov.uk/publications/RSG/publicationDetail/Page1/DFE-RB150

Copies have already been placed in the House Libraries.

We will continue to monitor the impact of the English Baccalaureate on GCSE subject choices, including through review of GCSE entries in 2012.

Free School Meals: Preston

Mark Hendrick: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many school students in Preston were in receipt of free school meals on 30 September (a) 2010 and (b) 2011. [83869]

Mr Gibb: Information on the number of pupils eligible for free school meals on 30 September 2010 and 2011 is not collected. Free school meal eligibility is collected via the termly school censuses in January, May and October. Information on free school meal eligibility as at January 2010 and 2011 in Preston is shown in the tables. To provide information based on the October or May school censuses would incur disproportionate cost.

Free Schools

Alex Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) what steps he plans to take to maintain existing successful schools in areas where free schools are proposed; [84467]

(2) what consultations are held with (a) existing successful schools and (b) communities in areas where a free school is proposed; [84469]

(3) what consideration is given to the existence of sufficient places in successful schools in an area where a new free school is proposed. [84470]

Mr Gibb: Free Schools are set up in response to parental demand and encourage neighbouring schools to improve. This demand for new schools is often caused by a lack of pupil places or parents being dissatisfied with the quality of local provision. Interested parties have the opportunity to comment on these issues during the consultation process carried out by the academy trust of each free school as part of their statutory duty.

Consultation is a key part of the establishment of a free school. The academy trust of the free school is required by the Academies Act 2010 to carry out a consultation with appropriate stakeholders. The Secretary of State for Education will take the results of the consultation into account when deciding whether to enter into a funding agreement.

Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education on how many occasions he overturned the original recommendation from his officials on a free school application; and who the applicants were. [85364]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 7 December 2011]: The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), receives advice from officials on a wide range of matters on a daily basis and makes his decisions having carefully considered all the relevant matters and facts.

Charlotte Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education which free schools planning to open in 2012 or later have received initial approval in each (a) region, (b) local authority and (c) parliamentary constituency. [86374]

Mr Gibb: Applications for 71 free schools planning to open in 2012 or beyond have been approved to move to pre-opening stage. The locations of the free schools will depend on the availability of suitable sites, but as a guide, the proposed locations (at the time of application) are as follows:

Free Schools: Finance

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what methodology his Department uses in respect of the calculation of revenue funding for free schools; how much he has allocated to each free school in 2011-12; and how many pupils were enrolled in each school as at September 2011. [75512]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 19 October 2011]: Annual revenue funding for free schools is equivalent to that received by maintained schools and academies in the same local authority area.

Guidance on the methodology used to calculate revenue funding for free schools can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.education.gov.uk/schools/leadership/typesofschools/freeschools/a0073853/advice-on-free-school-revenue-funding-201112

The revenue funding allocated to each of the 24 open free schools for the academic year 2011/12 by the Young People's Learning Agency is shown in the following table (excluding site and start-up costs).

School	LA	Phase	Total pupil funding 2011/12 (rounded) (£)
Aldborough E-ACT Free School	Redbridge	Primary	545,000
All Saints Junior School	Reading	Primary	158,000
ARK Atwood Primary Academy	Westminster	Primary	420,000
ARK Conway Primary Academy	Hammersmith and Fulham	Primary	258,000
Batley Grammar School	Kirklees	All-through	2,505,000
Bristol Free School	Bristol	Secondary	514,000
Canary Wharf College	Tower Hamlets	Primary	416,000
Discovery New School	West Sussex	Primary	278,000
Eden Primary School	Haringey	Primary	226,000
Etz Chaim Jewish Primary School	Barnet	Primary	202,000
Kings Science Academy	Bradford	Secondary	797,000
Krishna-Avanti Primary School	Leicester	Primary	260,000
Langley Hall Primary Academy	Slough	Primary	827,000
Maharishi School	Lancashire	All-through	618,000
Moorlands Free School	Luton	Primary	1,402,000
Nishkam Free School	Birmingham	Primary	933,000
Priors Free School	Warwickshire	Primary	243,000
Rainbow Primary School	Bradford	Primary	290,000
Sandbach School	Cheshire East	Secondary	4,893,000
St Luke's Church of England Primary School	Camden	Primary	169,000
Stour Valley Community School	Suffolk	Secondary	875,000
The Free School Norwich	Norfolk	Primary	427,000
West London Free School	Hammersmith and Fulham	Secondary	825,000
Woodpecker Hall Primary School	Enfield	Primary	392,000

We estimate that the free schools which opened in September 2011 have over 3,000 pupils enrolled in total. Information about the number of children on roll at each school will be collected in the annual school census and published in due course.

Pat Glass: To ask the Secretary of State for Education for what reason he has decided to provide funding for free schools specialising in mathematics for 16 to 18 year olds rather than funding for additional places in existing high-performing colleges and school sixth forms. [85464]

Mr Gibb: Our proposal could give strong university mathematics departments and academics in this country the chance to lead in developing and implementing new curricula and teaching methods for the most able mathematics students and provide the best possible preparation for further study in mathematics and related disciplines in our leading universities. We are keen to engage with all those who have an interest to explore possible models and innovative ideas.

Further Education

Nic Dakin: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many meetings (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have had with each sector skill council since May 2010. [79013]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 21 November 2011]: The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), has not met any of the Sector Skills Councils since May 2010.

I met E-Skills on 29 November 2011. The Minister for Further Education, Skills and Lifelong Learning, my hon. Friend the Member for South Holland and The Deepings (Mr Hayes), met the Construction Industry Training Board twice (on 28 October 2010 and 12 October 2011) and Creative and Culture Skills twice (on 14 October 2011 and 12 December 2011).

No other Ministers for the Department for Education have met any of the Sector Skills Councils since May 2010.

GCE A-level

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of pupils from (a) comprehensive and (b) independent schools achieved (i) three As at A Level and (ii) three A Level passes in (A) 1997 and (B) 2010. [73179]

Mr Gibb: Information for 1997 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The information for the year 2010 is given in the following table:

Percentage ofcandidates[1, 2, 3] achieving three or more AS level and three or more A level passes at comprehensive and independent mainstream schools, 2010

Admissions policy of school[4]	Pupils achieving three or more individual AS level subject passes	Pupils achieving three or more individual A level subject passes
	Percentage
Comprehensive schools[5]	87.0	72.8
Independent mainstream schools[6]	95.3	89.8

[1] Students entered for a GCE or applied GCE A level or other level 3 qualification equivalent in size to an A level.
[2] Including attempts and achievements by these pupils in previous academic years.
[3] Students are at the end of key stage 5 studies in the academic year 2009/10.
[4] School type as recorded in the Post-16 School Performance Tables.
[5] Including city technology colleges and academies.
[6] Excludes non-maintained and independent special schools.

Languages: GCSE

Chris Skidmore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many pupils were not entered for a modern foreign language GCSE in each year since 1997. [80868]

Mr Gibb: The number of pupils who were not entered for a modern foreign language GCSE is given in the table. Information has been given for 1997, 2010 and 2011—other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost:

	Number of pupils who were not entered[1] for a modern foreign language GCSE[2]
1997[3,5]	153,500
2010[4,5]	366,500
2011[4,5]	377,600

[1] Includes students who were entered but received a grade X in the subject.
[2] Figures are given to the nearest hundred.
[3] 1997 figures relate to pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year.
[4] Figures for pupils at the end of key stage 4.
[5] 2011 figures are provisional results unchecked by schools, all other figures are final.

Mathematics: Free Schools

Jonathan Reynolds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much funding will be made available for the new specialist mathematics free schools for 16 to 18 year olds. [85984]

Mr Gibb: Specialist maths free schools for 16 to 18-year-olds will receive revenue funding on the basis of the national funding formula for all 16 to 18 provision.

We are keen to engage with all those who have an interest to explore possible models and innovative ideas. The Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), will consider carefully the estimated or potential capital cost of each proposal and will be looking for projects that offer value for money.

Mathematics: GCSE

Chris Skidmore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many pupils did not achieve an (a) A*-C grade and (b) A*-G grade in mathematics GCSE in each year since 1997. [81018]

Mr Gibb: The number of pupils who did not achieve an A*-C grade or an A*-G grade in GCSE mathematics is given in the following table. Information for other years can be provided only at disproportionate cost:

Number

	Pupils not achieving an A-C grade in GCSE mathematics[1]*	Pupils not achieving an A-G grade in GCSE mathematics[1]*
1997[2, 4]	336,500	75,900
2010[3, 4]	253,500	53,600
2011[3, 4]	236,700	52,500

[1] Figures are given to the nearest hundred.

Mathematics: Specialist Schools

Jonathan Reynolds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much funding was withdrawn from specialist mathematics schools and colleges on the abolition of specialist school status and specialist school networks. [85983]

Mr Gibb: Funding for specialist schools was mainstreamed into the dedicated schools grant (DSG) from April 2011. The amount per pupil that each local authority was allocated for specialist schools in 2010-11 was added to each local authority's DSG per pupil for 2011-12. It was for local authorities, in consultation with their schools forum, to decide how to take account of previous specialist schools funding when determining their local schools funding formulae. To reduce the level of turbulence, the Government set a minimum funding guarantee to ensure that no school would see a reduction in their recurrent budget of more than 1.5% per pupil. Previous levels of specialist school funding were included in the calculation of this minimum funding guarantee.

Music: Education

Mr Blunkett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2011, Official Report, column 1085W, on music: education, what the budget of the music standards fund will be in 2011-12. [86489]

Mr Gibb: The following table shows Department for Education funding for music education in England in 2011-12.

In Harmony	500,000
Sing Up	4,000,000
Music Education Grant	77,000,000
Smaller contracts, organisations and projects	1,000,000
Music and Dance Scheme	29,100,000

During 2011-12 the Department for Education has developed a national plan for music education and a new funding mechanism. For this transitional year the Department has asked the Federation of Music Services (FMS) to administer the Music Education Grant on its behalf.

National Curriculum Tests

Charlotte Leslie: To ask the Secretary of State for Education (1) how many and what proportion of pupils achieved the expected standard in reading, writing and mathematics at Key Stage 2 in each (a) region, (b) local authority and (c) parliamentary constituency in 2011; [86234]

(2) what proportion of pupils achieved Level 2 or below in Key Stage 2 reading tests in each parliamentary constituency in 2010-11. [86236]

Mr Gibb: The information requested has been placed in the House Libraries.

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education with reference to his recent speech on strike action over planned changes to public sector pensions, which individual trades union leaders he was referring to. [85375]

Mr Gibb: In his speech of 28 November, the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), distinguished between those trade union leaders who negotiate hard on behalf of their members and a minority who take a more confrontational line. He made clear that he was not referring to any of the leaders of the teaching unions.

Pupils: Disadvantaged

Mr Ward: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of children from Gypsy, Roma and Traveller backgrounds who are eligible for the pupil premium; and if he will make pupil premium funding available for all children from such backgrounds. [82800]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 24 November 2011]: For 2011-12, 7,730 pupils from Gypsy, Roma and Traveller backgrounds were eligible for the pupil premium, representing 43.5% of the total number of pupils from these backgrounds included in the January school census and local returns.

The issues for Gypsy, Roma and Traveller children are complex. The Government have set up a ministerial working group to consider them and any decisions will be taken in the light of the outcomes from this group.

Karen Lumley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much he plans to allocate in funding for the pupil premium to Redditch constituency. [83024]

Mr Gibb: Pupil Premium funding is provided in respect of pupils known to be eligible for free school meals (FSM), children in care who have been continuously looked after for at least six months and children whose parents are serving in the armed forces. In the Redditch constituency in January 2011 there were 1,958 pupils known to be eligible for FSM and 13 service children, giving an allocation of £958,000 in 2011-12. The total number of pupils eligible for the pupil premium in the Redditch constituency may be higher but it is not possible to identify the number of pupils in each parliamentary constituency recorded as being in care or recorded in the Alternative Provision census as, in both cases, the returns are provided at local authority level rather than at establishment level.

Ian Mearns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps he plans to take to extend educational opportunities to disadvantaged children; and what assessment he has made of the effect of the new admissions codes on such children. [84113]

Mr Gibb: The top education priority for the coalition Government is to improve the life chances of children from disadvantaged backgrounds. The Government plan to introduce an entitlement to free early education for disadvantaged two-year-olds from September 2013. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, my right hon. Friend the Member for Tatton (Mr Osborne), announced in his Autumn Statement that the Government will increase the amount of funding for this entitlement to £760 million in 2014-15. This means that at least 260,000 children will be able to benefit each year, some 40% of the total number of two-year-olds.

From April 2011 we introduced the pupil premium, which guarantees additional funding for schools with children from low-income families, and will help boost the attainment of the poorest children. Total funding is £625 million in 2011-12 increasing to £1.25 billion in 2012-13, and £2.5 billion in 2014-15.

On 1 December the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), laid the revised Schools Admissions Code and School Admission Appeals Code before Parliament as required under section 85 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. Subject to the views of Parliament, these codes will come into force on 1 February 2012. Academies provide the best available opportunity for disadvantaged children in today's system, and a less prescriptive Schools Admissions Code and School Admission Appeals Code will enable many more of those children to attend higher performing schools.

Pupils: Hearing Impairment

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what steps his Department is taking to promote deaf awareness amongst schoolteachers. [86935]

Sarah Teather: The Department is seeking to drive up awareness of special educational needs and disability (SEND) among teachers.

This includes new standards for Qualified Teacher Status, a scholarship for teachers to improve and extend their expertise when working with pupils with SEND and funding for 9,000 special educational needs co-ordinators to achieve the mandatory higher level award by the end of 2011-12.

As part of the scholarship programme teachers are eligible to apply for funding for the mandatory qualification in teaching pupils with a hearing impairment.

The Department is also funding the National Deaf Children's Society to revise some of its materials for teachers and schools to better respond to the needs of deaf children.

Reading: Primary Education

Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many qualified reading recovery teachers there are in schools. [86713]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: There are currently 1,484 reading recovery teachers delivering the Every Child a Reader programme in schools.

Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many and what proportion of children receiving reading recovery intervention are eligible for free school meals. [86714]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: In 2010-11, where schools recorded this information, 8,735 children (42%) who were selected for the Reading Recovery programme were entitled to free school meals.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what evaluation his Department plans to undertake on his proposed phonics screening at age six (a) 12 months and (b) 24 months following the commencement of the programme; and whether he plans to evaluate the effects of screening on children with speech, language and communication needs. [86805]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Department is currently scoping a research project to evaluate the impact of the phonics screening check. It will be important that this evaluation considers the impact of the screening check on different groups of children, including children with a range of different special education needs.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether his Department plans to issue guidance to primary schools on implementing the phonics screening at age six; and whether any such guidance will include information on how to assist children with speech, language and communication needs. [86806]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Department is issuing three pieces of guidance for schools in relation to administering the year 1 phonics screening check. The first is the assessment and reporting arrangements (ARA) which explain the statutory requirements for administering the check in 2012. The second is a check administration guide and the third is a video version of this guide. These guides are more bespoke to the nature of the check and they refer to the responsibility of schools to ensure provision is made to meet the needs of all children with special educational needs. One of the reasons for producing a video version is that this medium can most clearly provide advice to teachers administering the check to pupils with speech, language and communication needs.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment he has made of the effects of his proposed phonics screening at age six on children with (a) special educational needs and (b) speech, language and communication needs; and if he will make a statement. [86807]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: The Year 1 phonics screening check is designed to identify children who need help with decoding using phonics at an early stage in their schooling. The Government want as many children as possible to access the assessment, including those with special educational needs.

The Standards and Testing Agency is currently analysing all of the data from the pilot and will provide a technical evaluation of the Year 1 phonics screening check, including information relating to Ofqual's common assessment criteria of validity, reliability, minimising bias, comparability and manageability. The technical report will include a dedicated section on the experience of children with special educational needs, including those with speech, language and communication needs. The Department intends the report to be published in spring 2012.

Schools: Administration

Steve Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what progress he has made on reducing the administrative burden on schools associated with requirements on continuing professional development. [86686]

Mr Gibb: The Government are committed to reducing the administrative burden on schools. The School Teachers Pay and Conditions Document requires that teachers participate in arrangements for continuing professional development, and, where appropriate, that of other teachers and support staff. There are no administrative requirements on schools in relation to teachers' professional development.

We have recently consulted on changes to the newly qualified teachers (NQT) induction regulations with the intention of establishing new arrangements that will reduce unnecessary prescription and burdens on schools from September 2012.

A number of measures have already been taken to reduce bureaucracy in schools: the Self Evaluation Form has been removed; the Financial Management Standard in Schools (FMSIS) has been scrapped and the inspection framework has been streamlined. In addition, all data collections are being reviewed and the volume of guidance has been significantly reduced. A number of burdensome statutory duties and requirements have also been removed through the Education Act 2011.

Schools: Admissions

Mr Umunna: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what recent estimate he has made of the shortage of (a) primary school places and (b) secondary school places in (i) Lambeth local authority, (ii) London and (iii) England. [83851]

Mr Gibb: The Department collects information from each local authority on school capacity in maintained schools through an annual survey, which includes local authorities' own pupil forecasts. The most recent survey data relate to the position at May 2010 and are available on the Department for Education's website.

http://www.education.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STR/d000982/index.shtml

It is the responsibility of each local authority to help manage the supply and demand for primary and secondary school places in their area and secure a place for every child of statutory school age who wants one. The Department provides capital funding to local authorities to ensure there are sufficient school places.

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what estimate his Department has made of the required number of (a) primary and (b) secondary school places in (A) Pendle constituency and (B) East Lancashire in each of the next five years. [83876]

Mr Gibb: The Department collects information from each local authority on school capacity in maintained schools through an annual survey, which includes local authorities' own pupil forecasts. The most recent survey data relate to the position at May 2010 and are available on the Department for Education's website,

http://www.education.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STR/d000982/index.shtml

The Department provides capital funding to local authorities to support the provision of sufficient school places. It is the responsibility of each local authority to manage the supply and demand for primary and secondary school places in their area and secure a place for every child of statutory school age who wants one.

Lisa Nandy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what variations in the requirement to comply with the School Admissions Code he has agreed in funding agreements with academies and free schools; and with which schools he has made any such agreement. [84248]

Mr Gibb: All academies and free schools are required by their funding agreements to comply with the school admissions code, except in cases where to do otherwise would better support local children. This Government have agreed one derogation from the school admissions code for a specific free school, the Canary Wharf College Free School, and has also agreed that because of the accelerated timescale for the opening of university technical colleges, studio schools and free schools, there is no requirement for these schools to be within the local process for co-ordinating admissions in the first year of establishment. For future years they must be within local authority co-ordination.

Schools: Expenditure

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of expenditure on all maintained schools was spent on (a) head teachers and other teaching staff, (b) classroom assistants, (c) other staff, (d) other current (revenue) spending and (e) capital spending in (i) 1997 and (ii) the latest year for which figures are available. [78327]

Mr Gibb: The available information on what proportion of expenditure on all maintained schools was spent on (a) head teachers and other teaching staff, (b) classroom assistants, (c) other staff, (d) other current (revenue) spending and (e) capital spending in (i) 1997 and (ii) the latest year for which figures are available is contained within the following tables:

Table 1: (a) to (d)—Revenue expenditure on teaching staff and all other categories in maintained schools for 1996-97 and 2009-10

	1996-97		2009-10

	£000	Percentage	£000	Percentage
Total gross expenditure	15,057,340	100.0	35,333,976	100.0

[1] Includes teachers employed directly by the school, including supernumerary/peripatetic teachers on short-term contracts and supply teaching staff who are covering curriculum release, long term absence, sickness absence and training absence. Relates to all contracted full time and part time teachers paid within the scope of the 'The Education (School Teachers' Pay and Conditions) Order 2009' and includes expenditure on salaries and wages consisting of gross pay, including bonus and allowances, maternity pay and the employer's contributions to national insurance and superannuation. Also includes threshold payments and other payments relating to teacher reforms. Expenditure on supply teachers not employed directly from the school (i.e. paid via an agency or another third party) is also included. Does not include expenditure on teaching staff employed centrally by the local authority.

[2] Salaries and wages of support staff employed directly by the school in support of students' learning: child care staff, classroom assistants/learning support assistants, exam invigilators, foreign language assistants, librarians, nursery assistants, pianists, residential child care officers at a residential special school, supply education support staff, workshop and technology technicians, expenditure on salaries and wages consisting of gross pay, including of bonus and allowances, maternity pay and the employer's contributions to national insurance and superannuation, educational welfare officers. Education support staff not employed directly by the school are excluded from education support staff totals.

[3] 1996-97 only includes expenditure on caretakers, cleaners, maintenance staff, groundsmen, porters, messengers, security staff, car park attendants, escorts and other persons who carry out premises related work and any other staff not included, administrative and clerical staff and any other staff not covered by footnotes 1, 2 or 3. 2009-10 includes all spend on staff employed directly by the school in support of students' learning not previously included in teaching staff and education support staff. Staff not employed directly by the school are excluded from these totals.

[4] Includes all other spend such as those on running expenses, premises related expenditure, supply and services expenditure, transport expenditure, third party payments and transfer payments, in maintained schools in England. Spend on centrally retained expenses is not included in these totals.

Notes:

1. Includes all local authority maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools.
2. 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the Section 52 form from the DFES
3. Cash terms figures (£000). The data are taken from the local authorities Section 251 Outturn statement for 2009-10.
4. The above data used are at 31 March 2011. These data will not match the information published on 6 January 2011 because it was amended by the local authorities.

Table 2: (e): Capital spending on schools in 1996-97 and 2010-11

		£ billion
	1996-97	2010-11
Capital expenditure	0.6	6.3

Notes:

1. Capital expenditure includes supported borrowing that was allocated to local authorities to fund capital investment in schools.
2. Capital expenditure does not include PFI.

Schools: Finance

Stephen Twigg: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how much matched funding his Department has provided to schools for phonics products and services since May 2010. [86715]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: From September 2011 to March 2013 we have made available up to £3,000 in match-funding to schools with key stage 1 pupils, so that they can buy approved systematic synthetic phonics products and training. We estimate that around £2.2 million of match-funding has been provided to schools to date for products and training services.

Schools: ICT

Justin Tomlinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment he has made of the effect of increasing use of computers in the classroom on standards of handwriting in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools. [84856]

Mr Gibb: The Department for Education has not made an assessment of the effect of the use of computers in the classroom on standards of handwriting in primary or secondary schools. The current programmes of study for English in primary schools require pupils to be taught handwriting, from forming and joining letters at ages five to seven, then writing legibly in both joined and printed styles, with increasing fluency and speed as they move up through primary school. At secondary level, they should be able to write legibly, and with fluency. The effective use of technology can support good teaching and helps raise standards, including supporting pupils with special educational needs or disabilities.

Schools: Risk Assessment

Simon Hart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what plans he has to transfer health and safety responsibilities in schools from local authorities to governing bodies. [86632]

Mr Gibb: The Department for Education is determined to reduce or amend health and safety law as it applies to schools to enable schools to take a proportionate and common sense approach to school activities.

In this context we are currently considering the options for transferring employer health and safety duties to governing bodies. For all schools where the local authority is currently responsible for health and safety, this would mean that these schools would gain the discretion and freedom already enjoyed by academy trusts, foundation, voluntary-aided and free schools. In practical terms it is the governing body that acts as the school staff's employer, even where in the majority of cases, the formal employment contract is with the local authority.

Schools: Sports

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what guidance he has given to schools regarding the release of PE teachers to organise sport in primary schools; and if he will make a statement. [81697]

Tim Loughton [holding answer 22 November 2011]: The Department informed schools of the purpose of the funding for PE teacher release on 15 July 2011. The information below was communicated to all eligible schools who were told that funding will be for the two academic years 2011/12 and 2012/13.

"The PE teacher release funding is not ring-fenced. The Department encouraged schools to use the funding to release secondary PE teachers from timetable for one day a week; to provide specialist PE and sport support to local primary schools and within their own school; to embed good practice; and to provide more competitive sport for all pupils, including the School Games.

These PE teachers can:

help schools to create sustainable school sport competition, both within and between schools, involving all pupils; help schools to involve their staff, parents, local people and young leaders and volunteers to lead competitive sport; and help schools to engage in sport pupils who are less active or who do not have equal access or opportunity to compete (e.g. pupils with disabilities)".

Schools were advised that they should plan on the basis that funding will end by August 2013. They should seek to embed the work that the released PE teachers do within their school and with local primary schools into their core provision.

Social Justice Committee

Michael Dugher: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many meetings of the Social Justice Committee Ministers in his Department have attended since its establishment. [85293]

Tim Loughton: Information relating to the proceedings of Cabinet Committees, including when and how often they meet and which Ministers have attended, is generally not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

Special Educational Needs: Academies

Dr Poulter: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether special educational needs (SEN) funding will change for academies which are within a local authority undertaking a SEN audit. [83993]

Mr Gibb: I refer my hon. Friend to my response given on 5 December 2011, Official Report, column 110W.

Penny Mordaunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Education whether funding for specialist education support services for children with special educational needs in academies will be (a) considered a relevant factor in the calculation of local authority central spending equivalent grants and (b) recouped from local authorities in 2012-13; and if he will make a statement. [86769]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 15 December 2011]: For 2011-12 the Secretary of State for Education, my right hon. Friend the Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), decided that funding for specialist education support services should be included in the calculation of local authority central spending equivalent grant (LACSEG) for academies, but should not be recouped from local authorities. The Secretary of State for Education will confirm arrangements for 2012-13 after the consultation on the Academies Funding Transfer (LACSEG) which ends on 12 January 2012.

Students: Disadvantaged

Andrew Stephenson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of its education funding in targeting disadvantaged students in Pendle constituency since April 2011; and if he will make a statement. [84612]

Mr Gibb: The Government introduced the pupil premium from April 2011 to target extra funding to help schools raise the attainment of pupils from deprived backgrounds and reduce educational inequalities. We are providing £625 million this year and this will rise to £2.5 billion by 2014-15. Pupils eligible for free school meals, including those in Pendle, will benefit from this extra funding.

This is the first year of the premium and it is too early to judge its performance. To monitor progress on attainment, however, new measures will be included in the performance tables that will report the achievement of pupils covered by the pupil premium. From September 2012, we will also require schools to publish online information about how they have used the premium. This will ensure that parents and others are aware of the progress and attainment of pupils covered by the premium.

In addition, Ofsted will be introducing a new inspection framework for schools in January 2012. It will be a requirement for Ofsted to consider how well schools are meeting the needs of all their pupils. This will mean considering the data on all groups and individuals, including attainment, progression, behaviour and attendance, with a particular emphasis on how well attainment gaps are narrowing between the performance of different groups of pupils in the school and compared to pupils nationally.

Teachers: Disciplinary Proceedings

Chris Skidmore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many teachers were struck off for (a) incompetence and (b) any other reason in each of the last 10 years. [87067]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 19 December 2011]: From 2001 to the present day, the General Teaching Council for England, which currently administers the regulatory system for teachers, has prohibited a total of 228 teachers—211 teachers have been prohibited for misconduct and 17 for professional incompetence. Figures for each year are set out in the following table in Annex A.

Annex A: Number of teachers prohibited by the GTCE since 2001

		Number
2001/02	Incompetence	1

2011/12	Misconduct	63
	Incompetence	1

Chris Skidmore: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many teachers went through school competency proceedings in each of the last 10 years. [87068]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 19 December 2011]: The operation and outcome of competency and capability procedures in schools is a matter for local determination. Accordingly, the information requested about the number of teachers who have been subject to capability proceedings is not held centrally.

Teachers: Pensions

Mr Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education if he will assess the findings of the National Union of Teachers' technical note, entitled Comparison of payments into and from the Teachers' Pension Scheme. [86733]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 19 December 2011]: It is unrealistic to assess the sustainability and affordability of the current Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) based on such historic information. There have been lots of changes within the TPS since the scheme was established; this includes changes to contribution rates and the benefits that the scheme provides. It is much more realistic to look at the current and future position of the scheme's finances.

The TPS, like most public service pension schemes, is an unfunded scheme. This means that current pension contributions, both from employees and employers, are used to help offset the cost of paying pensions to current pensioners. The shortfall between contributions received and pensions paid each year is met by the Exchequer. In 2005/06, expenditure on teachers' pensions was some £5 billion; by 2015/16 it is forecast to exceed £10 billion as a result of increases in life expectancy and growing numbers of teacher pensioners.

Bill Esterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what the monetary value was of (a) contributions received and (b) payments made by the Teachers' Pension Scheme (i) in each of the last 10 years and (ii) since the inception of the scheme; and what estimate he has made of the monetary value of such contributions and payments in each of the next 10 years. [84310]

Mr Gibb [holding answer 1 December 2011]: Teachers' pension scheme contributions and expenditure since 1949 are included in the following table. These are extracted from the appropriate published scheme accounts. The Teachers pension scheme has its foundation in the School Teachers' (Superannuation) Act 1918 although the information requested is only available since 1949.

Due to changes in the accounting standards over the period the figures are not directly comparable. Specifically the expenditure and the contributions figures show a marked increase in 1992 and 2004 respectively, due to the impact of how pensions increase was accounted for within the scheme finances. This means that figures prior to these years do not show the full cost of providing the scheme.

Estimates of contribution receipts and expenditure up to 2016-17 were published by the Office for Budget Responsibility on 29 November 2011 as part of the publication "Economic and fiscal outlook supplementary fiscal tables—November 2011". An extract relating to the teachers' pension scheme is included as follows.

Teachers: Qualifications

Ian Mearns: To ask the Secretary of State for Education how many teaching staff completed the National Professional Qualification for Headship (NPQH) in the 2010-11 school year by (a) phase of the school where they were working and (b) Government office region; and how many headships were advertised by schools requiring the NPQH qualification by (i) phase of school and (ii) government office region in each month of 2011 to date. [85434]

Mr Gibb: The National Professional Qualification for Headship, (NPQH), is administered by the National College for School Leadership. Steve Munby, the chief executive, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of his response has been placed in the House Libraries.

Letter from Steve Munby, dated 8 December 2011:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question PQ085434:

"To ask the Secretary of State for Education, how many teaching staff completed the National Professional Qualification for Headship (NPQH) in the 2010-11 school year by (a) phase of the school where they were working and (b) government office region; and how many headships were advertised by schools requiring the NPQH qualification by (i) phase of school and (ii) government office region in each month of 2011 to date."

I confirm that the National College holds the details of the numbers of teaching staff who have completed the National Professional Qualification for Headship (NPQH) in the 2010-11 school year by (a) phase of the school where they were working and (b) government office region and these are shown in the following table.

The National College does not hold information in respect of the number of headships advertised by schools requiring the NPQH qualification.

Teachers: Training

Damian Hinds: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what proportion of (a) mathematics, (b) science, (c) biology, (d) chemistry and (e) physics teachers who achieved Qualified Teacher Status in the last year hold a (i) first class, (ii) 2.1, (iii) 2.2 and (iv) third class degree in (A) any subject and (B) mathematics. [86259]

Mr Gibb: The latest available information on degree classification in (A) any subject and (B) mathematics held by (a) mathematics, (b) science, (c) biology, (d) chemistry and (e) physics teachers who have achieved Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) can be found in tables A and B respectively.

Fewer than 1% of science and physics teachers who achieved QTS in 2009/10 held a degree in mathematics. The number of teachers in each of these groups is therefore too small to be broken down by degree classification. There were no biology or chemistry teachers who achieved QTS in 2009/10 and held a degree in mathematics.

Table A: Classification of first degree held by mathematics, science, biology, chemistry and physics teachers achieving QTS status in 2009/10

Teenage Pregnancy

John Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Education what estimate his Department has made of the number of girls in schools whose education has been interrupted by pregnancy in each of the last five years. [85505]

Sarah Teather: We do not hold data centrally on girls in schools whose education has been interrupted by pregnancy. However, guidance to schools and local authorities makes it clear that support should be directed to keeping pregnant pupils in school whenever possible and to return to full-time education as soon as possible after the birth. The Equality Act 2010 supports this policy. Under the Act it is unlawful for schools to treat pupils less favourably because of their pregnancy or maternity.

England has declining teenage pregnancy rates; under-18 conceptions have fallen by 18.1% to the lowest rate in almost 30 years. I have provided data in the following tables on conceptions to under-16 and under-18 year olds from 2005 to 2009 and conceptions by single year age(s) from 2005-09.

DFE and the Office for National Statistics are currently engaged in a project to link teenage conception records to the National Pupil Database which contains information on pupils' demographic characteristics, school attendance and educational attainment. Analysis of this linked dataset should give us a better understanding of the demographic and education profiles of teenagers who conceive and then go on either to give birth or have abortions. This will help to inform further work to reduce teenage pregnancy and improve sexual health.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departmental Flags

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which flag or flags are routinely displayed outside each of his Department's overseas (a) posts and (b) residences. [84588]

[Official Report, 7 December 2011, Vol. 537, c. 307-8W.]

Letter of correction from Henry Bellingham:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) on 7 December 2011.

The full answer given was as follows:

Mr Bellingham: The information requested is as follows:

(a) The general rule is that the relevant flag—as follows—should be flown at post on all working days during office hours, depending on which country the posts are located in and the type:

Diplomatic flag—this is the Union flag with the Royal Arms in the centre surrounded by a green garland.

Consular flag—this is the Union flag with the St Edward's Crown in the centre on a white disc . It is only flown at consular posts in foreign countries.

Union flag—this is flown in Commonwealth countries.

European flag—the display of the European flag is a courtesy rather than a requirement. On Europe day (9 May), posts in EU and EU-applicant countries should display the European flag. Other posts may also display the flag on Europe day where this is normal local practice. UKREP Brussels displays the European flag at all times. All posts may display the flag at other times where this is normal local practice.

In all cases, the European flag is displayed alongside, not instead of, the British Diplomatic, Consular or in Commonwealth countries the Union flag, with the British flag having precedence.

Overseas Territories—The personal flag of an Officer Administering the Government (OAG) in an Overseas Territory is the Union flag, superimposed in the centre with the approved arms or badge of the Territory on a white disc surrounded by a green garland. It is flown from sunrise to sunset at Government House when the OAG is in residence: if he/she is not, the flag is flown wherever he/she is in the Territory.

The Union flag is flown from sunrise to sunset at Government House when the OAG is not in residence. It is also flown there if he/she has placed the residence entirely at the disposal of an important visitor, e.g. a member of the royal family.

UK national flags—three of the four constituent countries of the United Kingdom have their own national flags: the St Andrew's, St David's, and St George's flags. (Northern Ireland is currently without a national flag, pending a new design.) These flags may be flown on the appropriate national day. Posts also have discretion to fly them when special circumstances/events dictate, e.g. the visit of a Minister from a devolved Administration.

London 2012—The International Olympic Committee and the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games gave permission for posts overseas to fly the London 2012 host country flag on key dates in 2012 and for the duration of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, which the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, my right hon. Friend the Member for Richmond (Yorks) (Mr Hague), has supported. The dates in question are as follows:

9 January 2012: 200 days to go—Olympics

11 February 2012: 200 days to go—Paralympics

18 April 2012: 100 days to go—Olympics

10 May 2012: Lighting of the Olympic flame

17 May 2012: Handover of the Olympic flame

18 May 2012: Arrival in the UK of the Olympic flame

21 May 2012: 100 days to go—Paralympics

27 July to 12 August 2012 inclusive: Olympic Games

29 August to 9 September 2012 inclusive: Paralympic Games.

Posts are only permitted to fly the 2012 flag on those agreed dates above, but can display it in their reception areas at other times. Again the British Diplomatic, Consular or the Union flag, will take precedence.

(b) The general rule for flying the relevant flags listed above at Residencies is that they should be flown on the following British anniversaries, during the visit of one of Her Majesty's ships or on days of local celebration or mourning.

British Anniversaries:

20 January: birthday of HRH the Countess of Wessex

6 February: Her Majesty's Accession

19 February: birthday of HRH the Duke of York

1 March: St David's day

10 March: birthday of HRH the Earl of Wessex

17 March: St Patrick's day

March (second Monday): Commonwealth day

21 April: birthday of Her Majesty

23 April: St George's day

9 May: Europe day[1]

2 June: Coronation day

10 June: birthday of HRH the Duke of Edinburgh

June (second Saturday): official celebration of Her Majesty's birthday

17 July: birthday of HRH the Duchess of Cornwall

15 August: birthday of HRH the Princess Royal

November (second Sunday):Remembrance day

14 November: birthday of HRH the Prince of Wales

20 November: Her Majesty's wedding anniversary

30 November: St Andrew's day.

[1] The Union flag should fly alongside the European flag. On Government buildings that only have one flagpole, the Union flag should take precedence.

The correct answer should have been:

18 April 2012: 100 days to go—Olympics

10 May 2012: Lighting of the Olympic flame

17 May 2012: Handover of the Olympic flame

18 May 2012: Arrival in the UK of the Olympic flame

21 May 2012: 100 days to go—Paralympics

27 July to 12 August 2012 inclusive: Olympic Games

29 August to 9 September 2012 inclusive: Paralympic Games.

Posts are only permitted to fly the 2012 flag on those agreed dates above, but can display it in their reception areas at other times. Again the British Diplomatic, Consular or the Union flag, will take precedence.

(b) The general rule for flying the relevant flags listed above at Residencies is that they should be flown on the following British anniversaries, during the visit of one of Her Majesty's ships or on days of local celebration or mourning.

British Anniversaries:

20 January: birthday of HRH the Countess of Wessex

6 February: Her Majesty's Accession

19 February: birthday of HRH the Duke of York

1 March: St David's day

10 March: birthday of HRH the Earl of Wessex

17 March: St Patrick's day

March (second Monday): Commonwealth day

21 April: birthday of Her Majesty

23 April: St George's day

9 May: Europe day[1]

2 June: Coronation day

10 June: birthday of HRH the Duke of Edinburgh

June (second Saturday): official celebration of Her Majesty's birthday

17 July: birthday of HRH the Duchess of Cornwall

15 August: birthday of HRH the Princess Royal

November (second Sunday):Remembrance day

14 November: birthday of HRH the Prince of Wales

20 November: Her Majesty's wedding anniversary

30 November: St Andrew's day.

[1] The Union flag should fly alongside the European flag. On Government buildings that only have one flagpole, the Union flag should take precedence.

Ministerial Corrections

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Government Procurement Card

Chris Kelly: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Government Procurement Card transactions were made by his Department's officials withdrawing cash from automated teller machines from 2006-07 to 2009-10; at what cost; and on what dates. [67432]

[Official Report, 7 September 2011, Vol. 532, c. 647-8W.]

Letter of correction from Robert Neill:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Dudley South (Chris Kelly) on 7 September 2011. The duplicated amount on 8 September 2006 of £351.42 should have been '-£351.42', where the money was immediately reimbursed.

The full answer given was as follows:

Robert Neill [holding answer 19 July 2011]: The following cash withdrawals have been made by departmental officials from April 2006 to March 2010:

	Amount (£)
24 April 2006	235.10
1 June 2006	611.03
8 September 2006	88.93
8 September 2006	351.42
8 September 2006	351.42
8 September 2006	402.64
18 October 2006	861.21
7 November 2006	73.12
27 November 2006	527.82
1 December 2006	205.52
5 December 2006	36.76
5 December 2006	477.94
10 January 2007	348.34
28 June 2007	500.00
2 July 2007	500.00
3 July 2007	200.00
4 November 2008	190.68
9 December 2008	49.64

Currently the Department pays a 2.95% fee on cash advances (minimum charge of £2.95). For foreign exchange transactions we pay a 2.95% fee (minimum charge of £2.95 plus a further currency exchange purchase fee of 2.95%).

The new administration has reviewed its policy on Government Procurement Card usage. As well as reducing the number of cards held, the Department has cancelled the cash withdrawal facility for all but two Government Procurement Card holders (for business continuity reasons).

The correct answer should have been:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Sport and Youth Crime

The following is an extract from the closing speech given by the Minister for Policing and Criminal Justice, the right hon. Member for Arundel and South Downs (Nick Herbert) to the hon. Member for Folkestone and Hythe (Damian Collins) during the Westminster Hall Adjournment Debate on Sport and Youth Crime on 6 December 2011.

Damian Collins: In the United States there is a programme called Badges for Baseball—all these programmes have snappy names—in which the police organise baseball and softball league games directly with young people. Does the Minister feel that there may be additional scope for police to be directly involved with such programmes in the UK?

Nick Herbert: The Positive Futures programme will continue until the end of 2013; thereafter, elected police and crime commissioners will have a budget that they can distribute for similar programmes, should they so choose.

[Official Report, 6 December 2011, Vol. 537, c. 24-5WH.]

Letter of correction from Nick Herbert:

An error has been identified in the response given to the hon. Member for Folkestone and Hythe (Damian Collins).

The correct response should have been:

Nick Herbert: The Positive Futures programme will continue until the end of March 2013; thereafter, elected police and crime commissioners will have a budget that they can distribute for similar programmes, should they so choose.

INDEX TO THE

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

OFFICIAL REPORT

SIXTH SERIES VOLUME 537

SESSION 2010–12

5th December—20th December 2011

SCOPE

The index is derived from the headings that appear in Hansard.

The index includes entries covering the names of all Members contributing to the Parliamentary business recorded in Hansard, including Divisions.

REFERENCES

- References in the indexes are to columns rather than pages.
- There are separate sequences in Hansard for the material taken on the floor of the House, Westminster Hall sittings, written statements, written questions, ministerial corrections and petitions
  - References consisting of a number by itself indicate material taken on the floor of the House.
  - References ending in 'wh' indicate Westminster Hall sittings.
  - References ending in 'ws' indicate written statements.
  - References ending in 'w' indicate written questions.
  - References ending in 'p' indicate written petitions.
  - References ending in 'mc' indicate ministerial corrections.
- References under all headings except the names of Members contributing to Parliamentary business and the titles of legislation are listed in one numerical sequence irrespective of whether the material is taken on the floor of the House, is discussed at a Westminster Hall sitting, is a written statement or is a written question.
- References under the names of Members contributing to Parliamentary business are listed in numerical sequence under the following headings-
  - Chamber Debates (which includes interventions and points of order as well as significant contributions to debates);
  - Westminster Hall Debates (covering all debates held as part of the Westminster Hall sittings);
  - Written Statements (consisting of ministerial statements issued in writing);
  - Questions (which includes all written, oral and urgent questions); and
  - Petitions (which includes all oral and written petitions).
